Pretty FSU Coed Will Visit Bolivia

By BEVERLY LA CAYO

Pretty coed Delores DeLand will be spending the next two years in La Paz, Bolivia, just ten degrees south of the equator.

HER FATHER, Professor Graydon DeLand, of the modern languages department, has accepted a position with the United States State Department as director of the "Centro Boliviano-Americano." Miss DeLand is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and is majoring in modern languages.

When asked what she looked forward to on her trip she named two things as most important. She will be making her first plane trip which will take approximately 14 hours from Miami. Second, although La Paz is only a short distance from the equator, the average yearly temperature is only 48°. "It will be a change from Tallahassee weather," she says.

LA PAZ IS the highest capital in the world, being over twelve thousand feet above sea level. This is the main reason for the cool temperature. The altitude has its disadvantages, also, says Miss DeLand. Her family will have to take a pressure cooker with them because it takes longer to boil water, cook vegetables, etc. since air pressure is so much less in the mountains.

The city has over 300,000 inhabitants, only around 300 of which are American. The "Centro Boliviano-Americano" was established by the American government for the purpose of teaching English and American ideas and customs. Besides classes there are dances, teas and other entertainment for people of both nationalities.

CLASSES AT the University in La Paz seem to follow the old Spanish tradition of ease and comfort while you work. They start at 10:30 in the morning and continue until 1:30 p.m. After a four hour siesta they resume classes in 5:30 and continue until 8:30.

The family will have easier living in La Paz where the prices are far more reasonable than any in the United States. Room and board at the most luxurious and modern hotel in the city is only $5 a day. Seventeen cents will take you anywhere in the city by taxi. There is only one thing that might make the DeLands homesick. They will have to do without many American brand products such as Kleenex and canned goods. But perhaps this will be offset by the fact that they will not have to hear of the great virtues of these products over the radio.

DR DeLand and his family will leave from Miami as soon as he finishes his training program in Washington, D. C.

Lunch Room Heads Attend Short Course

An "Orientation Course" discussing improved modern methods of serving school lunches and obtaining maximum efficiency from the program will be offered here next week. About 100 lunchroom managers and department personnel from 21 counties will attend.

The special school lunch training program is under the supervision of Mrs Thelma Flanagan and Miss Florence Wagner, both of the state department of education.

Nearly all those taking part in the training program are also participating in the state-wide classification system for school lunch personnel with full credit for the special training, according to Miss Wagner.

Lt Col Oder Classes Meteorology Work As Defense Project

A research project being conducted by the department of meteorology on atmospheric and weather conditions in the Mediterranean area is classified as defense work of the most essential nature. This has been announced by Lieutenant Colonel Frederic C. Oder of the United States air force, director of the geophysical research directorate.

Lieutenant Colonel Oder has written the university, "We feel that individuals working under our contracts are entitled to the facts on the importance of this work to their country in these critical times. Our program of which your contract is part has its broad charter directly from the headquarters of the United States air force."

The official also pointed out that the research program carries department of defense priorities of 1B and 1A, the highest possible ratings. Being thoroughly coordinated by the research and development board, it carries the highest importance rating of that organization.

Ruge Hall Sponsors Summer Art Project

Ruge Hall is sponsoring a new plan for the exhibition of paintings by FSU art students, according to Chaplain Morley.

The first work, graduate student Guy Johnson's "Seascape," will be hung Sunday at 6:30 p.m. The artist will be introduced for a personal interpretation of his painting. Faculty and students are invited to be present at this occasion.

"Seascape," completed last year, will remain over the Ruge fireplace for the remainder of the summer.

Plans are being made for this art project to be continued during the fall. Each of four paintings will be loaned for the student center for three months during the year.

FSU Thespians Travel To Panama City Friday

About twenty graduate women, professors, and men students made the jaunt to Panama City beach last Friday eve to see Pelican Players' performance of Noel Coward's Private Lives. The play was arranged for theatre in the round, which gives the audience a chance to see the actors at a close-up glance.

Thornton Wilder's Our Town, now in its third week of rehearsal, is progressing well. The audience may be a little surprised at the unusual approach used in the presentation. Best not to reveal all, though, for the best effects of the play come with the surprise elements used.

The prop and sound crew is employing talented persons who can give the effect of a train whistle, falling papers, chickens and horses.

Young Byron McCalmon, son of Dr George McCalmon, who is the head of the drama area of the department of speech, is getting his first chance to act on the stage of Conradi. He will be seen as Joe Crowell in the first act. Joe grows up in Acts II and III.

Frances Highlower, who attends high school at Leon, plays the part of Rebecca, the little sister of the male lead, who is portrayed by David Lowe. The School of Music students are taking Conradi by storm. Adrianne Norton, notable for her leading role in Pirates of Penzance, and Lowe play the young couple, George and Emily.

Formal Opening Held For Art Exhibition

The formal opentnr of the Lois Jean Knobler exhibition was held last Monday July 16. from four to six. The artist, a 1951 graduate of the art department, proves through her exhibit of twenty-three oils and ten illustrations to be a painter of exceptional ability. This exhibit constitutes a major part of her work for her degree of Master of Fine Arts.

An outstanding canvas in the show is entitled "Still Life With Onions." This is a beautifully designed painting executed in delicate tones of whites, yellows, and tans. It deals very subtlely and sensitively with her subject matter.

Mrs Knobler's inherent interest in children and their many fascinations will undoubtedly greatly add to her success as an illustrator of children's books. A good example of this is her "Boy With Cat," a handsome small canvas depicting the charm and curiosity of a youngster. The artist seems to have complete command and understanding of what it takes to present illustrative materials to children in a whimsical and captivating manner.

Lois Jean Knobler's one woman show has been singled out by many on the campus as the most outstanding to date.

VOL. XXXVII, No. 7 | PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA | Friday, August 3, 1951

Seminar Began July 30 to Run Until August 15

Members Will Consider Public Relations and the Physical Education Dept.

The seminar on public relations for physical education, held here since July 30 and continuing until August 15, is discussing program information. The seminar, sponsored by department of physical education for men and women, is headed by Dr Howard G Danford and Dr Katherine Montgomery.

The "faculty" is composed of Dr Delbert Oberteuffer, chairman of physical education at Ohio State University, and Dr Benjamin Fine, editor of the New York Times, as main speakers.

OTHER SPECIALISTS are Dave Yates, managing editor of the Tallahassee Democrat and Red Pulitzer, sports editor of the same newspaper; John Newton Baer, director of public relations and ED Whitesley, University of Florida public relations director also participating, and Robert Decker, news editor of WTAL. Dr Clarence Derthick, state superintendent head; Roy Flynn, radio director; Jack Haskin, circus director; Bonnie Bell, director of field services and studies; Dr Shirley Price, professor of physical education, instructor; and Ned Wier, sports publicity director.

AT THE LUNCHEON session Monday morning, President Campbell extended a welcome to the group, stating he also emphasized on physical education at the University.

In his first lecture, Dr Oberteuffer stressed the close inter-relation of physical and mental development in the physical education area. He emphasized the related possibilities, saying that physical education should be considered as important as the school's academic program and as school and college level boys and girls.

At the seminar session in the Little building Thursday, Dr Oberteuffer developed his theory that sports at school programs have no virtue except as used by and for the individual. He also spoke of the many avenues of thought and learning needed to produce the truly educated man.

DR FINE POINTED out the failure of physical education to present a true picture of the program it offers. He emphasized that public relations should aim for friendship and understanding, not mere publicity which can hurt as well as help. He pointed the physical education courses here, planning to write a column on the FSU CONFERENCE UNDERWAY—Millard F Caldwell, Federal Defense Administrator and former Florida governor, is shown speaking at the "Citizenship Education and Civil Defense Conference," at Florida State University, sponsored jointly by the State Department of Education and the University. The conference, which began Monday, July 30, will continue through Friday, August 3. Seated on the stage in conference speakers and consultants are, left to right, Dr Harris Dean, FSU conference co-director; J Russell Deax, Washington, special assistant for the defense planning Office of Vocational Rehabilitation; Federal Security Agency; Col R G Hewis, Jacksonville, state director of civil defense; D Mack Easton, civil defense administration, Washington; Dr T Q Srygley, conference director; Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU president, and Thomas D Bailey, state superintendent of education.

Dr Hill, Peabody College Prexy, To Address Summer Commencement

Dr Henry Harrington Hill, president of George Peabody College in Nashville Tennessee, will be the summer commencement speaker, according to President Campbell.

Dr Hill, a native of Statesville, North Carolina, has been president of George Peabody since 1945. From 1940 to 1942 he served as dean of the University of Kentucky, and from 1942 to 1945 was superintendent of schools in Pittsburgh, Pa.

HIS CAREER as an educator has included that of a high school teacher, principal, and superintendent; instructor of Spanish; state high school supervisor; professor of school administration; lecturer in education; and other educational positions in Arkansas, Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee.

Dr Hill holds his Ph D degree from Columbia University and LL D degree from the University of Pittsburg, Davidson College, and Union University. He received his AB and AM from the University of Virginia.

HE IS A MEMBER of the executive committee on curricular problems and research and is vice president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He has served as chairman of the Education Commission of the American Association of School Administrators and was a member of the U S Education Mission to Germany in 1946. He is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity.

The graduation exercises, to be held in the music amphitheater at 8 p m on August 15, will consist of the "Musicmusers" will have a swim session, and after the program there will be a picnic. The event at Wakulla Springs is an annual one, sponsored jointly by the Lodge management and the School of Music.

The program for Saturday will include Mary Monarch March by Talbott, Miniature Overture—Three Sides of Rhythm by Finkelkaser, Noble Men March by Fillmore. Prelude by Wagand, and America We March by Fillmore.

The second part of the concert will include Romantic Overture by Buchtel, Salutation March, by Seitz, Military Symphony in F by Dvorak, Marche Poco by Mohr, and the Camp theme song. Way Down Upon the Suwannee River by Stephen Foster.

MUSIC camp vocal students will present Down in the Valley, the American folk opera by Kurt Weill, in the music hall Wednesday evening, at 7:15 to 8:15. The performance will be open to the public.

Down in the Valley is based on the folk song of the same name, known as "Wondering Where's Jail." The opera relates the sad tale of Brack Weaver's love for Jennie Parsons. Jennie is in love with Brack, but Father Parsons thinks that Thomas Bourke, a middle-aged neighbor, is a better match. The climax is reached when Brack kills Bourke in a scuffle at the Shadow Creek Cafe, and goes to his fate on the gallows.

FROM THIS simple folk tale, Arnold Sundgaard has fashioned a libretto, set to music by Kurt Weill. Weill has used several American folk songs to catch the exact color of the mountain setting. Included are "Sourwood Mountain," "The Lonesome Dove," "There's a Little Black Train A-Comin," and the title song, "Down in the Valley."

Leading roles in the production will be taken by Bill Dalrymple, Helen Russell, John Larsen, and Wayne Bullock. The show is directed by Professors Herman Gunter, Jr. and Walter James. Jimmy Staples is the accompanist.

There will be no admission charge.

Recitals Planned For Coming Week By Music School

Two recitals by students in the School of Music will be presented in the Music Hall during the coming week. Thomas C Rogero, pianist, will present a graduate recital on Saturday, August 11, and Adrian Ketcham, baritone, will present a certificate recital on Monday, August 6. Both programs will begin at 8:15 p m.

THOMAS ROGERO is a pupil of John Boda and a former pupil of Sidney Foster. His program will includes the Prelude, Chorale and Fugue by Cesar Franck, Sixteen Waltzes, Opus 39 by Brahms, Three Etudes by Chopin and the Etude Tone Poem by Claude Debussy.

Adrian Ketcham, a student of Prof Betty Jane Grimm, will be accompanied by James Harris. He will be assisted in the program by Ernest Jones, who will play the second movement of the Mendelssohn Concerto for Violin

Music Camp Plans 3 Musical Events To Close Session

Music camp students have scheduled three events for the remainder of summer session.

The organizations will present two concerts this weekend. Saturday afternoon the Band will perform at Wakulla Springs Lodge at 3:30, and the band and orchestra will present their weekly program in the music hall on Sunday at 6:30 p m.

BEFORE the Saturday concert, the "Musicmusers" will have a swim session, and after the program there will be a picnic. The event at Wakulla Springs is an annual one, sponsored jointly by the Lodge management and the School of Music.

Dr Van Assendorp States Views Further

By BOB TIPPINS

The Chinese - Japanese - Korean question discussed last week in the Flambeau by Dr Andre L Van Assendorp has aroused interest here from students, faculty and others. In another interview yesterday, Dr Van Assendorp furthered further his views on the highly controversial Far Eastern question.

"MY OPINION that the Chinese Communists served Russia without Russia's prompting," said Van Assendorp, "was based on several reasons, not fully discussed last week."

In addition to the historical elements, Russia's desire to keep China an ally rather than a captive nation, Russia's inability to colonize Siberia in another 30 years, her peaceful imperialism with the Chinese-Japanese conflict over the "buffer" state of Korea, there were these following reasons that led me to my conclusion.

1—The Chinese tendency to overcompensate after the Nine Power Treaty, by insisting on the "Open" door, the Western Powers from Chinese waters.

2—CHINESE view of Manchuria as a potential outlet for the northern Chinese population excesses.

3—Historical Chinese concern over the sinarian relations with Korea, which was a Chinese concern, rather than a red Chinese concern.

4—Elimination of Japan from both the Manchurian and Korean scene as a result of its defeat in World War II.

"I CONCLUDED," Van Assendorp continued, "on these grounds that in the face of demographic pressures in northern China and of the obvious limitations in Russian colonization of adjacent Siberian territories, there might well be a Chinese attempt to fill these vacuums, not necessarily due to Russian machinations, and with reference to Manchuria even in opposition to future Russian interests.

"As a long-range speculation, this view is of potential interest to the formulation of western policy. It was given as such."

Dr Van Assendorp is a professor of International Relations here. He came here from Tulane University and has held many Far Eastern posts with the Dutch government.

Exchange To Be Open Announces Chairman

Shirley Gregory, chairman of the book exchange, announced that the co-op, located in the Longmire recreation room, will be open August 13 and 14 from 1 to 5 p m.

All students with books on sale this term are asked to call for time. Also, students who will not be here this fall are requested to pick up their books, as the exchange cannot be responsible for left-overs.

The co-op, sponsored by last year's junior class, provides a convenient medium for the exchange of used texts.

No Records At Dance

Mike Salibe's combo will furnish the music at the weekly North-South Cawthon dance tonight from 9:30 to 12. The dance will be held on the Cawthon patio.

Everyone is invited to attend. The dance will be informal.

Noted Speakers Heard At Civil Defense Conference

Art Exhibition Opens Today

'Growth Through Art,' Theme of Student Work

An exhibition of children's paintings and drawings illustrating "Growth Through Art" will open at the University Gallery today, with an informal reception from 4 to 6 p m.

THE EXHIBITION, obtained from the National Art Education Association is being arranged in the Gallery by the department of art education headed by Miss Mary Moody.

Compiled for, and first shown at the White House Conference on Children and Youth last year, the exhibition was assembled by Dr Victor Lowenfeld, art educator and psychologist at Pennsylvania State College. It contains paintings and drawings of children ranging in age from pre-school through high school years. The various stages of development through which children pass are illustrated and explained.

VARIOUS DEVICES for expressing form and space rather than those used by the mature adult are shown. The exhibition illustrates Lowenfeld's theories of teaching methods which disregard the psychological traps of copying types may have on art expression of children. Also shown in the exhibition are examples of high and low levels of development in physical growth, mental growth, social growth, emotional growth, and finally creativity.

To serve as a contrast to the painting and drawings on view, examples of fine art from the department have been assembled examples of three dimensional art expression by children from schools in Florida and Georgia.

TEACHERS in Gainesville, Tallahassee, Jacksonville, and Moultrie, Ga. have submitted art work for display. These examples consist of weaving, ceramics, leather work, wood carving, puppets and constructions from scrap materials.

The exhibition will remain on view until September 15. The Gallery will be open from 12:30 until 5 p m Monday through Saturday, and on Sunday from 2 til 5 p m.

Adequate Community Programs Of Defense Education Stressed

The Conference on Citizenship Education and Civil Defense, attended by 550 Floridians, will end today. The Conference, sponsored jointly by the Florida State Department of Education and FSU, has covered discussions on adequate programs of civil defense and community education.

The Conference began Sunday evening, with a meeting of consultants, state department of education staff, and discussion leaders.

THE OPENING SESSION started Monday morning with registration from 8 until 9:30. Dr T Q Srygley, director of instruction at the State Department of Education and Conference chairman, presided. Mr Thomas D Bailey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, outlined Conference purposes.

President Doak S Campbell welcomed the group, stating that the Conference was one of the most important of the year here.

Highlighting the speakers' list was Millard F Caldwell of Washington and Tallahassee, ex-governor of Florida who is now Federal Civil Defense Administrator. Mr Caldwell, discussing "The Need for a Program of Civil Defense," pointed out that "If Russia comes to the conclusion that the American people are informed and will be up and alert anything that the Russians can strive—and keep going on a war might be averted." The official stated that a basic manual is being prepared for regional and state systems of defense, with parts of protective and supportive towns explained and taught through this medium.

NEXT ON THE PROGRAM was Mr D Mack Easton, also of the Civil Defense Administration in Washington. He warned the group that it is needed to "lull the Russians into a false slumber by tricks and deceit," as "the next fire breaking forth may threaten our own homes."

Tuesday morning Dr Harris W Dean, professor of education and Conference co-chairman, presided.

The first speaker was Dean Erwin R Walker of the College of Arts and Sciences. He, recently in Washington at the request of administrator Caldwell, stressed the importance of an adequate program of civil defense for the nation's educational system.

THE FLORIDA PROGRAM was outlined by Colonel R G Howie of Jacksonville, state director of civil defense. Colonel Howie stated that "The degree of vulnerability of Florida to attack cannot be determined by guessing what Russia intends to do, crystal ball gazing, or from wishful thinking."

Dr Edgin R Reeder, professor of education at the University of Illinois, discussed "Citizenship Education in the Secondary School." He said that "In order to stimulate thought the teacher must create a permissive atmosphere within which students are free to express their beliefs."

WEDNESDAY MORNING Dr Sam H Moorer, assistant director of the division of instruction, Florida State Department of Education, presided.

Following lunch and discussion groups, a picnic was held at 6:30 p m at Lake Bradford.

Thursday Mr Herman F Hinton, supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education for the State Department of Education, presided.

TODAY THE CONFERENCE will be presided over by Dr Mode Heer, acting dean of the School of Education.

This morning the Conference statement will be presented, with "The Implications for Programs of Action" given by speakers Alonzo Myers, Dr Dean, and Robert. A summary will be stated by Mr Moorer and Dr Srygley.

All the morning sessions have been held in the air-conditioned music hall. Afternoons have been taken by discussion groups endeavoring "to select, define, and work together on common problems in the area of citizenship education and civil defense."

ROVING REPORTER LAURENS

Attention Bootleggers: 'Wet Dry' Issue Brings Varied Comments

The question of the week, asked by Roving Reporter Ossie Laurens, is "What is your opinion on the 'Wet-Dry' issue in Leon County?"

Sam McCoy, Sophomore, Tallahassee: There is no question as to whether Leon county shall be "wet" or "dry," the question is whether we shall have legal liquor or illegal liquor.

The chance that some eighteen year old may be tempted to enter a cafe and drink flagrantly will be voted wet hardly seems so terrible or the effect of such an act so grave as to be worth the effort of good morals on his part as is the spectacle of watching his parents and friends flagrantly and openly violating the law throughout his childhood. This hardly encourages respect for the laws of the state of Florida.

You can't control sales to minors by bootleggers by revoking their licenses—they ain't got any.

Charles Taylor Narpel, 533 West Call Street, Florida State Theater. Let the county cash in on the bootleggers' profits.

Mrs. Ruth Sender, North Cawthon: I'm going to have to vote to cancel out Paul Garrison's 'wet' vote.

Norman Smith, Freshman, West Campus: I think the public would benefit more if it were a wet county, but there are enough politician-bootleggers to keep it dry.

Rachel Cannon, Senior, North Cawthon. I don't believe there should be age ucetion about it; if it's wet, people can drink if they want to, and if they don't want to, they don't have to.

Faith Frederick, Senior, North Cawthon: I think there should be an election on the "Wet-Dry" issue in Leon County."

Sam McCoy, Sophomore, Tallahassee: There is no question as to whether Leon county shall be "wet" or "dry," the question is whether we shall have legal liquor or illegal liquor.

The chance that some eighteen year old may be tempted to enter a cafe and drink flagrantly will be voted wet hardly seems so terrible or the effect of such an act so grave as to be worth the effort of good morals on his part as is the spectacle of watching his parents and friends flagrantly and openly violating the law throughout his childhood. Clyde F Tootle, Senior, Senior Hall: I am all for making Leon county wet. Let the state and profit and put the bootleggers out of business.

Haven Wilson, Junior, South Cawthon: Make it wet in every one can benefit by it.

Pete Dunn - Rankin, Junior, Senior Hall: It's pretty wet now. Why not make it legal?

Howard Abel, Senior, Senior Hall: I believe that in a democratic society the calling for a vote in the ballot is to do as such an issue. If a person is against the issue he should not sign the petition for an election but should not fail to vote against the issue if an election should be held.

Helen Mansfield, Sophomore, North Cawthon: I believe in a 'wet' county for the wet and a 'dry' one for the dry."

Charles A Stevenson, Graduate Student: Because I am against the 'wets.' Whiskey is here to stay whether sold legally or by bootleggers as it is now. The county is losing a great deal in taxes by remaining dry. Of course, the combination of the church people and bootleggers will always believe that I can't see why anyone would try to change this county—wet. You simply have nothing to gain other than making it easier for youth to get liquor easier. If someone wants to do something about drinking they should try to enforce the laws instead of changing them.

Nancy Dunn - Rankin, Junior, North Cawthon: It's all wet

Speech Play Opens Tuesday

Wilder Comedy To Show Two Nights

Our Town, the second summer production of the Department of Speech, will open in Conradi Theatre next Wednesday at 8:30 for a run of two performances. The second performance will be presented Thursday night, August 9, with the curtain scheduled for 8:30 also.

STUDENTS, upon the presentation of identification cards, are admitted for forty-four cents. Price for non-students is seventy-five cents.

Ben Powell, graduate student from Miami, heads a cast of 27 persons. Powell portrays the stage manager who introduces the audience to the layout of "our town," which is Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, and proceeds to make philosophic observations on people and life as the play proceeds.

DIRIANNE NORTON and David Love, stars in the Pirates of Penzance last spring, have the romantic leads as Georgia and Emily. Dr and Mrs Gibbs, Georgia's parents will be played by Alan Downes and Elisabeth Neel. Editor and Mrs Webb, Emily's parents will be played by James Black and Josephine Shaw.

Other citizens of Grovers' Corners are Frederick Wilds, Jimmy Hall, Ned Hilton, Charles Hill, Frances Hightower, Lewis Aiken, Byron McCalman, Marjorie McDaniels, and Loren Reichart.

THORNTON WILDER, author of the Pulitzer Prize-winning play has authored other plays including The Skin of Our Teeth, The Bridge of Smokers and the personal one-act favorite, The Happy Journey. His books include The Bridge of San Luis Rey, Heaven's My Destination, and The Ides of March.

According to Russell B Graves, director of the production, Wilder's technique represents a combination of old and new practices in playwriting. Audiences have responded heartily to Our Town since its first showing in New York 13 years ago.

Lighting, extremely important in this play, is being planned by Mr Grave and Freddy Myers.

Campbell Attends Education Meetiing

President Campbell was in Chicago last weekend attending a meeting of the executive committee of the Department of Higher Education of the National Education Association.

As a committee member Dr Campbell said the meeting was concerned with the evaluation of general policies of the NEA Department and with the selection of a director. The president director, Dr Ralph McDonald, has resigned his position as president of Bowling Green University in Ohio.

Summer Graduates Rehearse on Aug 14

A compulsory rehearsal for summer graduates will be held in the music amphitheater at 7 p m on Tuesday, August 14. Exact dates for degrees must be proved at this meeting.

The seating arrangement plan will be distributed, and tickets for graduating exercises distributed at this time, according to the various vocations chairman. Dr Vera Blanchard.

All Library Books Due Monday, Aug 13

All students, including graduating students, should return library books on or before Monday, August 13, it was announced yesterday by Miss Florence Bolton, assistant librarian.

There will be an additional fee of 25c for each book not returned by that date. Check with the library, the librarian added, be sure your record is clear by August 13.

Flambeau Discusses Phase Of Democratic Brotherhood

"These truths we hold self-evident . . ."

Members attending the present Civil Defense conference, as well as grads and undergrads, might well take the following under consideration, cum salis granis.

". . . That all men are created equal . . ."

True, but equality ends right there. Afterward, inequalities exist in physical structure, mental capacity and financial advantages. Later, inequality even be outlawed by statutory law . . . that all U S citizens should be compelled to embrace their fellow nationals, regardless of race (and later, perhaps, regardless of religious belief, political affiliation)—though this seems highly unlikely, moral standards or any other differences. Another Know Nothing party might even evolve).

This spirit of "brotherhood", they maintain, is essential in a democratic nation.

However, the meaning of democracy also implies the freedom to choose one's fellow associates . . . to fraternize at the individual's discretion . . . to reject the company and society of anyone at any time, for any reason or for no reason . . . both socially and professionally.

These arguments not - with - standing, critics of the South are using our segregation laws against us both politically and morally. Enemies of our country present segregation as an outstanding example of the failure of "democratic" ideals, and "classless" society under capitalism. They present these arguments to millions of concerned black Africans, dark Iranians, yellow Chinese, swarthy Moors and Spaniards and numerous other historically "persecuted" races . . . races with vast manpower and military potentials . . . potentials which, if realized and committed, would be sufficient to defeat, probably, the co-ordinated efforts of the Allied nations.

This propaganda must, in the interest of self-preservation, be combated. The propagandists must be met head-on by the ammunition which they distort so advantageously.

Those counter-measures can be accomplished in part, without a critical change in our social attitudes, by establishing Negro graduate students to our State universities, when the degrees they seek are not offered by any of the State's Negro universities.

Surely, Negroes cannot expect or even conscientiously request complete equality throughout the entire school system. From a strictly monetary standpoint, they do not pay their proportionate share of the tax burden which supports the schools.

Further, there will remain in the minds of white Southerners the attitude of superiority toward the Negro until he has proven himself worthy of acceptance on a proportionate scale in fields other than sports.

A number of exceptional Negroes have demonstrated their mental abilities and high standards in nearly every field of human endeavor. But that's just the trouble, they are exceptional cases. When the Negroes begin culturally advancing en masse, without "outside" assistance as did our pioneers, they will be accepted as a race in America just as the Jews are now accepted.

However, the Negroes which we would admit to our universities will have proven, by the very fact that they have reached that stage of formal education, that they have the interest and initiative required by our set of values.

To exclude them, then, simply because of their pigmentation would merely by a matter of illogical prejudice.

● FLYING SAUCERS?

Ever hear the story of Henny-Penny? She was a weatherbeaten old hen who had mothered thousands fo chickens—in that particular vein of mother Goose. Now, most of the time off the nest she spent clacking and clucking and eating. She ate bugs, caterpillars, and other things that hens can't tell from bugs—I suppose.

One day something fell on Henny's tail. Now an old brood hen would have known what to do, but Henny was a creature of impulse. She jumped—right into a conclusion. "The sky is falling," she screamed.

She ran all over the barnyard screaming this. "How do you know?" mooed, barked, oinked, and neighed her neighbors. "Well, I saw it fall, heard it fall and some of it fell on my tail," she said in agitated self assurance.

This story serves to illustrate the truth about flying saucers. Like Henny-Penny we know the truth about the saucers.

Flying saucers are real. We know they are real because they are made of cheese—green cheese for the moon is made of green cheese (how do you know it isn't?) and the saucers are from the moon.

Our own experience proves the truth. The other night a reporter was walking around the campus. There was atmosphere. It had a green cheesy odor about it. Suddenly he saw a brightly lighted, flat, cylindrical object moving across the night sky.

It dipped, as in salute, over the gymnasium, arched over the Flambeau office, and landed in front of Westcott.

"Fresh air from the moon," he cried, and just then something hit him on the neck —it was a piece of cheese—the orange kind you bait rat traps with—or make into sandwiches.

He hurried over to Westcott to stake a claim to the cheese saucer, but alas, nothing was left but the smell—the saucer must have burned itself up.

Still in all the experience proves to us that flying saucers are made of green cheese. But please don't ask us to tell you that the piece of cheese that hit the reporter was escorted by a hits of soggy sandwich bread. It wouldn't ruin our theory but some coeds might get in trouble for eating in their room and throwing garbage out the window.

● GOODBYE

The time has now come for the Flambeau staff to say goodbye for another year. For seven weeks we have tried to serve you, the student body, the administration, and the staff of Florida State University to the best of our ability.

It hasn't always been easy for us, and we are sure that you haven't always agreed with the paper. However, we hope that our small part in the life of the university has been justified.

It is our earnest hope that many of our editorials, features, and news stories have helped you understand the complex life at a new, big, thriving university.

We wish you all a happy vacation—and we'll see you again in September with a new edition of the Florida Flambeau.

● AROUSING SPIRIT

To spark the flagging brand of spirit at FSU is a new idea.

Jett Monroe, known by all as last year's Homecoming Queen, also a varsity cheer leader for three yeas, has come forth with the proposal of a "Spirit Club." This organization is solely for the purpose of fostering some school spirit among the nodding, bored, afraid-to-cheer average FSU football game go'er.

With an important game in Miami in the offing, it seems that FSU should develop a little lung-power to aid the boys when they tackle a mammoth Syracuse team.

This group, consisting of one member of each campus organization, will serve in the beginning. Later, other members will be added, as interest grows. And let's hope it grows!

Things will look pretty sad down in the Orange Bowl in the fall, if the so-called FSU "rooters" fail to show enough school spirit of hiccuping and an occasional cow-bell.

The time has gone when FSU students can calmly expect their team to win a game hands down. And the time has also gone, when the team can coast to victory without a little moral support.

So Jett's rally club may someday become a big organization here at FSU, that she and her co-workers started is some backing and it's up to the student body to give it to her.

● FREE BUSSES HELP

The buses to West campus travel approximately 2 20 miles a day taking students back and forth between the two campuses.

Certainly, the service leaves a lot to be desired many times, but, all in all, the students are lucky to have this free service at their disposal.

The University of Florida has discontinued the free bus service on their campus since they have moved out of the army base barracks. However, every student who has to walk the length of the campus soon realises what the advantages of a free bus service.

Our bus drivers are some of the nicest guys on the campus. Considering that they have to answer some of the most curious questions possible, they have much self-control. Students seem to think that the bus drivers know everything there is to know about the campus, the university, and the town.

Granted that they run only every 30 minutes or longer on the weekends, that they are crowded on the schooldays, and that the buses are hot in summer and cold in winter, they are free.

This is a service provided by the university. It is an expensive service and a thankless service, but there will be no West campus, but the main campus will reach a considerable distance then. If the university stops the service after the west campus is no longer in use the students are going to suffer more from fallen arches, than from bumpy roads.

The bus service could be improved, but it is better than none at all.

COMPLETION

Since we have brought together our separate lives,
Walking hand in hand for just a while
'Til finally I hate you, this survives—
The incomplete addition of your smile.

Since fear and death have made me want to hold
You, shaking at easiness when they did,
Can I say, "Here distinctly I made hold,"
When I am black from alleys where I hid?

But let us now sit down on our big dream
And see our eaten summer sulping waste,
Can you or I have known the in-between?
Why mark my leave with simulated haste!

Antics and Frantics

By CURTIS H CAMPBELL

Why is it that a woman asks you a question and when you say, "What did you say," they reply with "Nothing."

COLLEGE TO some is a factory for inhibition. . . .

FSU is now attracting some in-state athletes. Gene Bridges, former Pensacola all-round athlete and star, has said "Ah, Ah" give 'em Gators" and has taken up the Seminole war paint in preference to G-rille.

THE GREAT CONCEPTION that college athletes never work and justify earn the money they receive is held by most unknowing students at FSU. If anyone thinks that the boys at the stadium are pleasantly lolling around in the sun all time and would venture a trifle closer so they can smell the sweat or see the dirt, water, lumber and paint being spilled.

Some people are so dumb they never notice nothing. . . .

DON'T KNOW WHETHER the social instincts or the hunger urge brought out the big crowd to the ice cream party Tuesday night, but it had the elements to satisfy both. . . . Preston Bradley won the eating marathon.

Florida weather doesn't seem to agree with Claude Smith, Gadsden, Ala lad who has enrolled in FSU to play football and do some studying, as he has lost down to 275 puny pounds.

BREAKFAST AROUND here is about as rare as pink elephants in a nunnery. . . .

The week of reckoning nears and professors begin to smile and students reflect their attitudes by patiently knocking heads against some walls, bumping off tall buildings, cussing, divorcing, and denouncing education.

EDUCATORS SAY that the price of education cannot be measured in monetary terms, but it is certainly obtained through money. . . .

When lred by irrepressible forces try to use "golly, gosh, heck, dogonnit, jumpin' Jehosaphat, and even Darn before resorting to obscenities such as Hell and Damn. . . . Living room words are accepted everywhere.

Let's say good-bye to FSU and return to our hometown churches. . . .

Dear Editor...

Two-Party State

Dear Editor:

Interest in better government is healthy. Never before have the energies of our country required more participation, especially among young people, in formulating political decisions. This is particularly true for all Young Republicans.

The Republican Party today has a great opportunity to be of real service to Florida and the Nation. Students should take part too. I am therefore using the Flambeau media to call individual FSU students to contribute some extra-curricular activity time in the city of Florida Young Republican Club was organized last winter with 25 active members.

A two party system in Florida is to be achieved by hard work, not by wishful thinking. Sarasota, Manatee, Orange, Broward, and Dade Counties are reportedly ready to vote as Pinellas County did in its 1946 Republican landslide. A club at FSU would be primarily concerned with spreading Republican speakers and projects of an informative and educational nature. You will receive much aid and support from Young Republicans in Florida, including myself.

So, anyone interested in a two party system and the Republic can Party think about starting a Young Republican Club at FSU next fall, and by all means let me know who you are and get more information by writing me at once at: 2306-14 Street North; St Petersburg, Fla. It will benefit the students, the State, and the country.

Yours truly,
S William Bohnsen, Jr

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

A TRIBUTE TO A FINE STAFF

The evening bells are ringing for the summer Flambeau as it completes its service to those who have dwelled here at school this session.

There has been criticism but equally as many compliments expressed among students and faculty alike. There were times when news just rolled in and things just bubbled up from all sides. And, there were times we would have to use our three earliones and emergency pictures to fill up the meager slimsy empty space in the pages.

To look back you smile at the foolish mistakes and cry a bring to be our lead story—I just can't quit say enlisten days anymore.—What! run an ad on the editorial page—who would like to write headlines—coffin anyone? Yes, those are some and many more heard. With all the belly-aching everyone still grumbled the first papers out Friday and were ready with new ideas for the next week.

All in all, your editor couldn't have asked for a better staff to work with this summer. Usually on the summer Flambeau, a skeleton staff puts the editions out. But, fortunately for me I had a complete corp of able working students. There were, of course, hitch and hindrances but, for the most part, I couldn't have had a finer group.

Thursday afternoon when all ends were tied, one could see Bill Dunn, managing ed, pacing the floor between desks in his hard to think of a three letter word 6 months pregnant. Nothing longer would fit in the headline. Bill will be working on next year's Flambeau as an associate editor

Next you see Bob Tippins and Emory King, news editor and associate respectively. Bob in addition, to filling up the paper with his own copy has spent umpteen gallons of gas on Flambeau business. As for Emory he is Johnny on the spot. Always here in case of any emergency. He ought to move his bed into the office. These editors have given many social and neademic hours for our journal.

Special tribute goes to our fine Business Manager. Virginia Smith who in addition to spending long hours getting ads was making wedding plans of her own . . . We will miss you next year, Virginia, best wishes.

That's the staff—fine as they come.

Extra special tribute to Geneva Heidt for awaiting himself this summer for publicity.

I'LL BE DUNN

WARPATH CLUB-A HOPE FOR SPIRIT

By BILL DUNN and JANE ATCHLEY

In the past the school spirit of FSU has been in the hands of a very few people . . . namely, the cheerleaders. Football season came and went last year and left the Seminoles undefeated and untied and still lacking school spirit.

Semester after semester has passed with students bewailing and complaining about the lack of interest in sports activities. Many of these students have, however, last year missed some of the best games of the season by sitting home and listening to the radio or going to movies instead.

Not only in sports activities but also in the other phases of student life is spirit lacking. Every Spring some and so, art exhibits are displayed, men's glee clubs and university shorouses sing their heads off, the Student Union offers many activities which are held all over the campus, and still students continue to ignore these functions . . . and the faculty students who will laugh and talk while the alma mater is being sung.

We do not believe in being over zealous about anything in any matter but we do believe that it deserves some respect. We are also not advocating that we persons try to cram in everything that is offered because we know that this is impossible. We do believe though that students should take an interest and do enter into a few activities in addition to scholastic work.

The only way this can do anything about school spirit are the students themselves. Just how can interested students go about promoting school spirit?

The best answer at present seems to lie in the newly-formed WARPATH Club, the brainstorm of Jetz Munroe and Nancy Bennett, two of FSU's cheerleaders.

Jets and Nancy got their inspiration for this pep club when they attended the Southeastern Collegiate Pep Conference at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, this past semester. Immediately upon their return they started working on this project.

A joint student-faculty meeting was held near the end of the semester at which time they presented their plans. At this meeting Dr Flory of the English department was selected as the faculty advisor for the coming year and a committee of students was appointed to work on the constitution and organizational plans. The committee consisted of Mitchell Underhill, Dorothy Ann Bradley, Tom Edwards and Jett Munroe.

This committee has been meeting every week during the summer session and has accomplished quite a bit. Following is the letter that they plan to send to the president of each organization on campus in the fall. In it they express in their words the purpose of the club.

During the summer, we've been working hard to lay the groundwork for a new organization—THE WARPATH CLUB. The purpose of this club is, obvious because of the extreme lack of spirit in the past in all sports here at FSU. Now it's true that we all are equally guilty, but the responsibility above does such a "bang up" good job, that—here's hoping!—getting ahead of our "spirit pace" and unless we get in step with them, we'll have to expect them to continue rushing us to the victories.

Our real purpose is to stimulate school spirit and to promote interest in all sports here at FSU. Our university has shown a lack of student responsibility in this area and we feel a great need for the need. In order to spread this spirit over the school it is necessary that every organization and dormitory be represented at our first meeting of the year. Then we can get down to action" form pep rally and parade of the football season.

We suggest that you elect a delegate and an alternate now and those two offices be your permanent baffot fist. The opening "Pow-Wow" of the Warpath Club will be held Wednesday, September 26, at 7 pm in the auditorium of the Alumnae building. Weekly meetings will follow as scheduled.

We hope you feel the need for co-operation as greatly as we do. Let your SPIRIT be your guide!

Sincerely yours,
Organization Committee.
Warpath Club.

Most of the students serve that school spirit is one thing that is lacking here at FSU. Here is a club that is wonderfully organized to do this definite try. WHY DON'T WE BACK IT UP?

BEHIND THE IVY

CONSIDER THE YACHTSMAN

(A Guest Column)

A yachtsman is a fellow in white pants who goes to sea in a place in particular in the longest possible time.

He spends a white cap with a club insignia, so he can tellem where he belongeth, he telleth time with a big watch, and calleth the wrong hours and he calleth everything by a name that no friend understandeth.

He calleth right and left port and starboard. He speaketh not of the front and back when he sooth downstairs, he admitteth it not in doors and windows.

There are three types of yachtsmen: the one who trusteth in the Lord, the one who trusteth power, and the one who trusteth neither, and useth both. Of those, the one who putteth his trust in the Lord, he doeth it to avoid if time meaneth anything to you. For he is ever-ye the mercy of wind and calm, of tide and current, and he hath no more control over his movements than a fish in a watertight doorway.

He pointeth north, but he driftseth south. He pointeth west but he sideth east, and lo! He seemeth not to care whether he is ever reachable by telegram. He believeth in hard labor, for he spendeth the most of the day setting the rigs sails in the right place and determining which rope is which, and for what purpose. He sweateth and he toileth among strange sadsets and trysails to make his course thineth he knoweth what it is all about.

His maketh strange mouthings about "grommets," "binnacles," "shrouds," and "scuppers," and he calleth things by names that noneth else calleth things by names that conveyeth some sense.

He taketh a third of the day getting under way and a third of the day getting them down, and the other third he spendeth drinking gin, doffing his cap to the lighthouses and exchanging pleasantries with seagulls according as can buyeth.

He thinketh he haveth a good time. Verily, he is a strange fellow, but he foeth hobeth nobody. For Lo! They are wise to him and knoweth full well he would seldeth the darned boat in a jiffy if he could find a buyer.

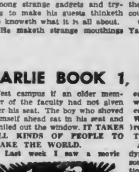
KING'S KNIGHTS

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE BOOK 1, CHAPTER 5

By EMORY KING

When the lights are off at the Flambeau office—when the typewriters have ceased clacking—when the reporters have gone home to dream of their beats—Charlie, the Flambeau gremlin, does his philosophising:



"To Hell with it."

Story: IT TAKES ALL KINDS

One day last summer I was standing at the bus stop with a crowd of students. It was drizzling a little and the waiting group were several in-service teachers here for summer school. All were over forty. When the bus pulled up, one of the boys standing at the step pushed his way in front of the ladies and got on the bus.

The bus driver made a comment to the boy about etiquette and old age. The boy said, "Why don't you mind your own business," and took one of the few remaining seats. The result was that one of the women would have had to stand up all the way to town because no other student would give her a seat.

West campus if an older member of the faculty had not given her his seat. The boy who showed himself ahead sat in his seat and smiled out the window. IT TAKES ALL KINDS TO MAKE THE WORLD.

Last week I saw a movie called "How Green Was My Valley." Part of the picture dealt with an old busy-body who ruined the lives of two lovers—one a minister and one a lovely girl. The busy-body started foul rumors about the two and soon the entire village believed it. Isn't it odd that people always want to believe the worst about their friends? One loose tongued woman in a neighborhood can interested students go about promoting school spirit?

The best answer at present seems to lie in the newly-formed WARPATH Club, the brainstorm of Jetz Munroe and Nancy Bennett, two of FSU's cheerleaders.

came on much trouble—but don't believe nasty, ugly rumors about me and the neighbors WANT TO believe nasty, ugly rumors. IT TAKES ALL KINDS TO MAKE THE WORLD.

A little power is like a little dynamite. Everyone has seen some of these students set positions of authority over the other students and many times take advantage of it? Take some of the girls who make up the social committee!, especially on the judiciary side). The administration sets the blame most of the time for the unfair and unjudicious manner in which many girls are treated. However, it usually is the fault of the members of the court who become drunk with their little power to punish their peers they should do so as often and as hard as possible. IT TAKES ALL KINDS TO MAKE UP THE WORLD.

Self love, self pity, avarice, greed, intolerance, hate, and pitch—IT TAKES ALL KINDS TO MAKE UP THE WORLD—but ain't it a damn shame!!!!!

Student Receives BS After 44 Years Work

For those of us who gripe about getting those four seemingly long years in college, one might envy the record of Mrs Bess Schuster.

THIS SMALL energetic little lady has been working for her BS ever since 1907. Reentering college in September 1950, she enrolled in the School of Education here. With a degree in elementary education, she will graduate August 18.

When asked about her decision to come to FSU she replied, "Well I see John is here getting his start in Music, so I decided to go along and make it a family affair."

MRS SCHUSTER also likes math because of the fond memories it invokes of the past. She met her honeymoon, shortly before World War I, in Miami.

She completed her certification requirements at the University of Illinois in 1907. She taught in high school in Alton, Illinois, and also in suburban Chicago. She last taught in Jacksonville, Florida where she plans to resume her career after graduation.

"I HAVE BEEN very happy while caring for stay," she said. The young students here have made me feel as young as they are. I haven't missed an Artist Series, a conducted tour, or a program of recreation all summer."

Mrs Schuster will be one of the month.

Recitals Planned

in E minor. Mr Jones will be accompanied by Eurenis Williams, pianist.

MR KETCHAM'S program will be "Violets" Vitorio by Carlo Simi. Sebben Crudela by Caldara, and the aria Se vuol ballare from "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart. For his second group of songs, he will sing In chiesa bubbo Grande, a German folk song. And metiem grusen Schmerzen by Franz, and The Erlking by Schubert.

For his final group, in English, Mr Ketcham will offer Sonny My Mother Taught Me, by Dvorak, and English folk song Over the Mountains, and a spiritual Four and Twenty Elders.

Progress Seen in Building

8 New Dorms Ready by Fall

Ten new dormitories are now under construction at Florida State University, eight of which will be completed this fall.

The eight which will be ready in September are leased to social fraternities, and will house 320 men students. Another dormitory for men is an eleven story construction which will accommodate 500. An eight story structure, costing over $300,000 will provide housing for 276 co-eds.

The cost of the fraternity dorms averages $100,000 each. The dorms are self-liquidating, being paid for by the frat rent, $17.80 monthly for each student. This is the same rate that is charged for any other men's dorm on campus.

All of the dorms are similar in arrangement and conveniences. They will contain a dining room, lounge, recreation room, study room, powder room, house mother's suite and rooms with built-in wardrobe-dresser combinations. They are extremely modern and attractive.

Several of the buildings will be built of brick and cypress siding. With flat, built-up roofs. Interior of plaster and wood panelling, and asphalt tile floors. The rooms have built-in study desks. Some of the other buildings are a combination of red brick and gray concrete block, with float built-up roofs. The interior is of plaster and wood panelling. The last group is constructed of brick and stucco with plaster throughout on the inside.

The eleven story dormitory for men, costing approximately $1,400,000, is expected to be completed by September of 1952. It is being built adjacent to East Campus.

The ultra-modern dormitory will feature a variety of luxurious facilities and is a far-cry from the West campus "barracks."

The eight story dormitory for women, is located near Landis Hall and will contain all of the modern conveniences. It is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1952.

EIGHT STORY women's dormitory west of Landis Hall is scheduled to be completed a year from September. Elevator shaft shown in the middle is used to hoist up cars filled with concrete to aid in construction.

MODERN ARCHITECTURE is employed in the new Student Service Center being constructed on the old circus grounds. Plans include a recreation room, post office, cafeteria, book store and other facilities.

Student Center Planned for '52

The new student services center now under construction on the old circus grounds will be completed early in 1952, it was announced yesterday by Business Manager Rod K Edwards.

"Although we are a little behind schedule right now," he said, "we hope to move in the building shortly after the first of next year."

The new building will house the post office, bookstore, and cafeteria. The building will cost $400,000, and will be constructed along modern lines.

The post office will face Call street and be the nearest department to the campus. It will contain 4,000 boxes, 1500 more than the campus has now including wall campus facilities. When this new post office is completed the West campus office will no longer be in use. we hope, the business manager added.

No plans for the removal of the post office boxes in Senior Hall, however, most dormitory, have not been made as yet, he said, but using Senior Hall boxes allows down mail delivery to the men of the dormitory. However, the dormitory boxes are useful in distributing notices and other messages.

The new home of the University Bookstore will be modeled after the one at the University of Florida campus at Gainesville. There will be an entire section of the building used for the bookstore. Also a mezzanine floor added to the space.

In the lobby between the post office and bookstore there will be space allotted for what the business manager called a "Student Gadget Exchange." That is, a place where students who have hand-craft, painted ties, or the like, to sell, can set up stalls and do their business.

At the far end of the building the new cafeteria and kitchen will be located. Solid plate glass windows will form the walls on both the Call and Tennessee street side. The cafeteria can be so arranged that when the tables are put against the wall there will be adequate dancing space, and it is possible that floor shows could be presented there also.

Outside there will be a terrace for dining and dancing. Unlike the Seminole and Suwannee Rooms, the new cafeteria will be open during the evening.

Plans to air-condition the building have been dismissed, however, the business manager said.

Seminar Began doctor's degree now being offered in the department.

Seminar members learned that FSU was possibly the only university in the nation farsighted enough to have two women on its athletic board.

LECTURE - DEMONSTRATIONS were given by sponsors of physical education activities here. Coach Jack Hashin, and Professors Nellie Bond Dickinson and Mary Titus have discussed, respectively, their circus, dance, and swimming programs. Dr Hartley Price, professor of physical education and gymkana director, presented his field as a medium of public relations.

Over 100 people from Florida and the South, actively participating in some phase of physical or elementary education, are attending the seminar. Coaches, teachers, and principals have joined together for an exchange of ideas in promoting public understanding of physical education programs.

'Weekly Lyre' Edited By Music Campers

The Summer Flambeau has a rival weekly campus newspaper. The Weekly Lyre, edited by Music Camp students, appeared on Thursday, August 2.

This a two-sheet mimeographed edition, is the first paper ever issued in the Music Camp sessions. Plans call for two more publications this summer, with remainder next summer.

Editorial staff of the Weekly Lyre includes Dick Burvin, editor in chief; Sheldon Frank, sports editor; Martha Ware, music critic; John Stanley, boys' social editor; Martha Quah, girls' social editor; and Shirley Bowlware and Elizabeth Cannon, typists. Dalton Smith, music camp registrar, and Mike Carroll, publicity assistant in the School of Music, are lending a hand.

In 1923 they hit an all time record of the largest enrollment up to then. The enrollment reached 936. The dormitory space were inadequate and 177 students besides those in dormitory houses and at home had to live off-campus.

RELIGIOUS NEWS

Despite Heat, Sets Complete Programs

Despite summer heat and activities, some of the religious groups have carried out scheduled programs in student houses.

BAPTISTS:
The Baptist Student Union organized their summer program by electing officers. Vesper messages were led by adult leaders replacing the usual BSU'ers. Practically every Saturday some type of party was planned. YWA's were held Thursdays as well as the usual "Play Nights" on Saturdays.

EPISCOPALIAN
Reverend Morley, beginning his duties as Ruge chaplain, put a model type program into assistance as a test for future set-ups. With a series of parties, a men's "Pie Cap," and other social plans, the Ruga students balanced casual with devotional outlooks.

METHODIST
Methodist student groups sponsored informal social activities among individual members. From time to time parties were planned. A series of discussion groups was held.

CATHOLIC
The Newmanites presented social and intellectual functions along with their usual religious activities.

PRESBYTERIAN
This group sponsored discussion hours on "The Presbyterian Confession of Faith." Their student house was open for informal enjoyment.

Former FSU Student Ends Leaders' Course

Pfc Raymond Case, Jr, of Daytona Beach, has successfully completed the eight weeks Leaders' Course conducted by the Special Training Regiment of the Eighth Infantry Division, Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

He attended Florida State University in 1949-50, being a member and president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He is engaged to Marilyn Buckler, a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority here at FSU.

Prof Winters' Report Chosen By 'Plateau'

An article by Professor Stephen Winters was selected for the July edition of the magazine "Plateau." This is a quarterly magazine of the North Arizona Society of Science and Art, Museum of Northern Arizona, at Flagstaff, Arizona.

The article is entitled "Permian Stratigraphy in Eastern Arizona." The report covers a description of the strata and offers suggestions regarding shifting shorelines and changing climates during this geological period.

Dances, Movies, Trips Scheduled This Week

DEE STEVENS

There's another full week end looming up, especially for Mike Saliba and Band. The afore mentioned and crew will furnish the music for informal dancing both Friday and Saturday nights.

TONIGHT THE Patio Dance at Carleton Hill will be honored with the presence of the band at what has been their usual Friday night record-spinning party. Dancing will begin after the movie, or about 10 p.m. and will last until the usual curfew at 12:00. Bryan girls are included in the festivities, and a special invite is extended to the entire male population of FSU.

Come Saturday night there will be more dancing to music the Saliba style, this time at the Student Union on West Campus. The dance starts at 9:00 and will last till 12:00.

ANOTHER FREE MOVIE is on the agenda for this evening and it, too, is a top-notch show. "Keys to the Kingdom" will be shown at 8:15 in the music amphitheater if weather permits. If there is rain, the film will be shown in the Little Theater.

This week end climaxes two of the most popular series of trips. On Saturday, buses will leave Bryan at 2:00 for the last trip to Waksulla. There will be no refreshments this trip therefore the Four Plan system will not be used. Instead, those interested are asked just to sign at the table in the Seminole Club lobby if they intend to go. Those taking the boat trip at the Springs may obtain the special rates by presenting their ID cards.

ALL THOSE would-be sea-farers who have spent their time on terra firma the last nine weeks, you've land lubbed enough. Sunday will be the last chance to go deep sea fishing, so if your summer school aims include a good catch it's time to get on the ball. Call Mr Eg Williamson's office for a reservation.

For an added attraction, don't forget the extra movie, "The Shocking Miss Pilgrim," to be shown next Tuesday night.

Staff Has Interests Besides Journalism

Flambeau's summer staff sings its swan-song with his issue. The members, though few in number, have pooled resources, and vitality and put out seven four-page newspapers during the nine-weeks summer session.

JANET "PEANUT" Pierce, editor of the summer Flambeau, is a resident of Tampa. A journalism major, she plans to graduate next summer. This effervescent little editor has injected much of her energy and energy into the working hours in the office. She has turned out commendable columns and has efficiently done her job of seeing that the Flambeau is properly "put to bed" each Thursday night. She is treasurer of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary and writes "As the Editor Sees It". In addition she is publicity director of the 1952 Sandspur production.

Virginia Smith, the Flambeau business manager, has worked with the Flambeau as ad solicitor, assistant business manager and was elected this 1st UGA to her present position. She hails from Jacksonville, but soon will be a resident of Tally since she is wedding a local man in September. She is an elementary education major, now.

MANAGING EDITOR Bill Dunn, who hails from Tampa, sets up the front page and is a general manager. Bill, a junior, is majoring in accounting, and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and Delta Sigma Pi, commerce honorary. Writer of the column "As I See Dunn," Bill is an advocate of campus improvement.

Emory King, associate news editor, spends most of his waking hours in the Flambeau office. Going rewrites, nagging the news reporters, and receiving letters from Charlie. A member of the board of directors of the student union organization, Emory is active in many campus affairs. King, a resident of Jacksonville, is a junior, majoring in Journalism.

BOB TIPPINS, from Hartford, Alabama, is news editor. Bob, who is a pre-law student, is getting some experience in sequence, with his column "Behind the Ivy."

Other members of the staff include: Barbara Caruthers, assistant managing editor and author of Flambeau headlines; Laurine Wallace, chief rewriter; Jean Flynn, who thinks up fabulous fesaures; Beverly Lecayo, hard-working assistant feature editor; Sandra Shuman, recent addition to an efficient member of the feature staff; Ossie Laurine, Flambeau's roving reporter and Lewis Aiken, who conducts poetry corner.

CURTIS CAMPBELL presents campus characters in a nutshell in his column Antics and Frantics." Jimmie Evans informs the student body of religious news, and Dee Stevens writes an informative and amusing recreation column.

The staff leaves the Flambeau office with a slight feeling of nostalgia, for getting news for the edificatio nof 3,000 people is an exciting occupation. Added to this is the camaraderie of meeting deadlines, of proof-reading copy up in the Democrat office among the linotype machines, and drinking cups of coffee between rewrites.

Geology Club Holds 2nd Meeting Monday

The second meeting of the newly formed Geology club will be held in the geology department next Monday evening at 8.

The meeting will concern the passing of a constitution and by-laws plus electing officers for the coming year.

To be eligible for membership a student must have at least 15 hours in geology and a "B" average, plus a "C" average in his overall university work, it was announced.

The purpose of the club, one of the members said, is to advance the science of geology and to create better relations between the geology department and other departments within the university.

Founding members of the club are Wendel Roberts, Ralph Heath, Bill Yon, Donald Love and Bill Meyers.

Government Course To Have Field Lab First Semester

Students taking a course in "Municipal Government" this fall from the School of Public Administration will be given a combination classroom study and field laboratory training.

DR JAMES A NORTON of the Public Administration faculty, in charge of the class, will accompany the group on their trips, according to Dean Wilson K Doyle.

Both Dr Doyle and Dr Norton pointed out that classroom study will have more meaning when students are allowed to observe city commission and council meetings and confer with municipal officials and department heads.

"WE PLAN TO visit local municipal governments in Tallahassee, Quincy, Panama City and Albany, Georgia, where the students will see for themselves how the various daily problems involved in operation of municipal governments are handled," Dr Norton said.

He said that the course will include a general overall study of municipal governments including the local, social, and economic aspects in which field trips will provide an effective background for the classroom work.

Both Dr Doyle and Dr Norton emphasized that the combination classroom and field studies are part of a well planned course designed to make the work as attractive as possible to students and provide them with maximum benefits.

Four-Legged FSU'er Shows Preference To Gen. Ed. Plan II

A nondescript, but lovable canine is the newest member of the FSU student body. The pooch, a sure-footed, plume-tailed snowy ball of fur, is a familiar sight to habitues of the History Building's second floor.

"Whitie," as he's known in one class, visits lectures in biological science, mathematics, speech, political science, and sociology.

THIS CHOICE of courses clearly shows that "Whitie" prefers Plan II for General Education. He apparently rates down-to-earth, specific knowledge over the generalised background of modern civilization provided in Plan I.

Also, "Whitie's" interest in sociology and political science clearly establishes him as a liberal thinker. This daring dog should watch his step—or, as rumor has it, the Patton-KKK group will be interfering with his right to an education!

ALSO, "WHITIE" has suffered results of traditional academic discipline. He has several times been evicted from classes on charges of either sleeping through scholarly material or creating undue disturbance among his fellow-students.

Over 1000 Frosh Begin College Careers

Your Seminole Special

Frosh: Examine, Fuss, and Learn

This is for the Freshmen. Each September the Flambeau prints this special edition. We dedicate it to the new addition to our student family at Florida State University.

This is for the fresh, fair guy or gal in class of '55, the wearer of the beanie, the young Seminole that will try and struggle, laugh and worry, fuss and learn through four years of college life.

It's for each new individual that must face this day's uncertain horizon with a somewhat braver heart than it is right to demand.

Here at FSU we have our "Ti-die-for-the-Alma Mater" Joes and "Wave-the-Garnet-and-Gold" Janes. Here also, we have our silent pals who feel the college puise a bit deeper. Both are good sentiments and contribute to what we call "college spirit."

As you enter college imagine you are passing close to a long sleek curtain. For some students the curtain is drawn apart. Others must work a bit to get a view behind the curtain of education. However, everyone has the same chance to lift the corner and peek beyond, and behind this curtain called education lies the rich treasure of fuller happiness in life.

Here lies freedom through knowledge, joy through application, and satisfaction through worthwhile ambition. These rewards are lasting and beckon each freshman.

You receive manyfold what you put into college. We know that well. For some of us, it took one year, some two years, and there were those of us who dallied three years before we realized this simple truth.

Make your education a quest, an adventure. Let college brighten your individual creeds. Today as you stroll in the crisp autumn air from your new classes—perhaps bewildered by new faces—stop and listen, see and know what is yours.

Here you have the tools: a magnificent plant, the finest of modern equipment, an excellent library and outstanding teachers in every school and department.

Don't be disillusioned. We are not the best in the country. FSU is not perfect. Our tradition is in an embryo stage and it needs to be fed and established with good deeds and good example.

FSU is not to be underrated either; for we do have the best in many things. You will soon learn, and you will be proud.

For a long while this institution had the motto, "Femina Perfecta," which means perfect women. At FSCW for 42 years this seemed to be perfect, but it was not a dynamic, progressive ideal.

It took a long time, and co-education to change and modernize the rules that were trying to keep the girls "perfect."

We don't want people to be the static, unchanging perfect at FSU. It is impossible for someone to say just what IS perfect. Be human, do things. have fun, work hard and enjoy your four years. You will have to bear a terrible responsibility when you graduate.

One alumni, Pat Murphy, wrote when she graduated in the spring of 1950 . . . "We are leaving, proud and a little sad, to join the ranks of Alumni. What will we see in the next four years? It's up to you!"

Well frosh, let us ask: Will you leave this home in four years proud . . . and a little sad?

ROBERT GRIFFIN Jr.,
Flambeau Editor.

BIG DAY FOR FRESHMEN—A group of freshmen are shown crowding around the registrations in the gym, trying to get that course their counselor was so sure would be open.

Orientation Program Welcomes Freshmen

Over 1,000 new students began their college careers last Monday when President Doak S. Campbell welcomed them in the Music Amphitheatre. Dr. Campbell expressed his confidence in their abilities and their willingness to strive for a better world through education.

The orientation program for freshmen covered the length and breadth of the campus in order to familiarize the new students with the university, its physical plant, and its academic procedures.

AFTER THE WELCOME address the freshmen began taking the exemption tests in English, mathematics and the psychological examinations.

In the evening they met with their sponsors, counselors and their junior counselors. The Personality Rating Scale exam was given later, and all women's residence halls gave parties for the men.

THE MUSIC and language students took their exemption tests on Tuesday morning. The writing tests met with their advisors in the afternoon.

Special interest meetings were held all day. Advisors and deans gave talks to all interested students in the various fields of study.

On Tuesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Campbell held a reception in the Bryan and Westcott living rooms.

WEDNESDAY THURSDAY, and Friday saw the freshmen aoma to more conferences, library tours, placement and assembly programs.

Playing to a capacity house the freshmen turned in superb performances. David Dreis of Miami acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Throughout the program Dreis inserted imitations and jokes. Opening the program was a chorus of Jacksonville chorus girls with a song and dance Next, Herbert Holcomb of Atlantic Beach sang "Bewitched by You. followed by Dodie Burton from Miami with a few of the hula dances. Showboat tunes were evident throughout the show. Marion Bennett of Pensacola, Bill Ann Gee, of Tallahassee sang Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine and to girls from each area. The grand finale of Jennie Murphree sang and danced Life on Tin-Pan-Alley Street.

Over 700 Caps Sold to Frosh During Week

Over 700 freshman rat caps were sold during freshman week, sophomore president, Juna Conyers has announced. "The purpose of wearing the rat caps is to create class and school spirit," June stated.

Charles Curtis, chairman of the rat court, stated that rat caps may still be bought at the Florida State University book store. Profit from the sale of caps will go into the sophomore class fund, he said.

THE GARNET CHANCE for discarding the rat cap early in the semester will be on a Sophomore-Freshman day, Juna announced. It with vice president, Pat Vines, in charge of the event. All the freshmen score over the sophomores in the sports activities of the day. They will then be compelled to don the garnet caps.

The wearing of rat caps will be enforced by the rat court as set up by the sophomore class officers in May of last year, Juna the president said. The bill was presented by June at a senate meeting as drawn up by the sophomore class of 1949.

TO SHOW THAT the caps are to be worn to create spirit, the rules specify that each freshman speak to everyone on campus. Boys are expected to tip their caps to all faculty members.

"The rat court encourages the wearing of the caps and name tags by all freshmen to the extent of enforcing all rules and regulations pertaining to the same," according to the rat court bill passed by the senate.

RULES OF the rat court specify that the caps be worn at all times except on Sunday and when in classes. the sophomore president informed. "Freshmen may take their caps off after 6 p.m. and before 7 a.m. unless there is a football game or a pep rally," the court regulations read.

The next sophomore class project will be selecting the "Miss freshman day," on October 10th. This announcement was made by the sophomore president. Further information will be released in the next edition of the Flambeau, she said.

RAT COURT members include Charles Curtis, chairman, John Adams, Dane McNeil, Jane Merlin, Judy Perkins, George Storey, Buddy White and Buddy Leynes. Buddy Leynes was in charge of the ordering of the rat caps and the setting up of the booths in Westcott and in front of the Union building hall.

Dabert Cavers Trial

Earl Dobert, editor-in-chief of the Florida Flambeau, will be now reporting for the Tampa Daily Times.

Dobert covered the North murder trial which was the lead story for several days in the Tampa Times.

Frosh Elections Set for Oct. 30, Finals Nov. 6

Candidates for Offices In Univ. Government Must Submit Statement

The freshman will be affected by Student Government throughout his stay at Florida State University. Some students will take active part, others will observe. Each student will be affected by the rules, regulations, bills, and amendments that result from the action of student government officers.

At present, the freshman does not have a representative in his student government. The FSU student constitution, printed in the Pre Wee states that the Freshman class officers shall be elected during the Fall.

THIS YEAR the Frosh elections primary will be held Oct. 30 and the finals Nov. 6.

To qualify for an office a freshman must submit only a statement of candidacy to the Dean of Student Welfare, Dr. J. Broward Culpepper. The date will be announced in the Flambeau and by the student election committee.

Until the freshman can voice his ideas and opinions the way of legislation the present elected officers important role entails student body.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT at FSU is set up much the same as the National Government. There are three branches, the executive, legislative and judicial.

President Will Pennell is the presiding officer of the University Government Association Executive Council. The vice-president in charge of legislative affairs is Jim Kirk. Jim presides over the student senate and assumes the duties of Will in his absence.

PROBLEMS concerning only women are handled by the women's senate presided over by the vice-president in charge of women's affairs, Betty Rich holds this position.

Ted Bremmeyer holds the corresponding office to Betty, that of vice-president in charge of men's affairs.

A combination of the two senate groups comprise the University senate. Jo Nell Proctor, secretary of UGA, is responsible for keeping

Alpha Phi Omega Operates Student Used Book Service

Alpha Phi Omega is the first male service fraternity to help in freshman orientation week at Florida State University in the service fraternity, has stated.

The members of the fraternity have been assisting the Sophomore council in the orientation counseling Jimmy said that 12 fraternity men were in each registration during freshman examinations.

Alpha Phi Omega also assists in the freshman library tours. Six workers assisted in the tours. Each of the six was assigned 25 freshmen just as the Sophomore council was, Jimmy said.

The service group was also helpful in directing freshmen students during registration Saturday.

Alpha Phi Omega was the third chapter to be organized in Florida when it received its national charter last year. The two other chapters are the Universities of Florida and Miami.

Only former Boy Scouts are eligible for membership into the service fraternity, according to the fraternity president, and they have to be asked into the fraternity by a majority of its members.

Intern Applications

Students planning to intern in the School of education during second semester must have completed their applications by Friday, October 19. This announcements was made by Dr. R. L. Goolding, Florida State University professor of education.

Senior Block Books Are Still on Sale In Front of PO

Senior Block Books are still on sale for 50 cents in front of the East Campus post office, Jet Mainous, president of the Block Book committee has announced. At least one-hundred copies of the senior informational booklets were sold during registration, he said.

Sponsored by Mortar Board, the books list important information especially essential to seniors. Mortar Board is the honorary for girls based on service, leadership and scholarship.

Included in the books are the dates to order class rings, caps and gowns and graduation announcements.

A SPECIAL calendar of events is posted on the inside back cover. The traditions of the school are also listed within the booklet. An explanation of investiture to be held on October 17th in the Music amphitheatre is recorded.

Outstanding traditions such as Senior Day, the presidents birthday party, the junior-senior prom, the sophomore-senior breakfast are all explained.

AT MAY DAY this year, the senior class gift will be presented after the May queen and her attendants are announced. The senior class gift tradition was an old tradition during the time of Florida State College for Women presented at Christmas time. After FSU was founded, the senior gift tradition was dropped and is only now being revived. Complete information of the

Flambeau Seminar For New Reporters Tomorrow Night

The first reporter's meeting for the 1951 edition of the Flambeau will be held tomorrow night at 7:30, it was announced today by news editor Hazel Morrison.

Over 30 freshmen reporters have signed up for work thus far. It is expected that more than 50 students will work on the 56 scheduled editions for the year.

A SEMINAR on news gathering and news writing will be in at the meeting. It was announced. Principal speakers at the seminar will be Editor-in-chief Bob Griffin, Associate Editors Emory King and Frances Cawthon, News Editor Hazel Morrison, Managing Editor Bill Dunn, and Assistant Editor Jane Atchley.

Positions are now open for morgue editor, rewrite editor and rewrite staff, reporters, and feature writers. On the business side the Flambeau needs circulation managers, ad solicitors and office workers. Any student interested in working for the Flambeau is asked to come to the Flambeau office in the Alumni Building for the meeting, or come to the office and sign up at any time during the day.

Short courses are being made now for a tentative 32-page Homecoming edition.

"Howdy" From FSU Prexy

Although I have spoken to you from the platform upon the occasion of your coming to the University, I take this means of further expression of our appreciation for your presence in the University. We especially appreciate your splendid cooperation during the tedious days of orientation. You have shown a remarkably fine spirit in every respect.

As we begin our year's work together I wish again to assure you that the administrative officers, the faculty, and the staff of the University desire to give you every possible assistance in working out your plans.

I am sure that you recognize that the University will be largely what you and your fellow students make it. It is my sincere hope and my strong belief that this will be a successful year in your lives and in the life of your University.

Sincerely yours,
DOAK S. CAMPBELL,
President.

Plans Underway For Miami U Game

A pep rally in Bayfront Park, Miami, complete with band and cheerleaders, will probably start off the events of October 5 when the Seminoles complete their long trek southward for the FSU-Miami "game of the year."

Plans for the weekend festivities are almost complete according to Jimmie Barnes, president of the junior class. The Junior class is handling all arrangements.

CHARTERED BUS tickets are on sale today in lower Westcott and on the lobby of the West dining hall and will be available for several days in unlimited numbers. Round-trip fare is $13 as compared to over $18 by regular bus. tickets will have Tallahassee Thursday, Oct. 4, after 5 p.m. and travel all night, arriving in Miami on the same day. Some of the buses will return Saturday and some Sunday.

Chairman Jimmie Barnes reported that arrangements have been made with the Hotel Alcazar in Biscayne Blvd. and 5th St. to accommodate FSU travelers at $2.25 per person, two to a room.

GAME TICKETS may be purchased here at FSU for $1 at the West campus athletic tickes office. These seats usually sell at $4.

No official holiday is scheduled here most students will have to remain at Tallahassee, but Mr. Charles H. Walker, FSU registrar, has stated that teachers should encourage students to see the

FSU Warpath Club To Meet Tomorrow

The president of every organization on campus is requested to send one delegate to the first meeting of the Warpath Club tomorrow at 7 p. m. in the auditorium of the Alumni building.

Delegates will plan the pep rally on Friday for the Troy State football game. The rally sponsored by the Warpath Club will be held at 7 p. m. in the amphitheatre.

THE NEW CLUB, formed to promote school spirit at FSU was the "brain-storm" of two of FSU's cheer leaders, Jeti Mainous and Nancy Bennett. Inspiration for the club came when the girls attended the Southern Collegiate Pep Conference at Chapel Hill, North Carolina last semester.

At a joint student-faculty meeting toward the end of the semester, plans were presented and Dr. Many of the Spanish department was chosen faculty advisor. A student committee was set up to work on the constitution and organizational plans during summer school. The committee consisted of Mitchell Sutherland, Frank Nelson, Dick Bradley, Tom Edwards and Jeti Munroe.

THE FOLLOWING LETTER has been sent to the president of the Florida Flambeau. Campus Dear President:

During the summer, we've been working hard to lay the groundwork for a new organization—the WARPATH CLUB. The purpose was, of course, obvious because of the extreme lack of spirit in the past in all sports here at FSU. Now it's true that we all are proudly proud of our Seminoles who have done such a "bang up" job, but—they're kinda getting ahead of our "spirit pace" and fnless we get in step with them, we can't expect

"Flying High" Has Many Acts

Despite the loss of several key performers, the internationally known "Flying High" will again present an amazing variaty of acts, Coach Jack Haskin has assured.

Workouts have been going on all summer and Haskin stated that the troupe will be in excellent condition for their first performance in Opp, Alabama.

MISSING from this year's cast will be Nancy Bennett, Martha Hunter, Lucy Galloway, Gil Aldridge, Jack Price, Bob Johnson, Thad Brooks, Susie Gibson, Joanne Vaughn Priscia Wells Nancy Jackson, Mary Bryson, Sue Pelteway, Bette Ann Holland, Edith Godfrey, Bobby Jones, Charlie Floyd, Al Smeltz, Ted Revell, Cornelius, Bob Welland, Barbara Brooks and Buddie Alexander.

Bob Miller will take over Bob Johnson's place on the perch pole while a new aerial act featuring act will be inaugurated with John Maybee working with Lell Pinkney, Faye Sirls, and Dorothy Fortune who will be furnishing the class portion of the act.

DORIS KITRELL and Fred Darrow are working on a new French aerial act which will be featured act with the Rinaling show last year.

Haskin hinted that a new animal act will be brought into the show in take for place of the leopard skit which met with such approval last year. "Flying High" will center their numbers around themes of songs and will perform while the circus band plays the special tunes.

IF IT CAN BE ARRANGED this circus troupe will wire up connection with band director Bob Brasnacik, in the halftime demonstration at Miami on October 5. They will also follow the Opp, Alabama engagement with a halftime performance at Defuniak Springs.

Haskin, who will be assisted this year by Jim DeCosmo and Charles Floyd said that there are still some openings in this year's troupe and Freshman interested in trying out for the production is instructed to come, appropriately dressed, to the men's room at West Campus at 7:30 Wednesday nite.

game, allowing them to make up the work later.

FRESHMEN WOMEN, who are not usually allowed to make trips during the first weeks of the semester must present special written permission for the trip, according to the dean of women Katherine Warren. Other students follow general regulations.

Game time will be 8:15 at the Orange Bowl stadium and FSU seats will be reserved in section PP and may be reached by entering gates 8 and 9.

MIAMI WILL BE host to Tallahassee students at an informal dance scheduled to be either at Electrician Hall or the Riviera Country Club. Finally on Saturday afternoon from 1 until 4, there will be swimming and dancing at Crandon Park sponsored by alumni of FSU and Miami. The entire park has been reserved for the occasion.

First Aid Classes To Begin on Campus

The Florida State University civil defense program will sponsor extra-curricular first aid classes for every housing unit on campus.

Classes will be scheduled according to students attending. Tentative dates have been set for Tuesdays and Thursdays. Students may attend the 5 o'clock to 6 o'clock period or 8 until 10 on either day. They must attend four hours a week.

Dr. Katherine Montgomery, director of physical education, said that the meetings were very necessary for the unit organizations in case of war disaster or an emergency. Each unit organization must send one delegate.

Profs Attend State And Regional Meets

Professor Gordon J. Aldridge spoke to the Torreya Quincy Chapter of the Florida Federation of Social Workers in Quincy yesterday. The topic of his talk was the work and plans of the Human Relations Institute of Tallahassee, of which he is director.

Mrs. Margaret C. Bristol, associate professor of Social Work will leave September 30, for Nashville, Tennessee, where she will attend the Annual Southeastern Regional Meeting of the American Public Welfare Association. Dependent children, public welfare and civil defense, administration of public welfare and training for social work will be some of the topics discussed. Prof. Bristol will be the only representative from the Florida State School of Social Welfare.

Gala, Colorful Entertainment Featured as Rush Week Ends

Freshmen, transfers, and many upperclassmen have been very busy this week with sorority rushing. Every freshman and transfer was invited to at least one rush party.

Down sorority row since Saturday evening there have been shindigs bahis, and gay laughter as rushees entered and left the various sorority houses.

THE KAPPA ALPHA THETAS featured a skit on Monday night entitled Candyland, and for the second party some of the Theta songs, sung by the members.

The Kappa Deltas held one party outside, and presented two skits, an old fashioned hoedrama, and Goldilocks; they had dinner at the Silver Slipper.

The Alpha Omicron Pis' theme was Dream, and some of the sorority songs were sung.

FEATURED BY the Delta Gammas were two skits, The Famous Delta Gammas, and Holiday Hat Fashion Party, their colors of bronze, pink, and blue were the motif throughout.

The Gamma Phi Betas showed the rushees the History of Gamma Phi Beta during the Monday night parties.

Freshman Green and a Variety Show rsaided the girls who attended parties at the Sigma Kappa house.

The Tri-Deltas had a colored butler who greeted each rushee at the door and ushered her into a plantation party, after which they presented Dream Garden and a Tour Through New York.

The Delta Zetas featured four skits: Academic Majors, a Cabaret Dianer Party, and the Delta Zeta Spirit among them.

At the Chi Omega house, the rushees saw a skit called Little Red Riding Hood and heard the members sang Chi Omega songs.

The Alpha Delta Pis presented Cupid and The Story of the Pin to the girls who attended their Monday evening soirees.

The Phi Mu house was held a Jitterbug Wedding for the entertainment of the rushees. As the Alpha Gamma Delta house the first party featured a railroad skit with a cut-out train with their big mirror and a Chinese skit with Oriental motif.

On Sunday evening, Zeta Tau Alpha entertained rushees with a songr skit from the musical comedy Carousel, and on Monday evening they gave the Zeta Hotel skit and another one called Roaring Twenties. The Tuesday evening skit will be called Alice in Zetaland. The Zetas are using their gray and green color theme throughout.

THE ALPHA XI DELTAS are using their rose emblem in their parties. On Monday evening they presented Mother Goose and Dreamland for the rushees.

The new Phi Mu house was the scene on Sunday evening, of a miniature Stork Club, that is. The rushees ate in the dining room which was decorated as a night club, with backneck girl little tables, menus, and cool-aid made to look like cocktails. There was even a French waitress. On Monday evening they presented a radio skit, called the Phi Mu Calleg Hour, with commercials, musical entertainment, and baton twirling.

THE PI BETA PHIS, who are at present living on fifth floor of Landis, entertained their rushees in the Longmire building. The Florida Hotel, and finally, tonight, in their own house, which is being remodeled, but will be used for the one rush party.

Newcomers Club Plan Foreign Shows

The Newcomers Film Club and Travel Talk Series plans again this year to bring to Tallahassee foreign and classical films of cultural or educational value. The program for the 1951-52 season is being made available through the General Extension Division of the Florida Institutions of Higher Learning.

THE MOVIES may be seen by joining the club, which costs $2.50 per person for the fourteen movies. Six of the showings will be held in the air-conditioned Music Auditorium, while the remaining eight will be shown in the Longmire Building.

There will be a 6:30 and 8:30 showing in the Longmire because of the limited seating capacity but there will be only a single 8:15 showing in the Music Auditorium. Membership will be limited to 600. tickets being sold on a first come-first served basis. For additional information Call Mrs. J. V. McDonough at 3-0571.

REELS SCHEDULED for showing are "British—Tahiti Little Island", "Major Barbara" and The Lady Vanishes French—"Eternal Return," "Beauty and the Beast", "Grand Illusion", and "Les Enfants Du Paradis". Russian—The Great Glinka" and "Alexander Nevsky". American—"Lifeboat", "All Quiet On The Western Front", and "It Happened One Night". Swedish—"The Children".

OUR REAL PURPOSE is to stimulate school spirit and to promote interest in all sports here at FSU. Our university has shown a lack of student responsibility to this end and we feel a pep club will fill the need. In order to spread this spirit over the school it is necessary that every organization and dormitory be represented at our first meeting of the year. Then we can make plans for the first pep rally and parade of the football season.

We suggest you elect a delegate and an alternate now and add these two offices to your permanent ballot list. The opening Pow Wow of the WARPATH CLUB will be held Wednesday, Sept. 26 at 7:00 in the Auditorium of the Alumni Building. Weekly meetings will follow as scheduled.

We hope you feel the need for cooperation as greatly as we do. Let your SPIRIT be your guide!

Sincerely yours,
Organization Committee

WFSU Offers Fine Entertainment

"The primary purpose of the four year old radio station of the campus radio station, WFSU, is to serve the campus community with the finest radio entertainment we can produce," stated Manager Stan Gould about the elected mentor of the 660 dial spot.

"We are in dire need of competent scrips writers, people interested in engineering, producers, directors, public relation members and general office workers and we hope that anyone interested in these very important activities will come and see us as soon as possible."

WFSU SERVES both campuses and its surrounding vicinities and is a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Broadcasting System which supplies some radio scripts to this campus and many other campus radio stations. Manager Stan Gould seems very much impressed by this system and believes "it certainly can't hurt us."

Len Mellon, chief announcer, looking over a list of the prospective announcers who were given try-outs on announcing, added, "Of the freshmen and returning students of last year we have the nucleus of an excellent announcing staff formed."

WFSU IS OPERATING on 860 from 7-9 a.m. and then continuing at 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. the same evening every Monday through Friday. On Sunday they broadcast at 12 noon until 3 p.m. There is no broadcasting on Saturday for the time being. The Seminole station's program schedule will appear weekly in the Flambeau.

Station Presents Show "Lonely Hour"

It has been announced that Gene Frowhers's LONELY HOUR will be heard Tuesday nights at 8:30 through the facilities of WFSU, 660. The monodrama is being presented by the Theater Guild of the Air as the first major dramatic production of the year.

The unusual 15 minute production is peopled by many characters, but only one is heard. It is she that motivates the moving script. Featured in LONELY HOUR will be "Skipper" Lambert, a transfer student from St. Petersburg now in her junior year. The production staff includes Len Mellon, director; Neil Jacoby, announcer; Stan Gould, sounds, and Terry Porter, engineer.

Forty-Two Voices Join Collegians

"Collegians." FSU Men's Glee Club, has signed a record enrollment of 42 male voices for fall semester, director J. Dayton Smith stated yesterday.

2,300 blotters were distributed courtesy of the Collegians to all sororities, fraternities and dormitories.

There are still several openings available in the Collegians.

The men singing group will serenade campus dormitories in the near future, Smith informed.

Welcome Frosh,

Floyd Will Appear In First Scheduled Faculty Recital

First in a series of weekly faculty recitals will be the presentation of Carlisle Floyd, pianist, Friday evening, in the Music Hall.

Floyd, who has been with the University faculty for the past four years, received his training at Converse College and Syracuse University. He is an accomplished composer as well as pianist. His first composition was an opera Slow Dusk, which was first presented at Syracuse University.

It has been presented twice at Florida State University.

The Fugitives was Floyd's second opera and was written last winter and produced for the first time in the FSU Music hall last April. Both of Floyd's compositions have been written with piano accompaniment to facilitate production.

The Friday program will include Sonata in F minor, Liszt; Le Gibet and Ondine, Ravel; La Terrace des audiences au clair dul lune and Ce qua Ce qua v a le vent d'Ouest, Debussy; and Toccata by Prokofieff.

Welcome Frosh,

Homecoming Theme Honors Education

The theme of Florida State University's 1951 Homecoming on Oct. 26-27 will be the Centennial of Higher Education in Florida, announced by President Doak S. Campbell.

State support of higher education began in January, 1851, with the act of the legislature, which established two seminaries of higher learning.

AFTER the dismissal of classes as 1:00 p.m. on Friday, the Homecoming celebrations will begin with alumni registration and day-time judging of decorations of stores, FSU residence halls, houses, sororities, and fraternities.

This will be followed by the annual Garnet-Gold Key Banquet in the evening for several hundred guests. Campbell Stadium will be the scene of the '51 Pow Wow at 8:30. Night judging of the decorations will be announced.

AFTER AN EARLY BREAKFAST and business meeting alumni will gather to watch the mile-long parade of fowls, bands, and marching units scheduled to begin at 9:30.

Saturday's evening will include a barbecue for honor guests at the University's Camp Flastacowa.

Kick-off time for the Homecoming game between FSU and Stetson is set for 2:30. Following the game various groups will hold open houses and coffees. Climaxing the week-end activities will be the annual Homecoming dance featuring Tex Beneke's orchestra.

THE SPLENDID (COOPERATION of Tallahassee, alumni, students, and the work of all committee members promises to make this year's Homecoming outstanding," stated John Newton Baker, Director of Public Relations at FSU, and general chairman for the 1951 Centennial Homecoming.

Homecoming Committee Chairmen include: Katrine Austin, decorations; Edmund Lewandowski, decorations judging; Ed Williamson, parade organization; Bill Upshaw, float decorations; John Humphreys, street decorations, Ralph Williams, Downtown Store decorations; Alice Jackson, Garnet-Gold Key Banquet; Jack Haskin, Pow-Wow; Mildred Parrish, alumni activities; Mary Virginia Alexander, barbecue decorations; Rod Shaw, barbecue food; Stan Gould, homecoming dance; Rod Shaw, general transportation and finance; Robert Leich, publications; Dean Laurence Campbell, publicity; Robert Braunagel, half-time ceremonies; Edith McCollum, on-campus housing; Charles Hayes, downtown housing; Jerry Thomas, homecoming guests.

A HOSPITALITY and special services committee will be composed of FSU student body officers and class presidents, Chamber of Commerce University Liaison Committee, and the University Executive Council.

Editorial Policy

This editorial policy is not static or fixed. It would be foolish to deny the force of change, therefore time may temper certain ideas and alter some points of this 1951-1952 Flambeau editorial policy.

The points listed below are the main constituents toward which the Flambeau will devote its energy and influence.

1. The Flambeau is published for and by the students. It is the voice of the students. It will be the students champion. The Flambeau will examine all puff, pull, pressure, personal publicity, and all other sorts and conditions of propaganda and will print only that which we think is in the best interests of the student.

2. It will promote, through editorials and features, a clearer understanding of school, state, and national problems. It will mirror student feeling on these problems and it will reflect their opinions.

3. It will encourage an enlargement of the athletic subsidation program. It believes FSU needs greater recognition in the field of sports.

We believe we should have athletic engagements in every sport with our brother university—The University of Florida.

4. The student newspaper and other student publications must always be completely free. The Flambeau will fight all restrictive measures that corral and harness student freedom. Publications must be kept on a respected and personnally trusted basis.

5. Music needs a spice of the modern, much the same as art. Therefore the Artist Series should have a greater variety of music because many unrepresented forms of music, which give untold enjoyment to students, are missing.

6. We believe all teachers should be graded, whether voluntary or school administered.

7. The spirit of charity must be continued through a bigger and better Campus Chest campaign.

8. The Flambeau believes the students should strive to make Florida State University, "The South's Friendly Campus."

9. The State Legislature should always give careful consideration to the state colleges and promote higher education through ample financial provisions.

10. Hooray for the 50-year plan. It must be made a clearer reality each new day.

11. We believe in complete investigation of Student Activity Monies. The student activity fee should be increased to catch up with the tide of rising costs.

12. We hope for establishment on this campus of the National Student Association and will cooperate with NSA and redistribute NSA material through the Flambeau.

13. We believe in the estabilshment of a unified court system.

The following points have been discussed seriously by the senior staff. Perhaps some additional stands should be expressed by the Flambeau. If this is true, it is the students responsibility to inform the Flambean.

The primary object will always be to give complete and unbiased reporting of campus news and events.

● CHAPLAIN NEEL

Many students, faculty and staff members on this campus remember Dr. Sam Neel, former professor of philosophy and religion at Florida State.

He is easy to meet, easy to know, and easy to like. He welcomed the present seniors when they were freshmen and served as their advisor for three years.

At present, he is a chaplain with the famous "Hourglass" Division, 31st infantry regiment in central Korea. The heroic 7th division has been taking the blunt of the brutal Chinese see-saw war.

On the scorched hills of some war scarred Korean terrain, Chaplain Samuel Neel is probably giving his wise and kind advice, his comfort and simple religion to a group of torn humans.

Perhaps he is renewing in their minds the ideals for which they are fighting. Perhaps he is pointing out the goal for which their buddies have already given their precious lives.

Perhaps he is telling them, as he told his students here, that there is something good in every man and the greatest happiness comes from helping your fellow man.

Dr. Neel's faith was strengthened when he was thrown into a Nazi concentration camp in the last World War. Here, he was able to witness the worst of man's nature, the cruel brutality and sadistic horror that hide the undiscovered decency in man.

Perhaps, as he gathers his soldiers around him for communion, he is thinking about how students in college are now mature and realize the responsibility that face them.

Perhaps his boys ask him if the college students, who have it so easy, can feel the undercurrent demand in their lives. It is a demand that they must learn and learn immediately. It is a demand that they examine the reality of responsibility to themselves and their fellow men in the free world.

Perhaps he is thinking many things . . . What shall he and the heroes be written?

● NOT TOO BAD!

For the first time in too many years registration was something just short of chaos. The "new system" that was started last year by the Registrar's office has been undergoing changes until now the system is beginning to move a little faster.

The trial and error methods of the Registrar's office has been dimly viewed by the Flambesu for a long time. However, we are forced to admit that the procedure is begining to show promise. If the system is improved equally in following registrations, we at FSU will soon experience a smooth, quiet, intelligent registration. The shortcuts that have been instituted thus far are to be praised.

The Student Christian Association is also to be thanked for their lemonade stand at the end of the registration line. Nothing helps thirsty tired students more than a refreshing cool drink of ice-cold lemonade.

● WELL EDITED

All one-hundred and twenty-eight pages of this year's Pow-Wow are packed with valuable student information. Helpful to FSUers are lists of student government officers, along with the constitution and an explanation of the Honor System. The freshman will especially find pages 81-86 interesting reading this week for pictured there are sorority and fraternity pins.

To promote school spirit, student organizations and traditions are explained and school songs and cheers are listed. The handbook is published as a source of information and reference for upperclassmen and faculty. But it is also intended as a special welcome for freshmen. For all, it is an official guide to Florida State University.

The editors of the '51-'52 handbook deserve a big vote of thanks for the manner in which they have collected and edited the contents. Our appreciation goes to Lucille Rogers, Ralph Hanks, Charles Heisner, Marjorie Meckstroth, Betty Jean Schoeppe Bobby Serras, Beverley Ward and departments on campus for a job well done.

First Yearly Meeting of Bi-Y Stresses Freshmen Interests

Wallace Dyne[illegible] of Bi-Y announced that the first meeting of the year will be held Thursday and will be dedicated especially to freshmen interests. The meeting will take place in the social work building and will consist of skits and games for recreation.

Student Christian Association, known as SCA last year, has become Bi-Y. The reason for this is that the organization is a combination of YMCA and YWCA, thus making it a two-fold Y, or Bi-Y.

CABINET MEMBERS met at the home of Dr and Mrs. Coyle E. Moore of the social welfare school before the semester began to discuss the year's plans. The second event will be the annual barn dance on Oct 12 in the new wing gymnasium East campus.

Last week the group furnished free lemonade to those registering on Friday and Saturday. Several Bi-Y members also acted as hosts and hostesses at the president's reception [illegible] Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

BI-Y MEETS every Thursday evening at 7 p m. Two meetings every month are dedicated to programs presented by the various commissions; personal and campus affairs, Christian heritage, social responsibilities, current events and freshmen. Another meeting is devoted to recreation and the fourth to meetings of the various commissions and their members.

It is the purpose of Bi-Y to sponsor worthy causes and to furnish a full program of Christian activity for any who wish to participate.

ANOTHER EMBRYO PLAN is the establishment of a church service on West Campus and operation of a church nursery school for veterans' children.

Officers of the organization include Wallace Dynes, president, Pete Williams, vice-president; Mary Ann Slemp, secretary, and Dick Schoenberger, treasurer. Also [illegible] are Mary Ellen Tate, Peggy Moore, Margaret Ernest Evelyn Gustafson, Margaret Hoadley, Carolyn Moore, and Jean Flynn.

Ruge Hall Opens Nite-Cappers Club

Nite-cappers, a service and social organization for men, has been established by the Episcopalian students, and will hold its initial meeting Thursday night from 8 to 10 p m at Ruge Hall.

The purpose of the organization is "to sponsor all those activities in which the men of the campus have a particular part and to offer to the men the opportunity for joint fellowship and action." Acting chairman of the group is Charles Binnicker, graduate student.

The Nite-cappers will meet every second and fourth Thursday at Ruge Hall. Refreshments are to be served. New students to the campus will be introduced at the first meeting. No invitation dues or charges will be connected with the meeting.

HEAD LINES

HEADS HAPPY THAT FROSH ARE HERE

By ALLAN HEAD

This is to be a happy column. Even if it's the last happy column I write this year . . . and it may be just that. Of course I don't feel particularly happy . . . my girl has run off to the University of Florida, I can't sleep nights, two of the courses I had scheduled didn't even show up in the Fall catalog, the Dean of Men is probably mad at me for telling an off-color joke to the Freshmen men the other day, and the thought of writing this column all year is perfectly revolting.

But enough of this morbid balderdash. This is to be a happy column even if my world IS compounded of fog and misery. Because, and you may believe it or not, as your little pointed heads so choose, it is a greeting and a salutation to this wonderful crowd of FRESHMEN we've got this year. And particularly to the Freshwomen . . . the fresher the better.

Tell you what I like about you (and I mean you, Frosh!) . . . I like the fact that you're here, for one thing. That means the old school can keep on perking a little longer, and, incidentally, that there will be more money for the Flambeau in the Student Activity Fund. (The way they were planning budgets last fall, it seemed they didn't expect ANY new students this year!)

And I like the way you say "Hey!" to each other when you're passing on the campus (not "making passes," . . . "passing") . . . the way you smile when someone is talking to you . . . your courage in sitting through the tests and speeches we have battered and bruised you with ever since your arrival (the administration here figures that if you can take freshman week, you can take anything—and they don't have to worry about you anymore) . . . your grim determination to find your way around campus, starting out, as it were, with merely a little compass and the map in your handbook . . . (there isn't a Freshman man I've talked to that doesn't know where Jennie Murphree is). . . .

But of course, as a political columnist, I must make a prediction. And it's this: that the Class of '55 will cause us all to sit up and take notice: that it will be an outstanding class all the way down the line: that its dances will be bigger and better; that the traditional Freshman Carnival will be a whang dang, bang up, hell-raising barrel of fun, and that the Freshmen politicians will be even sharper than last year's immoral . . . er, immortal . . . team of Curtis and Turnbull.

We of the Flambeau staff will get to know you better as the year moves on. We hope that you will get to know us, too. In fact, here's a blanket invitation (bring your own blankets), to come on up to the Flambeau office and hang around. We're the only free three ring circus here that has a new performance each and every day. You'll find we're a question asking bunch, but if you've got a clean nose there's nothing to fear . . . and for sheer fun and friendliness this office has every place on campus beat a mile.

Anyhoo, glad you're here, Freshmen, and keep up the good work!

SEMINOLE SCENES

RAT-CAPS WORN UNTIL THANKSGIVING

By FRANCES CAWTHON

It is a great feeling to watch a university come to life, to be around when its silent buildings seem to put on a personality for those who have come home again.

I like to hear those snatches of conversation saying, "It's great to be back again . . ." The hummed notes of a football song, people hurrying here and there, kids competing with blaring records at the hangouts. . . . Yep, to watch all this wake up is wonderful.

From the looks of Freshman Week, this year is going to be one for the books. At the annual Sing held by the Women's "F" Club, the Frosh sang the Alma Mater as if they had been practicing it since Kindergarten. The President's Reception showed a group, not only anxious to meet faculty members of their majors, but also members of their own class. Perhaps it was because of an increase in number over previous years, but the men seemed much braver, and everybody went around introducing themselves to other people. Not many little knots of people, looking on the rest as if they were fugitives, were seen, thank goodness.

At the meeting of the University Government Association officers, the Freshmen seemed really to get into the swing of things. From observation, this meeting did about as much as anything to instill some old fashioned school spirit in the crowd.

Everybody agrees that the class of '55 is going to be O. K. As Dean Warren was heard to remark, "What more could you ask? Almost a man to every girl!"

Surprising how much of a difference several hundred garnet and gold clad heads can make in a university. Looks like a real dyed-in-the-wool campus that you read about in books. Rat caps must be worn by the Freshman class until Thanksgiving, and for the offender who does not donn his head with our school colors, there is a Rat Court raring to go into action.

This "action" has some of our newcomers a little bit worried. The upperclassmen don't intend to bite off their heads, just nibble a little bit. Hazing is not allowed on this campus, and we intend to keep our penalizing within reason. Saying reason includes the practical, however, I am not.

This year a Freshman-Sophomore Day is going to be held, during which, if all goes as planned, the Frosh will have a chance to compete with the Sophomore class in events such as sports. As plans now stand, Frosh Class Ex-President Charlie Curtis will take a swim in the Westcott fountain if the Frosh manage to better their upperclassmen.

Tallahassee weather has finally gotten back to normal again. For several years it had always rained during Freshman Week, but last year, when the skies stayed sunny, the jinx was thought to be broken. No need to worry any more, however. After this year, looks as if the tradition will be carried on.

A lot of the harnessed Frosh are beginning to believe that they will never learn everything about this University. The answer is that they'll probably still be learning when they are Seniors. That's what is so fascinating about the darn place.

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

BOOK II CHAPTER 1: JUNIOR ENGLISH?

By EMORY KING

Charlie slammed the door and stomped across the office. Pulling up himself to his full three inches he cried, "I've just come from registration. Not bad—at least not as bad as it has been in other years.

"Junior English was the only big bottleneck this time. You know this Junior English situation is getting bad. Too many students are not getting through the test. Something is wrong. Either the student body is getting more and more stupid, the English department isn't teaching the right courses, or the junior English test is at fault.

"Only a few years ago there were only a few students who did not pass the test. There was some talk at the time of dropping the whole thing. Then more and more students began to fail the test, and from the look of registration most of the students failed it.

"I think it would be well to look into this matter."

For the benefit of those who were not here during the summer session when Charlie made his first appearance in this column I will give you a brief historical sketch of Charlie's life.

Charlie is the Flambeau gremlin. All newspapers have a gremlin of one sort of another. They are like good fairies or elves for the newspapers. When a reporter or editor needs a lot of luck with a story the gremlin moves in to help. Many papers need these gremlins but none so much as a college newspaper. A college paper always has trouble in getting stories and cooperation.

Charlie came to the Flambeau over 25 years ago when the paper was new at this college. He has always been faithful to the editors and the paper. For years no one but the editor-in-chief knew about Charlie. He did his job and asked no reward.

However, last summer he began to get egotistical. He demanded a voice and recognition in the paper. We tried to argue with him but it did no good. He wouldn't listen. We tried to replace him, but to no avail. Central Gremlin headquarters said that no replacement could be had. There's been an acute shortage in gremlins for some time. One of their best men was lost in Argentina last fall.

So we were stuck with Charlie. The editor called a conference. It was decided that I was to write the life and times of Charlie, the Flambeau gremlin.

All summer this column followed the movements, comments, and ideas of this strange creature.

When he grew to the average student's size or shrunk to his normal three inch stature we followed him around and recorded his stories. Not satisfied with this summer's publicity he has demanded the same coverage for this semester.

Well, here is Charlie, the gremlin. We hope you will like his philosophy, his stories, and his wit.

PLAYBITS....

The speech department holds open house tonight in Augusta Conradi Theatre, for everyone interested. There will be skits, exhibits, and guided tours throughout the theatre and the shops.

Jayne Gardner, fresh from Barter Theatre, resumes her job as president of Les Jongleurs.

Les Jongleurs is choosing an original design for a pin from several entries. This design will also appear on programs and stationery used by the honorary.

George Carey, having done summer work with the drama department at the University of Tampa, is again taking courses here.

The speech department production will begin the 1951-52 season with Kaufman and Hart's You Can't Take It With You, a rollicking comedy.

Drama center, or 108 History, has been a shambles, due to workmen remodeling it into several offices, during freshman week. Students were apt to step on a Moliere wig, or a Greek chorus costume as they were placed in the hall during the work days.

The Light Opera Guild announces that its fall production will be Roberta, Broadway hit musical of a couple of decades ago.

Dear Editor...

Reynolds Flood

Dear Editor:

Flood! For the people of Kansas City, this word brings fear but for the Freshmen of REYNOLDS HALL it proved to be an exciting end of Freshman Week.

About 15 of 4 p.m., yours truly was rudely awakened by the patter of little feet (size 8's) and the dripping of water. Assuming that all were excited over the completion of registration and the sorority dances being held that evening, I staggered out into the hall and questioned the first to fly by. Bits of information, like Pipe broken—bottom floor — we need a raincoat—Showers on the house—anybody want a broom? —etc. floated out on the clear crisp air surrounding room and habit on the 100 floor

Proceeding cautiously to the 300 floor, it was observed that all draft-exempt females in the shorts brigade were busy with mop, pail and broom trying desperately to dispose of the excess water that gushed unceremoniously out of the pressurized shower-room pipe which at the time, or sooner, had burst wide open.

Retracing my steps, all the way to the Rec. Room, I found that the three personages occupying said room, were either totally unaware of the disastrous occurrance or completely uninterested in the unofficial ending of Freshman Week. Upon reaching the shower room on that floor, I am surprised to note that everything had been taken care of, so I calmly proceeded back to my own abode with light heart.

Although I am reasonably sure that the Alphi Phi Omega, who helped plan Freshman Week, had nothing to do with flood-time at Reynolds, I would like to thank them for the expert planning that they did do.

DAY O'DARE.

Smoke Signals Sets New Policy

Plans for a new "feature-type" policy for the campus magazine, Smoke Signals, will be made Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the Smoke Signals office. Joel Smith, editor, stated that the meeting would be open to anyone interested in the magazine.

Regular staff tryouts for Smoke Signals will be held at a date to be announced in a later edition, Joel said. Writers for all phases of work on the staff will be needed.

SMOKE SIGNALS will be issued approximately every other month this year, the editor said, making six issues per year, instead of the former four issues. The 20 page magasine will have shorter stories and more timely material this year, Joel said.

Joel stated that "the student body has indicated that they don't want an entirely literary magazine, but one which is closer to campus life". This year's Smoke Signals will highlight more student activities and also a variety of sports features. More photos and cartoons depicting campus life and students will be featured also.

THE STAFF WRITERS for assignments for feature articles will be selected by Joel this year.

Humor editor, Bob Jenkins, has announced that the humor section will be larger with original gags and cartoons of campus satire.

Katrine Austin and Margaret Marshall, fashion editors, will feature an extensive section of men's and women's fashions.

AD PRICES may rise slightly this year, Edward Pipkin, business manager has stated. Ads will be more attractive and may feature pictures of various students for greater advertising value.

Advertising and the student activity fees are the sole means of payment for Smoke Signals.

Mid-Morning Snacks At Suwannee Room

The Suwannee Room is now serving light breakfast snacks from 9 to 11 for the convenience of persons on the upper campus.

Fruit juices, sweet rolls, danish pastries, coffee, milk and other beverages will be featured.

Good Seminoles Sing Fight Song!

Fight Song

Song Written One Year Ago

Printed above is Florida State University's first fight song. It will be sung by all good Seminoles at pep rallies and athletic events.

The music was written by Mr. Thomas Wright, assistant professor of music, with lyrics composed by Doug Ailey.

LAST YEAR this time FSU did not have an original "fight song." Cheerleaders and students were singing song steals and inovations of fight songs from other colleges.

Doug Ailey, Flambeau poetry columnist and graduate student at the time published the lyrics in his column, "Poetically Yours." By 3 p.m. the same day Thomas Wright had written the music and turned it over to Mr. Robert Braunagel, band director for arranging.

THE SONG was introduced by the Collegians, Men's Glee Club, at the fourth annual homecoming Pow Wow and was rapidly picked up by the students.

It is the third fight song with music by Wright. While at Indiana University he composed the music for the "Indiana Fight Song" and later wrote the music for Butler University "Victory March."

ALLEY MAD written lyrics for the 19 songs appearig in the 1951 Sandspur production, "Gypsy Holiday." He also composed his senior class poem and song for his class's graduation ceremonies.

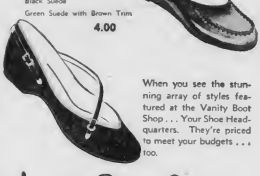
The song was first introduced to this year's freshmen at the freshman stunt night by the cheerleaders.

African Ethnic Art Display in Museum Until October 31

"African Ethnic Art" is now on display in the Florida State University Museum and Art Gallery. The Art Gallery will feature enlargements of the works of five of the nation's first rate photographers until October 31.

The FSU Museum has scheduled a series of free exhibits for students and the public. Arrangements were made in cooperation with curator Lothar Wittenborg and Dr. Hale G. Smith, director of the museum, and director of the Art Gallery, Professor Edmund Lewandowski.

"Eskimo Art and Materia. Culture" will be the next museum attraction from October 31 until November 30. The Art Gallery will offer "Family Portraits From the Tallahassee Area."



Other displays in the Art Gallery are "American Poster Art, "Florida Federation of Arts," "Exhibition of Non-Objective Paintings", "Art Schools U. S. A.", "Modern American Painting," "45 Drawings" and "FSU Students Show."

In the Museum will be shown later "Weapons From Indonesia" and "Two One-Man Graduate Student Exhibits."

Five Student Houses, 17 Churches, Offer Spiritual Life to Seminoles

Academic and extra-curricular activities leave Florida State students without much spare time, but despite this, they still find time to be very active in religious organizations.

Five student houses, as well as about 17 near-by churches, offer the Seminoles an outlet for the more spiritual, as well as good, clean fun.

THE WESTMINSTER Fellowship, composed of Presbyterian students, has recently gotten a new home, a red brick student house on West Park and Copeland. Miss Miriam Wilson is director of all the Fellowship activities.

The BSU house, located at 602 W Call, a owned and operated by the Florida Baptist Convention. Miss Mary Elizabeth Ainsworth is director of the union. The Baptist student union has a weekly paper all of its own, the Link, edited by Hasel Morrison. The First Baptist Church has a department especially for the University students and on Sunday nights the students have supper, followed by sinerspiration and Training union. On Friday morning a Watch is held. The BSU house is also the scene of YWA meetings, vespers, Brotherhood, BSU choir and the Baptist players.

THE LUTHERAN students at FSU compose the Gamma Tau chapter of Gamma Delta, an international association of Lutheran college and university students. The Gamma Deltan have a choir and student board which plan the year's activities.

Miss Alpharetta Leeper directs the activities of the members of the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist group on campus. The fellowship holds a supper, worship services, choir and work shops. The Wesley Players have gained much recognition for their dramatic productions.

THE EPISCOPALIAN students are members of the Canterbury club, which has its home in Rure Hall, across from the library. Rev. Walter K. Morley is director of the club. The club holds daily vespers and Sunday morning services in their chapel. Sports equipment is also provided for its members.

The Newman House, for Catholic students, has a house mother this year. Mass is held at the Newman House every Sunday morning in the chapel-social hall, as well as parties throughout the year. The Newman Club members also make up the choir for the Blessed Sacrament church in Tallahassee.

JEWISH STUDENTS are members of the B'nai Brith Hillel Foundation which meets at the Temple Israel. The Foundation is one of four located at Florida schools. Both the Nasarene and the Christian Science churches have university departments for students of those sects.

University Singers Need Male Voices

Openings are still available in the University Singers, according to Dr. W. L. Housewright, director of the group. Male voices are especially needed, he said.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the group is urged to see Dr. Housewright at 221 Music building. Appointments may be made for all of this week. Rehearsal hours are from two till three p. m. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The University Singers is a group of approximately 60 voices, selected by auditions. Plans for the group include a Christmas program, a tour of the state, a spring concert and recording projects.

1952 Maid of Cotton Contest Is Announced by Council

The National Cotton council has announced the opening of the 1952 Maid of Cotton contest.

The search for the well-publicized Cotton Queen covers 18 states and is open to girls between the ages of 19-25, who were born in a cotton-producing state, never married and measure over 5 feet 5 inches tall

APPLICATION forms may be secured by writing the National Cotton Council, Box 18, Memphis, Tenn. These forms supplemented by a head and shoulders and full-length photos must be returned to the Council before midnight December 1.

The twenty finalists will be interviewed in Memphis, January 2-3 by prominent cotton industry leaders. The chairman will announce the 1952 Maid of Cotton at Ellis Auditorium in Memphis the evening of January 3.

Immediately the Maid of Cotton will fly to New York where she'll be trained and fitted with an all-year cotton wardrobe for her trip.

HER TOUR WILL include cities all over the United States as well as neighboring nations. She'll meet celebrities and city officials and be the featured model in all-cotton fashion shows. An unofficial tour manager and chaperone will travel with the Maid wherever she goes.

Sponsors of the Maid of Cotton are the National Cotton Council, the Memphis Cotton Carnival, and the Cotton Exchanges of Memphis, New York, and New Orleans.

Applications For Student Working Reach High Level

A very large number of applications for student assistantships for Freshmen have been reviewed, according to Glover E. Tully, director of the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement. All applicants will be placed in jobs whenever possible.

Mr. Tully is assisted by Mr. Hall Smith, the counselor in the Vocational office and Mrs. O. D. Roberts, student help secretary. They are now processing all applications as soon as possible and any persons not placed at the present will be kept on file for future consideration.

SOME OF the jobs open on campus are office work, laboratory work, information clerk, dining hall workers, accompanyist for dance classes, life guards, ticket sellers, score board operators, library assistants, and laundry helpers.

The dining hall is the greatest source for student employment on campus, Mr. Tully said. The wage scale varies from fifty to seventy-five cents an hour depending on the worker's past experience and skill.

HOW FSU LOOKS FROM THE AIR—Here is an aerial view of the modern and rapidly growing physical plant at Florida State University. In the right foreground can be seen the Westcott Building, "nerve center" of the large campus, where the president, vice president, registrar, student welfare, deans of men and women offices, counseling services, personnel records and other administrative functions are handled daily. The Science and History buildings to the left of Westcott, "Dormitory Row" near the center of the picture, the women's gymnasium building in the background are all clearly visible. Now in his 10th year as FSU president, Dr. Doak S. Campbell has constantly worked to keep the university's physical plant abreast of the large increase in enrollment since the university system was installed at FSU in 19[illegible]. (Photo by G. C. 78 Junior Counsellors Named for Freshmen which the 78 junior counselors for Freshmen are chosen at the end of their sophomore year.

"Interest, social capacity, and see more clearly the problems that scholarship" are the bases by befall the school student."

The counselors live among their freshmen in Bryan Hall, Reynolds Hall and Jennie Murphree where each is responsible for every 10 freshmen women.

VARIED OUTLOOK of counseling have been expressed by nine counselors interviewed.

Frankie Clark, president of Jennie Murphree said, "Being a junior counselor is a great challenge and a great responsibility, a job requiring a great deal of work, and one from which a great deal can be gained. There are a grand bunch of kids with a lot of enthusiasm this year. As house president she stated further that the junior counselors are doing an excellent job. "A dormitory could not function nearly so well without them," she said.

Tanya Roche stated that "adjusting freshmen and helping them with problems is so important!"

JO ANNE YOUNG of Reynolds believes that her camping experience has helped her in her present relationships to the freshmen in her charge. "I am going to teach in high school when I graduate," she said, "and I think that my experiences as a junior counselor this year will enable me to

Frankie Brownlee said that "It is satisfying to help someone in need of guidance."

Peggy Moore from Jennie Murphree, asserted that "You meet all types of people, and it is the busiest thrill to see the girls from all over the nation living next door to each other. They're homesick for the first few days, but overnight they become happy and pleased with college life."

ELIZABETH "JITTER" ROSE president of Reynolds, thought that "school spirit becomes more acute through participation with the freshmen."

Mary Anne Morgan feels that "being a junior counselor enriches every college girls' life because it makes them more aware of people's feelings, because she can see how very big college life is to freshmen."

"The freshman's freshness and sincerity wields a good influence on junior women," Pat Russell of Reynolds stated.

Jo Ann Glass, also of Reynolds, said that junior counselors "rejuvenate our own enthusiasm through that of the freshmen."

FSU Faculty Members On Leave of Absence

Florida State University faculty members, on leave of absence, are serving the cause of education in several foreign countries through programs of the United States Department of State and U. S. Office of Education.

OTHER FACULTY members have returned to the campus after having served abroad under special grants and awards made on basis of their outstanding qualifications for the work required.

Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, dean of the School of Education, was granted a leave of absence effective last July 16 and is now in Burma working with the U. S. Office of Education and Department of State in its point four program. He plans to return to the United States during the Summer of 1953. Dr. Mode Stone is serving as acting dean of the school in the absence of Dr. Eyman.

DR. LOUIS SHORES, dean of the School of Library Training and Service, will leave on October 1 for Great Britain. He has been given a leave of absence until June 1, 1952, from the University in order to accept a Fulbright Grant from the United States Department of State. He will engage in research and a study of reference materials and service in the United Kingdom. During his absence, Dr. Robert G. Clapp will serve as acting dean of the school.

Professor Graydon S. DeLand in the Department of Modern Languages is serving as director of the Cultural Center in LaPaz, Bolivia under a United States Department of State sponsored grant. He has been given a leave of absence by the State Board of Control from August 1, 1951 to August 1, 1952.

DR. WILLIAM RANDEL, associate professor of English, has resumed his duties at the university after a year's leave of absence in Helsinki, Finland. He was granted the leave from September 15, 1951 to September 15, 1952 to accept a position through the U. S. Department of State as the first professor of American Literature at the University of Finland in Helsinki.

Dr. Richard B. Elde, professor in the School of Journalism, is serving as public affairs officer in Bergen, Norway, for the U. S. Department of State. He was granted a leave of absence from July 1, 1951 to July 1, 1952.

Dr. Hugh W. Stickler, associate dean in charge of general education at Florida State University, took part in a workshop on higher education in Germany during the past month under a grant award from the U. S. Department of State. He was given a leave of absence from August 13, 1951 to September 13, 1951.

Mitchell Drew Memorial Grant Is Established

The establishment of the Mitchell N Drew Memorial Scholarship here by Mrs Alene Drew Cantey of Quincy was announced by President Campbell.

THE NEW ANNUAL scholarship was given by Mrs Cantey to the university in memory of her late husband, Mitchell N Drew, Arcanaemia for the scholarship were handled with university officials by her attorney, J Velma Keen of Tallahassee.

Terms of the scholarship provided that the annual gift award of $250 will be made to the university to promote a program of higher education for young people of high scholastic talent needing financial assistance. Applicants must be graduates of Quincy or Gretnboro High Schools, must be in need of financial assistance and must have a high degree of academic promise.

IN ACCORDANCE with Mrs Cantey's request, the scholarship award will be made by a committee of three, consisting of the financial assistance, Applicants director of education, and principals of the Quincy and Greensboro High Schools.

Until the committee has an opportunity to screen the applicants for the initial selection, Dr Campbell said, the first scholarship will be made by the student help committee with the approval of Mrs Cantey and her attorney.

MEMBERS OF THE student help committee include Grover E Tully, chairman; R K Shaw, business manager; Dr Howard Dan-ford; Miss Elizabeth Lynn; James F Carr, with President Campbell as ex-officio member.

President Campbell is express-

Flynn Broadcasts On Florida State

A five minute feature program, prepared and narrated by Roy Flynn is being broadcast every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday morning over WTAL local radio station.

The program features material on faculty research, student projects and personalities on campus. It is presented during the 7:45-8:00 a. m. local new broadcast.

Mr. Flynn spoke yesterday morning on Dr. A. B. Martin's new FSU vice-president, Ideas on the existence of a state university.

Dr. Laurence LaTeur's "Difference between cranks and scientists" will be presented tomorrow morning.

The program is transcribed on 11 stations in Florida, Georgia, and Alabama.

Miami, Bradley and Sul Ross Will Furnish Stiffest Tests

Florida State University's football schedule is loaded with more power than had ever been thought of scheduling when our pigskin parade was displaying simon pure artists.

Stepping into the big time money circle meant the playing of tougher opponents and the entire athletic committee went right to work and eliminated most of the Seminoles previous foes as easy marks for the forward moving Tribe.

Troy State Teacher's College starts the 1951 season off with a bang Saturday here at Tallahassee under the are lights of Doak S. Campbell stadium. The Red Wave, which has a three loss-one won record with FSU since 1947, will be greatly weakened by graduation. The Wave will have many of its defensive stars back, but will miss the offensive punch of Dewey Renfroe and "Little All-America" Chase Riddle.

Next in line come the ever-powerful Miami "Hurricanes" down in the Orange Bowl. The country will not be a big win one, but will be a big step up for the Seminoles as Miami was ranked ninth in the nation by veteran Grantland Rice, in a preseason poll. The Hurricanes are returning last year's stars and are figured to reach their current peak as almost everyone is back with the exception of All-America Al Carapella, graduated, and Billy Cannett who has a broken collar-bone. Mike Vacchio, another standout back, has been called by the Army.

Third in the nine game schedule is Bella State Teacher's College of Cleveland, Mississippi. Delta State had a five-win season last year against better than average opponents, scoring a 19-13 upset over Mississippi Southern College, who are highly rated. They're scheduled for an October 13 game here in Tally.

Following the Mississippians are the Big Ross State College "Lobos" from Alpine, Texas. Last year the Lobos posted an 8-2 tied over Arizona and a pair of three year score 25-5-2 which should make as one of the best small colleges teams in the nation. They own some of the leading small college backs in the country on a team that sports sixteen returning lettermen. The Lobos are in for a great season and their sarre here in Tallahassee should be one of the best.

Stetson's Hatters move into Seminole territory for homecoming and judging from their pre-season notices and past games, they will make things rather uncomfortable for the Tribe. With All-America honorable mention Bill Johnson heading the attack, and ends Don Martin and Dave Laude receiving tosses, the Hatters will give Yellerman quite a battle for take-home honors.

Jacksonville Naval Air Station fliers follow with a visit to the Cellor Bowl and although there is very little information on the Fliers we are sure that they will field a rugged team, just as they did during World War II when they were one of the best teams in the nation. This game is scheduled for November 3.

FSU's Clair Bowl opponent in 1950 will make its debut in Tallahassee on the following week-end, as Wofford's eleven seek re-venge for that 18-6 beating. The Terriers had a 1950 season record of 7 wins, 2 losses and one tie. Included Auburn 19-14 in one of the outstanding turn-a-bouts of the season. They promise to be very tough as they have returned one returning letterman, and South Carolina's leading score for 1949 in the person of Bob Barton.

Following Wofford will be the Tampa Spartans who have never defeated FSU on the gridiron. With 20 returning lettermen, and a host of new players, Tampa will be out to get the team that beat them 13-13 in the freezing weather which plagued the sparse Thanksgiving Day crowd. Tampa has the distinction of being the only team to ever score three touchdowns on a Veller coached eleven. John Lahosky is an excellent passer while Lou Sequeira and Vince Chicko are more than capable break-a-way backs.

Bradley University from Peoria Illinois coast into Tallahassee on November 24 for the climax of the schedule. Bradley is returning even in its ten game schedule last year and have twenty-six returning lettermen from which to pick an experienced eleven. With their record 32-6 win over the Tampa Spartans, the Braves seem to be headed for another good season and their game here should be another real-thriller. Below is the Seminoles' schedule record:

Florida State 26, Troy State 7.
Florida State 40, Randolph-Macon 7.
Florida State 30, Howard College 6
Florida State 24, Newberry 0.
Florida State 14, University of the South 8.
Florida State 27, Stetson 7.
Florida State 33, Mississippi College 0.
Florida State 35, Tampa 19.

Seminoles Beat Air Base Eleven

The Seminole football team uncovered its 1951 passing attack Thursday night as they romped to an impressive but hardly satisfying 70-0 scrimmage win against a Miami Air base eleven which was the first opponent of the year.

Led by the hard running of Nelson Italiano and Al Woodham plus the erratic wingline of Ray Thompson, the Seminoles scored seven times. Ernie Hunnett added the extra point after seven of them.

Italiano scored four times and Woodham two, on a long way to "Crazy Less" Woodham crossing the double stripe on three occasions. Ray Thompson, a transfer, scored twice and set up several others with his brilliant broken field running. Bill Mike Bellers, 1950 All-State fullback blasted his way for two touchdowns while Harry Bringer pulled in one of Italiano's passes for another six-pointer.

Coach Don Veller expressed discontent with the game as a whole. Although he admitted there were some good points he said the Seminoles had a long way to go by Saturday when they meet Troy State's Red Wave at Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

"F" Club Taps Thirteen Girls

Athletic Standouts Pledged Last Friday

Women's F club, athletic honorary, tapped thirteen new members Friday evening. Pending a period of probation, the ones tapped will become full-fledged members of the honorary.

The GOATS as the new members are called, will wear their letters upside down until they are formally initiated at Camp Flastacowo.

To be eligible for F Club, a girl must make two teams from three groups. There are four groups offered within the regular session.

After the tapping ceremony the new members were serenaded by older members. The "goat" group then elected Mary Ellen Tweel president, and Virginia Lee treasurer. They were invited to eat breakfast with the old members on Saturday morning, at which time the entire group got well acquainted.

Those tapped were Mary Ellen Tavel, Nancy True, Virginia Lee, Louise Ware, Patty Marvin, Dotty Tompkins, June McGill, Mildred Grosewold, Joanne Roberts, Jeanne Fay Stevens, Jeanne Mc-Lucy Hargraves, and Jean Flynn.

Athletic Business Manager George Haywood reports that football tickets for the Miami-FSU game can be purchased at the West Campus physical education building or ticket office. Students are reminded to bring their identification cards.

Florida State University's 1950 unbeaten and untied football team will be out to win its first game of the year and thirteenth in a row, over a three year period, Saturday night in Doak S. Campbell stadium. Veller's charges will be out to make it four in a row over the fighting Red Wave of Troy State Teachers College from Troy Ala.

Last year's squad pushed Troy all over the field in posting the initial win of the 1950 campaign by a 26-7 margin. The Seminoles will be the favorite, with 19 lettermen returning to this year's lineup.

Captain Bill Dawkins will be playing his fourth year on the FSU varsity and will be a stalwart guard in the Seminole defense. Last year he was listed in "Who's Who in Sports" and was named to first string All-State eleven.

Another All-State first string man who is sure to see lots of action on both the offense and defense is rugged Mike "Mike" Sellers who accounted for 624 yards and nine touchdowns last year. Sellers will be playing fullback when the Seminoles have the ball and linebacker on defense.

Halfback Nelson Italiano will also be back in the FSU offensive backfield. Italiano was the leader in total offense last year as he compiled 424 yards rushing and 459 in the passing department. He scored five TD's during the season for eight more, and was named to the second team All-State.

Italiano's favorite receiver, halfback Harry Bringer will again be in the thick of the FSU offensive department which netted five TDs last season.

FSU's top defensive backs will also be back in the persons of Tommy Brown and Warren Benner. Brown and Benner, along with Italiano will handle the punting chores with Brown carrying the load.

Other lettermen from last year's backfield will be fullback Dick Turk and ace place-kicker Ernie Hunnett. Hunnett is unable to play otherwise because of a semi-weak heart, but continues to be in the thick of the fight on kickoffs and conversions.

Other lettermen are ends Bill Driver, Curt Campbell and Jimmie Arnold. Driver is now at the end slot, having played quarterback previously, while Arnold is a standout on defense. Campbell was injured during part of last season, after earning a letter in the first of the season.

Tackles Bob Wodrich, currently sidelined with injuries. Earl O'Neal and Vic Surzesnnik are the only letter winners returning at the slots vacated by five graduates.

Both Sylvester and Mac Story are expected to hold down vacated guard spots while Buddy Bryant, Steve Kalenich and Bob Lockard return to vie for the center position.

Other players who are sure to see action are ends Bob Whitmer, Gene Bridges, Jerry Ellenwood, Al Garrett, Ted Merrill, Manuel Moshones and Joe Robinson. Tackles

Fraternity and Dorm Basketball Also Set To Start October 2

The intramural program will get under way in both fraternity and dormitory league on October 15. The dormitory league will play on Tuesdays and Thursday. A Sports Manager meeting of the first league will be held Tuesday, October 2, at 4:30 at the Men's Gym, while the dorms Sports Manager meeting will be held the following day at 4:30, also in the Men's Gym.

One of the early activities on the intramural program this year will be an All University rope climb tournament which is to be held in the women's gym, 4:30 Thursday, October 18. Entries are due at the Intramural Office by 5 p.m., October 15. Medals will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners.

Last year, Dorm 849 took the championship in the dorm Intramurals getting 1258 points. Their nearest rivals were the Corrs who racked up 1029 points, and they were followed by dorm 514, with 709 points.

In the fraternity league last year Kappa Alpha raised out with 1013 to 1001 Pi Kaopa Alpha and Phi Delta Theta were tied for third place with 993 points. Alpha Tau Omega, the fourth team, was close behind with 986 points.

Italiano will handle the punting again with Brown carrying the load.

Tennis Team Lost Four Top Netters

The Florida State University tennis team which won seven and lost eight last season, under the able coaching of Ralph Matheny, will return to the comfortable confines of Dun Loucks, who was receiving his doctor's degree at Indiana University.

Absent from the squad will be four lettermen including last year's captain Larry Dickson. George Bodis, Jimmy Tarrant and Coach Dick Bradley. Returning letter-men include Jim Berry, Tom Babione, Jack Egan and Dan Bodis.

Bodis is the Dixie Conference Class B singles champion and teamed with Larry Dickson to win the doubles crown last year, as the Seminole team took the state title for the third straight year.

During the summer, Jim Berry won the singles title of the Dixie Conference and also reached the semi-finals of the Florida State Championships. He then teamed with Jack Egan to take the doubles.

Newcomers who are expected to carry some of the load are Tom Cundy from Belleview, Ky., Joe Harris of Memphis, Tenn., and David Kortright of Tampa. Cundy won the Kentucky State High School championship. Kennedy was runner-up to Berry in the Dixie Junior, and Harris played in state outstanding tournaments.

Captain Loucks asked that anyone interested in trying out for the team contact him at his office in the Physical Education office building on West Campus.

Track Team to Hold Pre-Season Drills

Coach Ken Miller announces that there will be a meeting of all freshmen candidates for track, who are not going out for football or baseball. This meeting will be held Wed., Sept. 26, at 4 p.m. in his office which is located in the Athletic Building on the West Campus. Coach Miller hopes that this year he will have a still better team which will be led by Captain-elect John Poston, a sprint man. The track team will ihave work outs three times a week, there is plenty of room for new members interested in any phase of track.

Some of the teams on their schedule are Miami, Loyla, Davidson, Mississippi College, and Mercer. FSU will also be in the Florida relays.

Even though Florida State will not be in the Dixie Conference this year they are the defending champions, having won the Conference title in 1950 and again in 1951. Last year records were set by Tom Seaborg in the discus with a throw of 128 feet 4 inches. Woody Parker, in the 440 with a sparkling 50.8, while John Poston set records in both the 100 yard and 220 yard dash.

Some of the other outstanding members of last years team were Dick Mise, Joe Fracassi, Frank Pearson, Captain Max Watson, graduated, Ed Seagram and Ronald King.

Seminoles Start Final Practices

Florida State's football team has run into last week of pre-season practice this week. The Seminoles will be having heavy scrimmages for first two or three days, and then will taper off for the Saturday game. Veller hinted that the Seminoles may practice under the lights once to further prepare the boys for the night game. Joe Robinson is definitely out for six weeks with a cracked left ankle. Dr. Brooks, school physician, stated recently

Dual National Championship Team to Split Squad in '52

BILL ROETZHEIM, the nation's foremost gymnast, will compete on the newly formed Florida State University Gymkana Club, in an effort to retain the National All-Around All-Around title which he has won for the past three years.

National gymnastics followers will get their share of Florida State performances as Dr. Hartley Price plans to split his team into two, which will be entered in the AAU Nationals. Last year's varsity team, which took the National Collegiate and also the National AAU Open will be one of the two to be entered in the AAU this Spring, while a newly formed Florida State University Gymkana Club will be the other.

The FSU Gymkana Club will be composed of Bill Roetzheim, Bill Vretiss, Gene Rabbitt, and Charlie Kessenan. Roetzheim won both the National AAU and Collegiate All-Around titles with the Colgenate hair bar and tied for the AAU high bar and the side horse titles. Gene Rabbitt is a National side horse champion, while Charlie Kessenian was the National Collegiate all-around champion in 1948. Vretiss was on the FSU gymnastic team last year.

The FSU varsity will have National AAU flying rings champion Ralph Vinci, Carmine Regna, Joe Gusic, Dick Gutting, Chester Kinard, Dick Platt, Jack Sharp, Pat Simonelli, Scotty Stanton, and Larry Weston to compete for them.

The two teams will perform against each other for honors in the various AAU meets and dual meets during the year.

The entire gymkana troupe will be the feature presentation of the annual Florida Fair which will be held at the fairgrounds October 30, 31, and November 2 and 3. The title of the show will be "Playland U.S.A." The fair will be presented by the Jaycees.

Swim Champs To Miss Seven Top Lettermen

This year's swimming team will be hard hit by graduation and transfer, Coach Bim Stults announced at an early interview. The Seminoles won the Florida State AAU swim meet last year, racking up the largest score in the history of the meet, winning 102 points as against 28 for their nearest rival.

The Seminoles also tied North Carolina State AA for the Southeastern Regional AAU title and thus established claim to the rating which was later bestowed upon them, that rating being—the best college swimming in the Deep South.

Missing from the team, which set school records in every event during the last year, will be All-American Roger Slater, Tom Conway, Buddy Browning, Eddie Archer, Mike Castagna, John Buettner, Dick White and manager Bill Smith.

Slater was the first Florida swimmer to be named on the All-American team twice, and the first diver in the last fifteen years to receive mention.

Returning lettermen, who will try to add on to the list of thirteen straight victories, are Walter Jardine, Dick Walls, Owen Boone, Pete Dunn-Rankin, Pat Farrell, Wilton Jardine, Scott Ramsey, Jack Burnette, and Mitch Sutherland.

HALFBACKS NELSON ITALIANO and Al "Crazy Legs" Woodham, who starred in last Thursday's scrimmage against Patrick Air Force Base. Italiano scored four times and passed for two more as Woodham counted thrice in the 73-0 warmup.

Last Year's Record Team To Return With Nine Lettermen

Florida State's baseball team will suffer, but only slightly, due to graduation. Last year's team came home with its best record since the school became co-educational in 1947, posting a 13 won and 4 lost record.

Not only did the Seminoles have the best average of Dixie conference schools, but they came very close to taking the state title away from the University of Florida, as the championship was not decided until the next-to-last game. They also beat several SEC teams, including the University of Tennessee, who later went to the national collegiate tournament.

New records were set in almost every section of the statistical analysis, from home-run hitting to bases on balls. Ed Lockard posted the best pitching average with four wins with but one loss, while Les Bailey hit four circuit wallops for a new standard in that department.

Bailey, Augie Pompella, Ronnie Nettles and Bob Hartman will all be missing from this year's squad. Returning lettermen are Harry Bringger, Lee Mullen, Ed Lockard, Ronnie Melton, Ed Sessions, Bob Trowbridge, Glenn Gresham, Earl Herold and Bob Whitmer.

New coach Ralph Matherly said that the team will be weak at shortstop, second base, and left-handed hitting. He expressed confidence in the rest of the squad and stated, "If we can fill those weak spots, we will have another good season."

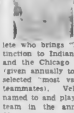
Meet the Mentors

"This is the first in a series of short background sketches on FSU coaches. These sketches will be written on each coach and assistant coach at the start of their respective seasons; the purpose, of which, being to enlighten the students on their coaching staff.

Dr. Don Veller will be starting his fourth year as head coach here at Florida State University, when the whistle blows September 29, for the beginning of 1951-52 athletic season. In his three previous years at FSU, Dr. Don has elevated the Seminoles from an all-losing season in 1947 to three straight Dixie Conference championships, acquiring a record of 24 wins and only two losses.

His 1949 team scored an upset victory over Wofford College in the 1949 Cigar Bowl at Tampa, winning 19-6. His 1950 eleven became the first white team in Florida to finish a varsity schedule undefeated and untied.

Veller was in the football limelight long before he came to FSU, having played outstanding ball at Indiana University during the 1932, 1933, and 1934 seasons. He climaxed his brilliant career, and forever endeared himself to Indiana fans, when, in the last game of the 1934 season, he smaked 82 yards to a touchdown to defeat arch rival Purdue.



In recognition of his athletic ability while a student at Indiana, Veller was awarded the Big Nine Medal which is presented annually to one man in the Big Nine Conference based on scholastic and athletic proficiency; the Balfour Award given annually to the athlete who brings "honor and distinction to Indiana University"; and the Chicago Tribune Award given annually to the player selected "most valuable" by his teammates). Veller was also named to and played on the East team in the annual East-West Shrine game at San Francisco after the 1934 season.

The "Doctor" in front of his name is the real thing, as he was awarded the Doctor of Physical Education degree at Indiana on June 12, 1950. In addition to this apparent degree, Veller received a BS degree in 1935, the MS in 1936, and Director of Physical Education degree in 1947, making him about the most "decorated" football coach in the country.

Veller started his coaching career at Elkhart (Indiana) High School in 1935, and compiled a seven year record of 54 wins, 11 losses, and three ties. His coaching career was interrupted by the war, and he served as an officer in the U. S. Air Force, being at one time, chief of the information and education division for the Third Air Force. He advanced to the rank of major before leaving the service in 1946.

He was head coach at Hanover College (Indiana) during the 1946 campaign and posted a four won and three lost record.

This brings him up to date as the man to watch down on the gridiron when the season begins to roll Saturday at Doak S Campbell Stadium.

Jou'nolism School Acquires Yearbooks

The School of Journalism has acquired 431 school and college yearbooks for staffs and advisers to examine. This is a service planned for yearbook staffs in the south.

The books coma from 36 states, Washington, D C, Alaska, Hawaii, Canada, and the Philippine Islands. All were published within the past two years and submitted for criticism to Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

At present the volumes are being examined by students in the seminar in school yearbook production.

Season Tickets Offered Here By Thomasville

Low price season tickets have been offered Florida State University students by the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation. Miss Emily Gerger, secretary of the organization announced.

Miss Gerger requested that those desiring tickets leave their names in the public relations office, Longmire building, before 5 p.m. Friday. Payment is to made later.

THE PRICE of the student cards, good for all six performances, is $4.50. Each separate ticket is $3. Previously university students had to pay the single-ticket price or the adult season price of $8.61.

The Foundation is a completely non-profit association of citizens interested in music, dance and drama. For several years the group has brought well-known artists to Thomasville, located in Georgia and 35 miles from Tallahassee.

THE SCHEDULE this season includes the United States Navy Band, Conrad Thibault, baritone; Nadine Connor, Metropolitan soprano; the Longines Symphonette, Dance Fantasy, and one more popular artist, such as Carmen Caballero. Caballero has been contacted, but it is not known whether he will be available for the open date.

Among artists who performed on their series in the past are Oscar Lavant, Eleanor Steber, James Melton and Gladys Swarthout.

The concerts are planned for days other than weekends to avoid conflicts and the Dean of women, Katherine Warren has stated that students who attend may have his permission.

By JIM COUCH

Florida State University is in store for another good year down on the athletic field as athletes, with dollar signs in the eyes, pour in from all parts of the country. We here at FSU are in for a real swelling pot of hustle and joy boys as our first subsidized teams take up the war-whoop for the Wigwam camp. The many athletic minded men who will represent FSU in various sports this year hail from practically every state in the union, with additions from Lower Slabovia.

With our present football schedule, Dr. Veller might well wish to have some huge, unfeeling brutes to sustain the bumps and jars in store for this year's team. But, whether anyone actually expects it or not, we, here at FSU are not inclined to sell our boys short, not even against Miami.

Last Thursday's scrimmage game with the Air Force not only pointed out our weaknesses, but showed where to count on that last minute desperation play. Nelson Hallano amazed many watchers with his improved talents as a broken field runner. Nelson ran for four TDs on runs of 50, 35, 10 and 5 yards. He aided the cause further by tossing pay-dirt passes to Harry Bringger and Roy Thompson.

Anyone who saw the game will never wonder why Al Woodham is called "Crazy Legs." If he performs in a like manner during the season the professors will be referring to him by that same descriptive title. "Crazy" ran for three six-pointers, displaying his unusual type of running ability.

Another "pleasant" surprise was Roy Thompson who ran all over the opposing team's backfield, racking up many a lengthy advance. It appears that FSU will have something this year that has been conspicuously absent in the past seasons—a good break-away runner.

With Miami on the present schedule, Big Brother from down Gatorville way had better get on the band wagon and line up some games with FSU in other sports before our athletic board decides to bypass the "hard-to-get" number one boys of the state. It's common knowledge that our board has asked for games with them, yet their board is delaying the beginning for some unstated reason. If they had any legal excuse for evading the issue, it wouldn't be so bad, but the Gators have to settle for varied opinions on the comparative strengths of our respective teams.

The people of Florida have been waiting long enough, and the students are having good contests stolen from their view by the handful of die-hard board members at Gainesville. If the Florida board wants to live up to their policy of cutting down on the athletes' time away from school, and enable their students to travel to out of town games, they have no better opportunity. In meeting FSU's teams, they could fulfill this policy and get better competition than most of the other state schools can furnish. Don't look now, but someone's story isn't holding up.

Sport Shorts: It looks as if Dr. Price wasn't satisfied to have the best gym team, now he's aiming for the best two. The best part of it is, he will probably do it. Bud Kennedy will have to have the ceiling lights in his office raised, so that his new crop of proteges will be able to stand erect. It appears that basketball fans will get a look at skyscrapers on the home team for a change. Increases over expected enrollment may mean that golf and volleyball, formerly expected to be dropped, will remain as varsity sports. A hearty welcome to Bill Tait, new recreation director; and Dr. Don Loucks, returning tennis coach. Congratulations to Ralph Matherly, recently appointed head baseball coach, and Charlie Floyd, graduate assistant, who will aid in this year's circus production.

Future opponents of FSU were busy this week as the 1951 season began to go into full swing. Some of their scores are:

Stetson 70, Patrick Air Force Base 0.

Bradley 32, Tampa 6.

Virginia Military Academy 29, Wofford 6.

Alabama 89, Delta State 0.

It seems that Stetson camouflaged a pre-season scrimmage as a scheduled game in order to fatten up the offensive average. National "Big Dog" Alabama did the same, as Tampa and Wofford played respectable teams, even if they did lose. Tampa over-powered Patrick AFB by a 72-6 margin last week (We are thinking of lining up a similar team on an opening, Sopchoppy and Wewahitchika High Schools are being considered for the date.) And so think the University of Florida competes against these schools (obvious powerhouses) in other sports, which all rates .0003 on the Colgate lavah meter.

Seminoles Attack

Quarterbacks Tom Sebring, Johnny Sheppard, Gerald Smith and Jimmy Lee Taylor. Halfbacks Phil Alvers, Gary Folson, Bobby Fiveash, Roy Thompson, Al Woodham, George Graham, Tom Massey and Billy Joe Price. Fullbacks Ronald King and George Carnes.

Among these, Thompson, Woodham, King, Sebring, Massey, Fiveash and Graham have looked exceptionally good in practice and will see plenty of action in the first game.

Departmentially the Seminoles' running should be quite a bit improved over last year, while the passing will be about the same. Punting and place-kicking should be better as the chief participants from the 1950 team will be back. The blocking of the team will be slightly better as the tackling is the only department which is feared to be less effective than last year, primarily because of the weak tackle positions.

The 1950 team broke many records as they chalked up their 8-6 perfect slate. Some of them are: one game records—most passes in one game (21), most completed in one game (9), and most yards passing in one game (153). Season records — passes attempted (119), passes completed (44), yards passing (938, and most touchdown passes (11).

When Pete Reiser played third base for the Pirates recently he became the eighth Bue to play that position this year.

Jane Gardner Works With Barter Theater

Jayne Gardner, Florida State University senior from St. Augustine, spent the summer with the Barter Theater of Virginia.

Chosen as an apprentice after try-outs last spring, she had two roles during her three months' stock with Barter. She had a comedy character role in Elmer Rice's Two On An Island, and a large character role in the world premiere of Mr. Thing, written by Mary Chase, author of the hit play Harvey.

IN ADDITION TO acting, the apprentices did much of the backstage and technical work. Jayne served on prop, costume, and publicity crews for different shows.

She said, "Many people still pay their admission by bartering goods, such as a bushel of peaches or corn. George Bernard Shaw, being a vegetarian, took his royalties in fresh vegetables instead of the usual Virginia ham."

BARTER WAS BEGUN by Robert Porterfield in the middle of the depression, 1933. Actors in New York Equity fled elsewhere were starving, but the people of Virginia hills were starving also for culture. A group of 21 theatrical people banded together and thus began the now world-famous Barter Theater of Virginia.

Although Jayne had to work long hours and under menial tension, she is very enthusiastic about her summer venture.

"I THINK there should be more theatres like Barter," she stated. "It is a non-profit organization and people are with Barter to do theatre and to do good theatre!"

Jayne was asked to tour with the group this fall but she chose to come back to FSU and complete her graduation requirements by next August. She is president of Les Jongleurs, drama honorary organized last year.

During the two years that Jayne has been on campus she has held four leading roles, and many other smaller parts in the speech department productions. Last year she was seen as Mary Magdalene in Family Portrait, Raina in Arms and the Man, and Ellen in Ladies in Retirement.

Leathers to Teach Map-Making Class

Map-making is a very fascinating occupation, say modern cartographers. It is not only very interesting work, it is profitable. Transportation agencies offer attractive maps of the areas they service, periodicals depict phases of current events with simple maps and diagrams, and military planners use maps to a great extent.

MOST BRANCHES of modern activity are using maps increasingly often. To meet this tremendous demand for visual representation of routes, statistics and tactical material, proper training in map reading and construction is imperative to modern society. The American public, generally, is ignorant of how to use a map as a shortcut to limit or eliminate pages of reading. They are even less informed concerning the hours of research, compilation and reproduction which must be done before even the simplest map is made available for use.

Many institutions of higher learning have administrative and faculty members who realize the importance of training in cartographic techniques. The department of geography at Florida State University is one of the leaders in implementing this realization, chiefly through the efforts of Professor R. L. Leathers.

MR. LEATHERS is being called to Washington, D. C. on an expense paid tour of the AMS mapping facilities and methods so that he will be able to present up-to-the-minute techniques to his classes.

Students who take this course will be instructed in the basic operations necessary to the reading and compilation of a map for reproduction. These operations include the use of plastic media which have virtually replaced older methods; the interpretation and use of aerial photography in revising and compiling maps, and the fundamental drafting techniques used in compiling materials to be submitted to an especially trained draftsman to follow in constructing the finished product.

Men Move to East And Nod Approval

"Go east, young man!"

A movement east for those men students out at West campus has caused a lot of comment—mainly the kind accompanied by smiles and nods of approval.

For so long, the two sexes at Florida State have lived on separate campuses. With the building of Senior dorm some men migrated to the main campus. Now Magnolia and the Village have been taken over by the men, too.

A FLAMBEAU reporter got the following comments on the new housing:

Bill Falconer—Senior. Magnolia—"Loved on West campus for three years, and felt like a part of the University."

Hersy Kunas, sophomore, Magnolia—"Greatest thing since 849 went national."

Herby Jinks, senior, Magnolia—"Greatest thing since girls turned it loose."

Ken Chadwick, transfer student, Magnolia—"Down right nice dorm. How did the girls get along without mirrors?"

Roger Sellers, Magnolia—"This is like Heaven after living on West campus for three years!"

Jack Deagan, graduate student, the Lodge—"My room is like a cubby hole with windows."

Adolf Hochstim, graduate student, the village—"I am satisfied—close to classes."

Unidentified Sophomore, the Village—"Too crowded, no keys, no beer."

FSU Delta Gamms Get National Recognition

Nineteen women students of Florida State University were initiated into Delta Gamma sorority last Wednesday, September 19, when the new chapter was installed as the sixteenth women's fraternity group on campus.

Mrs. Robert Preston, Long Island, N. Y., and Mrs. Edward Forman, Rochester, N. Y., members of the national council assisted with the installation ceremony. Mrs. Preston is second vice president and directs alumnae activities, and Mrs. Forman is secretary of the national council and directs expansion.

DELTA GAMMA pledges initiated were Claire Bailey, Martha Baker, Irene Blalock, Elizabeth Dorey, Margaret Earnest, Jane Freel, Mary Garst, Shirley Gregory, Evelyn Gustafson, Martha Hall, Pat Lyons, Patty Martin, Ann Mize, Jo Anne Norfleet, Jean Raiford, Louise Spaeth, Katie Thomas, Frances Tuttle and Betty Jo Woods.

The charter was presented at a banquet at the LaFiorete Room on Thursday night. Barbara Lewis as president of the new group received the charter from Mrs. Forman.

AT THE INSTALLATION BANQUET Mrs. Frank Harris alumnae president from St. Petersburg, was toast mistress. Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell, Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, and Dr. Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare.

Guests for the initiation and installation were Mrs. Paul Cooper, Miami, province secretary and Mrs. Robert Baynard, St. Petersburg, province alumnae chairman. Tallahassee alumnae taking part were Mrs. J. K. Ballinger, Mrs. Lloyd Belder, Mrs. Spencer Barrows, Dr. Viola Graham, Mrs. Harry Holmberg, Mrs. Zell Mabee, Mrs. Stanley Rea, Mrs. E. K. Roberts and Miss Alma Warren.

DELTA GAMMA was founded at Lewis College, Oxford, Miss. in December, 1873. The anchor was chosen as the pin, and the colors are bronze, pink, and blue.

Gamma Mu will be Delta Gamma's 7th chapter. Delta Gamma was one of the seven women's sororities to organize the National Panhellenic Conference. It became an international organization in 1913 with the founding of a chapter at the University of Toronto. March 15th is observed as Founders Day.

IN 1936 sight conservation and aid to the blind was adopted as the sorority project. Work in the field of aid to the blind covers entertainment, transportation, and providing of braille equipment.

Other philanthropic work includes a student loan fund which is available to members and non members. A fund for women who wish to specialize in study in the prevention of blindness, training for teaching partially seeing children and pre-school blind children, and the selection of foreign students to live in chapter houses and attend colleges are among other projects.

OFFICERS of Gamma Mu chapter are Barbara Lewis, president; Margaret Earnest, vice president; Pat Lyons, recording secretary; Martha Baker, corresponding secretary; Jane Freel, treasurer; and Shirley Gregory, house president. Mrs. W. J. Thigpen will be house mother at the new house at 539 College Avenue.

Miss Joy Shreffler, graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, and field secretary, is assisting the group.

Vocational Guidance Office Places Students for Jobs

By MARY JANE COYNE
Feature Editor

SO YOU THINK your financial situation is tightening up these days, and that you need a job around campus of some sort? Or perhaps you're a stickler for the practical application of your talents, and you want a position to "try your wings" in the working world. Mr. Glover Tully and Mr. Hal B. Smith of the Department of Vocational Guidance and Placement will gladly help you solve your problem, and procure for you the type of employment you desire.

Since the beginning of the school year, approximately several hundred students have been employed or are under consideration for employment in the near future. The number is expected to rise to 800 before the year is over. Two hundred applications for positions were received in one week, thus doubling the number of student job-seekers over previous years. Applications have been coming into the Guidance office since last April, and appointments have been made according to the time when the request was made.

AS THE CUSTOM is in all places of business to situate those with special skills first, so it is also with the Placement office. If a student has proficiency in such varied skills as typing, shorthand, music, library or lifeguarding, he will be placed in a position that demands the particular skill he has. However, as the office points out, those students having no particular skills but who are willing to work will be placed as readily as the others.

There are three basic criteria taken into consideration by the Placement Office when hiring. These follow in order as (1) financial need, (2) skills of the student, and (3) academic rating. The student will be placed in a position that is in accord with his particular schedule.

Several interesting facts were gleaned from the Guidance Office about students and their positions. Undoubtedly, the dining hall jobs are the most popular, with School of Music and Library Jobs running a close second. All students who apply for positions show high promise of being fine young people in a well-rounded academic way. Campus work is understandably more and more in demand than it was several years ago. The cost of higher education is higher, and the GI Bill no longer offers students all of its former advantages.

IT IS NOTED by members of the Guidance Office that on this campus a certain prestige is connected with the job-holding student. He is learning a great deal of information from his position that will be of untold value to him when he leaves school to begin working in earnest. Says Mr. Glover Tully, head of the Vocational Guidance and Placement Department, "Quite often, students who come to apply say that they would like a position more for the excellent experience it offers rather than for financial reasons. However, these students are always willing to wait for their position when there is someone else who needs the job more than they do for financial reasons."

Adding to this, Mr. Tully claimed that practically all students were placed after making their application.

Day Students Meet In Alumni Building

The first meeting of Delta Sigma Omega, day student organization, will be held Thursday, September 27th at 7:30 p. m. in the L. Arnold, president of the organization said that the meeting will be held in the Longmire auditorium.

The election of minor officers and committees and plans for the day student dance in October will be the main features of the meeting, Ifter said. "We urge all day students to be present at this first and important meeting."

Bill Tait Appointed Physical Ed Prof

William J Tait, director of recreation at Pelham, New York, has been appointed associate professor of physical education for men effective Sept 15. He will also head the recreation curriculum program at the university, President Campbell has announced.

Professor Tait a candidate for the doctoral degree in physical education as New York University, will be in charge of the curriculum for majors in recreation. Dr Howard G Danford, director of the department of physical education, for men said that the new member of his staff will have charge of recreation interns and teach certain recreation courses.

As a former civilian physical education instructor in the army's specialized training program at Denver University and a Boy Scout-Cub Scout leader, Professor Tait received his BA at the University of Denver in 1934. He received his M Ed from the University of Colorado at Boulder in 1946.

Professor Tait served as director of recreation for Boulder, aquatic supervisor for Denver, and director of recreation at the University of Denver.

He is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity; American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation; American Association of University Professors; and the American Recreation Society.

Dr Danford said that Professor Tait's background well qualifies him so serve in the position of curriculum director for majors in recreation. He will also be working closely with recreation leaders and supervisors in this general area and other sections of Florida in the recreation internship program.

Professor Tait, accordina to Dr Danford, will be available for consultant service in recreation to communities interested in beginning or expanding programs.

TOUCHDOWN! TOUCHDOWN! TOUCHDOWN! cheers six sexy Seminoles practicing for the coming season. Tryouts for cheerleaders are slated soon.

Prof Holschuh Likes New Sculpture Studio

The sculpture division of the Art Department, "evicted" from Westcott last term, is now flourishing in the basement of the Dining Hall.

Formerly a temporary storage room, the basement has been completely transformed into an up-to-date sculpture laboratory by the components of Prof George F Holschuh's imagination, a goodly amount of soap and water, and fresh white paint. Optimum working conditions are provided by the studio's twenty-two fluorescent lights and two large exhaust-type fans.

The studio retains all the characteristics of the modern classroom. For the students' convenience is is divided into different sections.

The entrance faces the informal exhibiting space, ingeniously done with folding screens and advantageous spacing of light. The finest examples of students work are always on exhibition to visitors. Here a student can judge the proper spacing and light effects, and the possibility of making many innovations and installations.

BEYOND THIS lies the section for wood sculpture. The student works with wood from all over the world, learning the characteristics of each and utilizing its peculiarity suited to its native wood.

The next section is a less confined area of experimentation. Here the student is introduced to different characteristic materials, such as bronze and other metals, where the flow and form of design are studied through the medium of plaster of Paris.

CLAY SCULPTURE comprises the next division. Heads, figures, and designs in this clay are shaped in such a way that they can be transformed into a durable fired clay, or terra-cota. Here the student learns through experimentation how food and forceful design finds expression in this most colorful and oldest medium known to mankind.

The FSU sculpture department offers sculpture in the realm of a monumental character, architectural sculpture as applied to modern architecture and modern interiors, three dimensional relief sculpture, figure and anatomy studies and portraiture.

"THE AIM IN this division of the School of Arts," says Professor Holschuh, "is surely not to make sculpturania of students, but to open another field of creative studies which can be applied in the broad field of art, industrial art, commercial art, and art education.

"I am very enthusiastic about our new location and the possibilities our laboratory offers the student."

"I believe that a modern student of the 20th century has a perfect right to find a place where his desires and ambitions can be brought out so as to apply them to a better and richer daily life.

"It is less the focusing in one narrow direction that I am interested in, but the awakening in the student the many possibilities and demands for modern and functional design."

Museum Displays Peruvian Weaving

Textiles displayed at the University Museum are typical of South and Central Peruvian coast weaving around 600 A D, belonging to the Nazca period of cultural development. Represented are: first, a piece of gauze weave of white wool with a black cross-stitch border and black fringes; second a section of regular weave with a colorful complex geometric design; third, a regular weave with horizontal ribbon embroidery; fourth, a slit tapestry of wool with a diagonal zig-zag pattern; fifth, a double cloth weave with a stylized motif.

IT IS AGREED that in this period of Peruvian art, colors and designs were kept in a narrower range than in later periods. It may also be noted that the Nazca period was one of stylistic development and experimentation.

In the works of ancient artist craftsmen of Peru, we see the final outcome of endeavors without modern civilization's influence. The utilitarian art is more generally employed than in modern higher civilization with influences of mechanical devices mass production, and practical implements.

The ancient artisan was closer to nature than our artists of today. This is reflected in all primitive art, and it is with this view that aboriginal crafts should be appreciated.

Kappa Delta Pi Dates From '25

Kappa Delta Pi, established March 18, 1911, is the educational honorary society on this campus. Thirty-four years after its birth, on January 12, 1925, it was christened into life here at FSU. Since then it has grown to its present membership of one hundred and twenty active members.

Candidates for membership are chosen on the basis of the general activity, academic achievement, and scholastic average of the student. Members are not necessarily from the School of Education; they may be enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Journalism, Music, Nursing, etc, but they are always persons who plan to become teachers, and must include in their curriculum those courses designed to prepare them for the profession.

In a 1923 edition of the Flambeau a serious editorial was written on Chewing gum. In the article it stated "How many times has your train of thought been shipwrecked by the nosey flop of the accomplished student next to you. How often is the sacred stillness of the library shattered by the discordant thought - expressions of your neighbor."

Postmaster Collects Stamps in Spare Time

Like the postman who goes for a long walk on his day off, W H May, college postmaster, collects stamps during his spare time. He has been at it now for more than 35 years, and has accumulated more than 3,000 domestic and foreign issues of every kind.

MR MAY RECALLS that he began his hobby many years ago as a boy in New York state. "There was an elderly man there who used to walk around town daily collecting used postage stamps. I used to go along with him some days, and became so interested in his hobby I started my own stamp collection," the postmaster says.

Even as a boy he learned to watch out for stamps issued for special event sand "first day covers," with the result that local and national events of historic interest meant commemorative items for the growing collection.

MR MAY, WHO came to Tallahassee in 1918, was city postmaster from 1922 to 1932. He has been postmaster at FSU for the last nine years.

During his many years as a philatelist, Mr May has helped numerous other persons get started with an assortment of his stamps. He has traded, but never sold, his items among other collectors.

"MY INTEREST as a collector," he explains, "is to obtain as complete a collection as possible. I have never considered the commercial value of the stamps."

Most of the evenings when he is not attending church, Mr May can be found as home working with his hobby.

"There's a lot of local and world history a person can learn," he says, "just through collecting stamps."

Wild Life Program To Educate Public

News Release . . . There is more to a wildlife information program than machine hunters to keep gunsmiths off antierless deer, according to Ben Dahne, secretary of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

In a speech to a Journalism class at Florida State University, Dahne, who is assistant director of information and education for the commission, explained to the group many of the methods used to inform and educate the public to the policies of the commission.

HE NAMED such methods as movies and lectures, a monthly magazine, pamphlets, an exhibit, radio programs, newspaper articles, a wild animal zoo, and a fishathon.

Dahne said, "We will show wild life films in any part of the state upon request. Audiences to which have been shown new total over a half million people. One of the most familiar public relations methods of the commission is its live animal exhibit, shown in county fairs throughout the state."

In 1923 the Juniors and Seniors were given permission through radical change of resulations to dance with their dates all day instead of the scheduled hours. This same dance was postponed indefinitely because of the national banking crisis at that time.

Musical and Western Open at Theaters

By HARRY COPELAND

Betty Grable, America's top pin-up girl, sings, dances, and romances once more in her newest technicolor musical comedy, Meet Me After the Show, which starts at the Florida Theatre tomorrow and plays through Saturday.

Combining some of the best talent in Hollywood, Meet Me After the Show moves from the Great White Way to sunny Florida, where Miami's tropical setting and exciting night life provide a background that is warmly romantic and carefree.

Playing opposite Betty Grable is handsome MacDonald Carey in a new type of role as a singing and dancing producer-director. He is married to Betty, who plays a Broadway musical star Delilah Lee but he still can't keep his eyes from wandering. The story gets off to a fast start when Dililah mistakingly suspects her husband of running after alluring Gloria Carstairs (Louis Andrews).

From this point the story runs into several hilarious complications that involve musician Rory Calhoun, who made a hit in "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," and light-hearted Eddie Albert.

Jack Cole, who won an award two years ago as Broadway's top dance director, staged the dances, which include "No Talent Joe," The dance, a rhumba with a Greco-Pompeiian background and theme, is one of the outstanding dance numbers in the show, and was designed especially for Betty Grable.

Betty and MacDonald add the lyrical touch to the musical by singing new popular tunes by composer Jule Styne and lyricist Leon Robin: "Meet Me After the Show," "A Day In Maytime," "It's a Hot Night in Alaska," and "I Feel Like Dancing," are a few of the titles.

FRENCHIE

Starting tomorrow at the State and running through Saturday is the much publicized technicolor film, Frenchie, an action-packed story of a philosophical sheriff and a vivacious feminine gambling hall operator with pugilist inclinations.

Joel McCrea, easy-going western star of Universal-International, plays the role of Sheriff Tom Banning, who enforces the law without the use of guns. His unhurried manner provides an interesting contrast to the lively personality of Shelley Winters. Shelley — Frenchie Fontaine in the picture—gets the call aberiff who becomes attracted to the sprightly blonde, involved in a case of murder to help solve her father's slaying.

An exciting highlight of the film is the barroom battle between Shelley Winters and Marie Windsor. Old timers claimed after seeing the performance, that the fight was even better than the historic "free-for-all" between Marlene Dietrich and Una Merkel in "Destry Rides Again."

The new western has a strong supporting cast including Paul Kelly and Rita Lanchester.

Freshmen Attend Career Seminar

Eighty freshmen, composed mostly of those who were undecided about a career, attended a seminar last Tuesday afternoon designed to help them in choosing a suitable profession. The seminar was given by the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

MRS. MARY BLAIR, in charge of the seminar, introduced the two speakers, Dr. Melvene Hardee, the Coordinator of Guidance and Mr. Glover Tully, director of the vocational guidance program.

Dr. Hardee spoke about the educational counseling program which has been in operation at Florida State University since 1946. There a.e over one-hundred faculty members now serving as educational counselors for freshmen. Students are assigned to those counselors whose field is the same as the one in which the student is interested.

THE COUNSELOR'S job is to guide the student in selecting courses for his major field or to help him get acquainted with various fields so that he can decide in what direction his major academic interests lie. He also explains the general education program to the student and plans with him the first year's academic program. The counselor also acts as a friend and advisor to the student throughout the year.

The second speaker, Mr. Tully, explained how the students could benefit from the vocational guidance program. The facilities offered are varied, such as, counseling, aptitude and personality which the personnel of the office tests, forums, movies, and a li- of vocational guidance. Mr. Tully, brary of occupational information. Mrs. Blair, Mrs Mary Umlah, and A MOVIE, "Finding Your Life's Mrs Howell Smith, were intro- Work" was then shown after duced.

Dr Albert Martin FSU Vice-Pres

BY EMORY KING
Associate Editor

Florida State University has a new administrative officer this September, it was announced by President Campbell yesterday.

Dr Albert Boynton Martin has been appointed and approved as FSU's first vice president. Dr-ley, Stan Gould, Neil Jacoby, and Jerry Thomas.

Further details will be announced at a later date.

Martin comes here from the University of Mississippi where he was professor of education and director of the Extention Services.

THE APPOINTMENT of Dr. Martin will necessitate a faculty constitution amendment. Although Florida State College for Women had a vice president years ago, FSU made no provision for one.

In commenting on the duties of the new officer, Dr. Campbell said, "The vice president will act as an administrator associate to the president. In view of the fact that the president's office and staff have not enlarged during the past 10 years, although the responsibilities and duties of that office have increased greatly since we became Florida State University, the advent of a vice president has been long overdue."

DR. MARTIN comes to FSU from the University of Mississippi in Oxford where he served as associate professor of education and director of the University Extension Service. He is also director of the University Summer Session. In this capacity he has carrier major responsibility in the general administration of the University.

In addition to his administrative experience at the University of Mississippi, the new FSU vice president served from 1941-1946, except for a period of service in the U. S. Navy, as deputy state superintendent of education in the state of Texas. During that period he was director of equalization and finance and later served as director of curriculum.

A UNITED STATES navy commanding officer of an escort ship during World War II, Dr. Martin returned to inactive duty as a lieutenant commander in 1945.

He received his undergraduate education in Southwestern University in the State College at San Marcus, Texas, where he received his AB degree. He received his masters and doctoral degrees at the University of Texas.

BORN IN AFRICA of American parents serving as missionaries, Dr Martin has spent the greater part of his life in Texas where he has been closely identified with educational and civic affairs.

Mrs. Martin, formerly of Dallas, is also a graduate of the University of Texas.

Alpha Phi Omega Helps in Freshman Orientation Week

The student Used Book Exchange opened yesterday in the basement of the Longmire building for a three weeks period under the new management of Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, according to Tommy Bowen, chairman of the project.

THE EXCHANGE, an entirely non-profit service, was set up in January of last year by the Junior class with Shirley Gregory as chairman. Members of that class continued to donate their time to its operation during summer school.

This fall, responsibility for the book center has been shouldered by Alpha Phi Omega, campus service fraternity. Tommy Brown, recording secretary of the organization, is director of the Exchange with the assistance of John Buckley and Pete Williams as committee chairmen.

THE LOCATION of the Used Book Exchange is the recreation room in the basement of the Longmire Student-Alumni building. Student operators are on duty from 8:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. on weekdays and from 9 to 12 on Saturdays.

The Exchange itself, Bowen explained, does not buy books but is merely the agent between the student who wants to sell and the one who wants to buy. The seller takes a receipt for the books he leaves on sale and charge. The buyer, who may come names the price he wishes to along at any time during the three weeks of operation, pays the Exchange the asking price then turns the money over to the and that price only. The Exchange seller, after deducting a ten-cent operating charge.

Fifty-Year Plan Zooms Ahead

Fall Finish Set For 8 Dorms

Steel to be used in the construction of the first 11-story men's dormitory has been promised during the last quarter of this year Dr. Albert Martin, FSU vice-president, said today.

FSU had priority but construction was delayed because the Armed Services had first claim to all structural steel.

Construction is expected to begin the first part of 1952, Dr Martin added.

Ten new dormitories are now under construction at Florida State University, eight of which will be completed this fall.

The eight which will be ready soon are leased to social fraternities, and will house 320 men students. An eight story structure, costing over $800,000 will provide housing for 257 co-eds.

The cost of the fraternity dorms averages $100,000 each. The dorms are self-liquidating, being paid for by the frat rent $17.00 monthly for each student. This is the same rate that is charged for any other men's dorm on campus

All of the dorms are similar in arrangement and conveniences They will contain a dining room, lounge, foyer, recreation room, powder room, house mother's suite and rooms with built-in wardrobe-dresser combinations. They are extremely modern and attractive.

Several of the buildings will be built of brick and cypress siding with flat, built-up roofs, interiors of plaster and wood paneling, and asphalt tile floors. The rooms have built-in study desks. Some of the other buildings are a combination of red brick and gray concrete block with float built-up roofs. The interior is of plaster and wood paneling. The last group is constructed of brick and stucco with plaster throughout on the inside.

The eleven story dormitory for men, costing approximately $1,400,000, is expected to be completed by September of 1953. It is being built adjacent to East Campus.

The ultra-modern dormitory will feature a variety of luxurious facilities and is a far-cry from the West campus "barracks."

The eight story dormitory for women, is located near Landis Hall and will contain all of the modern conveniences. It is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1953.

FULL SPEED AHEAD!—Pictured above are some of the new fraternity houses being built under the Fifty-Year Plan. The houses should be ready for occupancy soon.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES BUILDING is located on the old FSU circus grounds in the vicinity of Call and Woodward Streets and is rising rapidly. This building will house the FSU postoffice, bookstore and soda shop. A large patio, semi-circular lounge, manager's office, receiving room, loading platforms and ample storage space have been provided in the architect's plans under supervision of Guy C. Fulton, architect to the State Board of Control.

Student Cente Complete in 5

The new student service cen now under construction on the circus grounds will be comple early in 1952, it was announ yesterday by Business Manag Rod K. Shaw.

First Yearly Senior Meeting Slated Wed.

Discussion to Include Class Sponsor Election And Caps and Gowns

A discussion of Investiture will be the topic of the first meeting of the Senior class to be held next Wednesday at 4 p. m. in the Alumni auditorium.

Election of a class sponsor and a vote on when here or not to have Senior Day will also be held as well as the question of whether to elect or appoint class marshalls and speakers.

SENIORS ARE urged to order caps and gowns now for investiture. send them back after June Graduation, and reorder for the August graduation. Seniors will also be asked to put in their application for placement at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement. They should sign up for an appointment as soon as possible.

Investiture will be held this year October 17 in the amphitheater. In case of rain, it will be postponed until the next day. The Investiture will be a combination of a Senior's status. All Seniors wear their academic black gowns and caps. Only those sister or brother who will follow the Senior on their heads at the same time that President Campbell places one on the head presenting the Torch.

SENIOR BLACK BOOKS, a "private" book for seniors, will be sold after next Wednesday. Announced by Mortar Board, service, leadership and scholarship honorary for women, the books list important information especially essential for graduates.

Included in the books are the dates to order class rings, caps and gowns and graduation announcements.

A special calendar of events is posted on the Bulletin back cover. The tradition of the school are also listed within the booklet. An explanation of investiture is recorded.

OUTSTANDING TRADITIONS such as Senior day, the president's birthday party, the junior-senior prom, the sophomore - senior breakfast are also all explained.

Officers of the Senior class will meet Thursday at 5 p.m. in the TUG room. Officers are: Dick Bradley, president; Shirley Bellamy, vice president; Eunice Barnes, secretary; Bill Cornelius, treasurer; Eleanor Parker, publicity chairman, and Karolyn Bardin, social chairman.

Rush Week to End With Issue of Bids

Sorority bids will be issued Monday night as the climax to the 1951 fall rush week.

All girls whose names appeared on the Pan Hellenic bid list posted yesterday in the Longmire building will fill out preferential cards today. A meeting was held Thursday night at 6:30 p.m. to explain this procedure to the rushees.

The committee on sorority affairs of which Dean Warren is chairman, and the Pan Hellenic executive council will announce the results and inform the sororities of the outcome sometime Saturday.

A list of girls receiving bids will be posted Sunday in the Longmire building and pledging will take place Tuesday.

Bidwell Presents His Initial Recital

James Bidwell, a student of Professor Ernest Williams, presented his junior recital Monday evening at 8:15 in the University Music hall. His program will include four piano pieces by a graduate student in the field of Bach, Beethoven, Sarasam by Serge Prokofiev, and Rhapsody in a Theme of Paganini by Serge Rachmaninov.

Thirty-Four Organizations Attend Warpath Club Meet

Thirty four organizations were represented at the first official meeting of the Warpath club last Wednesday night in the Alumni building.

Plans for the pep rally tonight in the amphitheatre were made at the first meeting. A publicity committee and a committee to decorate the goalpost before the Troy State game were also appointed.

ANN WOOTEN and Iris Johnson are on the publicity committee and Every Saulsbery, Jean Stewart, Leah LaPlante, Frank Nelson, and Mitch Sutherland are on the decorating committee.

The Warpath Club is the new pep club on campus. Every organization on campus, including dormitories, sororities and fraternities, is used by the organization committee to elect one delegate and every member to attend the meetings of this club.

ACCORDING TO a rough draft of its constitution, the purposes of this organization is to stimulate school spirit and promote interest in the intercollegiate athletic program here at Florida State University.

The proposed duties of this club are to plan pep rallies, to plan and schedule parades, to make known to the student body and to Tallahassee residents all athletic events, to decorate the goalposts before football games and to do

Soph-Frosh Day Being Planned

Tentative plans for sophomore-freshman day on October 13th were made at a sophomore class officers meeting Wednesday night. June Conyers, sophomore class president, stated.

SOPHOMORE-FRESHMAN day will be the first opportunity for freshmen to discard their rat caps and will feature various sports events with Pat Yates, vice-president, in charge.

The four freshmen score over the sophomores they will no longer be compelled to wear the garnet and gold caps. If the upperclassmen score over the freshmen, the caps will have to be worn until Thanksgiving.

BE KIND TO Freshmen Day was also a topic of discussion in the meeting Wednesday, June said. The event will take place on October the 10th. Marcia Morris, class parliamentarian is in charge. The day will simply stress kindness and consideration for the freshmen by the upperclassmen, the class president said.

Appointed as publicity chairman of the year at the meeting was Miss Jenkie Northrop.

NOTICE

Students will be admitted to the first FSU football game against Troy State Saturday, September 29 by presentation of their ID cards. They will enter through the west side of the stadium. All cigarettes on that side will be open for students.

FSU Pep Rally And Dorm Mixers Scheduled Tonite

A university-wide pep rally followed by dormitory parties has been scheduled for tonight.

The pep rally for tomorrow night's football game against Troy State will be held in the Music Building amphitheatre tonight at 7 o'clock.

COACH DON VELLER and the football team will be on tap to be introduced to the student body and to give the rally a big sendoff. The cheerleaders and band will lead the cheers and songs.

The purpose of the rallies is to give the student body an opportunity to show that they are solidly behind the team.

Plans for tonight's rally were formed last Wednesday when the newly organized Warpath club held its first meeting of the year.

AFTER THE PEP RALLY, four parties will be held on campus will be held in three women's dorms on east campus.

North and South Cawthon, Landis, and Gilchrist will entertain in the round of mixers from 8:30 to 11:30.

Designed to acquaint the upperclassmen with each other, the parties will be organized after the fashion of the freshmen mixers held last week. The parties will consist of singing, dancing, games and refreshments.

Journalism Teacher Gives Women Praise

Women's role in American journalism has been underestimated, Dr. Sidney Kobre, associate professor of journalism and author of the forthcoming book of the Florida Women's Press Association this past summer.

Dr. Kobre, principal speaker at the first organizational meeting of the newspaperwomen, held at Silver Springs, pointed out that several historians of the American press have overlooked the many contributions made by newsmen.

"WE HEAR, for example, much about Peter Zenger, who founds so valiantly for the free press principle in colonial days," the speaker asserted. "But what would he have been without his wife? It was she who took Zenger's copy from the jail where he was held to the print shop. There she set up the editorials attacking the corrupt political governor, printed the Zenger journal and distributed it to subscribers by night to avoid the Tories. Colonists were stirred by the "free deal" being given the publisher.

"Then the campaign was led by a trial in which Zenger was acquitted and the final foundation of the free press established."

DR. KOBRE portrayed the role of women during the period after the revolution and described the crusading girl reporters of the days 1830's and the 1890's.

WOMEN TODAY hold a variety of positions on United States newspapers, the speaker emphasized. Some are publishers, others are city editors, editorial writers, reporters and foreign war correspondents. They still have to overcome many prejudices, he said, but progress continues to be being steadily battered down because of the effective work they can do.

THE WOMEN'S Press Association's meeting was a result of a directory of Florida newspaperwomen compiled by Dr. Laurence R. Campbell, dean of the FSU School of Journalism. Some of the organizational problems met at the great number listed in the directory and decided to organize an association. The Silver Springs meeting was the first. Election of officers was held and the organization launched. It is believed this is the first womens' newspaper group to be formed in Florida.

Picture Appointments May Now Be Made

Gail Albritton, editor of the Seminole, has announced that she announced that students may now make applications and appointments to have their annual pictures taken for the Tally Ho in the Tally-Ho office. fourth floor of the Alumni Buildings.

Underclassmen girls will wear dark sweaters and pearls and underclassmen boys, coats and ties. Seniors may have their pictures taken as they see fit, wearing caps and gowns arriva.

Book Exchange Clears $1300 First Two Days

Over $1300 was taken in by the Used Book Exchange during its first two days of operation, according to Tommy Bowen, chairman of the project.

STUDENTS ARE URGED to bring in their old physical science books, Ferguson and Brauer's History of World Civilization, the latest edition of Food and Nutrition, the 5th edition of College Typewriting by D. D. Lessenberry, and used humanities books. Some of the books no longer needed are the MacMillan English books.

Faculty Free Education In a Democracy, and biological science books.

Bowen said that the exchange is working very successfully this year. He urges that students come to the exchange this semester for sale next semester since it is in the first few days that the majority of books are sold. Willis Tyrell, vice-president of Alpha Phi Omega, announced at the meeting Monday, students come in to check for book sales in order that the exchange can be closed at the end out.

JIMMY EVANS, president of Alpha Phi Omega, announced that this honorary has completely taken over the Book Exchange as a project. The exchange, which opened at 8:30 Monday morning, will be open for three weeks, after which it will close until a week before the end of the semester. The exchange hours are 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday and from 8:30 to 12:00 noon on Saturday.

The Used Book Exchange enables students to sell and procure old texts at reasonable reduced rates. The student sets the price for his own book. For every book exceeding one dollar, the buyer and seller contribute a ten-cent fee. For books under one dollar, a five-cent fee is charged.

STUDENTS ARE GIVEN receipts or certificates with each book they turn in to the exchange. At the end, the receipt certificate sometime before the end of the three weeks operation. If the book is sold, the student will receive his money; if not, the book will be returned to its owner or kept in storage until the exchange opens again.

Students may leave his books in the Exchange for one year if they desire. After that time, they become the property of the Exchange.

The Used Book Exchange was formerly sponsored and operated by the Junior class.

Check Board for Speech Try-outs

Students who tried out for speech department productions on September 26-27 are asked to check bulletin boards on casting boards to see if they are considered for parts in plays.

Those cast for the first grade should report to the Conradi Theater Friday and Saturday, September 28-29 for rehearsal and production.

Opening the 1951 seasonal plays of the speech department is You Can't Take It With You by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, scheduled for curtain on November 8.

This has been a popular comedy all over the country since its debut in the early thirties.

The same authors, Hart and Kauffman, wrote "The Man Who Came To Dinner," a hilarious success at FSU three years ago.

First Meet of Year To Be Held By FBLA

The Future Business Leaders of America, Florida State chapter, will hold its first meeting of the year, Monday at 7 p.m. in the Longmire auditorium, according to Betty Carlile, president.

As plans will be discussed for the annual School of Business recession, all members are urged to attend. Also those students interested in membership in the FBLA are invited to attend the meeting.

Men's 'F' Club Plan Expansion Program

The first meeting of the "F" Club, men's letterman organization, was held Thursday night at 7:30 p.m., with Jimmy Arnold presiding. Current officers include: Jimmy Arnold, president; Tom Conway, vice-president; Bob Sechrist, secretary; and Fred Hoover, treasurer.

Plans were discussed for expansion of the club, which is open to all varsity letter winners. Beginning Thursday, meeting will be held weekly at the women's gym. Arnold urged that all eligible members attend these short meetings and help organize the athletes of the campus.

UGA Meeting Called

A meeting of the University Government Association will be held Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the UGA room, Will Pennell, president, has announced. He also said that the session was open to all students.

Tuesday Set As Deadline For FSU-Miami Tickets

Sales Booth in Lower Westcott; Buses Leave Thursday Night

All students planning on attending the FSU-Miami tilt in Miami next Friday night must get their tickets for the game and for transportation by Tuesday at 5:00 p. m. Tickets will be on sale in Lower Wescott.

TICKETS FOR THE GAME must be purchased in the athletic business office on West Campus before Tuesday at 5:00 P.M. at a cost of $1.60.

Round trip tickets will be $14.30 per person.

In order that all students may attend the game, fraternity rush week, originally scheduled for Sunday, October 7, has been rescheduled for Monday, October 8.

As yet there have been no regular chaperones assigned to the buses. However, two chaperones will accompany every thirty-five students.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI has notified FSU students that they will be able to house 240 students including the FSU band. Students will stay in San Sebastian dormitory on the north campus. Expenses will only cost $3 per person for the weekend, according to the report from Miami.

Students can also stay in the Miami Hotel at $2.25 per person.

No official holiday is scheduled since most students will have to remain at Florida State. Mr. Charles H. Walker, FSU registrar, has stated that classes will be held. He encourage students to see the game, allowing them to make up the work later.

FRESHMEN WOMEN, who are not usually allowed to make trips during the first nine weeks, must present special written permission from their parents to the dean of women, Katherine Warren. Other students follow general regulations.

Game time will be 8:15 at the Orange Bowl stadium and FSU seats will be reserved in section PP and may be reached by entrance gates 4 and 8.

The FSU circus will perform at half-time during the game.

MIAMI HOTELS are host to Tallahassee students at an informal dance scheduled to be held at Electricians Hall or the Riviera Country Club. Finally on Saturday afternoon from 1 until 4 there will be swimming and dancing at Roney Plaza for students, by alumni of FSU and Miami. The entire park has been reserved for the occasion.

Deans Announce Fr. English Change

The Council of Deans has announced that the rule concerning the counting of absences in English Clinic enrollment as part of the student's academic load may be waived by the student's academic Dean for those who have been excused for nonmedical reasons.

This announcement was made by Dean K. O. Kuersteiner, Chairman of the Council of Deans, when sent on to say that, "the action indicated was taken to alleviate difficulties of individuals for whose graduation would have to be delayed were they not eligible to take overload including Junior English Clinic."

Frat Rushing To Begin Oct. 8 With Party

The open house previously scheduled for Sunday, October 7 will be held the next night, Monday, October 8 at all the fraternity houses between the hours of 5:00 and 10:00 p. m., it was decided at a meeting of the Inter Fraternity Council Monday night.

A definite set of rules to be followed during pre-rush and rush week was drafted by the members of the council at Monday's meeting. Representatives of the 14 national chapter on campus adopted a resolution made by Floyd Poole, Sigma Nu, that the following rules be followed for pra-rush week.

THERE SHOULD be no objective fraternity discussion or between fraternity and sorority members, a fraternity or member of a fraternity can spend no money on a rushee. no prospective rushee shall make himself noticeable or continuously present at a fraternity house; no rushee shall remain in a fraternity house for more than one hour.

IT IS urged that all rushees and University men attending the rushed report to the IPC office in the Alumni Building at 5:00 Monday afternoon. They will be going to the various fraternity open houses to pick up a copy of the IPC rush booklet and other necessary information concerning rushing in the various fraternity houses.

Dale Pinkston committee chairman, Delwood McDonald, explained to the members of IPC that any date cards for rush parties must be turned into the invitation committee in the IPC office on the fourth floor of the Alumni Building not later than 9:00 o'clock, Saturday, October 13. All men interested in being rushed after the open houses should, without fail, pick up these date cards the next day, Tuesday October 9 in the IPC office," McDonald said.

RUSHEES MAY pick up an envelope which will contain their invitations to the several fraternity parties between the hours of 9:00 a. m. and 3:00 p. m in the IPC office, it was further stated.

As a final resolution of Monday's meeting, the IPC voted to have all open rush parties on Saturday, October 13, which must terminate before 8:00 p. m. without hours following immediately and lasting until 12:00 of the following Monday night. Rushees will then report to the fraternity of their choice which extended them a bid and be pledged.

FSU Plays Host To Band Festival

Florida State University will play host to more than 1,000 high school musicians from northwest Florida. Monday night at 6:30 when the Sixth District of the Florida Band and Orchestra Association presents its annual spring festival for its annual competition festival.

THE LOVETT Memorial Coliseum as the site for the forthcoming meeting by the band directors at which the Sixth District confab in Marianna.

According to Oliver Robbs, band director at the host school, general chairman of festival arrangements, approximately 29 high school bands will participate in the festival.

ACTIVITIES will include a parade of all the bands through the business district, a mammoth massed band concert in the Doak S. Campbell stadium, and festival competition of the organizations for ratings in playing and sight reading. Additional competition in baton twirling, solo twirling, solo and ensemble playing.

Miami Ticket Sale At W. Campus Office

Students who are interested in buying tickets to the Miami-FSU game should go to the West Campus physical education building, George Haywood, athletic business manager, said that the tickets would be on sale through Tuesday costing one dollar if the student brings his identification card. Two tickets per being sold in the Wescott Building.

Seminar Attended By 45 Reporters

Approximately 45 students attending the first meeting of a nine-week seminar on news gathering and news writing for the Flambeau staff and staff members.

Editor-in-chief Bob Griffin welcomed the staff and explained the advantages of working on the student publication. He also told them of the Flambeau banquet given to the staff by the school.

HAZEL MORRISON, News Editor, explained the make-up of a news story and the Flambeau style. She discussed leads, sentence structure and use of the directories and Pow Wow. "The majority of the space of the Florida Flambeau is composed of news articles" she said, "and thereby if you become a reporter, you will be a vital part in the running of the newspaper."

Associate Editor Emory King explained successful interviewing and use of the morgue. Frances Cawthon, Associate Editor, talked on writing features. The staff was introduced, and Jim Couch, Editor, and Joan Hughes, Business Manager, held special meetings for students interested in participating in those fields.

The Seminar was held for the benefit of those students who were interested in working on their student newspaper. Future classes will be held in order to familiarize the new workers with the personnel and physical aspect of the campus, as well as the correct way to prepare newspaper copy.

Any students still interested in the Flambeau work are urged to come by the office on second floor Alumni building and leave their names.

Rationalize Your Greeks, Hazing, Snobbery Are Out

Sorority rush week ended last night with all the chosen ones getting their engraved bids and the others getting back to their dormitories.

Fraternities will begin their rush week next week. Our freshmen are standing on the brink of their college careers and the treatment they receive during rushing may well mold their attitudes toward the university, the students, and their desires to continue their education.

The social side of college life is a vital part of our educative process. However, the Flambeau feels, that many times too much emphasis and importance is placed on the "Will I make a Greek letter organization" question.

We feel that a student's social life is his own business. But, we feel that when a student allows the tail to wag the dog, as it were, he will not get the best from college.

Too much study or too much play can be disasterous. If you can make a sorority or fraternity, fine. But if you don't don't worry. Rationalonize, take a sour grapes attitude, do anything, but don't let it cause you to think you are no longer needed on the campus.

The biggest and most important group of students on the campus are the independents. They can call their free time their own. They have no allegiance to a meeting, a party, a dinner, or a dance.

They save money, time, and have a excellent opportunity to make a name for themselves on the campus.

This is not to say that soro-frat members cannot make themselves known on the campus too, but that they are laboring under more restrictive set-up than the independent.

We are thankful that here at FSU neither the sororities nor the fraternities have progressed—or disgressed—to the point of being as snobhish as are the Greeks of many other universities. It is to be hoped that it will be many many years before hazing, snubbery, and those terrible attitudes that lead to heartbreak, torture, and tragedy reach this campus.

Last June two boys were killed during University of Miami hazing week. A fraternity is accused of beating two innocent boys—boys who were not pledging—last year at Gainesville.

So the story goes, but so far not here. Pray that it never comes. Stopping hazing immediately, cutting down snobhish attitudes at their start must be the aim for the students—Greek and independent alike —here.

The students and the Flambeau must become the watchdog of liberal ideas on this campus. A university is what the students make it.

Dear Editor...

Horrified

Dear Editor:

I was horrified to see on your sports page that the varsity netters would be minus two outstanding tennis stars: George Martin and Dick Bradley.

I am very perplexed over this situation and I am wondering if as the Flambeau, with its influence in and position, could persuade these two fine tennie players to rejoin the team.

With urgent concern.

Sincerely,
A Tennis Fan

Editor's note: Don't fret dear soul . . . stars Martin and Bradley will be back. See letter to editor.)

We're Back

Dear Editor:

This is to inform all tennis enthusiasts that at least two matches are safe. Although we were listed as being absent from the varsity tennis squad, due to influence in a profession higher, my present assured that Pierre and Lefty will be back on the clay courts come high winds and rainy weather in the spring.

Yours for amateur athletics and no training rules.

BOOK REVIEW

By WILLIAM L RYAN
THE SECRET ARMY.
By T. Bor-Komorowski
Macmillan; $6.

Lt. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski, the "General Bor" who led the ill-fated Warsaw rising against the Germans in 1944, tells his story in "The Secret Army." It is the story of the Polish underground, trying to Stalin himself a calculated long-term bind cost the lives of a quarter million Poles

In the autumn of 1944 the Russians had broken through the Vistula River line in Poland and were aimed directly for Warsaw. We were the Soviet's political rally. Poles who had sat out the war in Moscow moved into Lublin as a committee of national liberation, and the propaganda began. General Komorowski led the resistance throughout the war in Poland, as a "secret" but an outright war criminal.

Nechiski, the Poles in Warsaw felt sure liberation from the Nazis was near, and General Bor made plans for the Warsaw rising. The words of Polish guns could already be heard in Warsaw. Soviet propaganda, dropped by the plane, told Warsaw its day was near.

On Aug. 1, 1944, at 5 p m, General Bor gave the signal. The first two cases of the rising were briefly trifled the world—but the Moscow radio was silent. The Russians had receive stopped dead on the Vistula. The Red Army recovered from the first shock of the rising. Systematically and with deliberation Germans closed in with tanks, artillery and planes, reducing the part of Warsaw, block by block, to smouldering ruins. Aid expected from Britain failed to materialize. British planes could not make it through and back to their own bases and the Russians had refused permission for a shuttle operation to Russian-held bases.

Appeals to Moscow for help in offensive were fruitless. Stalin apparently was determined that Bor should be wholly discredited and that only the Russians and the communists would get credit for liberating Warsaw.

Against hopeless odds, their courage, their ammunition run out, the underground soldiers fought on for 63 days. Resistance ceased only it became apparent to General Bor the Soviets would not come to their aid. General Bor was taken away to Berlin by the Germans and interned.

Air Force ROTC Signs Newcomers

Approximately 260 freshmen were enrolled in the Air Force branch of the Reserve Officers Training Corps taught at Florida State University this fall.

A total of 228 cadets are enrolled in the junior and senior classes.

From last year's graduating class, 37 received commissions in the Air Force as second lieutenants and 26 are now on active duty at air bases in Orlando, Macon, Pinellas Park and Panama City and Perfect Air Base located in Cocoa.

The Army Ordnance ROTC stated that this year has gotten off to a good start. The Ordnance Corps, now training in first year at FSU, has an enrollment of 81 students and expect a larger enrollment as soon as schedules are completed.

Swim Tryouts Short For Enthusiasts

Attention Swimmers:

If you are interested in becoming a member of the varsity swimming team, come to the pool this afternoon between 4 and 5. Previous competitive experience is desirable, but not necessary. The managers are also needed.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

Love the timing of the Rits running Take Care of My Little Girl during Rush Week when the campus is painting themselves something snob to mob. These parties have all the spontaneity of a Mahrajah's funeral . . .

All the resistered bulls gathering nightly on Preshie Row to look over the current crop while last year's freshmen catch up on their reading . . .

This week's popular play about a young meathead who inherits a girl's school with everyone he attend classes . . .

Sounds like pretty likely stuff or is lecherous mind running away with me . . .

Cavaliers kicked off with the first dance last weekend. The talent show they threw in featured a young frosh comedian named Dave Divis who has jumped into the campus with both feet. Besides C.Cing Freshman stunt night, he grabbed a sports program on WFSU and somehow finds time to hold court daily in the Flambeau office. What ever happened to the old fashioned self-conscious beanie-wearer? . . .

The young owner of the new Co-op bookstore has been getting a hard time getting started. Because of a long-delayed shipment of books necessary to the new business have been withheld. Nothing like fair competition. . . .

Vic Bezenpank has that lost look, seems Bobbie stayed up to Yankeeland. . . .

Mike Sellers and Pat Cole seem to have taken up where they left off. . . .

Steve Kalenich seems to have lost sight of the chick from Marbella he was busily tracking last spring. . . .

Powers-that-be had better keep an eye on the Sorority Row diggings of Tommy Owen, "lover" Mero, "Pledge" Campbell and "Valentino" O'Neal. . . . They're sharing beds with old whisky bottles. . . .

Congrats due summer-weds Lew and Doi Carr, Mary and Betty Miller and Bill and Sue Heath. Starve to death with dignity boys. . . .

● MONEY WORRIES

Should the students be charged more money for their student activities fee?

The Flambeau, in its editorial policy, stated that the fee should be increased to catch up with the tide of rising costs.

It is not a matter of choice, but a matter of necessity.

Figure it in simple arithmatic: Two years ago the Flambeau budget item for printing was limited at $7,000. This last year the Flambeau spent almost $16,000 on printing costs. This means that the cost of printing has than doubled the cost of commercial printing.

This is the same story with the other campus publications.

During this time, when costa have leaping up the students have been paying the same student activity fee. More has been spent, less has been taken in. What does this mean?

All three publications had, at the time when cost and income were balanced, a sizable reserve. This was the financial lockog that was to be used for extra-special equipment. It kept the business office happy because a publiction could suffer a slight deficit without over-due worry.

Now this financial back-bone has been completely exhausted. Now there is no happy reserve upon which to fall. The publications are treading thin financial ice.

It is not because publication business managers are keeping their chairs warm. Last years advertising staff of the Flambeau, for instance brought in a total advertising revenue of over $8,000. This is almost four times the $1,500 taken in the year before, and twice that of the amount anticipated.

Even with these figures the Flambeau went into the red. The fact is that the students don't contribute enough money for their paper.

Last year the Flambeau published 60 issues. The contributions from each student was $2.00. This is, roughly, three cents for each student—hardly enough to run a semi-weekly paper. The Flambeau made a plea for existance and got a book of 20 cents per student. The twenty cents was taken from student activities that did not need their allotment. At present each student pays under four cents for his Flambeau each issue.

The only other alternative is to run a newspaper crammed full of advertising. Is this what the students want in their NEWSpaper?

Plans must be made by the business office to increase the student activity fee. This is the only financially sound plan.

● DARK AGES?

Freshmen have found out that this is a world of complication.

There was a time when a man would have three color choices if he were buying a sweater for his girl's birthday. There were red, blue and yellow.

However, a person entering an apparel-for-madamme shoppe in Tallahassee can be educated on the color spectrum quite expertly now days.

You might ask, "Something in a cardigan please." you being well-versed on articles feminine. You might have asked for just a sweater with buttons, you know:

"Color?" is the saleslady's reply.

"What have you?" you counter cagily.

"Midnight, pine, kelly forest, hunter, teal rust, wheat, sand, sulpher, mist, port, fog, lime, chartreuse, nautral, coral, ice—"

"These are colors"? you hlurt out, your little color spectrum exploded into a million shades, off-shades, hues, dyes, stains, and tinges.

"How about red?" you ask feebly. Good old red. Try corrupting that.

"Any particular red? Plum, apple, cranberry, strawberry, cherry, claret, heart, lobste. flamingo, cerise, chinese, lacquer, flame, devil, hurgundy?"

Poor you are living in the dark ages of snow-white, pitch-black, and sky-blue. It has been a lovely era too, unclutttered by the foot-loose imagination of Paris and Hollywood.

But this is a world of many reflections. This is a complex, confused and complicated world to understand.

● TO VICTORY

Since the beginning of Freshman week, school spirit on Florida State University's campus has hit an all-time high. Much of this can definitely be attributed to the freshman class wearing rat caps. The remainder can probably be attributed to the revitalized school spirit of Cheerleaders and the Warpath Club. Let's not stop there.

Nine lettermen are returning to FSU's gridiron, along with fifty-four other members of the team. The Seminoles have nine games scheduled for the season. Only one team has beaten the war chiefs within the last three years, and everyone is hoping this year's season will be as successful as the last has been.

At last we have scheduled a nationally known team for gridiron competition. This is one big chance to become recognized ourselves as football power. By running high Cosch Veller and his staff are doing all they can to field a top-notch team this year. All, however, cannot be left up to the football squad. Students who sit in the stands have a great responsibility. Our team needs cheers to follow that football when they're carrying it and when the opposition is also carrying it. They need your cheers, whether it means hacking one of their offensive plays or for "hold that line."

Tonight you students will have your first opportunity to show your support for the team. FSU's first pep rally will be held at 7 in the amphitheatre. At this meeting cheers for tomorrow night's game will be practiced; the cheerleaders, Coach Veller and the team will be introduced. The hand will also be there to help with the cheers and songs. Plans were made for tonight's pep rally at the first official meeting of the newly formed Warpath Club last Wednesday night.

Come on students! Let's turn out full force to show the team that we stand behind them one hundred percent. Let's go to the pep rally tonight and the game tomorrow night and prove that we really know how to cheer the war chiefs on to victory!

HEAD LINES

PRAISE, FAULTS WILL BE VOICED!

By ALLAN HEAD

Comes the second issue of the Flambeau, and it is my thought that maybe the two or three of you who are my faithful readers will want to know what's going to happen in this here political column. If it does I'd tell you. But I don't—yet.

The local politicos are going to determine that for me. You see, my next job is to dig back in the old Flambeau and find out just what they promised so as to get elected. Then I shall see them—each and every one that promised something to the students who voted him in—and find out what he or she is going to do about making those promises come true.

That is, therefore, in the way of being a reminder to our student governments officers, whether on University Council, Senate, or in our Judicial System. You officers were elected by the students, and in the heat of your hale and hearty campaigning you made certain promises.

If you've forgotten what they were, it's time to start looking them up. Or you can call me up and I'll look them up for you. If you haven't been thinking about how to get them fulfilled, now is the time to start thinking, writing bills, and collecting votes. And if you think that nobody is remembering, you're badly mistaken.

We don't have a party system here as they do in Gainesville. And that means you aren't responsible to anything but your own consciences and the student body. In most cases the conscience will be enough. If it isn't the student body will be hearing of it in no uncertain language—and those of you who mess up on the responsibilities you asked other students to give you will be seeing your names in a very uncomplimentary light, to say the least.

That doesn't just apply to promises, either. There is a lot of business each year that couldn't be foreseen at the time of elections. That means being at your governmental meetings. It means being there on time, and taking an active part in the business under discussion.

I don't like to have to imply that some of you are going to shirk your duties this year. So let's admit it straight out: some of you are going to be meeting and goofing off. I've been around student government for three years—and it's happened every year. So that's why I'm reminding you now and maybe preventing a little sermon: to let you know what you already should know: that we won't ever get anywhere if that kind of thing keeps up.

This column will give praise where praise is due. That's a promise. And it will find fault where fault is found. That's a promise too.

SEMINOLE SCENES

WATCH FOR THE HALF-TIME FOLLIES

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Hmm Seems as if the Marching Chiefs our University musical makers of the half-time, are going fancy on us.

Everybody strives for something original for the proverbial variety is the spice of life. The "chiefs" have certainly gotten something different this time, according to all reports. A new "march," dance or what-have-you is being practiced. As the members describe the step, it is kick way forward as far as you can go, cross your legs, spin around, stomp and a few other minor steps. A move is going along among the band members to change their name to "the Follies."

So far the new march has been tried with instruments. Out-of-balance hit-the-dirt and dirtiness. It's unrolled. When they add the horns somebody will probably get a saxophone wrapped about his neck. The new march is tentatively planned for the big Miami game. Ala sang Let's show them Miami—who ain't in the stands has a great responsibility. Our team needs cheers to follow that football when they're carrying it and when the opposition is also carrying it. They need your cheers, whether it means hacking one of their offensive plays or for "hold that line."

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

WHO HEARD WHAT CHARLIE SAID?

By EMORY KING

Charlie the Flambeau gremlin, sat in the office with a worried look on his face His knitted brows and downcast countenance caused the rest of the reporters to leave him alone.

After some hours, he suddenly asked, "Ever listen to Radio Moscow?"

Nobody answered. They were all busy.

I did last night," he continued. "It's a funny thing. They're good You remember: Axis Sally and Tokyo Rose. They were terrible as propaganda messengers. Everybody laughed at them. but this Russian radio is something to think about. The commentators talk in English with only a slight trace of Russian accent. If you didn't know you were on short wave you might think you were listening to a national broadcast.

Nobody was paying any attention. It was getting time for deadline

"Now we have Voice of America and Radio Free Europe on our side to work on the communist front. Voice of America is supported by our tax dollars. Many millions were spent last year to broadcast almost 24 hours a day in over 50 different languages to all parts of the globe. The VOA has over 12 Transmitters scattered about the free world. It is the only American voice heard in the Soviet Union, and in many other parts of the world.

"The VOA speaks for the U. S. government and the American people. It gives all nations the American viewpoint on world problems.

"Radio Free Europe, the second member in the free world's team to combat the lies of communism with the truth of democracy, is a private enterprises paid for through contributions in the Annual Crusade for Freedom drive

"The RFE concentrates its programs on captive countries behind the Iron Curtain. It is a citizens station where Poles speak to Poles an "The voice of free Poland," Hungarians speak to Hungarians, and "The voice of free Hungary," etc.

Although Americans are financing the station with their con-

Seminoles Open '51 Season Tomorrow

Seminole Scout

By JIM COUCH

With kick of time just thirty-six hours away, local and out-of-town scribes are giving out with varied predictions; my prediction is that the Seminoles will have a "hard" time winning this one. The score will probably be around 36-13.

I believe the Seminoles will display the same scoring punch that carried them over the Patrick Air Base in their scrimmage last week. With a wide open offensive centered around Fullback Italiano, Mike Sellers, Roy Thompson, Al Woodham, and Ronald King, the FSU team will have more scoring punch than ever before. Their well rounded attack will be more than Troy can handle and if the defense is as strong as it has been in past years, the Veller teams will have put two more victories, mainly Miami.

I would like to announce that the Flambeau is planning to sponsor "Most Valuable Player" awards for each varsity sport. The Flambeau will present to the athlete, who is chosen by his teammates as the most outstanding participant in that sport, a trophy, paid for by city merchants. This will become an annual award and each recipient will receive his trophy shortly after the close of each season. We are glad that we will be able to give some recognition to the athletes who perform so long and diligently for our university.

Sport Shorts: . . . Local sports fans might be surprised, but Dick Bradley, tennis player, will prove that he can also break records off the courts. We refer to his vow to break existing records on letters-to-the-editor. Lee Bailey is now in town trying to graduate, here's hoping he makes it this time. Lee led the baseball team in hitting last year and is now home run record with a season high of four. This fanatics can play tennis any time now; and with the ties on East campus, several players now practice after class.

LAST MINUTE INSTRUCTIONS are given to the Seminoles before their initial game of the 1951 season. The Troy State team will go against the FSU team in Campbell Stadium tomorrow night. Gametime 8 p.m.

Troy Red Wave Defensive Will Try to Stop Seminoles

Although the Red Wave from Troy will be filled with new names they are expected to come up with an outstanding fair squad and will give a good accounting of themselves tomorrow night in the Tallahassee stadium. Troy Coach Jim Grantham intends to rely on his teams defense in order to make up for the loss of last year's offensive stars.

BIG TURNOVER

There has been a terrific turnover in material from last year's squad. A generous sprinkling of linemen, plus one proven back, is all that Grantham has had to start with. With such men gone as Dewey Renfroe, Charlie Cox, J. T. Elmore and "Little All-American" Chase Riddle from the backfield, Grantham faces a tough rebuilding problem.

To rebuild with, Grantham has a clever quarterback in Allen Harrell who should operate fine in his "T" and split-T offense, and the 175-pound junior from Montgomery, Ala., appears capable of doing well in his new role.

Guy Sullivan, 180-pound fullback, is returning at that post for a second year. Sullivan was used sparingly last season, but has some experience. Brightest newcomers who could win the starting fullback assignment are Bob Owenheimer, 180-pounder from Ridgefield, N. J., and Robert Jones, 185-pound Columbus, Ga., freshman. Ersell Beck, alternate captain looks like a fixture at the righthalf. Mahlon Faulk, 180-pound freshman from Ramer, Ala., looks like the chief contender for righthalf.

Raymond Sheppbard, 160-pounder from Columbus, Ga., has stepped forward as the starting leftshaft. Sheppbard was a reserve last season and saw very little service. Jack McDonald, Troy's heralded freshman, and veteran Sam Williams will spell Sheppbard at the leftshaft position. McDonald will also play defense.

Williams and Billy Beane, transfer from Snead Junior College will do most of the punting

FOUR VETERAN ENDS

At the end spots Grantham has four returning letter winners. Bill Joiner, 180-pounder from Montgomery, Ala., and Burt McDonald, from Butler, Ala., will handle the end posts of offense, while Pete Farrar, Phenix City, Ala., sophomore handles one defensive terminal and Dick Wade, Valley Head, Ala., handles the other.

Clay Jordan, 200-pounder from Highland Home Ala., and Leroy Causey, 205-pounder from Eufaula, Ala., looks like the best bets at the tackle position. Jordan is a junior and Causey a newcomer. The tackle slot is one of the weakest links in the forward wall according to Line Coach Serfustini.

At center, the rough Clarence Sandusky 190-pound, six - foot Montgomery, Ala., defensive linebacker returns. He will team with Fred Cruse, 155-pound, Birmingham, Ala., tornado at the linebacking posts. Cruse and Sandusky make the linebacker spots look bright. Oliver Paul, lanky 175-pound sophomore will handle offensive duty.

For the kickoff Saturday night Coach Grantham rests his ends as adequately manned. His tackles rather weak, with his guards strong if Roney comes through. The pivot post should be in capable hands if Oliver does not get sophomorisus.

Overall, he rates Troy definitely stronger in the line than last year, but a shade weaker in the offensive department.

Meet the Mentors

Bob Harbison is the second in our series of informational stories on FSU's coaching staff. Mr. Herbison, also the varsity, came to FSU in the Fall of 1948

Harbison was an outstanding guard at the University of Indiana during the seasons of 1945 and 1947 and has coached centers and guards since his arrival in Tallahassee.

At the close of his last year at Indiana, Harbison was chosen to play in the Blue-Gray Bowl game in Montgomery, Ala.

During his stay here he has coached such outstandine Seminole stars as Joe Marcus (1948 and 1949), Jerry Morrical (1949) and present Captain, Bill Dawkins, plus many more.

Harbison is a native of Evansville, Indiana; is married and has one child.

Seminoles Aim For Thirteenth

The 1951 football season will set under way tomorrow when the Seminoles take on the Red Wave from Troy State Teachers College of Troy, Alabama. This will be the fifth meeting between the two schools, with Florida State taking the last three in a row. The Seminoles won last year 28-7.

The Seminoles will be after their thirteenth consecutive victory, as they won Eight last turee in 1949, the Cigar Bowl game against Wofford in 1950, and all eight of the regular season games for 1950

The Troy State team, coached by former Alabama end, Jim Grantham, will have most of its defensive stars back, but will greatly miss last year offensive standouts.

The Seminoles, under the direction of Don Veller, will have just about all its offensive backs returning, although Veller will miss some of last year's standout linemen.

Heading the FSU attack will be the starting backfield of fullback Milan "Mike" Sellers, quarterback Dick Turk, and halfbacks Nelson Italiano and Roy Thompson.

Sellers is an All-State choice from last year, and has looked very good in pre-season drills. Italiano was a late season standout in '50 and will be called on to do both passing and running. He threw eight touchdown passes and ran for five more as he led the Seminoles to total offense with 583 yards. Turk is a converted fullback and will be new to the signal-calling post, while Thompson, a transfer from Georgia Tech, is a fine break-a-way runner and should prove valuable to the FSU scoring punch.

Halfbacks Al Woodham, Gerry Folsom, and Bobby Fiveash; along with fullbacks Ronald King and George Carnes are expected to see plenty of action, while Preston Bradley and Tom Sebring will see duty in the quarterback slot.

Linemen who will see plenty of action are Bill Dawson, Mac Hoyt, Bob Schmeltz, Earl O'Neal, Buddy Bryant, Steve Kalenich, Ed Lockard, Tommy Owen, Vic Beisenzink, Bob Wetherell, Nat Polak, Don Linton, Ernie Nagy, Bob Whitmer, Jimmie Arendt, Jay Campbell, Bill Driver and Al Garrett.

If the Seminoles get a good start, many players, primarily freshmen and transfers, will get to display their wares under fire.

Coach Veller had no prediction to make as to the outcome, but the Seminoles will be favored mainly because of their last season record and their over all record against the Red Wave. Veller did say that he was reasonably certain that the game would be a hard fought contest all the way.

Game time is set for 8 p.m. and students are urged to report to the east gates, which will be the only gates where they will be allowed to enter. They must present their I. D. cards for admission.

ARMY'S HOPE—Candidates for West Point's football squad leave the campus gymnasium on their way to the practice field under the scrutiny of fellow cadets. Fifty-two of them, half the normal number of tryouts, are faced with the rugged task of replacing the powerful team which was wiped out by a wave of scandals following the recent cribbing scandal.

Highlands Hammock State Park, Sebring, was donated to the state in July, 1935.

In 1923 the Flambeau was put in the budget fee to be paid at the opening of school.

and maintain an adequate selection for cheering.

The INSPIRATION for this was gotten by Jett Munroe (Nancy Bentley), two of last year's cheerleaders, when they attended the Southern Collegiate Conference at Chapel Hill. North Carolina last spring semester.

When their return, they started working on this project. A complete list of students who would be attending summer school was then sent to work on the constitution and organizational plans. The committee consisted of Mitch Sutherland, Frank D. Nelson, Dick Bailey, Tom Edwards and Jett Munroe. This committee met every week during the summer session.

THE WAKPATH CLUB has been approved by the University. Funds have been appropriated for it to start work. It now only needs the support of the students.

ALSO PRESENT were: Nancy Lane, Norma Jean Braddock, Delta Zeta; Helen Phillips, Women's Glee Club; Ginny Hughes, Alpha Xi Delta; Janis Ward, Pi Beta Phi; Polly Lassiter, Student Christian Association and Phi Mu; Bill Dunn, Alpha Tau Omega; Gene Cavanaugh, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Frank D. Nelson, Day Students; Mitch Sutherland, Lambda Chi Alpha, Jere Salyers, "Cooter" Mills, Sigma Nu; Patsy Sisson, Villase Vampe, Ann Wooten, Chi Omega.

Jean Stewart represented Dance Club, Marilyn Harris, Jemia Murphree, Nancy Mayer, Bryan Hall; Ellin S. Rasaldcoster, Forestry Student Club; Jackie Kestof, North Cawthon; La Verne Jennings, Alpha Lambda Delta; Bra Johnson, Marilyn Stebbins, Oldchrist Hall; Mry Cartier, Alpha Chi Omega and Mortar Board; Mary Ruth Jamison, Sigma Nu Key and Dr. Claude Flory, Faculty Advisor.

John F Rollins Bird and Plant Sanctuary, near Jacksonville, was donated to the state in 1950.

Professor of Economics Clamp Granted Leave of Absence

Jesse Carl Clamp, assistant professor of economics at FSU has been granted a leave of absence of the State Board of Control until June 1, 1952, to work with the Wage Stabilization Board, FSU president Doak S. Campbell announced.

Prof. Clamp will serve as director of the Case Analysis Division of Region X in Dallas, Texas, for WSB.

He has been a member of the FSU faculty since Sept. 15, 1949 and holds degrees from Duke University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His research work in economics has included a study of wage structures in the Southern cotton textile industry and causes of collective bargaining in industrial areas.

In 1932 the faculty senate approved the plan for students to do honor work in their academic courses.

Pi Beta Phis to Move Into House Before Completed

Although their new house is not quite complete, the Pi Beta Phi sorority has decided to move into residence, it was announced yesterday.

ARCHITECTS and interior decorators have been working all summer, constructing a new section and remodeling the old. The addition will consist of a large dining room and kitchen on the first floor, a laundry room complete with new Bendix washers and dryers in the basement, and five bedrooms and bath upstairs. The finished house will be double the size of the former building.

The Pi Beta Phi house will retain its former English architecture but the new interior will be decorated with oyster and gray natural stone.

NEW FURNISHINGS and kitchen equipment have been purchased. Meals will again be served by the beginning of next semester.

Responsible for planning and supervising is their chaperone Mrs. Helen Palmer who came to the Tallahassee chapter from Missouri last year.

The Pi Beta Phi house is located at 515 College Avenue.

Tarpon Club-ers Welcome Swimmers

The Tarpon Club, women's swimming organization, will hold open house October 1, 2 and 3 from 6 to 7:30 at the pool.

They will teach or correct strokes, and answer any questions about their synchronized swimming activities. The club gives two swim shows per year. Plans are already in progress for the fall show.

Tryouts will be held the following Monday, Tuesday Wednesday, October 8, 9 and 10. Monday tryouts are open to girls whose last names start with a letter from A through M. Tuesday, those from N through Z will try out. Wednesday night, the girls who passed the first tryout period successfully will be invited back for final tryouts. The club's membership is not limited so all girls are encouraged to try out.

Geology Club Calls Meeting Tuesday

The Geology club will hold its first meeting Tuesday, October 1, at 8:00 p.m.

Club officers and active members will assemble at 7:30 to prepare for the meeting. Newly-elected officers are president, William Meyers; vice-president and historian, Doris Love; secretary and treasurer, Windell Roberts; publicity secretary, Carroll Finlayson, faculty adviser, Dr. Cullison.

Philosophy Prof Writes Story for Scientific Mag.

Dr. Laurence J. Lafleur, associate professor of philosophy at Florida State University has written an article entitled "Cranks and Scientists" which will be published shortly in the "Scientists' Monthly."

Dr. Lafleur points out that the scientist is committed to the freedom of inquiry and fully and frankly recognizes that any scientific theory is open to question, that the true scientist welcomes such question of his theory with an open mind.

It must be remembered, Dr. Lafleur points out in his article, that practically all new scientific theories which have so greatly contributed to the progress of civilization were challenged when first advocated. However, being on sure ground, the scientists accepted these challenges and went forward with their experiments and contributions to the world.

Start Odd-Even And Intramurals

The first sports season of the Women's Recreation Association gets under way October 1.

Odd-Even team sports will include hockey, soccer and archery. The Evens practice on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday and the Odds on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 5 to 6.

Dormitory and sorority intramurals include volleyball, tennis, and horseback.

Jane Kirk, president of WRA, encourages everyone to go out for these sports even if they have never participated. She explained that the girls would start off with the fundamentals and work up.

Other events in the first sports season include the Odd-Even Pajama, Gymkana, and Tarpon tryouts.

Landon Speaks on Hotel Management

Florida State University students were informed of the background history of the State Hotel Commission by James F. Landon, State Hotel Commissioner, in a class meeting hotel and restaurant management.

Mr. Landon was introduced to the students by Dr. Lundberg, head of the Restaurant and Hotel Management department. Mr. Landon said that many new motels had been built in all parts of the state to accommodate the increased tourist trade.

He explained that the last session of the State Legislature had added to the duties of the commission. This was in reference to prevention of bookmaking operations in state licensed hotel premises by revoking licenses of hotels where evidence of gambling warranted it.

tributions the staff is made up of exiles of the Iron Curtain—mostly distinguished newspapermen, radio commentators, educators, etc. They have the final say on what goes on the air.

"Shortly after the first RFE station began to operate in Munich, Mao Tsu-tung, the Red Czech regime demanded that the U. S. stop the station. We read the first amendment of the constitution to them. The Reds tried to jam the air so the programs couldn't get through. This has failed. The Reds have threatened death to anyone caught listening to Radio Free Europe. That too failed.

"Thousands of letters have been smuggled through from the Iron Curtain thanking RFE for its service to the slaves of communism."

Charlie stopped talking. Nobody had heard a drum he said. Well perhaps they'll see the little Freedom Bells around the campus and donate a few pennies to this Crusade for Freedom that helps keep the free world alive.

Hillel Foundation Meeting Wednesday

Preliminary plans for the coming year's activities were discussed when the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation met at the Temple Israel on the corner of South Copeland and St. Augustine streets.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday night, October 3, at 7 o'clock when refreshments will be served and students will be given an opportunity to meet Dr. J. Golden of the Social Welfare Department and faculty advisor of the group.

In 1923 out of state students at Florida State College for Women had to live off campus. A movement was in the making to have a special dormitory built for them on private capital.

In 1923 the Governor of Florida held a reception for the student body and the faculty at his mansion.

High School Music Is Topic of Article By FSU Professor

An article by Dr. Virgil E Strickland, associate professor of Florida State University, appeared in the September issue of "The Nation's Schools."

Dr. Strickland explained in the article "Scheduling Music in Junior High School," how the teaching of music in the schools can be integrated with the other studies of the student for the benefit of the class.

"It is not a matter of the social studies teacher going his way and leaving the room each day for the music period while the music teacher takes over," he said. "The experiences must be planned jointly and carried out so that each instructor reinforces the other in such a way that the boys and girls feel a continuous experience of certain values."

To illustrate his point Dr. Strickland shows that one eighth grade group studying the Civil War period found music experience helpful. The music played and studied during the class period was that of the Civil War days and directly related to the other studies of the class.

Gautier Initiated By Women's Honorary

Initiation into Garnet Key was held last night for Mae Gautier, junior who was tapped last spring for the honorary.

Following the ceremonies, refreshments were served to all the members and the new initiate.

FSU String Quartet To Play At Memorial

The Florida State Faculty String Quartet will participate in the ceremonies at the Stephen Foster Memorial at White Springs, Sunday. Prof. John Boda, also of the music faculty, will be accompanist for contralto Mary Alice Hensley, radio and television star.

The quartet will play three selections during the morning service at 11 o'clock at the Memorial. The ceremonies are to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the publication of Foster's Way Down Upon the Suwannee River."

Students! Make money writing Lucky Strike jingles!

MORE FUN, TOO!

No tricks! No gimmicks! Takes no time—no special talent! You can make $25.

Just write a simple four-line jingle based on the fact that

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE!

(or other qualities of Luckies such as those listed below.)

Write a Lucky Strike jingle, like those you see on this page, based on the fact that Luckies taste better than any other cigarette, or other qualities of Luckies such as those listed below. If your jingle is selected for possible use in Lucky Strike advertising, we will pay you $25 for the right to use it and your name in our advertising. Lucky Strike jingles will soon be running in your paper. Start today—send in as many jingles as you like. Be the first to write a jingle in your school!

Just made a great discovery! Which I announce with hasteFolks go for Lucky Strike because They like that better taste!

Before each class—and after too, I do just what I like— Relax—enjoy the better taste of good ol' Lucky Strike!

READ THESE SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS

1. Write your Lucky Strike four-line jingle on a plain piece of paper or postcard and send it to Happy-Go-Lucky, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y. Be sure that your name, address, college and class are included—and that they are legible.

2. Base your jingle on the fact that Luckies taste better than any other cigarette—or on any of the alternate themes below.

3. Every student of any college, university or post-graduate school may submit jingles.

IMPORTANT:

To make money writing jingles, it is not essential to base your jingle on "Luckies taste better than any other cigarette." You may base a jingle on other outstanding qualities of Luckies such as the following:

L S M F T
Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco
Be Happy—Go Lucky!
So round, so firm, so fully packed
So free and easy on the draw
Buy Luckies by the carton
Luckies give you deep-down smoking enjoyment
Luckies are the world's best-made cigarettes

Enter Plans For Homecoming Now

All recognized campus organizations are urged to enter the Homecoming house decoration, float, and queen contests.

Committees to take charge of the various activities in connection with the annual Homecoming program of Florida State University, Oct. 26-27, have been appointed and plans for the program are well underway, Dr. Doak S. Campbell announced today.

ORGANIZATIONS entering the house decorations contest must notify Professor Lewandowski of the Art department by Oct. 15. The displays must be ready for judging by 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 26, and removed by Oct. 28. Entrants may not spend more than $30 on their displays and a complete financial report must be handed in immediately following the contest. Winning dorm and house will each receive a loving cup. If the same house or dormitory wins for three consecutive years the cup is permanently theirs.

For the float contest, a written announcement, accompanied by a sketch of the proposed float, must be turned in to Bill Upshaw, 830 West Park, before Oct. 10. All floats must be ready for judging at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27, and cost less than $135. Dates and terms of float construction may be obtained from Gutchall's Manufacturing Company catalogue, which is on reserve in the East Campus Library.

THE HOMECOMING QUEEN will be selected by popular vote from the candidates presented by sororities, fraternities, student houses, and dormitories. Each group must submit a 4 by 10 glossy print and mail print of the same picture to the Public Relations office in the Administration Building by Monday, Oct. 8. The five persons who will compete for queen and her court will be selected at the preliminary voting Oct. 15 and 16. Ballot boxes will be posted in Westcott. A later election will be held among the five candidates will be queen.

FSU Homecoming this year will include the annual "Miss Wow," the big downtown parade, a barbecue for alumni and friends, a reunion of classmates, the annual breakfast, and a business meeting of the Alumni Association at 8 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 27, a formal dance featuring Tex Beneke and his orchestra, and the Homecoming football game between FSU and Stetson that evening at Centennial Stadium.

HOMECOMING FESTIVITIES, Oct. 26 and 27, will have special significance this year since they

Forensics Group Debates On Curve Grading System

Should FSU Professors stop grading on the curve? This is the topic to be debated at the third annual fall forensics rally to be held tonight at 7:00 in room 20 of the History building.

All freshmen and new students interested in participating in any form of forensic activity while attending the university are urged to be with the varsity squad on this meeting which will launch FSU's 1951-52 program.

Students participating in the debate on the grading system will be Beverly Lacayo and Janice Arbogast with Wallace Dynes serving as chairman.

Following the debate Dr. Clarence Sidney, head of the department of speech, will address the group on "The Place of Forensics in the Program of the Department of Speech and the University."

Of interest especially to the new students will be reports of "Debate Experiences" given by one member of the regular squad, Katherine Shoesta1, and by a graduate of 1950, Robert Lee Bannerman.

Dr. Wayne Minnick will speak on "The Value of Forensic Activity" and Dr. Orena Phifer will give the group a glimpse into the year's schedule with a speech on "1951-52 Forensics at FSU."

Test Bureau Gives Exams Tomorrow PM

Students who were unable to take the American Council on Education Psychological Test and the Minnesota Personality Rating Scale during Orientation Week will be permitted a re-testing according to a notice from the Test Service Bureau.

ACE will be offered on Wednesday, Oct. 3; Minnesota will be administered on Thursday, Oct. 4. Both will be given at 3 p.m. in 124 New Science Building.

300 Indians Cheer Team On At 1st Rally

New Cheerleaders; Marching Chiefs Aid In Presenting Rally

Six newly elected cheerleaders performed for the first time Friday night before the 300 students gathered at the first Seminole pep rally in the Music amphitheatre. Leading the group was head cheerleader, Jett Munroe.

THE NEW CHEERLEADERS are Anne Adams, Plant City; Nancy Black and Dot Johnson, Orlando; Shirley Harper, Vero Beach; Betty Ann Munroe, Tallahassee and Anne Yates, Key West.

The six returning letter-girls are sophomores Ruth Spencer, Miami; Renie Hall, Tampa and Shirley Knight, Pompano Beach; Juniors, Patsy Gates, Miami; Martha Williamson, Jacksonville and senior Jett Monroe, Tallahassee.

THE FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY BAND, led by Robert T. Brumsagel, accompanied the songs and led the atmosphere for the pep meeting.

Following a short address by Coach Bobby Bowden and Football Squad captain, Bill Dawkins, introduced the new cheerleaders, Mary Veller commented, "The boys have been practicing since August 23 and it's about time they got to do it." "I am sure they have not been practicing for nothing," he stated, "and that they will put on the largest turnout that a pep rally has had in the history of F.S.U."

The head cheerleader introduced three new yells among which was "Second Off." She also led the pep squad in a foot stomping chant called "Yell louder, Florida State, yell louder." "It sounds like an old tin can," Jett said, "but it can really make a noise!" "Satisfied" was the yell that the cheerleaders introduced. The yell is a special one to be used after a touchdown.

FOLLOWING THE RALLY, the upperclassmen were guests to open house mixers at the two largest class women's dormitories.

At Cawthon Hall, the boys were entertained by dancing on the outside patio while at Landis, the recreation room was the scene of activity with ping pong games and dancing summing up the program. Outside the dormitories dancing by blocking off a driveway and using a speaker broadcast the tunes.

Staff Distributes Lost Year's Annual

Tally-Ho's of 1951 will be given out in the Tally-Ho office Monday through Friday. The office is located on fourth floor Alumni Memorial. Students with a appointment may also be made at the same time.

A staff is now interested in working on the Tally-Ho are to attend a meeting in the office October 4 at 7:30 p.m.

IFC MEMBERS held pow wow on Rush Week starting next Monday. All fraternities will begin rushing officially at midnight Sunday.

Frat Rushing Week Begins With Preliminary Meeting

A preliminary to fraternity rush week is a meeting of all men interested in fraternities to be held this evening at 7 p. m. in the auditorium of the Longmire building.

At this meeting a discussion period will be held and an effort will be made at that time to answer questions relating to fraternities.

ACTUAL RUSH WEEK will begin on Monday, October 8 at 5 p.m. with an open house scheduled at each of the fraternity houses. Open house will last until 10 p.m.

All rushees and university men desiring to be rushed should register in the Dean of Men's office. At this time they will pick up a copy of the IPC rush booklet and other necessary information concerning rushing and the location of the fraternity houses.

A definite set of rules to be followed during rush and rush week was adopted by the members of the council. The following rules are to be followed for pre-rush week.

THERE SHOULD BE no objection to fraternity discussion between rushees and fraternity members; a fraternity or member of a fraternity can spend no money on a rushee; no prospective rushee shall make himself noticeable or continually present at a fraternity house and no rushee shall remain in a fraternity house for more than one hour.

Date card for rush parties must be turned into the invitation committee in the IPC office on the fourth floor of the Longmire building not later than 9 p. m. on Monday, October 8.

ALL MEN INTERESTED in being rushed after the open houses should pick up their date card the following day, Tuesday, October 9 in the IPC office between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Only one rush party may be held on Saturday, October 13. This party must end before 6 p. m. Rushees will not be allowed Saturday and last until 7:30 of the following Monday night. Rushees will then report to the fraternity of their choice which extended them a bid and be pledged.

Sandspur Sets Tryout Dates

Sandspur tryouts are to be held in the Music Amphitheatre October 8, 9, 10 and 11, beginning at 7 p.m.

"All kinds of talent are needed such as all types of amuses and dancing, novelty acts, and helpers on various crews. Anyone interested in working with the 1952 Sandspur should come to try-outs and sign up on one of the crews," stated Bill Backus, producer of the Sandspur.

THE WINNER of the '52 script contest was announced late last semester as Dan Thezin, author of "This is the Life," by the Sandspur script committee. Arthur Dearing, who was a sophomore in the school of Arts and Sciences, is now attending University of the South on a football scholarship. Later he plans to attend Yale Divinity School. After many revisions this summer by Dan and Bill the script is now ready for the printer. Music is being written by Hank Warner, second year in the School of Music now majoring in physics.

In addition to "This is the Life" by Dearing the following scripts were submitted to the Sandspur Committee: "The Devil You Say" by Dean Aller Hall; the boys were collected by Harry Copeland; "Cinema," by Don Heckman; and "The Harvard Man," by Nancy Renninger. All of these scripts were judged by Sandspur staff and members of the music and speech departments.

The staff is headed by Bill Backus, producer. The staff includes George Curry, director; Cosmo Cardone, Assistant Producer; Mickey Johnson, Associate Producer; Hank Warner, music director; and Dan Dearing, author.

Other production members are Jim Dean, business manager; Jerry Saivers, public relations and Aide Wee, personnel director. Miss Elizabeth Lynn, will be special faculty advisor to the group.

"Work will start immediately so the show will be ready to present to the student body in February," Bill said.

HS Publications Send Editors For Intensive Study

Dr. Clarence R. Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism, announced today that high school editors of numerous student publications will meet here for an intensive program of journalistic instruction National Newspaper Week, October 1 to 7.

This first annual seminar will be divided into newspaper and yearbook instruction and will include twenty special sessions for the visiting students and advisers.

The program will be initiated with addresses by Dr. Frank Dame, dean of the School of Business, and Professor William Rose Slaughter of the School of Journalism as well as describe the values of publication staff experience. Kenneth Ballmer, capital representative of the Florida Press Association, will discuss Florida newspapers, and Dr. Sidney Kobre will clarify women's role in Journalism.

Clinics will be conducted by Professors Earl Vance, Zell Mabee, and Paul Sessions of the School of Journalism; Dr. W. Bruce Weale, and Professor William A. Riddick, School of Advertising; Professor Clark Allen, chairman of the School of Economics and Mesdames Harold Humm and Laurence R. Campbell, publications advisers.

Comp Flostocowo Open to Students

Camp Flastocowo will be open on week days from 3:00 to 7:00 p.m. On Saturday hours will be one until seven, on Sunday, noon until seven. These changes have been announced by Miss Mary V. Alexander.

The ramp, free to all students, offers boating, bathing, swimming, horseshoes, table tennis, and badminton. Group reservations for the week-end use of overnight cabins may be made.

Life-Saving Offered

All persons interested in taking the senior life-saving course are invited to attend a meeting Oct. 4 at 6 p.m. at Room 202, Women's Gym.

Pow-Wow To Have Secret Attraction

Second Pep Rally To Send Seminole Gridders To Miami

A top-secret attraction has been added to the list of pre-Miami festivities. A special event will be featured at tonight's pep rally to be held in the Music amphitheater at 7 o'clock. Jett Munroe, cheer-leading captain, released no further information, adding only that a master of ceremonies would be on hand with the FSU band. Jett emphasized that everyone is urged to attend.

THE RALLY, second of the year, is a send-off for the Seminole gridders who will leave tomorrow morning for the Orange Bowl.

Students will not leave until Thursday night, however. Round trip bus tickets may be purchased for $14.30; the ducats are on sale in lower Westcott until 6 o'clock this afternoon. Game tickets are also on sale until 5 p.m. today in the Athletic business office on West Campus.

The University of Miami has sent word that 240 students will be accommodated in San Sebastian, Gurney's resort on campus for $1 nightly per person.

OTHERS MAY STAY at the Alcazar Hotel at special rates of $2.25 per person.

Half time ceremonies will be performed by the Florida State Circus. The FSU band will also take the field to entertain music throughout the game.

The bookstore is selling Indian headbands for 25 cents. Jett Munroe commented, "We think all Seminoles should wear these when we go to Miami." Miami always comes up with such novel ideas, and Florida State intends to show that we will be standout rooters, she further explained.

FRATS HAVE been informed that Miami will be host at an informal dance at either the Riviera Country Club or the Electricians Hall. On Saturday afternoon the event-Charlie's Haunt has been reserved for swimming and dancing from one until four o'clock. This occasion will be sponsored by the FSU and Miami alumni.

Grey 'ID' Cards Issued This Year

Grey identification cards have been issued to all Florida State University students who have registered for the fall semester and paid their registration fees. This announcement was made by Miss T. Flournoy, director of the office of personnel records.

The identification cards are to be carried by the students at all times this semester and bear the student's photograph. They also are prepared in the university International Business Machines, the director said.

Colors of the cards are changed each semester so that only accredited FSU students have them.

The identification cards are not transferable, according to the director, and bear a series of numbers which can be punched at the student's request to indicate which they are entitled through the activity fees.

Honor Committee

The first Honor Committee meeting will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 3, in the UGA room, second floor of the Alumni building. This meeting is important, and all students wishing to work on the committee are invited to attend.

Talent Needed For 'Roberta'

Organizational Meet Scheduled For Wed.

The organizational meeting for the production of Jerome Kern's musical comedy Roberta, will be held in the Music hall tomorrow evening, Wednesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. All students interested in assisting with the production are asked to attend this first meeting.

A wide variety of talent is needed for the staging of the show, according to Dr. Robert L. Briggs, director of the production. Students who have had or are having like experience in all phases of theatrical production are invited to be a part of the show.

THE CAST is not limited to those with singing ability, Dr. Briggs said. Several lines appear in the cast of last year's.

Monday evening, April 7, the final concert will feature popular melodies commemorating George and Ira Gershwin. Thomas Wilson, noted young American pianist, will appear with the orchestra in a performance of the "Concerto in F." Hit songs from Gershwin's musicals will be sung by Mary Reiel Warner, soprano, and Herman Gunter, baritone.

SPONSORED BY the Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce, the State Symphony Orchestra, 68 musicians who are FSU students, faculty members, and townspeople. Famous musicians who have appeared with the orchestra in the past few years include Alberto Spaulding, American violinist; Lawrence Tibbett, tenor; Lauritz Melchior, Metropolitan opera star; and Ernest von Dohnanyi, international composer, pianist, and conductor Symphony officials announced that admission to the concert this year will be by season ticket only. However, all tickets are transferable. Those unable to attend may give their tickets to someone else.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Judd Chapman, chairman of the Symphony Association, concerts will be presented in Leon High auditorium, therefore only 1,250 tickets can be sold this year. He urged all to purchase their tickets as the total number of tickets may be accommodated.

No More Flags On Letter Fronts

Postmaster W H May announced today that all letters having Florida State University or its defective flag stickers on the face of the envelope have been returned to the sender. If stickers are used they must be placed on the back of the envelope. This is because it is illegal to deface anything but the address and postage stamp on front.

When asked whether there was any basis for the rumor that since some of the boys have moved to the East Campus there has been a mix-up in mail, May said, "Because addresses on many of the letters have delayed the posting. All letters must have a box number on them. Letters which are simply addressed to Florida State University cannot be posted immediately."

The mail will be posted at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., and 3 p.m. The deliveries will be made at 9:30 to 12:25 and from 2:15 to 4:25 on weekdays, and from 9 to 12:25 on Saturdays.

Foreign Club Meets

The Foreign Students Club will hold its first meeting of the semester tomorrow night at 7 p.m. Room 603 of the Louminie Building. All foreign students are asked to attend.

Fla. Symphony Presents 3rd Annual Show

The State Symphony of Florida, under the direction of Karl Kuersteiner, will present its third annual artist series concerts this year.

The first of the four concerts, Nov. 19, will feature Margaret Truman, singer who also made her debut with the Detroit Symphony in 1947. An album of her latest recordings has recently been released by a leading record company.

ERNST VON DOHNANYI, conductor of the Budapest Philharmonic Orchestra, makes his third appearance here at the second artist series, concert, Feb. 25. This year he will lead the orchestra in a performance of one of his own compositions, "Ruralia Hungarica," a suite of impressionistic rural scenes in his native country.

The third concert, March 25, will be Franciszek Zachara who will act in the double capacity of soloist-conductor. He will present his premiere performance of his own composition for violin and piano and orchestra. Zachara has appeared throughout the southeast in concerts and in performances for over 20 years.

THE FINAL PROGRAM will be the annual Children's Concert, Monday afternoon, April 7. The orchestra will play the last of last year's.

Monday evening, April 7, the final concert will feature popular melodies commemorating George and Ira Gershwin. Thomas Wilson, noted young American pianist, will appear with the orchestra in a performance of the "Concerto in F." Hit songs from Gershwin's musicals will be sung by Mary Reiel Warner, soprano, and Herman Gunter, baritone.

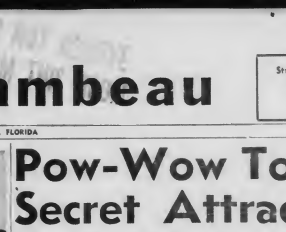
News Reporters Meet Tomorrow



A compulsory meeting of all reporters will be held tomorrow night at 7:30, Hasel Morrison, news editor, has announced. All old and any new reporters are asked to be present in the Flambeau office. Copies of stations were present at the first meeting last Wednesday night.

In the student seminar tomorrow night the reporters may ask questions about difficulties they had encountered in finding stories in the last edition. News copy of the students will be looked over for constructive criticism and a copy of the Florida Flambeau style will be mentioned.

Associate Editors Francis Cawthon and Secretary Nancy King will meet with all reporters who have not yet received an assignment. The reporters will be assigned stories for the Homecoming edition.

Attention Cavaliers

A compulsory meeting of Cavaliers, campus dancing organization, is scheduled in the sound work building for Tuesday evening at 7:30 according to president Cardona.

GET THAT SCOOP! Over 30 aspiring students listen to the Flambeau senior staff give them a blood and thunder message at the first meeting of a nine weeks seminar an news gathering and news writing.

High Academic Standards Lost in College Glamour?

The weekend approaching holds much in store for Florida State University. For the frist time in this university's history our football team will play a nationally famous grid squad. For the first time FSU will have an opportunty to show the city, state and nation, perhaps, just what kind of football it really can play.

Win or lose, FSU is on its way up in football circles. You can't keep a team down which has lost only one game during its last three seasons. We are definitely out of the Dixie Conference level now.

But what of the complications which arise from joining a larger conference? In past years FSU has not gone wild with football emphasis and a large-scale subsidization program. Its feet have remained solidly on Tallahassee's hills.

What of the future? Other colleges similar to this one have had the same prohlems to face once they saw their college growing. Some have accepted hig-time football with the ease and grace of a dehutante going to her presentation ball. Others have stumbled and fallen on their faces.

Last winter stories concerning the basketball "fix" in New York hit the front pages of newspapers all over the country. Thia summer the apotlight was focused on West Point's foothall scandal.

Readers were shocked hy the aubsidization, graft and corruption that have made a big mockery of college athletics. More and more, players are finding it impossihle to spare the great amount of time from their studies that is needed today for major college sports. In the 20's Carnegie Tech fathered top football elevens. Tech sometimes upset the nation's greatest teams. In 1928, Carnegie defeated Notre Dame and missed going to the Rose Bowl that year hy a last game upset by New York University. Today Tech doesn't recruit athletea, Tech won't support an athlete just because he's an athlete, and there are no "big names" on the football roster. Carnegie is proud of its present team. Professional gamblers aren't interested in whether the team wins or loses. But, Tech enjoys football!

Many people think of college students in terms of the glamorous side of college life. They think of the pleasant surroundings which the individual students enjoy. They think of the spectacular football atmosphere and the social events of the season. Seldom do they think in terms of engineers, scientists, administrators, practitioners of the healing arts, lingustie experts, or experts in fields of social science and public administration.

This editorial is not intended to be for or against subsidization of football. But as emphasis on football increases, lets's keep several questions in mind. Do we want a good academic structure? Will great emphasis on football help the administration obtain professors who are well-known in their fields? Will President Campbell's fifty-year plan be aided or hindered? Will students want to come here because we have a high academic standard or because we have a great football team? If the cards are delt right and the deck isn't stacked they could be drawn to this university for both reasons. Are we going to continue to enjoy football or will it become an unruly child?

● LEAD BRiTCHES

There seems to be two extremes to student extra-curricular participation. There are the "Do-nothings" and the "Try-and-do-it-alls."

The first group is frightened hy any minor job. Members of the lead-hritches are self-conscious, apathetic and lazy. They cheat. They roh themselves of the practical application of their education.

The exact opposite of the lead-seats is the over-zeals. While not in class, they spend all moments fleeting back and forth, giving noise and appearance to dozens of activities, hut in reality doing very little.

For patience sakes . . . learn the solution. Do one or two jobs well. Organize your time and give the few that carry so much responsihility a hreak.

● "PIPED" MUSIC?

In order to facilitate the overflow of patrons at the large Homecoming dance in the Suwannee Room, the dance committee provides for another smaller dance to be held the same night in the gymnasium.

In past years the dance committee has hired a local band to play for this dance. It was suggested this year that the Beneke musie be furnished to the gym by means of a loud speaker system.

The committee realizes many of the pros and cons of this suggestion. Among the advantages is the fact that "piping" the music would allow those patrons who are dancing in the gym to enjoy the music of the Homecoming dance hand. This would ohviously lessen the cost of the dance and cut the price of admission.

The committee also feels that students in the gym would be less likely to feel left out of the Homecoming dance activities because they would be ahle to hear the entire dance including the ceremonies.

The principle ohjection to having the music "piped" is the fact that patrons would possibly ohject to attending a dance without an orchestra being present.

The Homecoming dance committee has left the decision to the students. Will the music for the smaller dance in the gym be furnished hy an orchestra or hy loud speaker? A ballot is printed elsewhere in today's Flambeau.

Check your choice and deposit your answer in the ballot box located at the information desk on the first floor of the Alumni building. All hallots must be placed in the box by Friday noon.

● OUR DISEASE

How many times have we been called the "leaders of tomorrow?"

Our power will be that of the governments, the husinesses, the arts. We university students are the ones who in main must carry our country to greatness or destruction some day. Much responsihility lies with us, for we are having a chance—the very fortunate chance of inheriting the knowledge of the world.

And yet with this staggering responsihility, with this great opportunity we go about our college activities with an air toward making college life just as much like the gay twenties as possible. It is most important that we do go out for campus activities. In fact, it is urged that students do so.

But there is more to life than foothall games and dances for the college student. He has a responsihility to learn what is happening today. If he is to know what to do about his country tomorrow, he must know where his country stands today.

Unfortunately, most of us here can tell someone all about the War Between the States, hut ask us many questiona about the war in Korea and we will be dumh. This is a war in a little place far away, hut we must know it, too. We must know is and other international affairs far greater than we must know about battles which have passed long decades ago!

Most of us are suffering from a disease. It is a shockingly common disease. You have heard it before. Apathy. You have had the word screamed at you from this page before. Go to pep rallies! Take a part in your student government! All thia we hope you have heeded. But more than taking an intereat in your football team or your senate, we ask you to take an interest in your NATION!

Shake this indifference, this disease, and observe the world which you must lead.

● BUT, FOR CHARITY

Last year, the Flambeau argued, cajoled, and finally hrought the Campus Chest into reality. The first annual Chest broke all chraity records of the campus hy hringing in $1000.

The money was divided with the Heart Fund, Student Welfare, WSSF, and Cancer Research. This year the Campus Chest has already swung into action with Bill Hess, chairman, announcing that the drive will begin in January.

Several committees have been set up to arrange projects for various clubs and organizations all over campus. Last year art auctions, fashion shows, and other projects were held to hring in the money.

The idea behind the Campus Chest was a basic one. Saving time and patience of the student body led to the chest. Every year four or five different drives were held on the campus to raise money. The students soon became tired of being approached every month or so for donations.

Like the Community Chest in your home towns, the Campus Chest serves the campus in the same capacity. All, or most, of the drives have been put into one hig drive in order to expedite the situation.

The Flambeau this year hopes to arrange a post-season football game with the University of Florida for the Campus Chest drive.

It will be hard. The U of F had repeatedly refused to listen to any proposal for an FSU-UF game. They have laughed at every auggestion.

The Chest needs the money the game could provide, the school needs the puhlicity, and the UF needs the surprise.

KNOW A RELIABLE LOAN COMPANY?

By FRANCES CAWTHON

It is difficult to know what to write these days. It seems the style and aim of a columnist mostly to complain and campaign about things.

So far there is no reason to scream at the University Government Association senates and Will Pennell. You can't say what a stinkina Artist Series: why don't we aet a well-balanced one? because wa haven't had any performances yet. (Anyway, we'va already screamed till we are hoarse.)

So there is nothing left but rat caps, school spirit and come-on-ole-UGA-buddies-do-a-good - job In the future I am going to pray and dig for new themes. There must be something else happening around this place There has to be or I am going to get acute indigestion. The readers—I am an optimist—will, too.

I was reading an old 1933 Flambeau the other day to see how much we had improved or disintegrated. I am afraid my opinion woold not be wholly objective, and therefare I won't say which it was. Anyway, I came apon the following:

'A University of Washington survey ahows that the average college student carries more money in his pocket than the ordinary professor . . ." Wonder if that still holds true in fifty-one If that is so, I heartily move that we turn over the proceeds of the Campus Chest to the starvina professors and their families. Heaven knows they will need it.

The Thomasville Entertainment Foundation is bringing to its eity the Longinea Symphonette conducted by Meshel Piastro: Conrad Thibault, baritone, Nadine Conner, soprano: the Navy band: Pittman Corry and Karen Conrad, dance team, and maybe a great artist of the ivory like Carmen Cabellero. Whee. Who said you have to live in a city like New York to get cultural? Me, I'm saving my pennies, having a passport picture made and heading for the old atate lina.

If there were only thirty-six hours to a day we all might break eveo. I think it would be an excellent idea to have time to sleep—you know, tha process during which yon elose your eyes and have dreams about fantastie things like an A in ehemistry. And to take time to chew one's food. I haven't been aroand many people this week of school wha had stomaches that would know what to do with properly chewed hamborger meat. Oh, well, it could be worse. Our Maker was good enoogh to give us life. I auess He means for us to take advantage of every moment of it.

We are going into competition with our redskin brothers while down in Miami. The garnet and gold headbands with feathers which we are going to wear down in Miami—if we have the twenty-five cents—will at least identify us from the hurricanes. Speaking of going to Miami, does anybody know a reliable loan company?

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

HOLLYWOOD, HAZING AND HELL-WEEKS

By EMORY KING

Charlie threw a bunch of papers on my desk yesterday entitled, "The Latest on Hazing, Hollywood, and Hell-weeks."

The papers consisted an comments from the Associated College Press feature service who have dooe a survey on "Take Care of My Little Girl," an ACP feature on hazing, and news stories from the Miami Herald an Hell week.

Hollywood has been for some time releasing movies that have been, wittingly or unwittingly, distorting collega life in the United States.

After reading what ACP says on "Take Care of My Little Girl," I have been reviewing what many other pictures have said about college life.

For instance, look at "That's My Boy." If there is a college in the U S where a co-ed can go into a men's dormitory, enter a guy's room, and go into his bathroom while he is in the process of taking a bath, and try to sell him some clothes, I want to transfer immediately. Not only that, but at 2 o'clock in the morning a boy is faand kissina a girl io her room, by the house mother. He was expelled—for being drunk!

"Mr Beverdere Goes to Colleae" is another distortion. The Dean of Men stoutly maintains that the university officials cannot dictate to the students what to write in their school paper There's only one paper, we know of, in the country that does not have some sort of faculty supervision over the conteots of the paper, its staff, and its policy That's the Flambeau—and sometimes we wonder about it here

"Take Care af My Little Girl" wae almost the worst distortion of all. The picture took the extreme view io its presentation.

Now I don't say that what happened in the movie hasn't happened in many—too many—colleges but I do think that it doesn't happen to every sorority every year.

The movie itself fell flat, according to the ACP survey. It didn't live up to its publicity of being sensational. Neither was it communist inspired, as the Interfraternity Research and Advisory Council's chairman said

The picture didn't change many peaple's mind abont sororities. Those wha were far them defended them to the hilt. Those who were aaainst them merely said "I told yoa so." The public in general, who doesn't know very much about the question, were not particularly enlightened, according to the ACP report.

Happily we have ne tragedys on this campus dne to fratsoro rushing. The time is coming, however, when extreme eantion must be exercised by both groups.

Theaters Feature Comedies for Week

By HARRY COPELAND

Two excellent-rated comedies start tomorrow at the State and Florida theatres.

At the State, People Will Talk, which runs for one week, stars Cary Grant and Jeanne Crain together as a liberal-minded, defiant doctor and an unconventional medical student.

The high social comedy, which has a generous supply of wit, pokes fun at the waaknesses of society. It is a story that makes a candid plea for a more human and more enlightened attitude in the medical profession. It is Grant and Crain's first screen appearance together in a love atory that equals the rara quality of the comedy's wit.

Mora significant is the fact that this is Jeanne Crain's first adult starrioa role, with the exception of "Pinky" People Will Talk introduces the movie audience to a new Jeanne, one with whom they are sure to be pleasantly surprised. Cary Grant is at his best as always.

Adding to the dramatic effectiveness of one of the really few exceptional films of the day are the first-class supporting roles of 74-year-old Finlay Currie, Scotch character actor (Billy Booes in Disney's Treasure Island), and versatile Hume Cronyn (Grant's antagonist) Veteran stars Walter Slezak and Sidney Blackmer add their dramatic talent to the excellent over-all quality of this week-run film.

Peopla Will Talk is Darryl F Zanuck's newest personally produced film. Written by an all-Oscar combination, Director-Writer Joseph L Mankiewicz. People Will Talk rests on a peak with "All About Eve" and "A Letter to Three Wives"—both written and directed by Mankiewicz and produced by Zanuck.

Francis Goes to the Races," newest laugh-breaking record picture of the inimitable talking mule, plays at the Florida tomorrow through Saturday.

Those who saw Francis, the original Talking Mule story by David Stern, should not be disappointed with this new film about "emotional frustrated horses, bewildered race racketeers, and Francis' sensible solutions for every problem except her own (gatting rid of his dumb companion, Donald O'Connor).

Francis Goes to the Races co-stars Donald O'Connor, Piper Laurie, one of Hollywood's newest stars (The Princa Who Was a Thief) and, of course, Francis.

Tha voice of Francis, winner of the "Patsy" award (animal equivalent to the Oscar) as the best animal actor of the year, is provided by character star, Chill Wills, the Will-Rogers type Supporting O'Connor, Laurie, and "Francis" in the Universal-International release are Cecil Kellaway and Jesse White.

Mr Imperinm, starring Ezio Pinza and Lana Turner (in her first singina role), plays for the last time today at the Florida. The musical romance of a prince who became a king and an obscure singer who became a star is filmed in technicolor and moves from the glamorous film world of Hollywood to sunny, romantie Italy.

Playing at the State for the last time todav is the technicolor western, Sierra, which atara Audie Murphy and Wandra Hendrix.

Dear Editor...

Liberal Fringe

Dear Editor:

It was indeed gratifying to learn from the first issue of the Flambeau that you intend to clean all improper material from the student newspaper. The enormity of your task should not be underestimeted, for it is already obvious how difficult it will be for you and the few about you to evaluate "that which . . is in the best interests of the student" while at the same time vou "mirror student opinion" and "fight all restrictive measures "

There are those who do not believe you are capable of writing such a fine editorial. They think that because you once were reputed to have had ona of those nasty "liberal fringes," you must have obtained at least part of the policy from someone downstairs in Public, Relations or across Westcott green. Still, I believe that it was entirely your own, for you have developed to a high degree the kind of thinking it involves. I have confidence that you will execute your platform with great skill in the year ahead.

P. S. Olad you are supporting the further commercialization of athletics. Some day FSU may be as areat as West Point or William and Mary.

Sincerely,

D. L. ALLEN

Seminole Scout

By JEM COUCH

The dawn has come for the beginning of school spirit at FSU, as the new football season gets underway last Saturday, the Seminoles, led by a host of spirited women and aroused upperclassmen, turned out with the best display of enthusiasm yet experienced by Florida State University. It was a privilege to be seated in the section across the field from the cheering section when a lovely rosar shook the stadium as the Seminoles came on to the field. After two years of acclaimed cheering, the Seminole supporters are finally here. This was the greatest accomplishment of the night, as Ketter's men went through the routine which last year brought them through undefeated.

I wish everyone would take note of this installation and continue to show the interest and spirit they did the other night and finally realize FSU as a school with pride in its athletic teams.

They played a fair game for the most scouts as they displayed for what they had to and then in the rest to the subs. Encouraging highlights of the Troy-FSU game included the brilliant running of Italiano, Bradley, Brown, Simpson and Privadel plus the passing of Flosom and Adams. Many new men gave good accounts of themselves in the contest that saw the Miami scouts quite satisfied to just filled up the rest of the third quarter, as they left shortly thereafter.

With the talk that is going around, especially after Tulane showed Miami how "green" the Green Wave really was, the Seminoles may not be the easy kindergarten lads they were touted to be last year when they schooled the Hurricanes. One state scribe said his "12 points and FSU looked good." Although this may be someone's idea of a joke, it may be about that when the final gun sounds late Friday night. I believe the Seminoles are out to surprise everyone including themselves as the Miami Hurricanes are proving to be little more than a big wind. Let's hope they continue to read their press clippings which they must have carried in their helmets last Saturday. Let no one be fooled, it will be a hard fought game, but either, and I repeat, Either team can win.

I hope there will be plenty of students down in Miami to see what may be the upset of the week or at least the same of the week as the Seminoles take on the big time.

Charlie Brown, believed out for the season, will see action in a couple of weeks.

Roy Thompson has a sore lineman in his knee, but will probably see action in the Miami game.

NAM To Select 49 Students On New York Tour

One Florida student will be selected as guest of the National Association of Manufacturers for a New York tour, Associated Industries of Florida President C. G. McGeehee has announced.

FOR THE FIRST THREE years, the N.A.M. has sponsored a program whereby 49 students attend the annual Congress of American Industry. One representative is selected from each state and the District of Columbia.

Plans are now underway for choosing the Florida student, according to President McGehee. Information blanks are being sent to nine college and university presidents for nominations.

CANDIDATES WILL BE selected on the basis of personality, leadership, scholarship, and character. The student must be a resident of Florida and a junior or senior.

The tour, to be held December 3 to December 8, 1951, will have all expenses paid by the N.A.M. Included will be round trip transportation from campus to New York and all vacation costs.

Women's "F" Club Busy Campus Group

Tapping for Women's F Club, an athletic honorary at Florida State University, has recently been underway, as was revealed by Jo Wade, president.

The purpose of this athletic as well as service organization, is "to cooperate with the Recreation Association in promoting women's athletic activities and to contribute to the development of high ideals and university spirit among the students on this campus."

After making two odd-even teams in three consecutive sports season, a girl becomes eligible for membership. But tapping is just the appetizer of a full-course meal. She then goes through a period of three to six weeks probation called "goating" before initiation takes place.

Goats, or prospective members of the "F" Club, each have mothers who present them with fashion dating duties. For instance, the goats are given a phrase such as "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," and are sent out on a long walk dressed appropriately to fit their individual phrases. Garbed in very imaginative array, the gals proceed to carry out their missions.

Besides having fun, the club yields great service to the university, as is designated in the purpose previously stated. To start the year off right, their first project will be the selling of Seminole head bands for the Miami game. They will be of the same order as the Hurricane flash which are used in Miami.

Homecoming will brins more labor for these industrious girls. Besides sponsoring the annual decoration contest, they will be in charge of decorating the main gate, fountain in front of the Wescott Building, and the Queen's float.

All through the year, a co-recreational program will be carried out in the gym under "F" Club supervision, called Play Night. These will be evenings of fun and more fun for males and females on campus. Ping pong, swimming and various other activities will be open at the gym.

After Women's F Club meetings and during initiation, the girls form a circis with the singing of circle songs.

Jo Wade, president of this well organised club, states, "We're hoping that there will be many girls coming out for teams this year.

MEET THE MENTORS

Third in a series: Assistant Coach Tom Roberson joined the Florida State football staff on a full time basis this Fall as a replacement for Charlie Armstrong who has returned to active duty in the U. S. Air Force R. O. T. C. Roberson served as a graduate assistant at Florida State last Spring while working on his Master's degree in physical education. Roberson was also assistant baseball coach last year. He came to FSU from Jacksonville (Ala.) State College where he served as an assistant coach while doing undergraduate work.

Roberson was born in Sylacauga, Ala. He was a football and basketball star at Sylacauga High School, and then played in the University of Alabama football and basketball freshman teams during the year of 1941-42. He then transferred to the University of Chattanooga where he earned his varsity letter at end in 1942. He left Chattanooga to serve in the Army and Air Force where he continued to play football with the Ninth Air Force Headquarters team for two years, before spending 24 months overseas in the European theater as a first sergeant. He was in business for two years after leaving the service before enrolling at Jacksonville State College where he received his BS degree in March, 1951. Here at FSU Roberson will assist Coach Harbison with the line. Coach Roberson is married and has one son.

Volleyball Practice At Women's Gym

Coach Bill Odeneal announces that future varsity volleyball practices will be held in the Women's gym on Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7:30.

Odeneal expressed a desire for all who are interested in trying out for the team to report at these pre-season meetings. The volleyball team is practicing in preparation for various demonstrations in the North Florida area

Seminoles Romp Red Wave For Thirteenth Straight

Italiano and Bradley Standout Thompson and Brown Injured

The Florida State University Seminoles started their 1951 campaign in the same powerful manner which carried them unbeaten last year, winning over the helpless lads from Troy State, 40-0. In winning their thirteenth in a row, the Tallahassee lads displayed sheer power plus a fair passing offensive, while holding the visiting eleven ot the bare minimum.

FSU played straight football for the greater part of the game, stressing fundamental running and passing plays, with an added spread formation or two, thus concealing their real potency from the visiting Miami scouts.

While a crowd of 8,459 watched, Valler sent his charges through its opener, experimnntins as he went, in preparation for the russed Miami contest down at Coral Gables next week.

The Seminoles scored once in the first quarter on a short plunge by Mike Sellers added two more in the second on plunges by Sellers and Ronald King, and added the final three counters in the third period.

A recovered fumble on the Troy 33 and an intercepted pass on the Red Wave 37 set up the last two touchdowns, as the Seminole fullbacks accounted for five of the six markers. Dick Turk added six points in one third period score with a four-yard scamper through the middle of the Troy line, and King chalked up his second score of the game, and the fifth by fullbacks with a smashing drive from the Troy five-yard stripe.

Rob Whitmer, former Purdue star end, counted six in the third period on a 14-yard payoff pitch from Nelson Italiano after the same combo had set the TD up on the previous play with a 19-yard aerial.

Ernie Murrell added points after the first three scores, missed the next two, and added the 40th point after King had smashed over six in the third quarter.

The Seminoles racked up 18 first downs, while amassing 238 yards in the rushing route and tacking on 137 through the air.

Meanwhile, the Seminole defense was rushing the visitors to the extent that they ended up with only eight yards net for the entire night's work. They gained 24 yards in the air, but lost 16 in the rushing department to end up with but six first downs.

The Troy team never got inside the FSU forty yard line, as the ventured to the 41, 47, 45, and gained the 45 more more due to 4 fifteen yard penalty.

Despite the fact that he was shut out in the scoring column, Nelson Italiano got off the longest run of the game when he broke over right tackle reversed his field and raced to the Troy six-inch line for a total gain of 84 yards. Italiano was also the individual leader in the running department with 82 yards in eight tries, with an added 88 yards passing to lead in that area.

"Presto" Preston Bradley turned in an excellent job of running, racking up 52 yards in four carries to finish second to Italiano in rushing. Harry Brinsger carried the pigskin twice for 31 yards and a neat 15½ yard average.

The win wasn't a particularly happy one for FSU as Roy Thompson, speed merchant transfer from Georgia Tech, injured his knee early in the first period, and Charley Brown, first string guard injured his ankle. Brown is definitely out for the year, while it is almost sure Thompson will probably miss the Miami game next week.

After driving to the three early in the first period, and stalling there the Seminoles started the second period before the Seminoles struck with lightning like swiftness. After an out of bounds punt was put into play on the FSU 34, Italiano picked up two and then took the ball on the next play for the longest gain of

Fla. Episcopal Bishop Louttit Visits At FSU This Weekend

Rt. Rev. Henry O. Louttit

The Rt. Rev. Henry I. Louttit, D.D., Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of South Florida, comes to FSU this weekend on the first of his visits of Florida colleges and universities.

Bishop Louttit holds degrees from Cirginia and the University of the South. During World War II he served as Army chaplain, and was rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in West Palm Beach before his consecration as bishop. A holder of the Bronze Star, Bishop Louttit is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Kappa Sigma, Rotary; he is also a member of the Armed Froces Commission of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop Louttit will participate in both the 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. Sunday services. He will preach in the latter meeting.

the night, slashing off tackle, cutting back and romping down the field only to be pulled down by Beck on the Six Inch line. Big Mike Sellers had little resistance as he banged it over on the next play, and Huggett converted to mak the score 14-0.

Late in the same quartre, the Seminoles again made use of a long run to set up a score. This time, Preston Bradley twisted his way to the Troy 15, and after a recovered fumble and a penalty set the ball back to the 23, Italiano hit Fiveash for 21. Then King crashed over on the third try with but 30 seconds remaining in the half. Huggett again converted and FSU led 21-0 at halftime

The Seminoles quickly cashed in ona couple of breaks in the opening minutes of the second half. Whitmer covered a Troy fumble, when a punt return handoff failed, on the visitors 33-yard stripe. Then Italiano hit Whitmer with two passes, the second going for 14 yards and six points. The attempted conversion by Huggett was wide.

One minute later Bill Dawkins snared a Troy pass on the Wave 27, and the Seminoles were off again. Fiveash and Turk drove to the four and then Turk powered through for another score. Again Huggett's kick was wide.

After ten minntes of standstill play, the Seminole reserves, which were now all over the field, headed for the double stripe. Gary Folsom ran outside, and passed to Bridges, working the ball from the fifty to the five, where King drove the remaining yards for the score Huggett then added his fourth out of six tries to end the scoring for the night.

Florida State Veep Talks On Education

Vice President A B Martin, principal speaker at the Florida Education Association meeting in Lake City, told the group Monday of the teacher's absolute responsibility.

Dr. Martin discussed the need for the teacher's educational and personal qualification, highest principles, devotion to duty, thorough knowledge of work, sustaining belief in ultimate triumph of right, and determination or drive to follow htrough.

The educational world must perpetuate and improve all that is good in the American way of life, according to the vice president. Dr. Martin stated, "It is an old and trite saying about the teaching profession as to their trusteeship of the American way of life, but never before has it been more true or more important."

Seminole Flyers Meet At Airport

The Seminole Flyers club will have its first meeting of the year tonight at the Seminole Flying Service office at Dale Mabry field. The time is set for 7.30.

The club is looking for new members to fill vacancies left by graduates and invites all students and faculty interested to attend the meeting.

A club spokesman pointed out that flying is not very expensive when sponsored by a flying club, and that club flying time costs about half as much as commercial lessons.

He also reported that the club had recently bought a new "Aeronca Champion" plane for use of the members.

DICK BRADLEY PRESIDES over the first senior class meeting as '52ers discuss investiture plans . . . caps and gowns . . . class marshals . . . Senior Black Books . . . prayers . . . and adjournment!

Senior Class of 1952 Plans Investiture Oct 17

Speakers for Ceremony Nominated, Apply for Degrees Before Oct. 6

The first meeting of the 1952 senior class was held Wednesday night at 8. Over 150 seniors attended the discussion of projects, emphasizing plans for Investiture on Oct. 17.

The class discussed speakers for the ceremony, and several candidates were nominated. Final choice will be announced later. In those positions and that of class marshall will be announced later.

President Dick Bradley said that October 6 (tomorrow) will be the last day for February graduates to make applications for degrees.

It was announced that late orders for caps and gowns can still be made today from 8 until 4 o'clock. It was also suggested that August graduates participate in all 1952 senior activities, order caps and gowns now, return them there in June, and re-order the regalia again in August.

The class voted to have senior day on October 18, immediately after Investiture, at which time the seniors will wear caps and gowns.

Will Pennell moved that the class accept results of last spring's election to continue as a member of national Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. The motion was carried.

Other decisions made at the meeting were that the class officers choose a class sponsor, that the class celebrate President Campbell's birthday; and that Sophomore women assist in the shots and dark trousers to Investiture, while sophomore sisters wear traditional white.

The next and final meeting before Investiture will be held in the Longmire auditorium at 5 p. m. on October 15. It is imperative that all seniors attend.

Honor Group Discusses Plans

Orientation Meetings Scheduled for Frosh

At the first meeting of the Honor Committee, Wednesday evening, Chairman Zoe Rentz led the discussion and plan discussion for honor orientation and emphasis weeks, and the extension of the honor system into high schools.

On October 16 and 17 the Committee will hold two honor orientation meetings for freshmen men and women. These meetings are intended to further acquaint the new students with the honor system and the function of Honor Committee and Honor Court.

AN HONOR EMPHASIS week is planned tentatively for January 13 and 14. In connection with these meetings polls will be taken on the effectiveness of honor emphasis and on the faculty opinion of the honor system and the way it works in the class room.

The committee has already begun the new extension program. Letters are being sent to various high schools to find out how many have an honor system and how many are interested in starting one. A speaker will be sent to those schools interested in the honor system.

THIS YEAR the Committee will meet every Wednesday at 7:00. These meetings are open to all FSU students who wish to attend.

Other officers of the Honor Committee are: Mary Ann Siemsen, secretary; Betty Whitmire, assistant secretary; and Eunice Thompson, treasurer. Chairmen of committees are Nancy Day, education; Sue Saxton, orientation; Betty Sue Fryer, publicity; June McMillan, faculty and staff contact; and June Tate, faculty and student contact.

Speech Dept. Plays Listed for Season

You Can't Take It With You, a comedy by Kaufman and Hart, will open the season November 2 for the community series produced by the drama and forensic section of the department of speech.

It will be followed later this year by three plays from the following list: Summer and Smoke by Tennessee Williams; All My Sons, by Arthur Miller, The Wild Duck by Henrick Ibsen, Biography by S. N. Behrman, The Philadelphia Story, by Philip Barry, Jason, by Samson Raphaelson, The School for Scandal, by Sheridan, and The Mistress of the Inn, by Goldoni.

These plays were selected by a committee of the department members including Sara Margaret Daily, Ken Martin and Alan Downes.

New Radio Program To Feature Beneke

WFSU, the campus station, is featuring a new program Music by The Mood every Thursday night at 8:45 p. m.

The fifteen minute program gives students a glimpse of Tex Beneke and his orchestra as he will be heard at the Homecoming Dance Saturday, October 27. Beneke's most current releases will be supported by selected excerpts from his life and analysis of his music.

Music In The Mood will be heard every Thursday night until Homecoming.

390 Has Election

Dormitory officers were elected recently by the upper floor of Building 390 at West Campus. Officers elected were Joe Pearce, governor; Jerry Parkhurst, social chairman and Art Atwood, intramural sports chairman.

Warpath Club Sets Elections For October 9

A 30 minute meeting of the Warpath Club was held last Monday at 9 p.m. in the Alumni auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by the organizational committee who announced that elections for president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and publicity chairman will be held next Tuesday night.

SUGGESTIONS for the club's participation in Homecoming were made. Final plans for the Miami game were reviewed and the sale of headbands for the game was stressed.

Plans for last Tuesday's pep rally were discussed. Johnny Pearce, P.S.U. circus, was introduced as the new master of ceremonies for pep rallies and the University Senate Plans for Year

The University Senate opened its first session last Wednesday by appointing two committees and laying plans for the ensuing year.

Although the Executive Council met on Tuesday afternoon, the Senators voted to hold their regular meeting at 5:15 Tuesdays, also.

Jim Kirk, Speaker of the Senate, appointed Senators Landry, Jardine, and Rennick to head a way and means committee for improving attendance.

Senators Salyers, Drake, and Flynn were appointed to consider possible changes in the Legislative Reference Bureau.

The Senate's committee "X" headed by solon Mary Helen Speed, is investigating the "Who's Who" question. Their findings will be turned over to the Executive Council's "Who's Who" committee.

Jere Salyers was elected speaker pro-tem, and will assume Legislative Vice-President Kirk's duties in the event he is absent.

AFTER THE GAME the University will sponsor an informal

Dr Campbell Outlines Highlights Of '51 Homecoming Celebration

At a recent meeting of the Homecoming committee chairmen, President Doak Campbell outlined the highlights of the 1951 Florida State University celebration, October 26-27.

Dr. Campbell informed the chairmen that Dr. Henry G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. & M. College and President J. Ollie Edmunds of Stetson University will be guests during the festivities. A dinner for the guests will be principal speaker at the annual Garnet and Gold Key Banquet, 5:30 Friday, October 26.

John Newton Baker, director of public relations for the annual Homecoming chairman, explained the schedule of events planned for the celebration this year.

University classes will be dismissed at 1 p.m. and 1:30 Friday, October 26. Alumni registration in the Longmire Building from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. will follow with daytime judging of the sorority and fraternity house decorations from 4 to 6 p.m.

The Garnet and Gold Key Banquet will be held at 5:30, followed by the annual "Pow Wow" in Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m. Night judging of decorations will end up the activities for Friday.

The annual Homecoming breakfast and business meeting of the FSU alumni will be held in the Lafayette Room on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

Alumni registration will continue from 9 til noon. The Homecoming parade, starting at the University and continuing throughout downtown Tallahassee, will get under way at 9:30 a.m.

Camp Flastacowo will be the scene of the barbecue at noon on Saturday, at which time special guests will be honored. The Homecoming football game between the FSU "Seminoles" and the Stetson "Hatters" is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. at Campbell Stadium. Half time ceremonies will be highlighted by the official presentation of the FSU Homecoming queen.

Open house, gatherings of former classmates, and informal coffees at various sorority and fraternity houses, will be held after the game.

Climax of the two-day celebration will be the annual Homecoming Dance in the Suwannee Room featuring Tex Beneke and his nationally-known orchestra.

Charles Hays, manager of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, assured the assembly that downtown merchants and business men will cooperate in decorating the street and store decorations for Homecoming Weekend

Seminoles Team Gets First Taste Of Big Time Football in Miami

Pep Rally by FSU Will Begin Festivities in Orange Bowl

By JIM COUCH

The Florida State University Seminole eleven will get its first taste of big time football at the Orange Bowl in Miami tonight, when they take on the powerful Miami University Hurricanes.

Game time is slated for 8 p.m. although the festivities will have gotten underway at the FSU pep rally in Miami, two hours earlier.

THE SEMINOLE team will be the decided underdogs, as Miami will be out to reinstate themselves as one of the nations powers, a distinction they held before they were polished off by Tulane last week.

The Seminoles left Tallahassee Wednesday morning and stopped over in Orlando for a workout on the way to the Magic City.

Coach Don Veller has forty-one men on whom to call tonight as he brought thirty-seven with him and will have Ted Morrill, Gerald Smith, and George Carnes to add to that group when they arrive by car today.

THE GLOOMY atmosphere which has covered the FSU camp as they moved south, was somewhat relieved when it was learned that Ray Thompson, on whom Veller is relying for part of his offensive aid, will be able to see limited action in the Miami game.

Though really not gloomy, the Seminoles are laying low and not saying much, as they are trying to do everything in their power to do down the "big time" opponent. The Seminoles will move en masse to the Orange Bowl tonight to show their belief in the Seminole cause. It will be the largest following to an out-of-town game the Seminoles have had to do.

THIRTY-EIGHT SEMINOLES who have already left on Monday a day and who will bare the brunt of the attack are: Ends—Bill Driver, Bo Wimer, Curt Campbell, Rina Sorgen, and Jimmie Arnold. Tackles—Ken Hoy, Bill Szczesnik, Bob Wodrich, Vernon Preece, Nat Polak, Don Linton, Geoff Merritt, Ernie Mott, and John Karlowicz. Guards—Captain Bill Dawkins and Bob Scott, Earl O'Neal, Homer Slabough, and Orralle Booth. Centers—Steve Kalenich, Jimmy Owen, Bill Conrad, and Buddy Bryant. Quarterbacks—Preston Bradley, Jimmy Lee Taylor, and Dick York. Halfbacks—Roy Thompson, Harry Bringger, Jerry Bacon, Bobby Fresch, Tommy Brown, Wayne Benner, Nelson Italiano, Ernie Haggett, and George Ivey. Fullbacks—Mike Sellers and Ronald Kina.

Game ceremonies will be highlighted by performances of the Florida "Pep University" circus. The FSU band will also make the long journey south to play throughout the game.

Griffin Heads Blood Project For Honorary

Plans for Expansion Aided by Red Cross

Working in cooperation with the National Red Cross, the Omicron Delta Kappa blood bank project plans a gigantic expansion program, Bob Griffin, chairman of the project, stated yesterday.

Students may have an opportunity to give blood very soon. Mrs. G. L. Diffenbaugh, executive secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, informed.

THE BLOOD BANK, a project of ODK since the January, was first organized on a local level. First donations were made at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital. A student credit was built up in the ODK bank so that anytime a transfusion was needed, FSU would have free access to the Leon County Bank.

Because the supply of blood plasma has been gravely depleted by the demands of the Korean war, ODK members felt that the blood bank program could be enlarged.

"IT IS IMPERATIVE that students learn of the immediate need of blood in Korea," Chairman Griffin emphasized. "The full

Student Draft Info States Two Ways For Exemption

"New information about student draft deferment has just been issued from Washington," reported John T. Pounds, secretary of the Florida State University Military Liaison Committee, today.

A BULLETIN received from the Federal Security Agency office of education, states that there are two ways for a student to be exempt from the draft.

They are: To score a 70 on the selective service test which is to be given December 13, 1951, and on April 24, 1952; or to rank in either the upper half of the freshman class, the upper two-thirds of the sophomore class, or the upper three-fourths of the junior class.

According to the Defense Information Bulletin issued from Washington September 27, 1951, these exemption tests will be given at more than a thousand different centers throughout the U. S. A and its territories.

THE REPORT continued to say that seniors who scored 75 or are in the upper half of their classes and wish to continue graduate studies may be deferred as long as they remain in good standing.

Students wishing to take this test may get the application by mailing envelopes, and bulletin of information from: Local Board No. 11, 319 E. Gaines St., Tallahassee, Fla.

Indian Totem Pole Offered Seminoles

Want to buy a tall totem pole?

Reports delivered in University executive council can be humorous as well as serious.

Mrs. Anderson of Tallahassee wants to sell the students of FSU a tall totem pole for $200.

So the story goes, Mrs. Anderson had a friend who had a well-to-do admirer. This admirer took a trip to Alaska and waved a cheery good-bye to his fiance. The sweet miss replied to her beau . . . "Send me a totem pole."

The beau did.

The question will decide if an Alaskan totem pole will fit in with the Seminole motif

ON TO MIAMI—Shown above are four coeds buying Seminole Headbands for the Miami game. The bands are being sold by the Women's F Club in an effort to creat a more school spirit in Miami and at all other FSU games.

Special Election Discussed At Executive Council Meeting

A special Chief Justice election was announced by Harriet Paul Tuesday afternoon at the first meeting of the University Executive Council.

The election primaries, agreed upon in the final council meeting last Spring, will be held Oct. 16. Finals will be held Oct. 18.

Qualification blanks can be obtained from Dean Culpepper's office. All statements of candidacy must be returned to the dean of student welfare's office. Qualifications can be handed in from October 8 until noon Saturday, October 13.

PRECINCTS WILL BE open in lower Westcott, Dining Hall and the West campus student union, from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m.

At present, Bill Hayes is acting Chief Justice.

A committee of class presidents, Jim Barnes, Dick Bradley, and June Conyers, has been formed to investigate the possibility of establishing Who's Who in American Colleges again on this University. At the final election last year 134 students out of 218 voting agreed to bring the controversial organization back on campus.

Grant Tests To Be Given

Scholarship examinations for the 1951-52 college year will be administered Tuesday, Oct. 23, according to the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

The test is being held for students already in college, and successful applicants may be able to receive payment for this fall semester.

SEMINOLES WHO wish to take this exam may take it in the Leon High School library at 8:30 a.m. on the 23rd. Before taking the test, however students who are residents of counties other than Leon should obtain applications from 203 Westcott or the office of the Dean of the School of Education.

This application must be sent by the student to his county supervisor, who will review and return the form. The student must have the taper in his possession at the time he takes the examination. Hence students planning to compete should apply early so that all communication can be completed by October 23.

A LIST OF vacancies throughout the state, both Senatorial and Davis scholarships, may be seen at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

If an applicant has previously taken the scholarship test and desires the same score to count he will not be required to re-take the examination. However, he must submit another application on October 23, stating the date of the first test.

Pre-Miami Rally Had Good Crowd

Tuesday night's pre-Miami pep rally was attended by a capacity crowd in the music amphitheatre Cheererers found the top-secret special attraction to be the comedy team of Dick Gordon and Al Ruda doing a tumbling act.

The band played several marches, with a new master of ceremonies, Johnnie Fortune officiating.

The cheerleaders announced a new yell, involving a trumpet-audience combination.

The Women's P Club sold Indian headbands all during the rally. The group hopes to have the symbols of FSU spirit distributed among all students headed toward Miami.

The Alma Mater brought the rally to a close.

'This Is The Life' Calls For More Singers and Dancers

The 1952 Sandspur production, "This Is the Life," has sent out another call for more singers and dancers, according to Chairman Bill Backus.

Tryouts are to be held in the Music amphitheatre from 4-11, beginning at 7 p.m. All types of workers are desired, with special need for modern dancers and stage-hands.

THE STAFF, headed by Backus, includes: George Cary, director; Cosmo Cardone, assistant producer; Mickey Johnson, assistant producer; Hank Warner, music director; and Don Dearing, author. Other members of production staff are Jim Dras, business manager; Jere Salyers, public relations; and Ada Wye, personnel director. The faculty advisor will be Miss Elizabeth Lynn.

THE SHOW will be presented to the student body on February 20-23 in the Music auditorium. The annual Sandspur dance will be held after the last performance.

"This is the Life" was written by Don Dearing and chosen by the Sandspur production selection committee. Music has been written by Hank Warner.

'Smoke Signals' Plans Six Issues

A new editorial policy for Smoke Signals, student magazine, is a "fresh, alive, interest packed" publication. This was announced by editor Joel Smith at a staff meeting Wednesday night.

Scheduled for the coming year are six issues, published monthly, with the first appearing in November. Editor Joel Smith stated. Featured in the original 1951-52 Smoke Signals will be fashions, football, articles of campus-wide interest, literary contributions of the students body, plus an increase in pictorial news.

The staff includes, in addition to Smith, Norma McIntosh and Boots Haynie, assistant editors; Bob Jenkins, humor editor; Katrine Austin and Margaret Marshall, fashion editors; Marilyn Stigler, office manager; Barbara Wilson, art editor; and Woodley Grizzard, promotion editor.

support of the student body is needed before any backbone can be given to our plans.

There is a possibility that a Bloodmobile may be brought to this campus. It will be several weeks before information is received on the availability of the Bloodmobile.

Establishment of close liaison with military installations and transportation units will have to be made.

THE RED CROSS has been designated by the department of Defense as the official procurement agency for the collection of blood for the Armed Forces.

A recent bulletin released by the Department of Defense related the tremendous urgency to collect three million pints of blood.

"Students will be kept posted on the development of the Blood Bank project," Griffin said.

OTHER ODK PROJECTS include: Political rally preceeding all student elections, speakers bureau, joint-sponsorship of the annual leadership conference with Mortarboard, and the annual ODK alumni breakfast.

Next ODK meeting will be held Wednesday at 6 p.m., fourth floor of the Alumni building.

Warren Proclaims Movietime, Florida

By HARRY COPELAND
It's Movie-Time in Florida, USA!

An elaborate proclamation making it movie time in Florida will be issued by Governor Warren today. Simultaneously Governors in every capital in the United States will issue similar proclamations.

Celebrating the Golden Jubilee of the American motion picture theatres, 200 top personalities active in forty-eight capitals of the United States Sunday afternoon to begin a week's movie-time tour of each state.

Seven stars will arrive by chartered planes from Hollywood Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Tallahassee airport, according to W. M. Addison, movie-time in Fla representative. They will be greeted by the Mayor of Tallahassee, William H. Cates, Miss Tallahassee (Ruthie Garst) and other officials.

Among the stars are suspense expert Alfred Hitchcock, veteran actors Brian Donlevy and Michael O'Shea; new stars Dale Robertson (Male lead of 'Take Care of My Little Girl'); Maia Peters (notable female lead in "Cyrano de Bergerac,' the role that won Jose Ferrer his Oscar as the best actor of the year); and Michael Rennie ('The Day the Earth Stood Still" and "13th Letter"); and Irish star Constance Smith "The Mudlark").

Monday at 2 p.m. these seven personalities will be formally welcomed to Tallahassee on the capitol steps by Governor Warren, his official staff, and the State Supreme Court. Movie cameras will be on hand to make newsreel films of the event.

Although these stars will make no personal appearances in any theatre the public will have an opportunity to see them at the airport Sunday and at the large reception on the capitol steps Monday.

A special reception will be held for the celebrities by Governor Warren the same evening at 6:30 at the Wakulla Lodge. A banquet will follow at 8. Movie exhibitors from all over the state will be present. Representatives of the press and radio will also be present for interviewing.

Fifty FSU girls dressed in formals will participate in the reception. The Florida A. & M. Glee Club will sing and organ music on the lawn will be played by C. Asbury Gridley Jr., of Gridley Music Company.

Ross Allen, the famed snakemilker from Silver Springs, will be on hand with two families of Seminole Indians. There will also be a display by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Commission.

A parade starting at the corner of Tennessee and Monroe just below the Florida Hotel will precede the reception and lead up to the capitol steps. It will be led by the FSU Marching Chiefs and the Leon High School band.

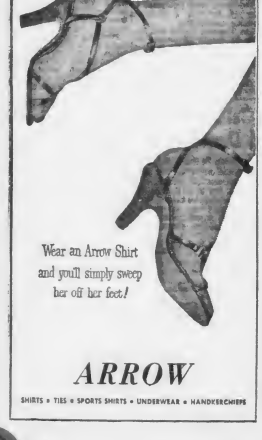
Sixty percent of this amount is being appropriated to the World Student Service Fund, a charity to help students in foreign countries. The cancer society will get 8%, the heart fund will get 8% and 24% will go into a general sinking fund. Use of this sinking fund has not been determined.



Marjorie Meckstroth was appointed senior senator replacing Nancy Miller. The appointment will need the student senate confirmation.

Zoe Renta was selected as chairman of the honor committee.

DICK BRADLEY made a report that he was unable to attend the National Student Congress convention held in Minnesota this summer because of inadequate appropriation.

Present at the first meeting were: Dick Bradley, Jimmy Kirk, Ted Steinmeyer, Doris Jean Smith, Jo Nell Prestor, Sue Saxon, Betty Bush, June Conyers and Will Pepnell. Jimmy Barnes was the only member absent.

"There is still hope for the German people," said Dr. Stickler. "That hope lies in the German students." He stated that German students are democratic and have made many attempts to get it. He also suggested that perhaps some day a strong and moral leader would rise to unite the German people, through education, into a healthy and prosperous democracy.

Faculty Recruits To Explain System

As part of the vocational guidance program, 111 faculty members are being recruited to explain the program of General Education to new students.

Dr. Melvene Hardee, coordinator; Mary C. Umlah, assistant coordinator, Jewell Eubanks, secretary; Joyce Chick and George Spencer, graduate interns have already begun preparations for next year's guidance program. Faculty members assist the students in arranging their schedule, and act as links between them and the administrative officers.

Every teacher counselor must know the background of the students he directs. He must consider the University and its curricula in relation to the student and his capacities. The Office of the Coordinator publishes booklets and makes files on the entering students.

This year they printed an eighty page booklet of Suggested Programs of Study for Freshman. For each student they prepared three file cards, and a counseling folder. They also put out a booklet for the use of sophomore guides and deans showing matching of educational counselor with the incoming students.

Air Force ROTC Has Enrollment Of 489 Cadets

Florida State's Air Force ROTC unit announces a present enrollment of 489 cadets. Of these, there are 256 freshmen, 111 sophomores, 65 juniors and 57 seniors. It is anticipated that commissions will be presented to 65 graduating students in June.

ADDED TO the faculty this year is Capt. V. N. Pehelkin of San Francisco. Capt. Pehelkin was formerly stationed at Maxwell Field, Ala. where he was in charge of the Air University library. All training aids and the foreign documents section in which were contained documents in 600 different languages. He received his assignment to this campus two weeks prior so his assigned departure for Korea.

It is announced that there are still some openings for cadets in the basic ROTC classes. University credits are authorized for courses taken under this program, varying in number with the courses taken.

THE STUDENTS are trained in every phase of duty which they, as officers, might be expected to perform. While special stress is placed on the more strategic subjects, a thorough understanding of every job is required.

Col. Barr emphasized that drilling is only a minor feature in the ROTC program. "Main emphasis," he said, "is placed on the academic classroom work."

Last June the unit graduated 38 students who received their commissions as 2nd lieutenants in the US Air Force Reserve.

Building Project Completion by '53

Hopes are high for completion of the four-and-a-half-million-dollar building project by January 1953. Business Manager Rod M. Shaw, heading the financial and construction interests of FSU, remarked that the Doak S. Campbell Stadium is the only point yet finished.

Eight small dormitories, housing 240 frat men, will be ready during the next month. The eight story women's dorms will be finished by September, 1952, according to Shaw. The 11 story men's dorm is slated for the second semester of 1953. This, housing 572 students, will end the project.

The Student Service Center, including book store, post office cafeteria, soda fountain, sandwich counter and tube boxes, will be ready by early spring.

Alpha Gamma Delta To Sponsor Dance

Alpha Gamma Delta will sponsor an informal tea dance in the Student Union Friday, October 26, from 4-6 p. m. during the judging of house decorations.

There will be music for dancing and specialty numbers by Georgie Bee's orchestra. The Snack Bar will be open for refreshments.

All students are invited to attend. Alumni and faculty will be honor guests.

Arrangements for the dance are under the direction of Stan Gould, Homecoming dance chairman, and Katrine Austin, Alpha Gamma president.

U. S. Civil Service Announces Exams

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced three new examinations: the Junior Agricultural Assistant, the Junior Management Assistant, and the Junior Professional Assistant examinations.

Information as to the requirements may be obtained from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C., and additional information will be available at the college placement office after the dates for the exams are posted.

NSA Active Liberalism Needed at Florida State

In August of this past Summer, the fourth annual National Student Association Congress was held in Minneapolis, Minn. In attendance were approximately 720 students representing not only colleges of this nation but of 14 other nations.

Just what is the purpose of NSA?

The United States NSA is an organization of college student bodies, represented through their student governments. It was created to serve the long-existing need for a representative intercollegiate organization designed to serve the American student community, and to promote student interests and welfare.

A national student organization is a valuable agent in the process of creating a community consciousness on the part of students which will encourage a spirit of brotherhood and cooperation among faculty, students, and administration. There is a need for an organization of American students to work with and assist students in other nations, many of whom still struggle to rebuild their universities and educational facilities in an aftermath of war.

A few of NSA's aims and purposes, as outlined in its constitution, are: to maintain academic freedom, stimulate and improve democratic student government, develop better educational standards, improve student welfare, and promote international understanding.

NSA's membership includes more than 300 institutions of higher learning. Any college, university, junior college, normal school, or technical school can join upon ratification of its constitution and payment of annual dues. Financial aid is received in two ways: by member colleges of the association paying dues and through projects of the association and its publications.

National policy is determined by the National Student Congress at its annual meeting. Emergency decisions during the year are made at meetings of the National Executive Committee. Representatives of all the member colleges attend the annual congress.

What does it offer by way of student services? Plenty! It serves student government by preparing informational materials and surveys on student government, structure, functions and financing; it sponsors the national student art exhibit, the symphony forums, world affairs roundtables, and other cultural activities. In addition the student life program assists in the development of student leadership training programs, sponsorship of student government clinics and intercollegiate services to special interest clubs. Athletics, social life, student health, and orientation are other important phases of NSA's work.

Other colleges, such as our own, have joined NSA. AND WITH GOOD RESULTS. Emory, Miami University, and Central Michigan College are members of this national group. Dick Bradley, senior class president here at FSU, was supposed to attend the conference last May, to investigate the situation prior to FSU's joining. It's a shame that Dick Bradley could not have gone. It has been suggested that money was denied Dick because certain persons were afraid of the power of NSA. Members of our own student body and administration members as well feel that NSA is too radical for Southern conservative blood. Yet, two of the South's leading liberal arts institutions are members—Emory and the University of Miami. Can we brand them as being too radical or aren't we liberal enough to take the step ourselves?

is inheriting from last year's body that it will have to live down. Attendance—or the lack of it—all but ruined the Senate last year. This year's senators have decided to do something about it. That's fine.

We also suggest that senators learn how to be a senator. Judging from last Wednesday's meeting there are a lot of new senators who know very little about the working of the senate.

Several members were foggy or completely ignorant of procedures on presenting a bill, using the Legislative Reference Bureau, or how to appoint members to standing committees.

Perhaps the senate should have a seminar on senate procedures and ways of handling legislation Certainly new senators can't be expected to know about these things. Can they?

Someone once said, "Those who know how, do—those who don't, teach." Perhaps this seminar could be run by the Executive Council.

● LARGE FARCE

The great farce, Who's Who in American Colleges, has reared its ugly head again on this relatively quiet campus.

This profit making organization is not to be confused by new students with the nationally respected Who's Who.

The proposal to hold an official Who's Who election was made at Senior Class meeting by a comfortable margin. This is a shame. A few students are trying desperately to inject some "honor" in this moneymaking adventure, slightly respected on this campus.

Last year's fuss over the selection of members is bound to arise again. When a so-called "honor" was handed out to the year's entire student body, as it was last year, it ceases to hold value and respect in the student mind.

In the final election last year 134 students voted to bring the "honor" back on this campus Four thousand students were able to vote. The Flambeau does not feel that three per cent of the student vote is a valid opinion.

Who's Who on this campus has ceased to be an honor. It is only another "club" to be added to your name when you graduate.

The university already has many national honoraries that are respected: Omicron Delta Kappa, Mortar Board, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Phi Omega.

Each department has honoraries to recognize students in their particular subject.

Who's Who was just listed in the year's Pow Wow. The shady method of selecting members last year has somewhat destroyed any honor that can be injected into the present situation.

Certain persons on this campus recognize the farce as it is. These students, many of whom are prominent in campus affairs and would most certainly get a tap from Who's Who, have mentioned that they will boycott the farce.

There seems to be a growing opinion that the campus needs a local "hall of fame" to take the place of Who's Who in American Colleges. The Flambeau will support this opinion.

● MOSCOW HUMOR

Here in these United States, it seems every gag-man reaps his biggest harvest of laughs when he throws a punch line about "Uncle Harry". However, similar jokes about "Big Joe" and his "proletarians" won't go over at all in the U. S. S. R. countries.

Communists learn to suppress their giggles and guffaws when joking becomes a life and death matter, as it has since full totalitarianism has been reached in Russia and her satellites.

Bertram D. Wolfe, expert on Slavic affairs, has made a collection of jokes that have been outlawed by U. S. S. R. censors:

A Moscow newspaper recently published the new innovation in breeding and the development of a "cowraffe." Biologist Lysenko explained that by cross-breeding a cow and a giraffe, he has produced an animal so constructed that it can graze in Bulgaria while it is being milked in Moscow.

"It's wonderful," a Lithuanian confided to a Russian friend. "I'm a citizen of New Lithuania, the largest country in the world."

"How do you make that out?"

"Why, our western frontiers are on the Baltic Sea; our capital is in Moscow, and the majority of our population is in Siberia."

Three Soviet citizens who had somehow survived the purges were comparing notes in a forced labor camp.

"I am here," said the first, "since 1929, for calling Karl Radek a counter-revolutionary."

"And I," said the second, "since 1937, for saying that Radek was not a counter-revolutionary."

"And I," said the third, "am Karl Radek."

Molotov excitedly told Stalin that Russia could claim the invention of the human being, since it was proven that Adam and Eve were both Russians. Stalin demanded to know what evidence the scientists had.

"Just think about it for a minute," said Molotov. "Adam and Eve had no clothing to cover them. They had no roof over their head. They lived on apples. Yet they thought they lived in Paradise. What else could they be but Russians?"

● IN A FOG

Back in 1947 the University Senate passed its first bill into law. They simply protected that a book called Robert's Rules of Order was to be the guiding light in all the senate's procedure.

Yesterday, at the first senate meeting for 1951-52, Robert's Rules of Order was displayed for the first time in the senate chambers. Vice-President Jim Kirk brought a copy for the senators to see.

Perhaps this item isn't representative of the Senate's ability to get things done.

The first item on the agenda last Wednesday was to set up a committee on finding ways and means to improve senate attendance.

That's one of the things that the Senate

WOMEN SENATORS BLAZE TRAIL

By ALLAN HEAD

Mi-Light of the UGA week was Jim Kirk turning up in University Council with a Roberts Rule of Order clutched firmly in his hand. One needs to think the Senate will get something done.

And "Rocco" Bodi, senior senator, says he is going to propose the Senate set up a standing Rules Committee to work out rules of procedure for the legislative part of the UGA. It's about time we had standardized procedures as to the form of bills, resolutions, etc.

Women's Senate has been blazing the trail in the legislative girls are really moving this year, and the score now reads:

Senate	Meetings
Women's	3
University	1

What's more, they had Miss Dawn Bennett, head of the Political Science Department in to give them the low-down on Republican parliamentary procedure but Wednesday night. Let's hope they turn some of this businesslike procedure on the outmoded social rules and regulations around here, and clear out the debris.

University Council found itself confronted with a rather fascinating sort of a problem last Tuesday when someone wants to sell the university a totem pole. The totem pole would be symbolic, and has the administration's full support, we should get some favorable action.

Plans for the political rallies in the Gym the weekend prior to the big game are getting well under way. This is an OK project to have the Governor of Jerry Thomas. Tentative plans call for two rallies, one to come after the primaries, and one between the primaries and the finals. Give to the candidates a chance to stand up in front of their classmates and tell them what they stand for. Also gives their classmates a chance to make up their minds about the other man than who has the biggest posters.

FLORIDA POLITICS

QUICK GLIMPSE OF GOVERNORS RACE

(Editors Note: Peeples and Garrison will have their personal interpretation of Florida politics each Friday in this column.)

By PAUL GARRISON
VERNON PEEPLES

The Florida gubernatorial sweepstakes is getting momentum each day throughout the state, even though the primaries won't be held until next Spring. Two candidates have already announced and a third for the 52nd year term as the state's chief executive. They are Bill Hendrix, self-styled leader of the Florida Ku Klux Klan and Dale Spencer Kimbrough, prominent Dade-Monroe County Democrat. Fuller Warren, ex-governor and businessman, who was runner-up to Governor Millard Caldwell in primaries of 1948, has been traveling and speaking all over the state in recent weeks and is expected to formally announce his candidacy during the early part of next year. It is generally conceded in political circles that any candidate who goes over the contest will, of necessity, have to be backed by the Klan. This is mainly due to the fact that he is in the lead by several lengths at this stage of the game.

Other probable candidates for governor are Colonel McKethan, Brooksville banker and Chairman of the State Road Department, who has been mentioned among the state's numerous county commissioners; Wallace Stanley, lawyer and past presiding officer at the Florida Senate; Henry "Hank" Barnard, St. Petersburg attorney and influential member of the State Senate; Allo Shaw, Fort Pierce citrus grower and member of Florida Supreme Court; C. M. Cone, Jacksonville banker; B. Hollis Pahokee automobile dealer and speaker of the 1949 session of the Florida House; and Brailey Odham, former president of the Florida Jaycees organization.

Future developments will be interesting, indeed, to say the least, if the rumors indicating that Judge Allo Adams will seek the governorship along with his Port Pierce fellow-townsman, Dan McCarty, actually become a reality. If both of these capable men become embroiled in this campaign, the ramifications of such a contest could possibly result in the defeat of both.

Former U. S. Senator Claude Pepper has been receiving numerous requests urging him to re-enter the political arena in 1952. Rumor has speculated for sometime that Pepper would be a candidate for the U. S. Senate seat now held by conservative Spessard L. Holland and fellow Senator Pepper, a Southern liberal, and Senator Holland frequently engage in conflicting opinions on national issues and foreign affairs when Pepper was the senior senator from Florida. To this date, Pepper has judiciously avoided pledging his future political plans.

Governor Fuller Warren has filed a complaint against Holland in the Federal District Court here for allegedly false accusations in the Collier's Magazine last Spring in an article titled "Secret Boss of the South." The Governor has also announced that he will soon embark on a "give 'em Hell" tour of the state, eventually carrying him into all of Florida's 67 counties. Governor Warren is of the opinion that the people do not know the facts in connection with the alleged misdeeds of his administration by the press and he intends to "set the record straight."

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

OUT OF THE HAZE . . . CONFUSION

By EMORY KING

To continue with Charlie's information on "Hazing, Fraternities and Hell Week", you will remember that last time we talked about Hellywood's rating of hazing, and how, many times, the version was distorted.

The second item in the folder is entitled "Out of the Haze . . . Confusion." It is an ACP feature.

"In a recent article published in School and Society," the ACP story reads, "the question of hazing put to a group of college students were sent to 40 small, liberal arts colleges having enrollments of less than 1,000 students." Here are some of the results:

"Hazing as understood by these colleges is the practice of imposing a number of humiliations upon selected groups of students by other students in order to set them apart from the rest.

". . . Those being hazed may be required to wear freshman caps, costumes or signs, avoid certain walks, have no dates for a certain period, be silent, be confined the right to drive their cars for several weeks, or to obey promptly brings swift retaliation in one way or another."

The article noted, commented

ACP that hazing is usually carried on as a function of sororities, fraternities, or by sophomores who imposed their will on the freshmen.

However, "there seems to be some confusion as to the exact value of hazing, even in the minds of those students most desirous of its continuance." The article states four frequently proposed goals of hazing.

1. To help new students become quickly acquainted with one another at the same time lessen the older students better; 2. To develop a spirit of unity among those being hazed; 2. To strengthen loyalty to the college or fraternity by making newcomers learn some of the rules of the game in a hurry; 4. To discover misfits as early as possible since such persons become conspicuous almost at once when subjected to pressure.

The following conclusions are made: . . . Hazing in some form or another is still being practiced at the majority of member of very fine colleges, although almost everywhere (Author's note: emphasis) efforts are being made by students and faculties to eliminate hazing activities or abolish it entirely . . . Almost everywhere there is a tendency to replace hazing with a more positive student-directed orientation program."

After reading the ACP report I wonder if the kids at FSU are going over board to bring this sort of thing here.

We like to have our say-so as being a new progressive university dedicated to the advancement of education. However, every day we are becoming more and more like Hollywood hazing with a more positive students are only interested in fraternities, sororities, athletics, and dances. When are we going to become interested in education?

SEMINOLE SCENES

HOW MANY "UHS" IN A GOOD SPEECH?

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Wish I had a bicycle for every meeting I have attended this week.

To keep from being bored at each meeting I have taken up the habit of seeing what other people do. Complicated, but when you get right down to it, a speaker who does not know the meaning of the word "stop," it helps just the same.

One guy told me he counts beads. Others say they listen to the year's Pow Wow. The shady method of selecting members last year has somewhat destroyed any honor that can be injected into the present situation.

Certain persons on this campus recognize the farce as it is. These students, many of whom are prominent in campus affairs and would most certainly get a tap from Who's Who, have mentioned that they will boycott the farce.

There seems to be a growing opinion that the campus needs a local "hall of fame" to take the place of Who's Who in American Colleges. The Flambeau will support this opinion.

myself wondering if the speaker does not get a mile peeved that his audience dies down and sez, too.

Crossword puzzles, passing notes and reading who-did-it's are other common ways of which to ignore a speech. Personally, I still get the low the old high school tradition of making airplanes out of programs.

Counting the "uhs" in a speech is another of the audience hobby according to one gal. She says she counted 'em and is surprised to find out how many "uh's" slipped in the talk at even the best speaker. What she is going to do with all these "uh's" I have also gets them collected is beyond me.

Speakers are getting to r new low when a member of the audience resorts to reading a telephone book in preference over listening to what is being said, and that is just what happened recently.

Maybe it is our fault, maybe we haven't been there, but these days you can't find many people who really listen to what is going on in a meeting. In case of a speech, we all listen for the speaker's faults, laugh if it is good, and then settle down to our own little day dreaming ourselves. I would hate to have anyone ask me to write a letter on what I heard in many meetings I have attended.

I certainly hope the bus company works out some new arrangements for student rates for college students cheaper. The commuter student still get fare for a nickle at specific hours, I hear tell. Bet a lot of them can afford Cat Cabs more than we can. I know I have more expenses now than when I was learning on the four fit.

Just think. For the price of a round-trip ticket to town, you could buy a hot dog and a coke. If everybody is like me I had rather eat than ride. Looks as if some half-way mark could be met.

Will we take some of the wind out of the Hurricanes this weekend? Maybe the Miami Hurricane data can scan some 'gators.

Poetically Yours . . .

By DAVE PINSON

LIFE

To drift and in drifting to dream,
To dream and in dreaming to love,
To love and in loving to live,
To live and in living create,
To create and in creating
Draw favor from God,
This is life,
And from life
Immortality.

WANDERING

Must man forever wander in despair,
His mortal-soul breathing naught 'cept air,
His questioning mind lost in space
Echoing through a past and timeless haze?

Dear Editor . . .

Fish Are Fish, Unless . . .

Dear Editor:

The game was a great success. (Didn't TROY lose?) so a certain fraternity decided to have open house that night. However a few of the organization's members had lost his heart and Frat pin to his girl and was now to be punished! Murmurs, gush at the pool—to the pool with him—what's the use of watch the fun—the fish will have some company tonight — sir. swept through the crowd that was no longer romantic. One remark that I shouldn't print was heavily given special consideration. It sounded like this: "They usually go along with the fish, but replace pens when they don't!"

The victim was permitted the privilege of changing clothes, which is more than I can say of the other "fish" in today's society after which he was promptly transported bodily to the pool. As the swung him back and forth on the edge of the fish pond, all members sung a "lullaby." Eventually the great deed was opened! With instructions to swim the circumference of the pool our victim went to join his ancestors.

This should end right here but there was a surprise turn of events. Upon clambering out of his icy bath (not the victim but the victim) threw his dripping arms around his sweetheart who tried desperately to keep from getting wet. Poor girl! One of the fraternity pushing passed the word along that "she already was fellows, Come on believe that he is now the "best" friend.")

As you surmised, a second dunking occurred but fortunately some kind Samaritan rescued dear lady's watch which did happen to be wearing at the time.

All of these occurances in night have led me to the elusion that "Fish will be fish unless they're mammals"

DAY O'DAR

Thanks Everybody

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the freshman c I would like to take this ortunity to thank the variou ganizations of the University ho many of you have been made come since we arrived at FSU.

The sophomore guides, ex- ecial consideration and the fraternity have done a great j making things a little less confusing than they might been.

Also I would like to thank President for his wonderful cerpiens. This was a swell to get acquainted, as were various freshmen meetings s women's dorms.

Last, but not least, we wish thank the Flambeau staff for very nice freshman edition.

This is just mentioning a the entire University has a great job of making us fre home. Again we would like to "Thanks for Everything."

A sweet young thing in one of my classes advanced the opinio this week that any enlistment in the various services was result of "mass insanity."

While I can't attempt to argue with her I can't help wondering how a coed grows up quite that cynical in the land of supermarkets and automobiles. That old Arabian about wanting to fight for "the right to boo the Dodgers at Mom's blueberry pie"; that was well milked by the movies and service Public Relations.

Only a simpleton swallows that stuff these days . . . but there some sort of middle ground between the dewey-eyed idealist f the fashionable cynic these days.

Maybe writers like Norman Mailer and James Jones along with the belated realism of the war movie have some thing to do with the contemplation attitude of our classmate.

As for me, I prefer to believe there are a few in line down town who weren't "hysterical" rushers from the sight of a inspirational type John Wayne "Hells of Somewhere" movie. . . .

Journalism head, Dr. Laurence Campbell, remarked the o day that the raw material of the human body is just about s ficient to the making of one 15 pound candle.

Why is the very Prof. who lectures 5 minutes after the bell the guy who glowers when you walk in late.

New Drama Honorary Has Chic French Title

One of the newest honoraries on campus is Les Jongleurs, drama organization. Begun last year, group held formal initiation May, and pledged three applicants shortly thereafter.

At official ceiony, the eleven other members choose terra cotta and Grecian blue. Their pin has not yet been decided upon, but several designs have been sent in and the group is engaged in debating more.

IN CHOOSING a name for such an organization, the members explored such hackneyed ones as Blackfriars, Greyfriars, FSU Players Dramatics Club, and Mask and Dagger. They wanted an original name and finally chose Les Jongleurs, a French term meaning The Jesulers, or troubadours, the strolling players of the middle ages.

Sponsor of the honorary is Dr. George McCalmon, head of the drama area of the department of speech.

The group plans to present several workshop productions in the near future. One of the new projects is a children's theatre program each year.

TO GAIN MEMBERSHIP in Les Jongleurs, a student, or member of the faculty, must have a total of 30 points attained while working in department of speech productions. Only half of the required number can be gotten in one capacities. However, all of the points could be accumulated in technical work. If a student working on a play as an assignment in one of the theatre classes, receives no points.

Officers of Les Jongleurs are Betty Bryant, secretary-treasurer; Vice-President Ken Martin; recording secretary Sara Margaret Davis; corresponding secretary, Jean Flynn and treasurer, George Carr. At present members of the honorary include, the five officers, Kay Bardin, Don Mower, Fred Myers, Julie Storm and Blair Hennessey.

Lost, Found Dept. Has Missing Items

The University lost and found department has requested that students check with them sometime this week to recover any misplaced articles.

The office has already accumulated a large collection of objects since the beginning of the semester. This miscellany includes 9 fountain pens, a knife, a pair of gloves, a key chain, 4 sets of keys, a medal, a bracelet, 3 silk scarves, 4 pairs of glasses, a rat cap, a glove holder, a rain hood, plastic envelope, and a pair of galoshes.

Located in the basement wing of the Alumni Building, the office requests that students turn in there all objects found on campus.

F S U Coeds Back From Leaders Camp

Betts Srygley, Del Douglas, and Emily Smith returned to the University campus after a summer session at the leadership training school of the American Youth Foundation held at Camp Minisawnca in Michigan.

THESE THREE FSU WOMEN held Danforth Foundation scholarships offered each year to majors in the School of Home Economics. Florida State University is one of the foundations of which William H. Danforth is the founder and president. A faculty committee makes the nominations and the awards are made on the basis of leadership, scholastic ability and character.

When interviewed, Betty Srygley, Tallahassee sophomore, spoke of the nature lore of the Michigan country which served as appropriate setting for the training the girls received. She also mentioned that she met the elderly Mr. Danforth, whose Indian name is "Minisino," meaning "Generous Heart."

UPON ARRIVAL, the $60 girls attending the camp were given a written evaluation test which they graded themselves. These tests were later used by the camp counselors for guidance work.

Del Douglas, a junior from Wildwood, held two scholarships and thus received $120 allowance from June 17 to August 26.

"It's a very valuable experience and I feel that all girls fortunate enough to be chosen for the Danforth scholarships return from the camp much enthused and better equipped for their life's work," says Miss Douglas.

BEFORE ENTERING the camp, Emily Smith, a senior from Gainesville, Florida, spent two weeks in St. Louis as guest of the Ralston-Purina Company, owned by Danforth. During her stay she toured large industrial and civic organizations of St. Louis.

Emily is now the director of the Home Economics Club here, plans to use the training she received this summer in her vocational and social work.

Newmanites Plan Saturday Party

Plans are being made for an "Idiot's Delight Party," Saturday, 7:30 p.m. at the Newman House.

Chairman Edna Faber urges members to come as they are for an evening of games, dancing, and entertainment. "Skipper" Lambert, former student of St. Peters-burg Junior College, will be program chairman for the evening.

Next on the Newman Club social agenda is a picnic at Dr. McDonough's house, Sunday, October 14. Edna urges that those planning to attend sign up immediately on the Catholic bulletin boards in either the Post Office or Westcott.

Candidates' Photos Due Next Thursday

Pictures of Homecoming Queen candidates will be made in the Public Relations office no later than Thursday, October 11. This date has been corrected from Monday, October 8.

Photos should be black and white and may be made at the studio of the candidate's choice.

Primary elections will be held on Monday and Tuesday, October 15 and 16. At this time the five candidates for court will be chosen, with a run-off Tuesday, October 23, for selection of queen.

Journalism Students Edit Make Believe Newspaper

The editorial staff of the Tallahassee "Sun-Star", make-believe daily newspaper of the School of Journalism, reported the election returns on the power plant issue.

GETTING THEIR background material and assigning the various stories several days prior to the election, the staff of five students was ready to give on the spot coverage on election day.

Within an hour after the final returns were made available at the Tallahassee City Hall Tuesday, the journalism students had written their stories and their headlines made up their front-page, and had elections tabulations ready for publication.

UNDER THE SUPERVISION of Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of journalism, Alta Mae Horton wrote the lead story; Betty Brewer wrote an article on the history of the issue; Sally Roberts, Sun-Star city editor, compiled a public opinion poll; Theo Summerkamp, a graduate student, wrote up the reactions of the city commissioners; Maxwell York provided background material; and Dr. Kobre wrote a story of the average citizen's reaction to the election results.

This project is a part of a unit titled, "Reporting of Public Affairs." The students study local newspapers and radio programs, writing their stories from such background material. Many have "news beats" of municipal and county governments, the Federal building, state departments and other news-gathering sources.

MANY GRADUATES of the course, developed under the direction of Dr. Lawrence R. Campbell and Dr. Sidney Kobre, are now working on their bachelor's degrees at the state. Several are now full-time reporters for the Democrat.

Blecker And Sherman Join Staff of Meteorology Dept.

President Doak S. Campbell announced today that two new professors have joined the meteorology department this semester.

DR. WOUTER BLEEKER, noted international authority on meteorology, is on leave of absence as professor of meteorology at the University of Utrecht in Holland and as director of the Division of General Forecasting and Aeronautical Meteorological Service. Last spring he was elected president of the Commission on Synoptic Meteorology of the World Meteorological organization.

While he was educated in Holland and received his various university degrees in this country Dr Bleeker has traveled the world over in his research work for the Dutch government. Recently he represented both the Dutch government and Florida State University at the Congress of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics in Brussels.

"WE FEEL VERY FORTUNATE in obtaining the services of so eminent a meteorologist as Dr. Bleeker," Dr. Baum said. "His world-wide experience and broad knowledge will be of much value in our program of teaching and research functions, particularly the research project on the Mediterranean area which we are conducting under a contract with the U. S. Air Force."

The second appointment for the current year in the department of meteorology announced by President Campbell is that of Leon Sherman as assistant professor of meteorology. Dr. Sherman has been serving at the Institute of Geophysics at the University of California in Los Angeles.

New Mexico ranks second in size production among the western states.

Chemistry Dept Collects Tadpoles

The Chemistry department, in preparation for a biochemical research venture, is collecting live frog tadpoles.

Dr. Earl Frieden, Dr. Alice Baker and Bernard F. Brandwen, a graduate student, are conducting the project under a U. S. Public Health Service grant.

An experimental system has been developed by which tadpoles complete the metamorphic cycle in half second from in two days. By studying this growth process, researchers may discover the nutrient to human growth and possibly research material in the irregular growth of cancer.

Only kmory, the chicks have to be out by 12:30 a.m. Also the U of Emory also says, in the same column, that there have been no tragedies in this campus due to frat-soro rushing. Emory, isn't one disappointed freshman girl leaving school because she didn't make her favorite "Snob Club," tragedy enough.

And you know as well as I do that cases of this sort aren't isolated as we'd like them to be! Don't get me wrong, I think the whole frat-soro idea is wholesome. It's the false set of values surroundings the importance of the social groups that precipitates the tragedy.

Lensen Will Speak At Geog. Club Meet

Dr. George Lensen of the history department, will be the guest speaker at the Geography Club meeting Thursday, October 11.

Students, faculty, and staff are invited to meet at 8:00 p.m. in Room 101 of the History Building to hear Dr. Lensen discuss "The Influence of Geography on Japanese Civilization." His talk will be preceded by a short meeting of the club.

Purses have been increased for eight of Hialeah race track's 15 stake races for next year.

Dormitories Have Varied Activities

Women's dormitories on campus entertained Wednesday with the first of this year's weekly teas.

In Reynolds Hall, fraternity and sorority members joined the Freshmen in order to get acquainted and to hear a talk made by Dr. Canfield.

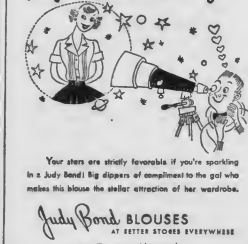
Monday night the third floor will entertain the rest of the dorm with a pajama party.

A fashion show with junior counselors as models, provided the entertainment for Jennie Murphree girls.

Gilchrist honored new transfers at their tea, Friday night everyone is invited to hear the FSU-Miami game at a gathering in the Gilchrist parlor.

Tally Playmakers To Meet Oct. 9

Tallahassee Playmakers have announced the opening of their sixth season. The group, a dramatic organization open to all faculty and staff members and their families, will hold its first meeting Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 8:15 p.m. in the Lonunnie faculty lounge. All old participants and interested persons are urged to attend.



Wesley Players Seven Years Old

One of the most attractive campus groups, outside the speech department, is Wesley Players. This organization connected with the Methodist student group, is open to all interested people. New members are pledged twice yearly, with duties of participating in two productions and writing a paper on the theatrical theme.

Open tryouts are held occasionally for the plays, while others are closed to Wesley players.

Alpha Nu chapter of Wesley Players was established on the FSCW campus in 1944. Members of Rho chapter of Georgia State University installed the new group. Since then, a series of three yearly productions have been represented in the Methodist student house.

The new dual-pledge period system was installed this year. Within 12 hours after the close of the Fall Initiation, members will be able to try out for technical or acting parts.

'Mademoiselle' Mag. Accepts Applications for Its Staff

Mademoiselle magazine is now accepting applications from undergraduate women for membership on the 1951-52 college board.

Girls who are accepted on the college board do three assignments during the college year. Assignments give college board members a chance to write features about life on their campus: to submit art work, fashion or promotion ideas for possible use in Mademoiselle; to develop their critical and creative talents; to discover their own abilities and job interests.

COLLEGE BOARD members who come out among the top twenty on the assignments will Mademoiselle guest editorship, will be brought to New York next June to help write, edit and illustrate the August college issue. They will be paid a regular salary for their month's work, plus round-trip transportation to New York City.

While in New York each guest editor takes part in a full calendar of activities designed to stra her a head start in her career. She interviewes a celebrity in her chosen field, visits fashion workrooms, newspaper offices, stores and advertising agencies.

OCTOBER 31 is the deadline for applying for the college board.

The application is a criticism of either (Mademoiselle's August 1951 college issue (see page 358) or the September issue (see page 113). Successful candidates will be notified of acceptance on the college board the first week in November, the first college board assignment will appear in Mademoiselle's November issue.

Dr. Neel, Former Professor, Now Chaplain In Korea

In a recent letter, Samuel R. Neel Jr., former associate professor of philosophy and religion here, describes a front line outdoor chapel built by his Seventh Korea.

The FSU faculty member, now on leave of absence with the army as chaplain of the Seventh Infantry Division and 31st Regiment, enclosed a picture of the chapel built in honor of Pvt. Jack R. Cowley who was killed in a recent UN attack. "The chapel benches were built of logs laid on top of sand bags and the altar made of discarded ration boxes covered with a blanket, "Professor Neel writes.

"Instead of a stained glass window there is a hand woven cross reminiscent of the one upon which Christ was crucified. The soldiers enter the chapel through an arch of pine limbs and the narrow aisles have been made through use of logs, tree branches and dirt."

The 31st Division to which he is attached is sometimes called the "Purple Heart" division of the Army because since its activation in 1918 it has never been stationed within the continental limits of the United States.

According to Professor Neel, this division has seen combat action in Siberia during World War I, on Bataan in World War II, and last winter took part in the Inchon landing in Korea.

Museum to Honor FSU Art Student

Guy D Johnson Jr., graduate student in the art department, is one of 84 artists whose work were chosen to appear in the sixth Southeastern Annual Exhibition at the High Museum of Art in Atlanta.

Johnson's painting "The Luscious Watermelons" was chosen from among 800 entrys submitted by amateur and professional artists in eight southeastern states "Wind in the Cabbages," Johnson's prize-winning painting, was exhibited on campus last year, appeared in the December issue of the American Association of University Women. He is now completing paintings for a one-man show as part of the requirement for his Master's degree.

THE SEMINOLE SCENE

By Jim Couch

Tonight is the big step for the Florida State Seminoles, and it won't be an easy one, not by a long shot. The Hurricanes will be out for revenge after their beating at the hands of Tulane, last week. The 'Canes were picked to be a dark horse contender for the national title in a pre-season poll, but slipped badly last week and will be out to impress everyone tonight.

Although few people above the Mason-Dixon have heard of Florida State, the Seminoles figure to raise eyebrows wherever Miami is known, as they will be out to make their debut a good one. Many people think that FSU cannot be taken lightly, for they will be the under-dog and will be able to try desperation tactics throughout the contest, while Miami must adhere to strict power football. There is one bit of false reasoning in this feeling. That is that FSU has never been a razzle-dazzle type of team and probably won't change for this lone game.

It's true that the Seminoles are more of an open running team this year, but still far from a razzle-dazzle eleven. The Seminoles will also be hurt in the war of platoons as Miami has much more depth although their first eleven is about the same as ours.

Last week's game, although spotty and inconsistent, revealed much as to the strength and weaknesses of the 1951 squad. Mike Sellers was a bit of a disappointment, as he gained but two yards in 11 tries. Mike, however, has been nursing an ailing shoulder and can't be expected to do too much of the running until he is in better condition.

Another fullback disappointment was Ronald King, also ailing, who picked up but six yards on nine carries. With time healing his injuries, King will be piling up the yardage before long.

Bright spots in the game were Nelson Italiano, Preston Bradley, Harry Bringger, in the running department and Italiano and Gary Folsom in the passing spotlight. Although these men got credit for most of the gains from scrimmage, Bobby Fivesah, Dick Tuk, and George Graham looked exceptionally well. Tommy Brown turned in his usual stellar performance on punt returns and in the booting department. Tom Schring got off a beautiful 41-yard punt to loom as a possible kicking mate to the incomparable Brown.

The Seminole defense, at times very lax, came through with a neat over all blanket as they allowed the Troy team only a scant eight yards.

As far as a prediction for tonight's game, I would like to quote Gene Turano, who broke "hell week" silence to inform me. "We might out-fox 'em." These are my sentiments exactly, but then again they might do the same to us; therefore, I'll go out on a very optimistic limb and predict Miami 27, FSU 7.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

SHEEDY was a big walrus-downer. "All I ever get is me cold shoulder," he blubbered. So his roommate said: "Tsk, tsk, you old soak—try a new wrinkle on that messy hair: Wildroot Cream-Oil! Non-Alcoholic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Freeze your hair from annoying dryness and loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-nail Test!" Now Sheedy's really in the swim! Just scrawl his engagement to a pretty young flapper—and he's about to wokker off to an ivory-covered corsage. So water you waiting for? Get a tube or bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil Hair Tonic at any drug or toilet goods counter! And ask your barber for professional applications. "Now," you'll say, "ice sea why there's snow other hair tonic like Wildroot Cream-Oil!"

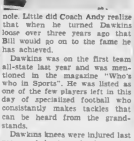
Dawkins Has Homecoming In Orange Bowl Contest

Football Captain To Haunt Miami

Bill Dawkins, Florida State University captain will have his homecoming tonight when FSU-Miami tackle in the Orange Bowl. It's interesting to note that Bill, after being discharged from the army, tried out for a scholarship at the University of Miami but failed to impress head Coach Andy Gustafson.



Bill then headed north and dropped anchor on west campus, where Don Veller took a liking to him and his rugged manner. Since that time Dawkins has been a regular on the FSU team that has won 23 out of its last 27 games.

Dawkins should be in top shape for the game as he was used only sparingly last week in an attempt to protect his weak knees.

The homecoming will not be for Dawkins alone, as four other members of the squad hail from Miami. They are Bob Wodrich, Nat Polak, Gerald Smith, and Ted Morrill.

Dawkins is a graduate of Miami Jackson High School, and is currently in his last year as a Semi-

Floating Diver Wins Berth on Shoreline

Some people may be of the impression that the only way a member of the swimming team can injure himself is by drowning, bounding into one end of the pool, or bashing head-on into another swimmer.

However, let's not forget those artists of the long willowy plank, now a metal spring, who are forever twisting and a-pi'e'ing through the wild blue yonder in an attempt to conquer the old problem of "mind over body."

Wednesday evening found local aspirants making like the well known Mexican beans, and doing pretty well at it. With one routine after another, they went through their paces, until one enterprising young freshman, namely Bob Richardson, bounded into the upper regions, intent on obeying his master's (Bim's that is) voice.

The order of the instant was a half-gainer with a half-twist. So, with perfect stride and hurdle, young sinewy Richardson planted the end of the "bouins" board and sailed aloft to his command performance.

With all the control of an upside-down feline, our hero Robert had his routine half completed when he was gripped with an insatiable urge to kick the source of thrust. Then with the unerring accuracy of a pigeon o'er a steamin auto, he sent home a solid blast to the tip of the target.

With mission accomplished, older and wiser Robert, wings clipped and foot swollen, strolls about our lovely campus with the grace of a one-legged giraffe. We say, "stout heart and stiff upper, old man, you can have another go at it in a couple of weeks."

Oldest apple tree in Washington was planted at Vancouver in 1670.

Rat Court Trys Over 50 Frosh

The newly organized rat court held session for the first time last Wednesday night with Charles Curtis, chairman, presiding. About 50 Freshmen were called before the court for infractions of the rat cap rules.

Curtis announced that court actions would be lenient for first offenses; but that stricter measures would be enforced on second and third times.

He also explained the importance of wearing rat caps and stressed that the court was not for the purpose of hazing but to help boost school spirit by enforcing these regulations. The Freshmen were commended for their over-all cooperation and spirit.

As reminders to wear rat caps, those appearing before the court last night were asked to distribute the rat cap rules in their dormitories.

MEET THE MENTORS

FOURTH IN A SERIES: For our fourth football coach of the year we again reach towards our country cousin, Indiana University. Bill Armstrong, brother of Charlie Armstrong, former backfield coach, re-joined the Florida State staff this fall after an absence of two years. He served on the FSU staff as a graduate assistant in 1948, then left to compile a remarkable record as head coach of Columbia High School at Lake City, Florida, during the past two seasons. He guided the Lake City team through these seasons with a 15 won and only four lost record, one of the best in the state. Bill will start over here at FSU as a backfield coach.

Armstrong was born in Evansville, Indiana, where he went through grade and high school. He entered Indiana University where he was a varsity back in 1944, 1945, 1946 and 1947. He also was a teammate of Tom Roberson on the North Senied in the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Alabama in 1947.

Wesley Foundation To Set Precedent

The Wesley Foundation, campus Methodist organization, sets a new precedent Friday night by giving a Football Party for students not attending the Miami game.

The party will begin at kick-off time, 7:30 p.m. The game will be broadcast and coffee will be served. Football parties are scheduled for every game night when the Seminoles are on the road.

A series of five fellowship meetings will begin Sunday, October 7 after the 6:15 supper hour. The topic this week is, "Being a Christian in Your Profession."

Guest speakers during the series are: Kenneth Baillnger, attorney; Dean Kelly, Professor of English; J. E. Larson, State Treasurer; T. D. Bailey, Board of Education Head; and Dr. Thomas Brooks of the University Hospital.

Crisis Arises In G'ville Politics

By MARY JANE MARSHALL
Special Correspondent

GAINESVILLE (October 9)—Political troubles within the party system at the University of Florida have just popped out into the open.

THE VARSITY PARTY has announced that it will not run a slate of candidates in the Fall elections. Kim Barley, party chairman, informed the student body that his group has little or no chance of winning under the present setup. The Florida Party is controlled by 13 large fraternities with a bloc vote of over 1,400. While the Varsity Party has only about 627 fraternity votes. This has emphasized as one of the main points that the Varsity Party stated to put up candidates. No one seems to know that the independents exist.

Elections will be held as usual, however, and there will be a need for write-in votes. Barring some unexpected event, this means that the Florida Party candidate will take office, following the results this Thursday.

UP FOR VOTE in the elections will be amendments to the constitution. There will be a $10 fee for admission of student activity fees, included in the $45 fee paid per person. The student body says that this would be a very sensible change, as the present system was set up over 10 years ago. None of this extra money would go to athletics, but would help to meet the higher cost of living.

Rising around campus is a great deal of bitterness among the pro-independents. Over 300 independent women students were turned down from sororities this fall because there were no more places to house them, either on or off campus.

THE QUESTION OF WHO is to pay for mailing the student handbook to incoming freshmen is causing thrown about like a hot potato. It seems that the Executive Council authorized Emory Dasinger, last year's president, to have the handbook printed and mailed so that the "F" Book fund would pay for it. However, the Council apparently either didn't approve or know anything about it, and to say rate they don't like to pay it.

The students even have law students during their technicalities. That's rather absurd, as the constitution states that the Executive council may stop giving any subsidiary organization money. So does not give them the right to spend the money of such an organization as their own pleasure in any opinion, the real issue is of principle involved and a precedent will be set by the decision of the case.

ALSO UP FOR VOTE in the coming elections is an amendment which, if passed, would hold the editor of the Alligator responsible for all "non-expendible" items in the editorial offices. If any are mysteriously lost, the editor's pay or any part of it may be subjected to the Executive Council. It applies only to the Alligator.

Third Reporters Seminar Planned

The third student reporters' seminar will be held tomorrow night at 7:15 in the Florida Flambeau office, news editor, Hazel Morrison, announced today. Newspaper sports and society reporters are asked to be present, she said.

All reporters unable to attend the meeting are expected to notify the office, the news editor continued.

Reporters will be expected to bring up any problems or ask for any advice concerning their assignments or beats. Constructive criticism and a review of the Flambeau style will be mentioned tomorrow night.

Tentative plans for the Homecoming edition will be presented by Emory King, associate editor. Students who want to write for the Homecoming edition are asked to be present.

Frat Rushing To Continue Through Sat.

Fourteen Nationals Will Select Pledges During Coming Week

Fraternity rushing opened yesterday afternoon at 5 as fourteen national groups on campus entertained until 9 last night.

Originally scheduled to begin Sunday, Oct. 8, rush week was postponed one day because of the Florida State University-Miami game conflict.

ALL MEN INTERESTED in being rushed after the open houses should, without fail, pick up their date cards today in the Inter-Fraternity Council office," declared McDonald, rush invitation committee chairman, stated.

McDonald explained that the date cards in the fraternity were to have been turned in to the invitation committee in the IPC office on the fourth floor of the Alumni building yesterday. They should be turned in no later than 5 p.m.

THE PROSPECTIVE RUSHEES stated to pick booklets and rule regulations at the Inter-Fraternity Council office in the Alumni building. The IPC office had previously stated the university men desiring to be rushed must pick up their booklets at 5 yesterday prior to going to the house. A fraternity open houses to learn the location of the fraternity houses in addition to picking up the rush booklets.

I PREDICT a very successful rush week and year for the fraternities," declared Dasinger, president of IFC stated yesterday.

Rush week will continue until 6 p.m. Saturday with the fraternities holding one party per night. No rusher can attend parties given by the same frat on two consecutive nights. Quiet hours will begin at 12 each night and the final rushing period will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday and end the following Monday at 7:30 p.m. At this time the rushees will report to the houses of their choice from which they have received bids.

FRATERNITIES may issue bids after 5 p.m. Saturday, but rushees may not accept until Monday night.

According to the resolution adopted by the IPC and made by Dasinger, the following is there should be no objective fraternity discussion between rushees. There should be no objective fraternity discussion between rushees. There should be no objective fraternity discussion between rushees. There should be no objective fraternity discussion between rushees. No fraternity members. A fraternity can spend no money on a rushee. No prospective rushee shall make himself noticeable or continually present at a fraternity house. No rushee shall remain in a fraternity house for more than one hour.

Dormitories Make Homecoming Plans

Social activities in the women's dormitories are being set aside as plans are being made for homecoming decorations of the halls and dorms.

However, there are regular Wednesday-Noel Roman, Jack Kazanzas and Saturday night dances and continuing and three of the dorms planned other activities this week.

Alice Newton, Margaret Camp, Joann Arvill, Bert Holander, Joe Von and Loren Reichert.

Dorothy Womble, Juliet Ferrell, Libby Mauch, Don Mowrer and Bernice Bennett will handle makeup; and Sharon Lane, Nancy Wilson, John Howard, Ronald Martin, Booker Durham and George Cary will be in charge of publicity and promotion.

ODK Meeting Is Set

Omicron Delta Kappa will hold a meeting in room 416 of the Alumni building at 5 p.m. tomorrow night. All student and faculty members are urged to attend. Associate and alumni members are also invited.

Elections at WC

Ted Azpelis was elected governor of Lower 304 at the dormitory's elections recently. Athletic director is George Carnes, social director, David Donnelly; and reporter, Arthur Hall.

Book Exchange Closes Oct. 13

"There is $400 yet to be collected by students for books sold this year by the Alpha Phi Omega book exchange," Tommy Bowen, chairman, announced.

Bowen also said that there is still time to buy and sell books before October 13, when the exchange closes. It will reopen one week before the end of the semester.

THE EXCHANGE HOURS are 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday and from 8:30 to 12:00 noon on Saturday in the Alumni building.

The Used Book exchange enables students to sell and procure old texts at reasonable reduced rates. The student sets the price for his own book. Por every book exceeding one dollar, the buyer and seller contributes a ten-cent fee. For books under one dollar, a five-cent fee is charged.

STUDENTS ARE given receipts for certificates with each book they turn in to the exchange. They are to present this certificate together before the end of the three weeks of operation. If the book is sold, the student receives his money; if not, the book will be returned to its owner or kept in storage until the exchange opens again.

Bowen added that among books sold out, and therefore in arrest demand are: Fundamentals of Physical Science, by Kendall; Survey of European Civilization, by Ferguson; Business Law, by Gurney; Basic Mathematics, by Trimble, Bolser, Wade; Principles of Elementary Education, by H. J. Otto; Sociology by Osburn and Nimkoff; and the latest edition of College Typewriting by Leisenberry.

Hanson Names Crew Members

HIGH SCHOOL EDITORS, business managers, and faculty advisers look over a copy of the FLORIDA FLAMEAU in preparation for the opening of the first Florida Newspaper and Year Book School in session at Florida State University this week.

High School Editors Attend School Here

The first annual Florida State University Yearbook and Newspaper School was held Saturday, with over 150 high school reporters, editor and business managers attending.

PROF. WILLIAM ROSS SLAUGHTER, visiting professor at the FSU School of Journalism, keynoted the meeting by stressing the lasting value of work on school newspapers and yearbooks. He pointed out that "in learning to get information from others, you must work with them, you must adapt yourself to them. In this activity, you learn how to get along with people. You get them to co-operate with you."

The permanent training obtained in selling, keeping accounts, and in marketing a product was stressed by Dr. Ray Ovington, dean of the FSU School of Business. He said the group work necessary in publishing such a book gave training in democratic councils and committee organization.

DR. LAWRENCE R. CAMPBELL, dean of the School of Journalism, in the morning session explained the program and the groups broke up to attend individual discussion panels in reporting, editing, make-up picture layout, and advertising.

Lively was the discussion groups included Mrs. Kaye Gourley Campbell, wife of the School of Journalism dean; Prof. Earl Vaner, Prof. Zell Mabee, Prof. Sidney Kobre, Dr. Carl Hamm, chairman of the department of economics, Robert Leiah, director of the University's Bureau of Business Studies, Paul Scalera, Theo Sommercamp and Ray Brunson, dean of the FSU Communication and Radio station.

THE AFTERNOON Prof. Sidney Kobre spoke on "Is There a Place for Women in Journalism."

Kenneth Ballinger, lecturer at the school of journalism, representative for the Florida Press Association, described the operations in Florida journalism today and pointed out that there are 42 dailies and 160 weeklies in the state, many of which are headed by men whose personalities determine their policy.

WFSU Announces Premier of Show Tonight At 11

"Sounds in the Night," a new, type duc-jockey show, will be premiered tonight at 11 p.m. over campus radio station, WFSU. Leo Mellon, ethiel announcer at the 660 dial spot, emcees, produces, and directs the program "Sounds in the Night" adds an extra hour to the studio's broadcasting schedule.

According to Mellon the Monday to Friday hour of music will stress quality in artists and arrangements. Throughout the year there will be recorded interviews with campus dignitaries as well as musicians and visiting stars.

NEW RECORDS have been ordered to relock the station's library in preparation for the program.

Request by telephone will be accepted over the "Late Date" show heard from 8 to 9 p.m. nightly.

Tomorrow Set As "Be Kind to Freshmen Day"

Tomorrow has been proclaimed "Be Kind to Freshmen Day" on the campus, stated June Conyers, president of the Sophomore class. "It is hoped," she said, "that the spirit of the day will last all year."

JUNE ANNOUNCED that tomorrow will take the place of the Freshman field day. This event was supposed to have furnished the first opportunity for the Freshmen to discard their rat caps. Sports events were to have been the deciding factor. If the freshmen had topped the score the sophomores made, they could take off their rat caps for good. If, however, they had lost, they would have to wear them until Thanksgiving.

"If the Florida State University football team beats Delta State to the finish," Miss Conyers said Marcia Morris, chairman of the "Be Kind to Freshmen Day" "they will be allowed to remove their garnet and gold beanies. If we don't win by that large a score, they will have to continue wearing them until Homecoming."

ALL UPPERCLASSMEN are asked to be friendly to freshmen. Opening doors for them, speaking to them, and giving them seats on the buses are some of the kindnesses stressed. This day will be an attempt to intensify school spirit and build up pep for the football team.

Charles Curtis, chairman of the sophomore committee, announced that the court will meet tonight in the Tally Ho dining room for interment of the freshmen rules. At the last meeting, 45 cases were heard, he said. Fewer cases are scheduled for the second meeting.

CURTIS SAID that court actions would be lenient for first offenders, but second time offenses would be enforced on second and third times.

He also explained the importance of wearing rat caps and stressed that the court was not for the purpose of hazing but to help boost school spirit by enforcing the regulations. "All freshmen are to be commended for their over-all cooperation and spirit," he said.

RAT CAP RULES were distributed in the freshman dormitories to remind them of the regulations.

Candidates Pictures Due 5 PM Thursday

Primary Elections Oct. 15. 16 Finals Will be Held Oct. 23

Pictures for Homecoming Queen candidates must be in the Public Relations Office by 5 p. m. Thursday, according to John C. Newland, chairman of the Homecoming Queen committee.

Pictures submitted must be one mat portrait and one glossy, 8x10. The primary elections will be Oct. 15 and 16 in the new Westcott, and finals will be held on Oct. 23. Students must have their ID cards to vote.

HOMECOMING DANCE tickets will be on sale Oct. 15 in Lower Westcott also, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. said Bill Shiphorst, business manager. He asked that students avoid the last minute rush for tickets. The Homecoming dance will be held in the Suwannee room. Saturday, Oct. 27. Tex Beneke and his orchestra have been engaged for the dance.

The annual Homecoming skit contest, sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta and Sigma Nu, has been enlarged this year to include every dormitory, fraternity and sorority on campus.

Tryouts for this will take place Oct. 22, 23 and 24 in Room 204 of the Women's Gym.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA and Sigma Nu will each provide for the trophies. Each group in the tryout shall select its own individual theme. Skits are limited to 10 minutes. Each group will be notified of the time of his skit. Only persons participating in the skit will be allowed in the dressing room.

Semi-finals will be held Thursday, October 25, in the Music Auditorium, from 7:00 until 9:00 p.m. The student body will be invited to attend. The winning dormitory will be announced at this time, and their trophy awarded.

COSTUMES MAY BE USED. No more than $4.00 may be spent, and a list of expenditures will be due in the Public Relations office not later than October 20.

Judges will be up to the number of participants in the skits and judging will be based on originality, showmanship and presentation.

At a recent meeting of the Homecoming committee chairmen, Sherri Cain, Homecoming Queen, announced the highlights of the 1951

Coach States Parade Details

Application Deadline Is Set For October 18

Deadline for organizational application to enter the Homecoming parade is October 18, it was announced today by Coach Bo Williamson, chairman of the parade organization committee.

THE POSITION of the organizations taking part in the parade, he said, depends on the date their application was sent to the committee.

"We are placing the floats on a strictly first come-first serve basis," he said. If any organization wished to enter the parade with a float and they have not received an application blank from the committee they are urged to get in touch with Coach Williamson in the athletic office on the west campus.

MR. ROD K. SHAW, business manager of the university, has announced that there will be no unnecessary expenditures allowed for floats. All available trucks have been already loaded.

However, several business firms down town have expressed willingness to lend their trucks for floats.

A MAXIMUM OF $35 can be spent for floats decorations, the decorations committee has announced.

The parade will leave Westcott gate at 9:30 sharp, Coach Williamson emphasized. "We are getting excellent cooperation from the city police department," he said, and we want to keep things rolling because Florida A&M College has a parade scheduled right after we finish."

THE PARADE will leave Westcott gate, go down College Avenue to Adams street, swing south to Pensacola, then east on Monroe Street—then north on Monroe past Tennessee St. where the parade will break up formally.

Tolly Ho Pictures

Any new organization on campus that wants a page with a picture in this years Tally Ho annual are asked to contact Lorinda Carson from 10:30 a.m. until 12 noon on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday in the Tally Ho office.

Seven Movie Personalities Arrive by Plane On First Stop of Statewide Movie-Time Tour

Seven movie personalities arrived by chartered plane Sunday afternoon at Dale Mabry airport for their first stop on a state movie-time tour.

On hand to welcome them were Mayor William Cates of Tallahassee, Ruthie Carnl, Miss Tallahassee, Mr. Bill Gordon, Florida representative for Movie - Time, and other officials.

WFSU ANNOUNCERS, Neil Jacoby and Bill Baas, were there with portable microphones for on the spot recording of the event. From the airport, the stars were escorted by cars to Wakulla Lodge south of Tallahassee for an informal dinner. Yesterday they were honored with a reception on the capitol steps by Governor Fuller Warren, his official cabinet, and State Supreme Court members were on hand to welcome them.

LATER IN THE EVENING a lunch banquet was held at Wakulla Lodge by the Governor, for movie exhibitors from all over the state, the guest stars, members of the press and the radio, and others connected with the event.

Celebrating the National Golden Jubilee of American Motion Picture Theatres, these seven stars are only a few of the 200 who will tour every state in the Union for one week. They will end this tour in Miami this week-end at the opening of the Annual Convention of the American Legion, where they will meet General Douglas MacArthur.

FOUR OF THE MOVIE CELEBRITIES originally scheduled to appear were unable to come due to illness. Among them were Alfred Hitchcock, noted suspense director; Maia Powers, feminine lead in Cyrano de Bergerac; Dale Robertson, male lead of Take Care of My Little Girl, and Brian Donlevy, of The Fighting Coast Guard.

The seven personalities who appeared are Michael O'Shea, who starred with Virginia Mayo, feminine lead in Captain Horatio Hornblower, Warner Brothers film. The Mudlark, new starlets, Genevieve Aumont, Jones Family screen writers Barry Trivers and David Chandler, and Michael Rennie, male lead in Lydia Lesser and The Day the Earth Stood Still.

A LUNCH was served on board to see the guests from Hollywood, and eager teen-agers were ready with their pencils, autograph books, and cameras.

As the stars emerged from the plane Jacoby and Baas were beside the door with microphones ready.

BOB GRIFFIN, editor of the Flambeau, and Harry Copeland, movie critic, were also present. They climbed into the car of H. M. Addison, Florida Movie-Time Representative, for the ride to Wakulla Lodge.

Two autograph books rushed up and thrust their autograph books and pencils through the rear window.

"Are you one of them?" one asked dubiously.

"Sure," Bob said solemnly.

"Will you sign our books then?" the other asked.

Bob and Harry laughed and said they were only kidding. "It was a temporary thrill, though, to sign our names," Harry said.

Tomorrow Is Freshman Day

Day Students Plan Dance For Friday

Delta Sigma Omega, day students' organization, will sponsor an informal dance in the Student Union room tomorrow night from 8:30 until 11:30, Jerry Kohler's orchestra will play for the dance.

"Not only all students, but faculty members are invited to the open house dance," Inez Arnold, DSO president, has announced. Inez is in charge of the arrangements for the dance.

In charge of the decorating committee is Fay Coe and chairman of the refreshment committee is Dorothy Stevens.

The DSO Club meets the second and Monday of each month in the Alumni building, Inez said.

Wallace Dynes Named Chairman

Wallace Dynes has been named chairman of the speakers section of the Omicron Delta Kappa speakers bureau, Dick Bradley, announced today. Bradley is in charge of the overall activities.

Students desirous to represent Florida State University are asked to contact Dr. Wayne Minnick, department speech, or Wallace Dynes. Students should list their name and box number at the information desk in the Alumni Building.

Applicants will be screened for Florida talent and a panel of final speech. Minnick and Dynes will handle the screening.

Bradley has emphasized that the extra-curricular leadership of the organization will be considered in their selection.

Last Spring three students Al-Hamilton, Bill Askew, and Ted Steinmeyer addressed several civic clubs in Florida under the sponsorship of the ODK Speakers Bureau.

NSA Will Help Florida State Realize Its Highest Ideals

Certain mmebers of this student body would like to see Florida State University join the National Student Association. Are you one of these persons?

Three hundred other colleges around the country have already taken this step toward an active liberal student government. These schools of higher learning have benefited greatly by joining. Are we going to allow ourselves to profit by joining this national group or are we going to sit back and do nothing about it?

There are other members of this student body who feel that we have nothing to gain by membership in the NSA. There are administration members who, along with the above students, feel that the NSA is too radical for our "Southern conservative blood."

What is radical about this organization? Their constitution states: "We, the students of the United States, desiring—to maintain academic freedom and student rights—to stimulate and improve democratic student governments—to develop better educational standards, facilities and teaching methods—to improve student cultural, social and physical welfare—to promote international understanding and fellowship—to guarantee to all people because of their inherent dignity as individuals, equal rights—to preserve the interest and integrity of the government and Constitution of the United States of America, do hereby establish this Constitution of the U. S. National Student Association." Does this sound radical? Rather isn't it similar to inherent principles maintained by our U. S. Constitution and by the United Nations.

If it seems radical to want to help ourselves and other similar institutions around the country and to foster international understanding and fellowship, then we can proudly call ourselves radical, along with our country's highest ideals.

In the final race, the decision is up to you, the students. If you feel that FSU needs NSA and that they need us, contact your respective class senators. Discuss the problem with your other class officers and your student government officers. Let them know just what you think about the matter. Much can be gained by sharing our failures and successes with 300 other colleges. Often they can offer solutions to our problems. Often we can help solve theirs. By joining NSA we can help build better relationships today, in the United States and around the world, for a better tomorrow!

● TRAFFIC SOLUTION

For years we have griped about the traffic problem. Maybe we have found the solution to it.

Last year some students and the Flambeau came to the unreasingly for the establishment of a student traffic court. Independent committees worked to alleviate the parking problem. A provision was at last made in the constitution for the seating of the court, but through the state legislature, jurisdiction over our streets was given to the city. We entered school this year with the same traffic problems. But a solution is on its way.

Fifty years from now, or perhaps sooner, Florida State University should have no traffic problems. Plenty of parking space will be available. The traffic might be of a little different nature, however.

Under the Fifty Year Plan most of the new buildings will be room to accommodate for bicycle parking. Bicycle ramps are also to be built down to the rooms, and there will probably be racks stationed over the campus.

What change all these bicycles will effect on the university can only be imagined. Instead of "No Parking Signs" there will be signs saying "No Riding on the Handlebars." The judge in the traffic court will be saying "Did you or did you not take your hands off the bicycle when you were going nine miles an hour?"

The greatest disadvantage to a bicycle university here would be the hills. More students would be tempted to skip their classes if they had to pedal up and down three or four hills to get there. Imagine the frame of mind of the student who has to cycle six or seven blocks to go to a class where he has to play a fast game of tennis!

A cycling student body would also call for new clothes styles. The men will be wearing pedal-pusher length trousers and the girls will have to start forming a wardrobe of shorts, slacks and short full skirts.

Although a bicycle campus may make drastic changes in our way of living, at least we will not have to contend with the traffic problem again.

● KLAN OINKS

One great newspaper in the South, the Atlanta Constitution, runs a daily column by its editor, honest, intelligent Ralph McGill.

He wrote his daily front-page column recently on the "smear Eisenhower" campaign of the Georgia Ku Klux Klan.

McGill aptly labeled his column . . . "Pigs grunt at Eisenhower."

Some newspapers in this state have been carrying small stories that a fellow grunter giving his blood to the boys in Korea . . . all of it!

Dear Editor . . . . . .

O'Dare Warns

It has come to my attention and I think it only fair for me to warn those poor Frosh that haven't heard the news, that a member of the Sophomore Rat Court is stationed in the arrade between Reynolds and Bryan Halls to catch all unwary Freshmen that pass by him in the course of the day.

The Sophs are on their toes, Freshmen, so you'll have to be on your, too! These upperclassmen have sharpened their eyes, so spot bare heads sooner; their ears, to detect the Frosh who whisper: "I didn't have time to put my rat cap on, I was late for class!" and their wits, to torture the captured offender. You will have to be just as sharp or else you will have to be satisfied to wear your rat cap all the time.

You Freshmen have one consolation, though. If the Frosh win on Freshman-Sophomore Day, you will have the privilege of throwing the Chairman of the Sophomore Rat Court in the fish pond. (It is also rumored that a certain John Adams will get the same treatment IF the Frosh win.

I'm counting on you, Freshmen, to win those games.

Day O'Dare.

SORORITIES BREED SNOBBERY—LOOK

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

Sororities have been called a lot of things in their time, but Look Magazine really got tough by publishing "The Great Sorority Swindle" in a recent issue.

It is a fierce indictment of the Greek system—from Pasadena to Tallahassee—by a group of the individual members.

The article is worth your while, either: it's by Rosalind Smith Robinson, who was Greek and is not bitter. She's come up with a bright, readable article, filled with quotations.

She claims that sororities should be abolished from American campuses because of snobbery, intellectual dishonesty, and radical discrimination. She holds, that sororities are a "Swindle," for both the girls who are excluded and those who join.

While the systematic snubbing of non-members often leads to bitter unhappiness, it is the chosen few who become the real victims, she says.

Sororities demand of a girl that she become expert in the tricks of the most pathetic and selfish avocation—social climbing with all its opportunism and insincerity." Mrs. Robinson writes in her Look article.

To make an impression of wealth during rush week, freshmen co-eds have been known to rent a convertible and buy swank hats to go with their clothes. But behind a facade of snobbish conversation, dirty jokes and gossip are the favorite sorority topics, she observes.

In a scathing indictment on the count of racial and religious discrimination, Mrs Robinson cites the fact that most sororities limit their Catholic membership to 5%, and that Jewish girls cannot be pledged by gentile sororities unless they are exceptionally beautiful, talented or rich. She was herself once blackballed "treachery by her own sorority for dating a Jewish boy, but was later "forgiven."

HEAD LINES

JUDICIAL BRANCH NEEDS MUCH IMPROVEMENT

By ALLAN HEAD

The Judicial Branch of our government still needs a lot of work done on it, as is illustrated by this incident which took place since the beginning of the semester:

A girl was tried for violating one of the social rules, pleaded guilty, and was told the penalty. But the penalty was wrong. She had was the right penalty, and had to "cheer" at the Dean of Women's Tea enough. It was not and so the next day the girl was informed of the re-strictions.

This fumbling around has got to stop. The fumbling around last year the court system lost a lot of precious time in the eyes of student body. If they have to go running to the Dean of Women for the first time every time they get a case, we had just as many girls as we have now, and our own court system and let the Administration take over again next year. Let's have a strong University Court (Honor Court).

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

HAZING HUMILIATES ITS VICTIMS

By ENOMY KING

(This is the last in a series of three columns about "Hotty-Toddy, Hazing and Initiation.")

The material was taken from the files of the Florida Flambeau, several bound-out issues of the Press features, and clippings from the Miami Herald.

Charlie, the Flambeau gremlin, opened his file to the last section. He, like many others, found information in me.

"A year before David Kraslow did a series of stories about Hell Week for the 'Miami Herald,' Charlie remarked. "There are some of his clippings."

Mr. Kraslow's story in the series interested me very much. It seems that the University of Miami's Frosh had been hazing—after the death of two students during a year—but there was also no physical violence during initiations.

An amendment to the IFC constitution forbis frats to have possessive meetings, and to be detrimental to their welfare, and it sets up strict action against any violators.

The new policy stresses "service and initiation" and eliminates the needy instead of needing the helpless."

SEMINOLE SCENES

SAD FROSH?—LOOK AT DARK AGES

By FRANCES CAWTHON

We students do love to complain about our university life. The administration never does anything right, the professors don't know how to teach, and the food in cafeteria is not as good as in other universities.

Admittedly, we have grounds for complaint sometime. But I do not think that we have a real list of grievances than we. I have been doing some research about the university life of yore. All I can say is, I'm glad this is 1951.

For a while I pondered the present college life as it used to be. Maybe then we will be a little more thankful for the things we have now.

This first column I dedicate to the Freshmen who complain about rat caps and the hazing.

In the deep, dark Middle Ages the Frosh really had a life. For one thing, they were often forced to buy meals for upperclassmen. (On second thought, maybe the ole days weren't so bad after all.) All this feasting money which the Frosh were to spend on the upperclassmen eams out of their funds to live on for a year. If students still eat so much as they used to, I imagine there were always many hungry Freshmen. Buying wine for the gays also had to be considered by the Frosh, by the way—I doubt many these days go about buying "beer for the boys."

Also no Freshman could assume the duty of the professors in many places unless he paid for its use. Even after the poor Frosh paid for his "honorable duties" he had to give another feast and take an oath. Then, after he was down to his last dime, he could be called "student." Students have been financially broke for years.

Instead of wearing rat caps, the Frosh was locked into school by a much more religious hazing. He was bonged on the head until sometimes I felt that he could keep his silence. There were raised up a couple of others down to take care of any slue he might have. Finally, when they thought his headache was good enough, they stopped beating on him and admitted him into the university.

At many universities Freshmen could not even get near an upperclassman. If they were on the street and saw a Senior coming they had to take all the back cage.

Poetically Yours . . .

By DAVE PINSON

BROWN-PETAL HEART

Like picking a rose from its Soil-nourished nest, and then
Tenderly its crimson-tinted water
Flowing silently, consuming all
God offered. I plucked the life
Of a love-touched heart, and then
Denied it myself, gentle, kind,
Yet sensual, and cried, aimless.
Slowly, living only on heart-given
Kindness, this love died from want
Of what I'd care to bide. In memory
A brown-petal heart comes to me,
And as I wander, friendless, alone,
I now revere, as I should have
Last in waterless waste, a shadow
Searching on a lonely dawn
For water to wipe the stain.

(Contributions to this column should be sent campus mail to Dave Pinson in care of the Flambeau. Please limit your poems to sixteen lines.)

Dear Editor . . .

Vicious Attack

Dear Sir:

In the Oct. 5 issue you printed a letter from George Lewis, which was ostensibly a friendly and impartial criticism of our own Emory King but was actually a vicious, swivining and underhanded attack on the very basis of Americanism, as exemplified in the fraternity system. We are not, after all, what is more democratic, that is to say American, than the fraternity system? The basis of the American System is the automatic raising to the top of those of ability and initiative, and this is exactly paralleled in the fraternity system.

Take George, by all means, I think it's tragic. It is a sad commentary on our educational system when I said on "tragedies" I meant we should be dreadfully emotic. Perhaps I was a bit too conservative in stating my views on the matter, but I assure you I mean. My editor won't let me print what I really think of the situation.

And, I have found, sharp biting criticism rarely does any good. It makes a person or group withdraw into itself and get mad at the paper.

It is my suggestion that the frats and sororities get together and decide on a plan of service for the campus and the community. Then put their pledges to work on it.

One Summer issue of the Reader's Digest ran a very good article on how frats might help the school and the town. It told of how a widow's house, or start a camp for underprivileged kids, or set donations for the campus chest, or . . . the list is unending . . .?

Sincerely,
Jane Atchley

"Blasher" Smith, Southern grid star who is tearing up the turf this year for Presidential U. is being interviewed by reporters. . . . Pottawotomie's Public Relations man is of course in attendance. . . .

Reporter: "What about your terrific high school running, Blasher, didn't you break all rec . . ."

Blasher: "Yeah, I sure showed them something, those clowns couldn't . . ."

Public Relations Man: "Ah, what Blasher means, boys, is that he guesses he was pretty lucky and he owes more than he can ever repay to his high school coach who was just like a father to him."

Reporter: "How do you explain your amazing success this year Blasher?"

Blasher: "Guess I'm just a hotshot, I always been talen . . ."

Public Relations man: "I think Blasher means to say that it's been teamwork that has got him where he is today. Isn't that right, Those sure have been wonderful."

Reporter: "How do you stand in classes here at the University?"

Blasher: "Classes . . . what classes? The Alumni Association got me . . ."

Public Relations man: "Ahh boys, Blasher is quite a surprise to Profs who expect football players to be dumb. He has an 'A' average which is hard to get when you are playing football and working your way through college."

Reporter: "Blasher, you've been mentioned for All American this year. What do you think about it?"

Blasher: "They damn well better name me, I've got the best . . ."

Public Relations man: "Blasher was about to say it's too much to hope for, though he dreamed of it as boy on his father's farm in Pennsylvania."

Reporter: "What's the story on Klusewitsky, your blocking back. . . . Some say he's the reason for your phenomenal success."

Blasher: "That bum has two left feet, he . . ."

Public Relations man: "No one can quite describe as saying he owes all his success to Klues. He deserves to be All American. Incidentally boys, Klues is Blasher's best friend, they're always together."

Reporter: "One last question Blasher, What's the first thing you're going to do when the season's over?"

Blasher: "First thing I'm going to do is get stiff as a board then find me a woman and . . ."

Public Relations man: "Ahh, what Blasher means to say is that he's looking forward to breaking training with Mom's apple pie and plenty of Ice cream. Then back to studies. You can quote him as saying 'I'm just another student.' Now, if there's anything else boys, I'll be glad to tell you, I . . ."

NEW RELIGIOUS CENTER

Students to Dedicate House

Westminister House, campus Presbyterian center, will have its formal opening and dedication service, Wednesday at 4:30 p.m This latest edition to the University's religious buildings is located on the northeast corner of Park and Copeland Streets.

THE DEDICATION service this week will be held in conjunction with the meetings of the Presbyterian Synod of Florida, currently in session at the First Presbyterian Church of Tallahassee. Presbyterian ministers and church officers of the state will be present at all activities scheduled by the Synod this week.

Guyte P. McCord, Sr., clerk of the Florida Supreme Court and chairman of the Tallahassee Presbyterian Student Work committee, will preside over the Westminister dedication service. His address will be followed by the ceremony of handing over the keys of the completed building to state Chairman, Dr. Albert J. Kissling of Jacksonville.

ANOTHER NOTABLE on the program is Rachael Wylie, Dean of the Presbyterian Assembly's Training School of Richmond, Virginia, and former Presbyterian student worker of Florida State College for Women. While working on the campus from 1930 to 1940, Miss Wylie inaugurated the movement to secure Westminster House.

Others on tha program are Dr. Lawrence Stell, and Dr. Hunter Blakely, Secretary of Higher Education for the Presbyterian denomination.

At the close of thet service, students will direct tours of the house and serve refreshments in the recreation room.

Director of Westminster House is Miriam Wilson and president of the Youth Fellowship is Louise Ware of Miami.

Four Co-Eds Stranded On Steps of Capitol

Standing on the steps of tha State Capitol yesterday afternoon were four co-eds, Carole Peterson, Ann Spencer, Pat Hubert and Jayne Gardner. They had been stranded and were at a loss as to what next to do.

THE GIRLS HAD BEEN invited to participate in a welcoming ceremony for visiting movie stars Michael O'Shea and Michael Renee, who are conducting a good will tour throughout the nation. The company is entitled "Movietime USA."

These four wera among fifty invited to hostess during the stars' stay in Tallahassee. They were left without means of transportation after the ceremony, when a bus scheduled to take them back to the campus, left while they were still inside the building.

THE GIRLS THEN asked permission to speak with Governor Warren about the matter. Jayne, the spokesman, said, "Governor Warren, I have some business to take up with you. We need some means of getting back to campus."

Governor Warren answered, "Why certainly, a state patrolman will be glad to see that you girls are taken back to the campus." While waiting for the patrolman, they were invited to listen to Secretary of State R. A. Gray explain the mechanics of the state government and cabinet duties to the visiting celebrities.

The patrolman made his appearance and escorted the four co-eds back to the campus, in the official Florida Highway Patrol car.

Historic Portraits To Be on Exhibit

A collection of historic family portraits of North Florida will be on exhibit at the Florida State Art gallery above the Seminole Club today through Nov. 9.

A formal receptio nfor the families who have loaned these paintings will be held tonight from 8 to 10 p.m. Prof. Edmund Lewandowski, acting art department head, supervised the collection of more than 25 pieces of art from the private homes of Tallahassee, Madison, Marianna, Quincy, Perry and Monticello.

Those who worked to present the exhibition to the public were Mrs. Rainey Cawthon, Dr. James V. McDonough, Dr. Adolph Karl, Prof. Rudy —egart and Dr. Lothar Witteborg.

snub (due to his own personal unattractiveness) from one of our charming sorority girls. My advice to you, Mr. Cary, is to wait until you have been around a while, and have a chance to see how truly democratic our fraternity-sorority system is. Or better still let me echo the good old American cry of "Why don't you go back where you came from!" I actually don't know where he came from, but I have no doubt he came straight from Communist Red Russia!

Yours sincerely,
Fred Myers.

Film Club Opens Season With Verdi

The Newcomers' Film club, composed of faculty wives, at Florida State University, opened its 1951-1952 season last night at 8:15 in the Music auditorium, with the showing of Verdi's La Traviata.

The film, made in Italy by Columbia pictures, followed the plot of the oper afaithfully, and presents almost all the music. It was described as "enjoyable from beginning to end, both for good music and good entertainment."

Mrs. W. Bruce Weale, chairman, announced that any remaining membership tickets were sold betwene 7:30 and 8:15 the evening of the first performance, in the Music building at FSU.

Florida State University celebration, October 26-27.

DR. CAMPBELL informed the group that Dr. Henry G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. & M. College, and President J. Ollie Edmunds of Stetson University will be guests during the festivities. He added that Dr. Bennett will be principal speaker at the annual Garnet and Gold Key Banquet, 5:30 Friday, October 26.

John Newton Baker, director of public relations and general Homecoming chairman, explained the schedule of events planned for the centennial celebration.

UNIVERSITY CLASSES will be dismissed at 1 p.m. and 1:30 Friday, October 26. Alumni registration in tha Longmire Building from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. will follow with daytime judging of the sorority and fraternity house decorations from 4 to 6 p.m.

The Garnet and Gold Key Banquet will be held at 5:30, followed by tha annual "Pow Wow" in Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m. Night judging of decorations will wind up the activities for Friday.

The annual Homecoming breakfast and business meeting of the FSU alumni will be held in the Lafayette Room on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

ALUMNI REGISTRATION will continue from 9 til noon. The Homecoming parade, starting at the University and continuing throughout downtown Tallahassee, will get under way at 9:30 a.m.

Camp Flastacowo will be the scene of the barbecue at noon on Saturday, at which time special guests will be honored. The Homecoming football game between the FSU "Seminoles" and the Stetson "Hatters" is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. at Campbell Stadium. Half time ceremonies will be highlighted by the oifical presentation of the FSU Homecoming queen.

OPEN HOUSE, gatherings of former classmates, and informal coffees at various sorority and fraternity houses, will be held after the game.

Climax of the two-day celebration will be the annual Homecoming Dance in the Suwannee Room featuring Tex Beneke and his nationally-known orchestra.

Charles Hays, manager of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, assured the assembly that downtown merchants and business men are working cooperatively on street and store decorations for Homecoming Weekend.

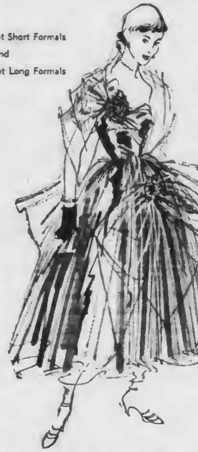
Zachara, Forman To Be Featured In Recitals

The Music Hall will be the scene of two faculty recitals this week. Franciszek Zachara will be featured, Wednesday evening, October 10 and Robert Forman, Friday evening, October 12.

IN HIS RECITAL of music for the oboe and English horn, Professor Forman will be assisted by Robert Glotzbach, pianist; the Faculty String Quartet; and John Boda, bassist. Faculty members that make up the Quartet are Karl Kuersteiner, Robert Sedore, Eugene Crabb, and Owen Sellers.

Professor Forman's program will include two concertos for the oboe. The first is an arrangement of themes from songs and instrumental pieces of Pergoles, and the second will be the work of Domenico Cimarosa, a contemporary of Motzart and Haydn.

HE WILL ALSO PLAY two selections for English horn, the solo from Act III of Wagner's Tristian and Isolde, and the Muezzin's Song by Richard Mohaupt.



Forman, a former member of the Wichita Symphony, is an instructor of oboe and bassoon in the school of music, and is first oboist with the State Symphony of Florida.

The other concert features Professor Zacnara, who has concertized in Poland, Russia, Germany, and Austria.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

This classy campus caper-cutter got his snootful of cute cigarette tests. It didn't take him long to dig out the fact that cigarette mildness can't be determined by a mere single puff or quick-sniff experiment! Millions of smokers, on and off the campus, have discovered there's only one true test of cigarette mildness.

IT'S THE SENSIBLE TEST ... the 30-day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a day-after-day basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why ...

Miami Overpowers Game Seminoles

The Seminole Scene

By Jim Court

Well, the big one is over and the Seminole's prestige has been far from lowered. Despite the score, the Seminoles displayed the determination and skill of a first class team as they came back in the second half to score twice against, what some people deem, an inferior Miami defensive unit.

In all truth, the Miami defense was not at its top strength, but it was far from its lowest, as many first team players were still on the field when the scores occurred. Likewise, the first string offensive unit did almost all of the running throughout the entire contest.

THE SEMINOLES WON THE HEARTS of the fans as they came back in that second half and played harder and better than they had in the first half. The FSU team was, in spite of its defeat, the most talked about thing in Miami the next day as people marveled at their fierce durability when much greater teams would have folded. Every man on the Seminole bench was straining to get into the game as they south, down to the last second, to win the ball game they hadn't been given a chance of even holding in the lower scoring brackets.

It isn't possible to describe the effort put forth on that turf last Friday night, but it will never be forgotten by the record opening crowd that flooded into the stands to watch.

Neither will it be forgotten by the two thousand Florida State rooters that journeyed south for the contest and further brought praise to our university by literally blasting the Miami rooters out of the bowl. With but a comparatively few, the Seminole cheering section shook the stadium throughout the entire contest, and like the players on the field, never gave up trying to crush the Hurricanes.

The FSU cheerleaders deserve not buckets, not even oceans, but worlds of praise for their finest performance, as they kept the fans yelling throughout. In a word, they were colpious, the FSU cheerleaders were much better than the home squad, as their rooters were almost always perfectly co-ordinated.

The halftime demonstration was received with the greatest amount of enthusiasm any other show, save the Orange Bowl festivities, had ever acquired. The world famous FSU circus "Flying High" was the feature attraction and their display was naught but breathtaking as the stands practically became mute with awe at the sight of the extravaganza. Their thunderous ovation was a simple yet significant reward for a job very well done.

The FSU band not only equaled the famous Miami "Band of The Hour," but surpassed them as many Miami fans said that the FSU "Marching Chiefs" were a band and played like a band should play, not a band acting like a symphony orchestra. Lest the students who didn't go to the game underestimate the entire performance of circus, band, majorettes, and the very capable rizers, I would like to quote one voice of many that aptly describes the entire FSU effort. "They're better than most professionals"- nuff said.

Dick Gutting and Larry Weston aided the FSU half time show with a brilliant display of intricate tumbling, and received the largest proportional applause for their effort. Another plug for the truly great FSU gym team. Concrats.

TOMMY BROWN, sor defensive and hicking star, on his way to paydirt after gathering in a pass from Nelson Italiano. Brown received injuries in the game and will be sidelined for several weeks.

Bi Y Plans Panel On United Nations Policy in Korea

"What should the policy of the United Nations be in Korea" This is the question to be presented in a panel discussion by the Bi Y organization of Florida State University Thursday night.

The discussion is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock in the Social Welfare building. On the panel will be Bill Upshaw, Millon Campioune and Wailes Dynes, moderator.

The Bi-Y, a combination of YWCA and YMCA, was founded on the campus of FSU the fall of last school year. Bi-Y is a student-led organization providing for a fellowship of those on campus who are interested in the works of YWCA and the YMCA in particular. Bi-Y is interested in the relationship of all the students on campus, regardless of nationality or religion.

Bi-Y would like any students on campus who have not joined an active organized group or student house to become a member of Bi Y for fun, fellowship and spiritual growth.

FSU Professors Initiate Chess Club

Faculty members, Dr. Thomas Gleeson and Dr. George L. Rogosa will initiate the organization of a chess club at a meeting Thursday, Oct. 11, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Student Union on West Campus.

All persons interested in chess as a recreational hobby are invited to membership. The group will plan games at the Student Union and will feature a beginner's class for all interested in learning the game.

W Campus Election

Three freshman men were elected last Tuesday as officers of West campus's lower floor of building 396.

The new officers are: Paul J. Ray, governor; Bill Custer, intramural sports director; and Donn Teal, social director and secretary.

Kappa Delta Pi Frat Calls Business Meet

Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary, will hold its first meeting of the year Wednesday, Oct. 10 at 4:30, in Room 201 education building. This will be a short business meeting and is to develop plans for the year.

The Kappas may renew membership by paying their dues, $2.00 per person and $3.00 for 2 persons of the same family. All actives must renew their dues at Room 201 in education building before November 1.

Free Foot Advice Offered Students

The foot clini cof the Women's Physical Education Department is offering free diagnostic and remedial services to FSU students, faculty, and faculty wives, and staff, who have functional foot disorders.

Clinic hours are on Tuesday and Thursday, 3:30-5 p.m. beginning Thursday, October 11, Women's Physical Education Bldg. room 212. Call extension 3361 for an appointment. For further information, please contact Doctor The foot clinic of the Women's gym.

Attention Chevaliers

All Chevaliers of the Order of DeMolay interested in fulfilling their obligation on the Day of Observance, October 15, are asked to contact David Free or Dick Brady in person or through Box 75.

Plans for forming a permanent circle in Tallahassee will be discussed.

Welfore Club Meets

The Special Welfare Club will hold its first meeting tonight October 9 at 7.00 p. m. in the Social Welfare building.

Joan Cross, vice president, urges all who are interested to attend. The meeting will feature election of officers and a guest speaker.

Seminoles Steal Spotlight With Grim Determination

FSU's debut into the higher circle of play received a far, but hardly a setback, as the Miami Hurricanes ran to a 35-13 victory before a crowd of 38,278.

Miami brought first blood after nine and a half minutes of the first quarter when Jim Dooley climaxed a thirty-four yard drive with a 20 yard scoring gallop off left tackle. Elmer Tremont added the first of his five conversions and the 'Canes were off to the races.

THE SEMINOLE defense held on viciously untill six minutes had elapsed in the second period when an FSU drive was stopped on the Miami four yard stripe Then the 'Canes went wild and marched straight down the field for their second touchdown, Harry Mallon lasting on the last 10 around right end. Tremont again converted and the score was 14-0 in favor of Miami.

Three minutes later, Mike Vaccho took off on the longest running play from scrimmage in Miami history, going 87 yards for the third Miami score. Tremont added and Miami was out in front 21-0.

The final touchdown of the night came second period with three minutes remaining, when Tommy Brown punted from the FSU 20 to Frank Smith on the Miami forty-seven, where he'picked up perfect blocking and romped all the way across the double stripe for Miami's fourth TD. Automist Tremont split the uprights and gave Miami a 28-0 half time lead

THE SEMINOLES came back with fierce determination in the second half, took the opening kickoff and started a 80 yard march that resulted in the first of Florida State score of the night Italiano, who had been stopped on the ground throughout the first half, passed to Bobby Pivesh in the end zone, for the last eight yards. Ernie Harris converted and the score was, Miami 28—FSU 7 with eight minutes remaining in the period.

Three minutes later, after a sustained drive and a fifteen yard roughing penalty, which put the ball on the FSU 3, Harry Mallon drove over center for the final Miami counter. Tremont again added and the score was Miami 35 —FSU 7.

After the start of the final period, FSU held the powerful Miami eleven and took over on their own 43. The Seminoles drove to the 41 and then Italiano faded and connected with Tommy Brown, who then scampered unhouched to paydirt.

GUSTAFSON PRAISED the Seminole team for their ruggedness and durability, and stated that the Seminoles might be engaged for a return contest in 1953 and possibly as the opening game every year. The crowd of 38,278 was a record for the opening home game in Miami.

Gustafson also stated that the Hurricane running attack would not gone as well without the brilliant blocking. He said that the Miami team was a fair improved team over the one that lost to Tulane a week ago.

Although Nelson Italiano was thrown for 16 yard loss via the ground, he connected for 7 of 22 passes and 108 yards, plus the two touchdowns. Preston Bradley and Mike Sellers led the running attack.

Executive Council Choose Who's Who

Juniors, Seniors Compose; Only Seniors Can Be Members

A committee composed of juniors and seniors on the executive council will select members to "Who's Who in American Colleges, it was decided at executive council Tuesday.

Only seniors will be eligible for membership. Last year's point system, revised by a committee headed by Mrs. Braley, will be used in the selection.

AFTER BRIEF DISCUSSION on possible Florida State Hall name it was decided to let this issue ride until next meeting.

Only three members from publications will attend the annual Associated Collegiate Press convention to be held in Pittsburgh.

One member from each publication will be allowed to go. The convention is the only national convention held for college publications alone.

BECAUSE OF A DROP in enrollment and increased traveling costs the executive council has limited activity money is being given.

Dr. Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare, stated that a "pay-as-you-go" travel fund policy is necessary because of a deficit incurred last year.

Tich Bo, Seminole Signals, and Flambeau will be affected by the drop. Per the by-laws, both business managers and editors have attended the ACP convention.

OVER 700 DELEGATES from the nation's college publications will gather to get information for next year at the three-day convention. Several persons on the council stated it was regretful that only one delegate from each publication will be able to go.

The executive council is waiting for the Tallahassee city commission to arrange a meeting with its municipal officials. Students attended the meeting will discuss the 10 cent bus fare.

BILL HARRIS has been appointed by one of the student government committees to fill the vacancy left by students wishing to work on the Flambeau staff as contact Bill at 2-8611 Ext. 75.

No additional committee heads have been appointed.

Freshman Flunkies Meet Wednesday In Longmire Aud.

The first Freshman Flunkie meeting will be held Wednesday, October 24, in the Longmire Auditorium Alumni building. This meeting will be for the purpose of selecting new officers and for signing new officers, it has been announced by Betty Rich, chairman of the Freshman Flunkies.

Working with the Freshmen Flunkies is one of the first ways which freshmen girls have of becoming associated with the university government association. The Flunkie group is a service organization sponsored by the university government association. Its membership is open to all freshmen girls.

The officers of this organization consist of a general over-all chairman, a junior chairman, a senior chairman, and a mixer-chairman. In a like manner the group is divided into three committees.

It is essential for all freshmen girls who are interested in becoming a Freshman Flunkie to attend the meeting Wednesday in the Longmire auditorium. Further details will be discussed then.

Faculty, New Students Have Chance to Meet

An Academic Convocation was held in the open air Theater for all freshmen students last Tuesday evening.

In years past the Convocation was held in the Westcott auditorium but this was changed this year because the auditorium has been condemned.

The purpose of the Convocation was to present the faculty to the new students and the students to each other. The excutive council and heads of the academic departments were presented to the Freshmen.

THE PROGRAM began with the band's "Coronation March" accompanied by Ramona Cruikshank Beard at the piano. The processional consists of the faculty which was led by Dr. Hale according to academic rank with the executive council in the first full professor second, associate professors third, and instructors at the last. Each group was followed by a marshall who proceeds the double column of faculty.

Each is generally clad in an academic attire. Some of the faculty even have their own colors some may rent theirs. These robes are very expensive for they are custom made. Students may easily stand for the wearers academic achievements.

THE PROGRAM went on to include a hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" by Luther and was directed by J. Dayton Smith. A Devotional was given by Wallace Kennedy. A wooelind Quintette consisting of Berril Boer, John Schuster, Harry Schmidt, Jerrold White, and Frank Starbuck played "Quintet" by Jacques Ibert.

President Doak S. Campbell addressed the students. His talk was very informal and was what he considered a fireside chat.

THE PROGRAM was concluded by the "Alma Mater" directed by Dayton Smith and the recessional to "Solemn March" by Gounod.

Intramural Debates Slated This Month

"Florida State University should establish its general education requirements." This is the subject to be debated at the annual intramural debate which every university debate squad is eligible to participate. Special meetings for those interested will be held October 16 and 23 in room 206 History at 8 p.m. Issues involved in the question and techniques of debating will be discussed.

Cast for Sandspur Production Now Posted in Lower Westcott

The cast for the 1952 Sandspur production, This is the Life will be posted on the Sandspur bulletin board in lower Westcott today, Bill Backus, producer has announced. The parts were selected last night at a meeting of the entire staff, after Flambeau deadline.

Over 100 students have tried out for Sandspur parts in the past week in the Music amphitheater. Backus said "We have considered the turnout very good", the producer stated.

THIRTY DANCING parts will be cast and nine singing parts for this year's musical. Twenty of the 50 people trying out for dancing choruses have been selected. The dancing choruses include modern, ballet and kick chorus dances.

One of the four leads has been definitely cast. Nick Pappas will be the part of Kerephon. Although Nick has had roles in the 1950 and 1951 Sandspur productions this will be his first leading role.

THE STAFF INCLUDES George Cary, director; Cosmo Cardone, assistant producer; Mickey Johnson, associate producer; Shaun Warner, music director; and Dan Dearing, author.

Jim Rae as business manager, Jere Salyers, public relations, and Adie Rice as personnel director finish out the production staff. Miss Elizabeth Lynn will act as special faculty advisor to the group.

Included in the Exchange assistants this semester are James Turvaville, John Burke, Willis Tyrell, Jim Lohmeyer and Jay Ladd.

Book Exchange Closes Tomorrow After 3 Weeks

The Used Book Exchange will close tomorrow noon with approximately $350 to be collected.

Tommy Bowen, exchange chairman, said that tomorrow will end the three weeks operation under the sponsorship of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity. The exchange will reopen one week at the end of the semester.

APO member, James Turvaville, has stressed that students remember to bring their receipts when they come to collect their money.

A student may leave his books in the Exchange for one year before they are forfeited. Funds not collected by the end of this one year will be used in the betterment of the student welfare on campus, Bowen said.

Operated on an entirely non-profit basis, the Used Book Exchange was set up last year for the benefit of students by the junior class.

Included in the Exchange assistants this semester are James Turvaville, John Burke, Willis Tyrell, Jim Lohmeyer and Jay Ladd.

Blue Jackets Make Plans to Decorate Homecoming Dance

The Sophomore Council met Tuesday night in the Music amphitheater to discuss the activities under their jurisdiction during the Homecoming weekend.

"The Sophomore Council is an honorary sophomore group made up of outstanding girls elected from the women's dorms last year.

According to President Jean Wetherell, the girls voted to work on the decorations for the TKE Beneke Homecoming dance October 27 in the Suwannee ballroom.

They will also be in charge of selecting the student body queen selects this year's Homecoming queen, and will assist the University vice president, Sunny Livingston, secretary; and Judy Simpkins, treasurer.

Scientific Lecture Given by Dittmer

Dr. Karl Dittmer, chemistry department executive, gave the first scientific lecture of the semester Wednesday night, in conjunction with the popular Sigma Xi club at FSU.

Speaking on "Molecular Structure Applied to the Control of Growth," Dr. Dittmer discussed the important role played by vitamins in the study of drugs for stopping the growth of certain other human parasites. Such bacteria when the student body drugs, he stated, are called "antagonists," and their closely related counterparts, if beneficial to human growth, are called "metabolites".

Having referred to work done on cancer and also an English scientist's recent isolation of a virus causing cancer in tobacco cut tuberculosis, Dr. Dittmer gave encouragement that "Someday, perhaps it will be possible to control the growth of all harmful micro-organisms."

Dr. Minnick Is New Sponsor Of Senior Class

Investiture Scheduled For Wednesday In Music Amphitheater

All Seniors and their sophomore brothers and sisters are asked to attend a meeting Monday at 5:00 in the Longmire auditorium to discuss Investiture, announced Dick Bradley, senior class president.

Dr. W. C. Minnick, assistant professor of speech, will be invested at the meeting as the senior class sponsor. He is replacing Dr. Sam Neel, who is serving with the Seventh Army in Korea.

INVESTITURE, which is a ceremony dating back to medieval times for the formal recognition of the Seniors' academic standing by the faculty and student body, will be held in the music amphitheater October 18.

Will Pennell, president of the University Government Association, will open the investiture proceedings with a devotional. Dr. Edwin R. Hartz, assistant professor of social work, will give an address, and Dr. Minnick and Marjorie Merkstroth, class marshall, will be introduced.

THIRTY SENIORS receive their mortar boards from their sophomore brothers and sisters as Student President Doak S. Campbell places one upon the head of Class President Dick Bradley.

After the capping the sophomore brothers and sisters usually sing the "Alma Mater" while the Seniors are to wear the tassels

Purpose of the ODK rally chairman, asker that sororities and fraternities encourage members to attend these rallies as a study befor their scheduled meetings. He also added that anyone desiring further information could contact him at extension 5721.

BILL BOE has listed annual rally sponsored by ODK, last year approximately 400 students were in attendance when Freshmen candidates made their campaign speeches.

All freshmen planning to run in the forthcoming class election must submit their names and this office they will run for to J. Broward Culpepper, Dean of Student Welfare. The deadline date will be announced later.

More Men Than Women Now

Nearly 6,000 Students Attend FSU's Classes

For the first time since the university system was installed at Florida State, the enrollment of men totaling 2,919 of fall college grade students, exceeds the enrollment of 2,544 women, by a majority of nearly 400.

The total enrollment at Florida State University for the fall semester has reached 5,924 students of all classifications, President Doak S. Campbell announced. All colleges have dropped from 5% to 20% in enrollment due to veterans who graduated in 1950. FSU has only dropped a very slight percentage.

FLORIDA STATE was founded in 1857 as a reconstructed coeducational school. By 1904 the enrollment had reached 252 and the following year it was called Florida State Teachers' College for Women.

The present name has been steadily and consistent throughout the past 4 years and has been more rapid than the growth of most of higher institutions generally.

OF THE TIME there were 1200 veterans enrolled in this institution but they never exceeded over 20% on the school enrollment.

In 1947 the enrollment was 2,292 and by 1950 the enrollment went up to 6,000 male and female students. Of these 6,000 students, 2,400 were women and 2,600 were men.

THE ENROLLMENT has increased by 3,850 in the past ten years.

Freshmen to Meet Tuesday at 7, 8 p.m.

Nancy Day told the Honor committee Wednesday evening that Freshman Orientation meetings will be held next Tuesday at 7 and 8 p. m. in the Longmire auditorium.

Speeches will be given at the meetings on the history of the honor system and honor and conduct in connection with world affairs. A skit demonstrating the mechanics of the honor system will be acted by members of the Honor committee. At the end of the meetins a document stating the honor code will be read and pledge cards handed out.

Bryan, Reynolds, transfers, and men's barracks 390 will have their meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. Broward and Three Men by George Sims, Jack Hopkins and Tom Crichton.

Dormitory 397 Holds Meeting

Residents of West campus' Dormitory 397 met for the first time Monday.

The enthusiastic residents vowed to make a name for themselves this year by participating in all organizitns many social and athletic events.

Officers for the lower floor are James Downs, governor; Bob Carrithers, social chairman; Jimmie Richardson and Budd Jolly, sports co-chairmen; and John Pierce, treasurer.

Upper 397 also held their election Monday. New officers are William Winner (governor; Stephen C. Wacker, athletic director; James McFarlane, social assistant; and Ralph Wilcox, reporter.

Must Frosh Wear Rat Caps Or Face Villian Rat Court?

In a hurst of rah-rah school spirit last year, the school senate passed a bill to establish a Sophomore Rat Court.

The purpose was, of course, to put the traditional beanie back on the heads of freshmen. This was supposed to increase school spirit and class unity.

It was hoped this year that freshmen would think enough of Florida State University to wear the little maroon cap until Thanksgiving.

And help it did . This year's class has caused most upperclassmen to turn around and at least take a second look.

The frosh seemed to show a certain aliveness, spirit, and energy which their more "sophisticated" brothers and sisters were perhaps afraid to demonstrate.

Upperclass men (and women) began to note that the deepest stag lines always appeared around Jennie Murphree, Reynolds, and Bryan dorms, respectfully of course!

The main cause of all the gaping, though, is the little garnet cap with the letters FSU on it . . . better known as the (ugh) rat cap.

This year's freshman class is the first group of frosh to wear the coveted beanie. It must indeed be an honor.

So far the cap has served its purpose well.

The frosh do seem to have more life and spirit, they do seem more friendly, they do seem to like the idea of tradition.

However, enter the villian . . . Rat Court.

The basic idea of the court, to 'encourage' frosh to wear said beanies, was fine, as outlined. An observation of the first court held proved that said members were following the outline. However lately, so the frosh say, the court is getting very pompus and elite.

The Flambeau believes that frosh should be encouraged to wear caps, for their own good. However if freshmen girls, most of the offenders seem to be girls, must miss their studies and bookwork because they were detained by Rat Court . . . let's be realistic court members.

Even the Freshman-Sophomore day has been blotted from FSU's schedule of activities. Instead, if Delta State loses to us this weekend, off come the caps. There are two reasons why cheers will go up from the frosh and Campbell stadium tomorrow night. First because the frosh are cheering the Seminoles to a new winning streak. Two, because it will be off with rat caps.

If Delta loses we're not throw the sophomores in the Westcott fishpond. Poor fish! the men, moving a piano, or doing any task which has to be done.

The college students and the townspeople who flock to his church will keenly feel his absence. "Preacher" is an unforgettable person esteemed by those of all faiths. We say to him farewell, and know that he will go on making other people's lives a little brighter.

● WILL YOU HELP?

Would you help a dying friend?

Yes, is the answer immediately.

The sentiment speaks your mind . . . a dying friend, certainly, you will aid. What a noble service! What a heart-warming thought!

This is what several persons have been asked by ODK on this campus. They have been approached to help a number of heroes in Korea by giving one pint of live-saving blood.

The Flambeau issued a call for pledges from campus organizations. Two groups, fraternities Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Phi Epsilon have pledged 100% donation to this noble service.

It is certain that this project will gain momentum as plans proceed.

The gift is small compared to the sacrifice the boys are giving. It almost brings embarrassment upon a person that he can do so little.

The drive has started on this campus. Any group wishing to pledge blood can contact any ODK member or write a note to the Flambeau.

● STARS HUMAN

People are people until they become Movie Stars.

This is what average Joe believes.. The color, glamour, gaiety of fabulous Hollywood rub off on those people when they work in the magic filmland.

It isn't so, as far as several FSU students are concerned.

No matter how famous a person becomes or how much glamour and importance supports his position the human element still shows through.

This was proven by seven Hollywood movie stars at a reception and dinner last Monday night. They forgot they were famous . . . they were just spotlight circumscribed the reception room till each individual felt equal and friendly.

The stars, here on a Hollywood promotion campaign, will certain reward their industry. They made a warm and lasting impression on the Florida folk from this area.

● FOR SHARP MEN

Florida State now has more men enrolled than women.

We take hack, University of Florida, the nasty things we've said about your pitiful gal-friend situation.

This statistic is going to make some women happy at FSU. It may help sharpen up some of the "I-don't-worry-I-can-get-a-date-anytime—" males on campus.

A women's note: "Ah men!"

● OR DO THEY?

The second meeting of the University senate was cancelled because a quorum was not present.

Jim Kirk, president of the senate, held his temper. It was observed that Kirk had high ambitions to run this year student senate effectively.

The Flambeau agrees with Jim that this second meeting attendance is regretful.

How many times is it going to happen? The senators represent the students . . . or do they?

● U OF F AFRAID?

FSU's second challenge to the Florida Gators for a post-season football match was still out today and students here are hoping that it will find a warmer reception in the Gainesville school than the 1950 proposal did.

The challenge was issued through the Flambeau today after the Seminoles returned from Miami, where they were licked by the Hurricanes from University of Miami, 35-13.

The proposal of a game after the end of the regular season last fall was spurned by the 'Gators who felt FSU wasn't ready for a billing with Southeastern Conference teams yet. It was issued through the FSU Student Senate.

A green light for the post-season tilt is almost certain if the 'Gators answer affirmatively. The squad is anxious to test the 'Gators out and Coach Don Veller has said a match will be okay with the athletic department.

W. F. Powers, secretary of the State Board of Control, who must sanction a post-season ladle affair, will be out of town until Monday and could not be reached for comment. His office, however, was ready to give the go sign if a game had been arranged in 1950, and it is expected that the Board will take the same stand in this instance.

Few students were disheartened by the outcome of the Miami game. The Hurricanes grabed a quick 28-0 lead in the locals, and led by this margin at the half.

The Seminoles took command after the second half kickoff and outscored their downstate rivals. Nelson Italiano, halfback whose running and passing sparked the Seminoles to an undefeated season last fall, began operations on his heaves.

He hit halfback Bobby Fivesah for the first FSU tally and later in the game connected with Tommy Brown for another six-pointer.

Sentiment for a game with the Gainesville college has been running high here for two years.

When the 'Gators turned a cold shoulder on the Seminoles' hid for a game this year, FSU turned to Miami, which was interested.

Local fans will be never satisfied until University of Florida squad in any sport, although they have been successful in games with teams which do play the 'Gators.

These teams have also been opponents of FSU.

● FAREWELL STELL

When someone moves away from Tallahassee, no matter how prominent he may be in city circles, it is not usually mentioned in our student newspaper.

This year a Tallahassee citizen is going to leave for North Carolina. There will be few people in Tallahassee and in Florida State who will not feel as if they are losing a very good friend, and a worker for the welfare of both city and university.

Reverend Lawrence Stell, minister of the First Presbyterian church, has since he came to this city worked with us at the University to help make it a better place. He has been a willing speaker at our teas, baccalaureate and in any other way he could help serve.

His popularity does not stop with the Presbyterian students. It is a common thing to hear students say, "No, I'm not a Presbyterian. I go to that church because I can really feel I am getting something out of the sermon."

"Preacher," as he is called by everyone, does not pretend to be a man set upon a pedestal because of his vocation. He will be seen toiling un his sleeves with the rest of

EDITOR'S SPOTLIGHT

ZEUS STOKES, SORORITIES RED HOT

By ROB GRIFFIN

Garland Stokes, president of the Inter-fraternity council, stormed into my office in a fit of temper Tuesday after the Flambeau came out.

He had the paper opened to the editorial page. Barely making out his incensed babbling, I learned that he was 'burned up' over two columns in the paper—the Flambeau Magazine's article on Sorority Snobbery, and Emory King's piea for worthwhile projects for Fraternities instead of humiliating hazing.

It was Garland's hot observation that the Flambeau had its timing off in issuing these two articles because this week was fraternity rush week. He broudly and unquestionably thought the Flambeau was misleading and unjustifiable. The insertion rushed mind.

So Garland, I'm afraid that the timing was precisely as planned. If the Flambeau senior staff had been in session from time to time more complete examination of the Greeks life at FSU could have been presented.

Zeus Garland. It takes people with the courage to face and do a thing with which they disagree yet evaluate an article for the truth it contains.

One sorority, Phi Mu, brought up the column in their meeting. They discussed it, then examined their own group to see if any of Look author's accusations were true.

It was later related to me that something good came out of the column. The Phi Mu girls have pledged to continue their desire to be more democratic among themselves. They will try to exhibit only fair discrimination when they arise in their group.

By the icy stares this columnist received, most of the sorority girls have learned principles of simple logic.

It is used thus: The LOOK article accuses Sororities of Snobbery. I belong to a Sorority. Therefore Look accuses me of snobbery.

Let's look at Sororities on this campus. Do the evils presented in the Look article prevail? In many cases they do. But I believe the picture is not painted of this campus. The comparison fits only in special cases.

The Flambeau hopes the article shocked the sorority girls into at least a discussion of hurt feelings because of sorority snobbery and discrimination. This goes for fraternities too.

The ideals of fraternities and sororities are fine. They are social groups supposedly bound by the spirit of love, devoted to the interests of the group. The Flambeau wants the Greeks to give constant thought to their constant thought to their ideals.

The Greek Injun! a pamphlet published by the Inter-fraternity council, presents finally the Greek's side of joining a fraternity.

However, some of the pamphlet was pure gush. This 'home away from home' sentiment is a bit heavy for a group of men.

Emory King's series on the country's outlook on fraternity hazing was reprinted, mainly, from the Associated Collegiate Press Review. The Flambeau staff thought that the student body would find the information collected from other college papers interesting and enlightening.

Zeus Garland pounded on the editor's desk championing the cause of the Greeks at Florida State. He mouthed his speal as best a disciple of Fraternalities. Best take a survey next time your emotion overcomes your mind, Garland.

BAD POLITICS SHOWN BY FRAT MEN

BY ALLAN HEAD

OPEN LETTER TO MEN SENATORS:

Dear Boys:

So sorry you weren't able to get to University Senate last Wednesday. Everybody missed you, especially "Pancho Siver," who looked rather isolated. He was the only man senator there, with all those women around.

Jim Kirk fell rather hurt over the absence, and I don't blame him. It felt as badly about it that he called off the meeting until next week. His excuse was bad, though. It wasn't a quorum, but he couldn't fool me. I'll bet you were playing poker in a corner after everybody else had gone.

Naturally, a number of people wondered where you were; in fact, everyone that was there when you said didn't show up wondered where you were. That included Dean Culpepper and Miss Warren. But I'm sure they understood when it was explained to them that you were busy with fraternity business and couldn't make it. So don't worry.

After all, frat business and rushing is more important than your duty to the student body, isn't it? Important enough that you'd choose promises you made when you were fellow students elected you to university senate? Must be, otherwise you would have been there. You could not have been too busy day so that senate business could be taken care of . . .

Had politics begun right now? You see, the Flambeau has been carrying a number of editorials and columns concerned with the bad aspects of fraternities and sororities in general. And so far, these editorials and columns have brought the FSU fraternity system bad managerial to escape most of these evils. When you do escape them as obvious as this, however, people are going to start wandering.

You and I know that fraternal love and brotherhood comes before everything else—including obligations and responsibilities as a university senator—but do you think it good public relations to let that get about just now? Some of these idealistic independents might not understand.

They might even think that it would be better to only elect independents, who would wouldn't be tied down to a special interest group. So if you've got a better excuse, be glad to hear it.

Jarry Thomas pulled out of his coming Queen committee. When he learned that Landis Hall had selected Jeannie Hair as a candidate. He and she are so woozy about each other that neither of them can see straight. And knowing how fast rumors can get started around here, he figured it was best to let John Newland take over that particular job.

Sad affair, that business of Landis Hall and Jeannie Hair as a candidate. Landis Hall had originally selected Jeannie Hair as a candidate for the Queen committee. When she learned that Landis Hall had selected Jeannie Hair as a candidate. He and she are so woozy about each other that neither of them can see straight. And knowing how fast rumors can get started around here, he figured it was best to let John Newland take over that particular job.

FLORIDA POLITICS

POLITICOS ARE HAPPY ERVIN WON'T RUN

By PAUL GARRISON and VERNON PEEPLES

Bradley Odham, 22-year-old past president of the Florida Jaycees, formally announced his candidacy for governor in a statement released earlier this week.

He is a former Florida legislator, having served in the 1947 and 1949 sessions as a representative from Seminole County. He was selected in 1947, as the outstanding young man of Florida and was selected by the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of five outstanding young men of Florida in 1951.

Mr. Odham's primary purpose will be 'to throw the commercialized gambling racketeers, their henchmen, out of state and local governments." We assume that he will be backed also in his convictions and obviously made the statement in all sincerity.

However, in light of the recent unfavorable publicity concerning corruption in Florida, a pledge to clean up gambling appears to be an absolute necessity for any candidate who wishes to establish the successful possibility of any candidate at this time, nevertheless, the fact that Odham has an outside chance and will probably have the strong support of several prominent Florida business concerns.

Richard Ervin, honest and competent Attorney General, announced his candidacy for re-election recently. His official announcement caused several Florida politicos to breathe a sigh of relief since the personable Ervin would have been a potentially powerful candidate for governor, had he chosen to run. It is virtually a foregone conclusion that Ervin will retain his office as Florida's Attorney General without a hitch or no opposition.

Florida U. S. Senators, Spessard Holland and George Smathers, recently voted in favor of the Bricker amendment to limit the pennny postal card, increase the rate of the three-cent stamp to four cents, and upping air-mail rates from six to eight cents. The post office department has operated on a deficit for several years, however the Senate has ignored the recommendations of the Hoover Commission which called for a complete reorganization of the postal system.

The solution to the deficit could be found, we believe, by increasing to measures placing the blame squarely on an already ta-weary citizenry.

SEMINOLE SCENES

A PLAGUE TAKE THY CLASS, THOMAS!

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Things haven't changed much.

In a musty old document called "Alvarus Pelagius on the Faults of Scholars," dated 1322, is what was considered traits of bad scholars by the 1,300 standards.

This Alvarus Pelagius (yan name it, I can't) says, one of the faults of students is that "they frequently learn what they would better ignore . . ." I can but wonder what Dean Adolphus, hast than heard the latest joke about the . . .?' Seems so in those days, too. "They attended classes but made no effort to learn anything . . ." And for their faculty reviewing head, it is said, "Of all the thing, they "sometimes considered zealous and conscientious officials". Instead of getting a "notice from Olis" however, they were "subjected to blows of rods, a method of coercion."

Bad students, continues this AP release, did not go to church. If they did, it says it was only "to see the girls and young men." They also formed parties and tickets in elections. Well, we don't have political parties here, but maybe Gator Land can take note.

The Dear - Dad, - am - fine,- send-me-$25 type letter must have been in style then too, as the essay on the faults of students also mentions "unnecessary debts, sometimes without paying them. Conversations like the following must have been common place:

"Thomas, let us go down to the University Point and have a couple."

"I cannot, James, old friend, I must write a report on 'The Commentary of Alexander on the Metaphysics of the Supersensory of Aristotle' for science class tomorrow."

"A plague take thy science class, Thomas! Let us go. Citalinges thee to a game of hearts a'reverse."

"Well . . . (pause) As I am in dire financial straits because of losing that game of poker last night, I will take thee up on the offer."

The universities said "tsk, tsk" to the students of such customs as this. "The expense money which they have from their parents or churches, they spend in taverns, playing games and other superfluities, and so they return home, empty, without knowledge, conscience, or money," according to this Alvarus Pelagius guy—or thing.

The Alvarus One did entered too much "gadding about town with their fellows." When they were supposed to be in church or class they were always other things to occupy their minds. Many changes have come about in the years, but one thing seems to remain the same—the college boy.

So Magrie Truman is going to sing here . . . I don't envy her position. It must be bad to have an audience composed of people who come to hear you because of what your father did —or did not—do. If she hits a sour note, every flash cover will probably jump up and mutter something about "that blankety-blank Truman administration."

THE HOMESICK FRESHMAN
By Pat Hebert

From the falling light of stars
Into the darkness of some clouds we saw things like this:

people walking and laughing, held for some vast moment in a net of cares, speaking to everyone, listening for once to us and remembering even when we didn't say anything what our eyes were like and how our hands touched things.

(And we were afraid; we who wanted everything.)
Out of all this and way something is born:
flowers nobody wants and laughter we can dance to.

Dear Editor . . .

Brave Man Adams

Dear Editor,

John Adams not Marshall, high exalted ruler of the Nut Court, not only feels his oats but eats them too, among other things, the ruling honor feels it his duty to furnish the court with as many rat cap offenders as possible. Methods used by hero John are unpintiable even in the Flambeau.

A transfer student, among others, indignant at this BMOC, succeeded in locating the whereabouts of Achille's chariot, but the windy master of the less airy steed was able to flee his pursuers although all two inches of them and halted the desperados. Brave man that he was, he brought the criminals to court where, dressed in the black robe befitting his station (more like a mortician's corpse he wielded his gavel of horror and sentenced her to death by gas. (More likely hot air).

It often puzzles me how courageous Johanathan can spit all the numerous freshman rats. I guess it takes one to know one.

Hope to present freshman class organizes the whole plan next year, and to this years sophomore class I commend you. If rules couldn't be more fouled up. Hope you can get me in court, too. Johnny, I need a good laugh.

Good luck Mullet Head,
Jim Coach

Wayne, Ryan, Marines In War Drama at State

By HARRY COPELAND

Playing for the last time today at the State theatre, Howard Hughes' new technic-color adventure-romance, Flying Leathernecks.

IN A WAR-TIME drama packed with danger and romance, John Wayne and Robert Ryan co-star as two U. S. Marine fighter pilots. The theme of the film is the importance of American air arm support to ground troops in the battle area.

The central conflict which provides the dramatic power for Guadalcanal to Okinawa is found between Wayne and Ryan, Ryan who is Wayne's executive officer, resents the latter's relentless insistance on discipline although he is loyal to the major personality.

JANIS CARTER, blonde lovely and the Hughes' production find-ette rumes the role of John Wayne's understanding wife. Other chief supports are Don Taylor, romantic lead in Father of the Bride, Jay C. Flippen, and William Harrigan.

Robert Mitchum becomes involved in a stormy romance with temptuous Jane Russell in RKO produced by the disturbing presence of Jana Russell, who sings two songs in the film. Five Little Miles From San Berdoo, and You'll Know.

The supporting cast includes Marjorie Reynolds and Vincent Edwards.

MITCHUM, a foot-loose gambler, finds himself caught up in a whirlwind of danger when he goes after three deserters who go to an elaborate hideaway removed on the Mexican coast for reasons to be explained when he arrives. The situation is further complicated by the disturbing

A formal reception was held Tuesday night for all those who had loaned pieces of art for the "Historic Family Portraits" exhibit in the University art gallery. Among the group were some direct descendants of the people in the portraits.

Exhibition of the 25 old portraits will continue until November 9 so that those attending Homecoming might have a chance to see them. The art department is in charge of the showing.

Stars Honored at Banquet

Six Florida State University students heard praise showered upon seven Hollywood celebrities Monday night by Governor Warren at a special banquet given in the stars' honor.

The students guests were Ruthie Gard, Miss Tallahassee for 1951; Bob Griffin, editor of the Flambeau; Harry Copeland, movie critic and Bill Bass, Nell Jacoby, and Choddie Devens from WFSU.

SPEAKING BEFORE an assembled crowd of movie exhibitors, film personalities, newspapers and radio men, and government officials at Wakulla Lodge, the governor was at his oratorical best.

Commenting upon the gifted ability of the governor, English Actor Michael Rennie said frequently and unasuming: "Anyone who would stand up and talk for more than one minute after your governor has spoken should have his head examined."

After an introduction of various personalities, Governor Warren, with his same flowery rhetoric, presented to the guests Barry Trivers, screen writer.

TRIVERS EXPLAINED that movie people were just like any other American in any other American city or town.

"They just happen to live in a so-called "Glass Bowl," he said. "Many things which happen to them happen to many people anywhere in the United States . . . many things which ordinarily are not caught up in a wave of sensationalism as they are in Hollywood."

Speaking with complete frankness, Trivers tried to show that people who go to the motion picture theatre are responsible for the type of pictures they see.

"THE MOVIE INDUSTRY wants to make money,' he said. "It can only do that by producing pictures which you want to see. If you like a particular picture, let your newspapers know, your theatres—It will eventually get back to the producers and Hollywood will make more of the same kind."

The screen writer then introduced other stars. First in line was Constance Smith, lovely star of Theodore Bonnet's The Mudlark followed by starlet Jonni Paris; Michael Rennie, tall, dark-haired English star of 12th Letter and The Day the Earth Stood Still; French starlet Genevieve Aumont; Veteran Michael O'Shea, star of Doc Jockey and The Renegades, and screen writer of Apache Drums, David Chandler.

The Stars split into two groups Tuesday morning. One half to tour east Florida, and the other half to tour the west. All seven will meet briefly with General Douglas MacArthur in Miami this week-end at the opening of the National Convention of the American Legion.

Miss Ainsworth Is Chosen President

Miss Mary Elizabeth Ainsworth, director of the Baptist Student Union house, has been recently elected president of the University Religious Council, an organization composed of representatives of the faiths carrying on active work at Florida State University.

Formed this year, the council will screen requests from religious organizations wishing to hold meetings on the campus with official permission.

Rev. Mr. Walter K. Morley, chaplain of Huge House, was elected vice-president; Rev. Mr. Clair Cotton, pastor, Trinity Methodist church, secretary, and Dr. Albert Martin university vice-president, treasurer.

Members of the council include the interchurch fellowship president, all full-time directors of religious houses conducting work at the university, a representative of the university executive committee, a faculty member of each faith conducting work, a pastor of a local church of each faith, and the university president and vice-president.

Mrs. Campbell Will Be Guest Speaker

Mrs. Doak S. Campbell will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Foreign Student's club to be held Friday, Oct. 19, at 7 p. m in room 403, Alumni Building.

All foreign students are urged to attend. Elections will also be held.

Art Club Will See Films At Meeting

The Art club will have its first meeting Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 p. m. in 407 Westcott.

President Dorvand Janson announced that two films will be shown followed by an organizational meeting to elect officers and make plans for a party.

The films to be shown are Pigmies of Africa and Salisbury Cathedral.

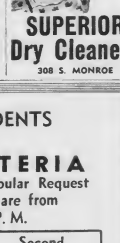
Business Honoraries To Have Meeting



Officers and sponsors of Pi Omega Pi, FBLA, Alpha Kappa Psi and Delta Sigma Pi are asked to attend a meeting at 5 p.m. today in 303 Westcott, announced Rosemary Schultz, chairman of the business reception for FBLA.

The meeting is very important, as a date will be selected and plans made for the annual School of Business reception.

Pledges, Parties, Homecoming Plans Among Activities of Frats for Week

BY MARCIA MORRIS

New officers of the Alpha Delta Pi pledge class are: president Cynthia Brown; secretary, Lillian Wyatt; treasurer, Peggy Schucart; chaplain, Mary Radcliff Monroe and reporter, Lynwood Evans. Ann Monroe is pledge trainer—Sunday night the ADPI's will entertain the fraternities with a coffee at the house.

Alpha Chi Omega's have chosen Anita Lunsford to represent them in the Homecoming Queen contest—Recently elected officers are Nancy Ricks, 1st vice president, and Mary Guttier, 2nd vice president.

Following the FSU—Delta State game tomorrow night, the Alpha Gamma Deltas will hold open house. Pledges will provide entertainment—Kappa Alphas and the Alpha Gam house for a party Wednesday night—Dr. Swerinen will speak to the group on October 23 — Alpha Gam Homecoming Queen candidate is Peggy Sparkman.

Chi Omega pledges have recently elected officers. They are: Joan Mikesell, president; Jan Crittenden, secretary and Marcia Mohr, treasurer — Saturday night after the game, the Chi O's and KD's will have open house at the Chi Omega house—New transfers welcomed by Chi O's are Mary Leslie Keen from Randolph Macon; Sue Schock, University of Tennessee; and Mary Davis, University of Alabama.

Initiated into Delta Delta Delta this weekend will be Gene Lu Armstrong and June McKinney—Tri Delta held their formal pledge banquet Wednesday evening at the Floridan hotel.

An open house after the game Saturday for members, their dates, and friends will begin the year's social calendar in the new Delta Gamma house. Delta Gams are entering Nadine Andrews in the Homecoming Queen contest — Isabelle Arfin and Nancy Mount are Miss Gymkana candidates—Barbara Jones is their charter pledge.

Delta Zeta has nominated Shirley Knight for Homecoming Queen—Betty Dale Caliscott will vie for the Miss Gymkana title.

The first pledge party of the year—a show boat party — was given by the Kappa Alpha Theta pledges Thursday afternoon — Thetas are honoring their new house mother, Mrs. Verzay, with a tea this week. All house mothers and faculty members are invited —Ardis Bouriand will represent Theta for Homecoming Queen.

Kappa Deltas held their pledge banquet Monday night at the Silver Slipper. Guest of honor was the National Scholarship Chairman KD, Katherine Byrd Whitner.

New officer of the Gamma Phi Beta pledge class are Helen Lawlor, president; Joyce Suber, vice president; Margaret Valero, secretary; Ruth Webb, treasurer; June Morgan, historian; Ouney Pendleton, activities chairman and Ann Hayes, Warpath club representative.

The Phi Mu house will again be the setting for an "after the game open house" Saturday night —A new transfer for Phi Mu is Betty Terry from the University of Georgia.

The annual pledge banquet of Pi Beta Phi will be Monday night at the Silver Slipper—A surprise ice cream party was given for the pledges after their first pledge meeting——Mary Francis Pinkston was elected new rush chairman for Pi Phi.

The Zeta Tau Alphas are also entertaining with an open house after the game—Joyce Smith is the chapter's candidate for Homecoming Queen—The Zeta house was the scene for a Delta Tau Delta rush party this week.

Alpha Tau Omega has begun the year without a house but with a new housemother, Mrs. Bradshaw, from New York. Ann Warren is ATO homecoming queen candidate.

Pi Kappa Phi recently pledged Tyler McMillan and J. L. Cox—Frank Bean was elected Social Chairman for rush week—Saturday night there will be open house before and after the game at the Pi Kap house.

Newly initiated members of Phi Delta Theta are John Butler, Steve Bailey, Rodney O'Connell, and Tommy Craft—Tom Cumble has been elected IPC representative for the coming year——Phi Delts attending the Regional Conference in Atlanta were James Thompson, Bob Serros, and Tom Cumble with Faculty Adviser, Karl Kuerstelner—The chapter is welcoming Mrs. Cora Rogers as their new house mother.

Initiated into Sigma Alpha Epsilon recently were Bob McAllister, and Jimmie Crowther. — Helen Claire Wheat is the SAE contestant for Homecoming Queen.

Sigma Phi Epsilon's are beginning the year with a new house and a new house mother, Mrs. Kemp from Jacksonville. A reception honoring Mrs. Kemp will be held October 21—Recent initiates of SPE are Jack Gardner, John Lata, Jim Drake's, Leo Cuischfield, and John Buckley—Eden Avis is their Homecoming Queen candidate.

Members of Kappa Sigma fraternity have moved into their new house at 112 S. Woodward St.—Officers newly elected and installed, are Hugh Hill, Grand Master of Ceremony; Paul Knepper, Assistant Grand Scribe and Bill Henson, Assistant Grand Treasurer.

Sigma Nu is working with Alpha Gamma Delta on the POW WOW skit contest for Homecoming. Joel Smith and Kitten Austin are co-chairmen — Floyd Fogle has been appointed permanent IPC representative — Intramurals chairman for Sigma Nu is John Newland.

Reshuffled Seminoles Face Statesmen

The turf will get a real going over in Campbell Stadium tomorrow night, if those many scratches and bruises on the battered Seminoles have anything to do with it. FSU will be in the same frame of mind that Miami was last week when they took their revenge out on the Seminoles.

With the accurate passing of Fred Foster, Delta quarterback, the game could turn into a real aerial duel, as the FSU squad continues to shift more and more of their offense upstairs. Nelson Italiano racked up another first last week in the passing department when he completed seven passes for a new single game high. He also threw the most that any Seminole ever has, when he tossed 39 into the Hurricane winds. His 107 yards in that game is also a new mark.

Big loss due to the Miami game certainly isn't spirit, as the Seminoles are determined to play their all against the Statesmen. Likewise, the students are straining at the leash to show that they are proud of the way the Seminoles operated in the Orange Bowl. This Delta State game must be the one where the stands are to be vitalized again(we can try, an way).

Without the services of Brown, Bringger, and Thompson the new shakeup will test Doc Veller's ability to improvise, a trick he is more than expert at. Don't be surprised if something sensational stems from it—the new lineup is loaded for bear.

What with Presto Bradley running like an All-American, Veller menu shift him into one of the starting spots if another injury occurs. It seems a shame to hold such a capable runner back for relief roles. (What is this, baseball?)

In any event short of a Seminole defeat the rat caps are due to leave the scene this week end. I predict a 28 point margin of victory for the Seminoles, unless the FSU team is really mad and then it could be higher. The Statesmen could surprise but not this week.

Basketball players are currently trying out for cross country records as Coach Bud Kennedy is getting his team in shape for the cosmic season which starts November 26, just two days after the pigskin woes into winter snowbirds.

Foster, Passing Ace, Looms; Mississippians Unpredictable

Florida State's battered Seminoles will try to return to the winning column tomorrow night when they meet the Delta State Teachers College from Cleveland, Miss. The foes to Miami equals FSU's longest losing streak under the guidance of Veller.

The Seminole backfield has received a thorough reshuffling by Veller in an attempt to make up for the loss of three halfbacks, who were injured in the Miami game last week. The injured backs who will be out until next week are Harry Bringer and Roy Thomason, plus Tommy Brown, top punter and safety man, who will be out for six weeks and possibly more. Thompson and Bringer have knee injuries while Brown is suffering from the same shoulder ailment that sidelined him last year.

THE SEMINOLE shakeup will end up with Mike Sellers 1950 all-state fullback, at quarterback with Nelson Italiano taking over the fullback spot while Bobby Fiveash will take over Italiano's old tailback slot. Curt Campbell who has showed improved running ability in his end arounds will shift to the right half or wingback position.

This will give the Seminoles a threat in either the fullback or left half position for passing or running as both Italiano and Fiveash are adept in those departments. Campbell will probably take over Brown's safety position, while Tom Sebring, Buddy Bryant, and Vernon Freers will substitute in the punting department.

VELLER STATES that this change was not necessarily forced by injuries but has been brewing for some time. He also added that Fiveash was tampered up into a fine versatile back, and that Campbell has natural running ability.

The Delta State Statesmen will be led by aerial artist Fred Foster who did a stellar job against the powerful Alabama Crimson Tide when he completed over sixty per cent of his passes, though they came out on the short end of an 80-0 score. Along with Foster in the offensive backfield will be Bobby Sanders, left half, Claude Woodall, right half, and Wimpy Reed, fullback.

Since that trouncing by Alabama the Statesmen had a 12-0 win over Ouachita, and last week lost to Arkansas 43-0.

County Club Meets

The Liberty County Club will hold its first meeting of the school year Oct. 15 in Dodd History at 7:30 p. m. W. O. Suler, Jr., has announced. They will discuss activities for the comming year. All members and interested persons are urged to attend.

"B" Team Ties Pensacola Alumni

The Florida State "B" team was content to tie the powerladen Pensacola Alumni Gaumania 13-13 Wednesday night. The Seminoles, one touchdown underdogs, came from behind in the last quarter to tie the potent semi-pro eleven, which has not been beaten in 37 games over a period of five years.

The Pensacola coach stated that the FSU team was the first team that had ever pushed a Cardinal combo all over the field. He said that the score was far from a proper indication of the way the play went.

The Seminoles wasted little time in taking the lead as they grabbed a Pensacola fumble on the Alumni 45 early in the first period. Two runs by George Carnes and Gary Folsom put the ball on the Cardinal eight, where Carnes burst through for the first score of the game. Charlie Booth converted to put the Seminoles out in front 7-0.

LATE IN THE SAME period the Cardinals started a drive that carried over into the second quarter and resulted in their first score. Bill Williams going the last yard for the counter. Frank Grasso missed his first extra point try of the season and the Seminoles still led by a 7-6 score.

The Cardinals took the second half kickoff started another long drive ending with Don Reynolds smashing through from the three, after the Seminoles had held for three downs. Grasso added to the Alumni lead in the first play.

Early in the final period, Gary Folsom, George Carnes, and Dave Stinson highlighted a 70-yard drive, with Stinson going over from eight yards out. The FSU try for extra point was blocked and the scoring for the night was over.

THE CARDINALS RECEIVED a gift late in the game when a Seminole drive to the Alumni 9 yard stripe was stalled by three successive penalties worth 35 yards. The Alumni took over the ball on their own thirty.

Coach Ralph Matthews had only praise for the entire Seminole team, as he was well satisfied with their performance.

Offensive standouts were Gary Folsom, Dave Stinson, and George Carnes, while Buddy Bryant, Gerald Smith, Roger Slabaugh, Don Linton, and Charlie Booth were defensive stars. Almost all the Seminoles saw constant action in a game marked by untimely penalties.

Gymnastic Captain Fast to Learn

He flys through the strato with the greatest of ease, the daring young man on the FSU flying trapeze Gerry, what? Not to the gentlemen who perform those intricate maneuvers, called routines, in an effort to gain the approval of Coach Hartley.

When he commands, up into the upper regions fly the gymnasts, led by newly elected Captain Jack Sharp. His is the job of going first and maintaining a straight face if he succeeds, and a stiff one if he fails. Although Jack is quite proficient on the rings at the stage of the game, he wasn't always so talented.

Tarzan Jack, 22, started back in 1944 when his best friend, teammate Jack Miles, induced him to go for a ride on the flying rings. Miles says that Captain Jack learned about six tricks the first day and hasn't been down, except to eat, since.

Recently Sharpy has added a few honors to the home mantlepiece among which was the 1945 Big Ten Ring championship and a third on the AAU rings with teammate Joe Ierna.

Jack was under the instruction of Dr. Price at the University of Illinois in 1947 and later, while at the Naval Flight Training base in Pensacola in 1949, visited the Florida State campus, to which he took a fancy, and soon he was here under the tutelage of his former coach.

Jack got out of the Navy and was immediately hired for a new job, a martial one. His wife, Almira, recently decided that there should be another ring man around, so they are currently expecting a baby in March. Junior will confine his early ring work to the trestman variety while Papa leads the Seminoles in quest of their second sweep of both the National AAU and Collegiates this spring.

SEMINOLES

Homecoming Queen Election Yesterday Declared Void

VOL. XXXVIII, No. 7 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — Tuesday, October 16, 1951

Seminoles Clamor For Gator Game

An Editorial

Florida State University thinks it is only natural, reasonable, sensible, and logical that we compete with our brother university, the University of Florida, in every type of athletic event, including football.

In this state there is a growing feeling that a post-season game should be brought about as soon as possible. Sports writers on the leading papers in the state are expressing their support of such a game.

After an editorial in the October 9 issue of the Flambeau (last Tuesday) was repeated by many sports columnists and commented on favorably, the move for such a game has drawn nearer.

Pete Norton, sports editor of the Tampa Morning Tribune, printed in yesterday's Tribune a letter from one Gator fan, who has followed the team for many years. After the Florida eleven had led Auburn for 59 minutes, then dropped a 14-13 decision he observed:

"All through the years Florida fans have been growling because we have never been able to win in the Southeastern Conference.

"I am now firmly convinced that they have been growling unjustly, and that it has been a case of our fans' Gator Complex playing in a league that was too fast for them.

"I therefore suggest that Florida join Suwanee in moving into a minor football league where the Gators would have a chance to win.

"It isn't fair to the boys to throw them against teams like Georgia Tech, Auburn, Georgia, and Kentucky, when everyone knows after 25 years they haven't a chance.

"The schedule would be revised next year to fit the needs of the Gator squad. After all, no glory can be gained by losing consistently in the SEC, and the outlook for victory isn't very bright."

Pete Norton agreed only partially with the U. of F. alumnus, who, so Norton says, happens to be a man who knows considerable about sports.

The Flambeau, in an open letter to the Florida Gators, urged a post-season tilt for charity. No answer has, as yet, been received.

Where is the opposition?

Bob Woodruff, football coach at the University of Florida, stated in an interview last year to the sports editor of the Orlando Sentinel, that he was not opposed to competition with FSU.

The board of control, often used as an excuse-device for people who wish to blame someone or pass off responsibility, has given an off-the-record green light. The match has been OK'ed by this university's athletic department.

Where is the opposition?

Simple deduction points out that certain members of the U. of F. athletic committee are opposed to the game. Each reason presented by them for not having a game can be torn apart with simple logic.

A dark and clean fight the U. of F. They must play such power-houses as Vanderbilt, Georgia, Miami, Kentucky and Alabama in the final five games of the season.

FSU also faces a tough schedule the next month. Stetson, Sul Ross, Bradley, and Tampa are all fielding excellent teams. Should FSU win every game and U. of F. lose every game . . . what then? Would the University of Florida then have "nothing to gain and everything to lose" in a post season tilt with FSU?

This editorial is being sent to sports editors of the leading and "influential" papers in the state. Perhaps they can help the University of Florida wake up to reality.

Tex Beneke

Homecoming Dance Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets for the Homecoming dance went on sale Monday, October 15, according to Bill Shipnorst, Homecoming business manager.

The dance, to be held in the Suwannee dining hall on October 27, will feature Tex Beneke and his orchestra.

THE HOMECOMING dance will be the climax of the weekend festivities. Tex Beneke, the Miller Orchestra, and vocalist Bill Richmond will be featured.

After Glenn Miller was declared "missing in action," during World War II, Tex Beneke took over the Miller nationally famous orchestra. Tex could have organized his own band, but preferred to carry on Glenn's name, and keep his band intact.

THIS WILL BE the fourth big Homecoming dance in Florida State University's existence. Last year, Charlie Spivak's orchestra played to a record attendance.

For the overflow of students, the women's gymnasium will also be available for dancing. Students should remember that the Suwannee room is usually filled to capacity and should plan to arrive early in the evening, if they wish to dance there. Shipnorst said.

IN CHARGE of the decorations for the Homecoming dance this year will be the Sophomore council who voted to undertake the project at a meeting last Tuesday night.

The Sophomore council is an honorary sophomore group made up of outstanding girls chosen from the freshman class last year. President of the group is Jean Wetherell.

First Candidate Statements Due For UGA Election

Students who wish to be candidates in the forthcoming Freshman elections should hand in their statements of candidacy to J. Bovard Culpepper, dean of student welfare, starting Wednesday. The deadline for qualification is Oct. 24.

Omicron Delta Kappa, service honorary for men, will hold its third annual campaign rally Oct. 29, in the music amphitheater so that candidates will have a chance to present their platforms. Primaries will be held the next day with a possible three precincts open.

A second rally will be sponsored by ODK on Sunday, Nov. 4 before final voting the next day. The ODK political rally will be the only opportunity for Freshmen to present their platforms before the primaries.

All students are asked not to place posters on the trees, or nail them into walls.

New Hotel Course Is Added to School

In recognition of the fast growing importance of motels in Florida's tourist trade, the Florida State University department of restaurant and hotel management has added a new course, Hotel and Motel Operations.

Dr. Donald E. Lundberg, head of the department of restaurant and hotel management announced that the new course will include business, profits, building, buying and leasing, front office operations, labor costs, food and beverage costs, engineering and maintenance, insurance, advertising and standards and tools of management.

Intramural Debate Meeting Is Set

All students who plan to participate in the annual intramural debate tournament are requested to meet tonight at 8 p.m. in Room 305 History.

The meeting will feature a brief study of the techniques of debating as well as some additional announcements concerning this year's tournament.

The question to be debated this year is, "Resolved that the United States University should abolish its general education requirements." Any student except a student who has not been a member of the varsity squad is eligible to take part in the debates to be held early in November.

Honorary Members To Attend Breakfast

All active and former members of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership-scholarship society, are invited to attend the annual alumni breakfast, Saturday, Oct. 27, at 8 a.m. in the Lafayette dining room.

An alumni section is being reserved for all ODK members.

Any member planning to attend is asked to contact Harry Copeland, Box 28, before Oct. 21.

Rhodes Applicotions

Application blanks for entry into the annual Rhodes scholarships competition may be obtained in the office of the dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Edwin R. Walker. The scholarship competition will take place in all states in December, be said.

Chief Justice To Be Elected Today At Polls

Primary elections for the position of chief justice of the University Court are being held today from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Harriet Paul, election committee chairman, made this announcement.

Three precincts will be opened for today's voting. They will be in lower Westcott, the Seminole club and the West campus student union. Students must have their ID cards to vote.

GEORGE GNANN and Alice Jackson are the candidates for the chief justice chair. Bill Hayes is chief justice pro tempore.

Harriet appealed to the student body to display their school spirit in this election today by going to the polls and seeing that their friends voted too.

"PRESIDENT," she said "are eligible to vote tomorrow. There has been some confusion on the point, but it is definite that freshmen will be allowed to vote."

Last year's election was contested on the ground that the winning candidate did not have the constitutional requirements to hold office.

THE COURT UPHELD the plea and the election was thrown out. Repeated attempts to appoint or elect a chief justice have failed.

It was decided then that this year's election committee would hold a special election as soon as possible.

Because there are only two candidates in the race no final election will be needed, Harriet said.

Candidates for the Chief Justice office must have a 1.3 average. The chief justice presides over the University Court, the highest court in the University Government association.

THIS COURT has jurisdiction courts, Judicial court and house councils.

The chief justice must be a senior and must have one year's experience on the University court or the Judicial court.

Rat Court Official Swims For Frosh

John Adams, rat court judge, received a dunking celebrating the end of rat court last Saturday night.

Immediately after the Seminoles' win over the football game with Delta State and thus ended the wearing of the rat-caps, the freshmen began hunting for John Adams.

They found him near the pool in front of Westcott, he was already beginning to strip down to his bathing trunks and heading for the fountain. Dripping water and splashing it on him proved only his first dunking, he said. "You old freshman class are wonderful for putting up with me. You've shown that you have school spirit."

The freshmen class, ever ready to show even more school spirit. After John had gotten into his clothes they brought him back to the pool and give him his final dunking.

Sandspur Openings

Bill Backus, chairman of this year's Sandspur production, has announced that there are still cast openings left. Anyone interested should contact him immediately or signup the Sandspur bulletin board in lower Westcott.

Senior Investiture Plans Revealed at Sr. Meeting

Annual Capping Is Scheduled For Thursday in Amphitheatre

Senior investiture is scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Music amphitheater, Dick Bradley, senior class president, announced at the class meeting yesterday afternoon.

ORIGINALLY SET for Wednesday night, investiture date was changed because of the expectation of rainy weather. By postponing the ceremony, the Book store will also have more time to hand out the seniors' caps and gowns. The gowns will be ready for distribution this afternoon, the senior president stated. Students will wear formal collars he said.

"If it rains Thursday night, investiture will be held in the Music hall auditorium." Bradley said.

SENIOR DAY will be held Friday, Bradley informed, as it is customary to be held the day after investiture. Seniors will be expected to wear their caps and gowns to all classes. "Since the Seniors voted to observe Senior day, they should cooperate and wear them", Bradley emphatically stated.

Thursday night, the Seniors will have their sophomore brothers and sisters will line up on the sidewalk south of the Alumni building at 7:30 p.m. The sophomores will wear white while sophomore brothers will be outfitted to wear white shirts and dark trousers.

SOPHOMORES WILL each march behind their senior brother or sister in the processional. Jim Hays, junior marshal, and Mrs Ramona C. Beard, organist, will play for the processional.

The sophomores will carry the senior mortar boards with the back of the cap toward them. The tassel will hang on the right side.

BRADLEY EMPHASIZED that students will remain standing after the processional until all seniors have been invested.

Sophomore brothers and sisters will sit directly in back of their seniors this year to make the capping easier.

After the class president Bradley has been capped by President Doak S. Campbell, all sophomore brothers and sisters will cap the seniors.

THE SOPHOMORES will then sing "Hail to the Caps and gowns" which will be followed by a devotional given by University Government Association president, Will Pennell.

Dr. Edwin Ratz of the School of welfare will deliver the address of the evening.

THE AUDIENCE will then stand for the University's Alma Mater while it is played by the recessional with Mrs Ramona C. Beard at the organ.

Honored guests of the evening sitting on the Amphitheater platform will be President Campbell, vice-president, Dr. Albert Boynton Martin, Dr. Hartic Will Pennell, class sponsors, Mrs Olive Cross and Dr Wayne Mishoe.

Senior class officers are president, Dick Bradley; vice-president, Sidney Gregory; secretary, Eunice Barnes; treasurer, Bill Cochran; sergeant-at-arms, Homer Cooper; social chairman, Karolyn Bardin; and class Marshall, Marjorie Meckstroth.

Honor Meet Plonned

Tomorrow night at 7, the Honor Committee will have its regular meeting in the University Government Association room, second floor of the Alumni building. Any students interested are invited to come.

Warpath Club Meets Tonight

Election of Officers Scheduled for Meet

Representatives of each campus organization are requested to attend the Warpath club meeting tonight at 7 in the Longmire auditorium at which time officers for the year will be elected.

THE WARPATH CLUB MEETING last week resulted plans for approaching pep rallies in preparation for the Sul Ross rally Friday, the men's glee club was asked to sing the famous old original words by Dr. Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology.

Plans were made for the decoration of the pep rooms for all home games. Committee members in charge of the project are Evelyn Mulkerrin, Ann Hays, Janis Ward, La Verne Jennings, Terry Sheppard, Jean Escott, Eleanor Scott, and Frank Nelson.

The Warpath club will submit an entry in the Homecoming parade October 27. The float committee will be organized at tonight's meeting.

The groups represented were Landis hall, Phi Delta Theta, Gamma Phi Beta, Women's Senior hall, Delta Zeta, Women's inter club, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Student Christian Association, Phi Mu, Day Students organization, Byran Hall, Alpha Lambda Delta, Gilchrist hall, Sigma Kappa, Kappa Sig. The Florida State University circus, Kappa Delta, Women's F club.

THE WAR PATH CLUB also announced that it will sponsor the sale of the original Seminole indian jacket, which had its first public showing at the Delta State pep rally Friday night.

Approximately 200 people were present Friday night at the pep rally. Johnny Fortune, the master of ceremonies, wore the Seminole jacket. The design of the material cannot be duplicated in print because the garment is made up of hundreds of multi-colored pieces of cloth, sewn together by a pair of hard Indian labor. The War Path club hopes the jackets will become a tradition of Florida State University.

Freshmen Pictures Deadline Tomorrow

Freshmen must make picture appointments before tomorrow for the Tally-Ho, Gail Kelley, editor of the annual has announced. Pictures can be made on the fourth floor of the Administration building.

"If students will come prepared to have their pictures made, it can be done immediately," Gail said.

Girls are asked to wear dark sweaters and pearls. Men must wear a coat and tie.

Upperclassmen pictures will be scheduled later. Caps and gowns will be furnished for seniors. Senior information blanks should be turned in to the Tally Ho office, Gail also stated.

Candidates For Homecoming Are Voted On

Five winners will be chosen from the 20 candidates running for Homecoming Queen in the primary voting held yesterday and today in lower Westcott.

The five girls will make up the queen and her court. The queen's name will not be announced until the half-time ceremonies of the Homecoming game, Saturday, October 27.

Students Must Obtain Forms For Draft Test

College qualification test application for draft exemption are now available at the Selective Service system at the Tallahassee board. Test administrations will be set for the 25th, 1951 and April 24, 1952.

APPLICATIONS for the Dec 13 test must be postmarked no later than midnight, Nov 3, 1951. The Educational testing service which administers and prepares the examinations, will then send eligible application immediately regardless of the testing date they select.

Two means of exemption now are announced in the new directive from the Federal Security Agency office of education. Students with grade scores at least a 70 on the tests on the December and April dates are to rank in the first upper-third of the freshman class, the upper two-thirds of the sophomore class, or the upper three-fourths of the junior class.

THE JOURNAL SECTILIST BULLETIN also stated that seniors who scored 75 or are in the upper half of their class and wish to continue graduate study, may be given a local draft to carry remain in good standing.

Exemption tests will be given at more than a thousand different centers throughout the United States and its territories.

Applications for FSU students may either be secured in room 204 Westcott from John T. Flournoy, secretary of the Florida State University Selective Service committee, or the local Tallahassee board. The local board is at 214 E. Gaines St.

BULLETIN:

Yesterday's homecoming queen ballots have been thrown out, John Newland, election chairman announced this morning.

At a special meeting of the committee last night, it was decided to replace the one vote ballot, effective today and tomorrow

Bi-Y Barn Dance Scheduled Friday

A barn dance, sponsored by Bi-Y, will be held at the Student Union on the campus Friday at 7:30 p.m. Faculty, students and staff are all invited, according to Wallace Tait, president of Bi-Y.

THE DANCE will begin with a series of square dances, called by Mr. William Tait, of the men's physical education department, assisted by members of the folk dance classes. Girls may wear blue jeans if they want.

Later on in the evening, round dancing will replace the folk dances. Refreshments and entertainment for those who do not wish to dance.

The university-wide barn dance is an annual affair, formerly sponsored by the Women's Christian Association. Last year when Student Christian Association, a co-educational organization, took the place of YWCA, it also assumed the sponsorship of the barn dances.

NOTA WAS RECENTLY christened Bi-Y because this name explains more clearly the function of the club.

Also on the Bi-Y agenda is the new church program, to be held on West campus each Sunday, especially for veterans and their families. This campus group which began the year by donating free lemonade to all students at registration, is continuing with its improvement policy.

File for Degrees

Candidates for graduation in February, June, or August, 1952, who have not filed an application for a degree should do so immediately in the office of the registrar. This announcement was released by assistant to the registrar, H. Hoyt Price.

FSU Honor System Explanation Tonight

Tonight, the Florida State University honor committee will be in charge of the Freshmen Orientation meeting.

They will present a program on the honor system of FSU. Bryan Reynolds, transfer students and barracks 390 are requested to come to the Longmire auditorium at 7 p.m.

Jennie Murphree, barracks 384 and Bill should come at 8 p.m. Students with conflicts should attend the meeting whenever they can.

Miss Gymkana Tryouts Must Have Beauty, Poise

Candidates for the Miss Gymkana title must contact Dr. Harley Price, Gymkana director, or Terry Sheppard at the Alpha Xi Delta house before initial tryouts, Wednesday, 6 to 10 p.m., in the East Campus gymnasium.

ALL ENTRANTS must appear before the judges Wednesday in shorts, sweaters or "Tee" shirts, and high heels. The girls will be judged on the basis of beauty and poise. Twenty from the group will be invited to design a costume depicting one of the nation's sports. These same 20 girls will appear in the Gymkana productions Oct. 30 and 31 at the Leon County Fair, and Nov. 1 and 2 when the show is presented on campus.

Miss Gymkana will be chosen the last night of the production from the group of 20 finalists. The deciding factor will be the winning costume design. Costumes should not be constructed for sports participation, but should catch the spirit of the sport with a theatrical dress.

NO LIMIT has been placed on the number of entries that each sorority, fraternity, or other organization may nominate.

The annual Gymkana production is student-directed and features Florida State University's internationally-known gymnastic team, "The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots," talented co-eds and the Collegians—FSU Glee Club.

Freshmen and sophomores interested in working on the management staff of the production are encouraged to contact Dr. Price. The tentative schedule of the women's gym any afternoon between 4 and 6 p.m.

Prospective Arnold Air Society members, greeted by old members, are shown at a recent reception at the group. The Arnold Air Society is a honorary for ROTC members.

Ideals of United Nations Being Paid By Human Lives

Is October 24 a significant date in your life?

It should be. On October 24, 1945, representatives of 50 countries ratified the official charter of the United Nations.

This October the UN celebrates its sixth birthday.

The problem of securing peace between nations is no new problem. Ever since nations arose out of feudalism, men have asked themselves continually why the forces which grouped men in nations could not bring them together in a single world community.

The UN, born into the turmoil and discouragement of a world almost ruined by war, is the latest attempt.

In spite of many difficulties the high principles of the charter have kept the machinery of the UN in operation. For six years the UN has experienced a trying struggle. Critics will not deny that the specialized international agencies such as UN's ESCO, FAO, and ILO have done great good and rendered valuable service to mankind.

• • • •

The great German apostle of pessimism, Schipenhauer, once wrote these despairing words:

"In general, the wise in all ages have always said the same things, and the fools, who at time form the immense majority, have in their way too acted alike, and done the opposite; so it will continue. For, as Voltaire says, we shall leave the world as foolish and wicked as we found it."

Certainly Voltaire knew of many persons, including himself, that left the world less foolish and less wicked.

The purpose of the UN is not to destroy foolish ideas or stamp out wickedness. The purpose is to maintain international peace and security; to develop friendly relations among nations; to cooperate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural, and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms; and to be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

It should be every world citizen's clearest duty to at least reread the preamble to the UN charter. It expresses the ideals and common aims of all peoples whose governments are members. It says:

WE THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS DETERMINED to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom, to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, and armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all people.

HAVE RESOLVED TO COMBINE OUR EFFORTS TO ACCOMPLISH THESE AIMS.

• • • •

Thus the purpose of a noble body. Today our brothers, friends, classmates support this ideal with their lives. In 1945 faith and desire were pledged. Six years later, human sacrifice is paying the pledge.

The UN will realize its ideals only through people realizing the pledge.

● BUILDING YOUTH

The following editorial appeared recently in Los Angeles City College's newspaper, The Collegian. Unlike us, they have been members of the National Students Association for the past few years. In their words we see many reasons why Florida State University should become a member of this national collegiate group.

"The courtroom was quiet, and why not? The defendant had been on trial ever since it was born!

"The United States National Students Association, now going into its fourth year of existence, will be on trial again this semester. Either it produces or into mothballs it goes—for many long years.

"NSA has been combined this semester with the California Junior College Self-Government Conference (known as CJC for short).

"This committee will be exhibit A for the defense.

"Keep your eye on it, Cubster. You're the jury!

"Keep your eye on it, Administration. You're the judge.

"Keep your eye on it, main NSA and CJC offices. It's your counselor for the defense!

"NSA is the organization that makes us an integral part of the voice of student America. The group is recognized along with the French Union of Students, the English Union of Students, the Norwegian Union of Students—with every national student organization of the world. This then, is our part towards uniting the world. Theoretically, it can't fail. Practically it's up to us.

"NSA is the organization that links us to every college in the United States. The exchange of ideas, the exchange of students, the exchange of ideals, the exchange of Americanism.

"NSA is the organization that can implement to better advantage every activity on campus. No one has to tag NSA onto anything that's done. They just have to get it done. Not NSA for NSA's sake, but NSA for City College.

"That's the offense of the defense.

"And now, what does the prosecuting attorney say? That NSA spends too much money, and gives nothing concrete in return.

"NSA is not a contracting concern, but how much better can a contractor be if he's building American youth?

"NSA isn't a concrete mixture, but it sure can blend the students of the United States.

"And NSA didn't receive a government subsidy, but the students using the society's ideas can 'help the students help themselves.' and can 'help those students who can't help themselves.'

"Pecuniary interests? No, that's more peculiar interests! Why not squawk about the money spent on athletics? After all, not everyone who pays $6.50 goes to the games. The same with drama, the same with musicales, the same with the Collegian. Do you, the jury, realize that some people actually don't read the Collegian?

"Should the defense rest now?

"That's just what the trouble has been. Every group of students interested in NSA have carried the banner and waved the flag and beaten the drums, but no one has actually climbed up on the concrete mixer and shoveled out bricks.

"The defense won't rest here. It'll work all through recess, and when court reconvenes, we can only ask judge and jury to give a sentence of 'not guilty'."

● DEAD "HELL-WEEK"

Lead headline in the Miami Hurricane, student newspaper at the University of Miami, was "16 FRATS BAN 'HELL WEEK'."

The Flambeau would like to announce such a headline in FSU's student newspaper.

The fraternities at the University of Miami will devote their time and energy to worthwhile community and University projects during "Hell Week."

There are plenty of worthwhile community and University projects for the FSU fraternities.

● ALL QUEENS

"Beauty is often worse than wine; intoxicating both the holder and the beholder," said Zimmerman.

Students on Florida State's campus should have quite a hangover, then, judging from the looks of the candidates for this year's Homecoming Queen title.

The selection of THE pretty co-ed to reign over our festivities is going to be one of the most difficult problems of the year. They all are queens, anyway.

Dear Fellow Students:

The office of chief justice of the university court is a position which helps foster the spirit of our university. This spirit, in reality, is an atmosphere of trust which we, who have worked for an improved honor system, have aspired to attain.

Having served on house council, as a member of women's judiciary, and as a representative to the university court, I have found these experiences to be of great value in qualifying me for the position I now seek.

Your worthy support for my platform of an improved judicial system through a better understanding of the court's function and purpose is necessary if we are to establish an ever increasing atmosphere of trust and confidence among our student body. It is my purpose, therefore, to serve you in this capacity to the very best of my ability.

Very sincerely yours,
ALICE JACKSON
Candidate for chief justice, University Court.

HEAD LINES

SENATORS NEED BETTER EXCUSES

By ALLAN HEAD

Since none of the men senators have seen me to file their excuses for missing University Senate meeting last week, I guess Friday's column hit the nail on the head. The offer still stands, boys, if you've got a better excuse than "fraternity business," let me know and I'll print it.

Garland Stokes, president of IFC, tells me that he will emphasize in the meeting tomorrow night "putting UGA business before fraternity business." Both the frats and the sororities often make it a point to urge members to run for offices; it's about time that they took the additional responsibility of checking to make sure their members get to meetings and carry out their obligations.

The Westcott Picketing incident of last year might have turned out far differently if we had had a strong UGA well laced with active and influential frat men. In the near future, that power may be even more necessary — for university housing is right around the corner.

It's sad but true that the frat system gets hit when one of its members ignores his obligations, or messes up. The same thing happens to the Army when a soldier rapes a woman, and to the university when a student gets drunk and makes a fool of himself. The group is often branded by the activities of the individual.

By urging members to run for office—by even letting them run — the soro-frat groups find themselves losing or gaining in prestige (and power) according to whether the member does a good or bad job. Therefore it behooves them to only let their capable and energetic members run, not try to pawn off the "sit-in-the-corner-Sals" or the "don't-give-a-damn-Dans."

Fraternity men, sorority girls, and independents of both sexes have worked hard for the establishment of the UGA. It was a big shift from the old Woman's Government Association of FSCW to our present co-educational government. One can be proud of his fellow students when he thinks back over the many hours of devoted service put in by past officers so that we would have a solid foundation to build upon.

But there is still a long way to go. Without attempting to belittle in any way the magnificent contributions of those who have graduated, we can still see that is a fact. That is why we who are interested in seeing our UGA grow stronger and more effective in its service to the student body feel disgusted when those elected to positions of responsibility shirk their obligations.

That is why we would like to see the soro-frat groups get behind their members who hold government positions; take an active interest in seeing that they do a good job. Some of them should be awarded the "Royal Order of the Purple Goose." Otherwise the soro-frat groups are going to get it.

It might be mentioned that there is more to be gained from this than prestige in the eyes of the student body as a whole. A strong student government, on your side, is a big aid when you want something. Look at the University of Florida. . . .

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

NO SCANDAL AT FLORIDA STATE YET

By EMORY KING

Charlie the Flambeau gremlin stomped into the office and threw his hat on a typewriter.

"There's nothing happening on this campus anymore", he bellowed.

Take last year. Scandal after scandal broke into the news. First it was Taleria—then President Askew—then Who's Who—then—well you know. Things were really jumping around here.

The Gene Burnett affair and the kidnapping hoax and Negro question all hit the campus at almost the same time. I got a lot of fun chasing these stories—but today—nothing.

The senate is quiet, the executive council is still—the courts—all except the rat court are as yet, inactive enough to require no blood and thunder stories. Remember last year the story of the girl who was scared to death because Women's Judiciary used what she termed "Gestapo" methods?

Oh, these were the days of good old yellow journalism—and I loved them.

Today what is there to cuss about—except maybe rat court?

Rat court is rumored to be aired over WFSU next week. The press will be present as usual to be sure that this unique body stays in line.

You know this is a funny court. The senate gave it power to make the laws concerning rat caps—enforce those laws—and then judge the accused.

Well when one body acts as senator—police chief—and judge all at the same time, it must be watched closely.

Already certain elements in the freshmen class are mumbling under their breath about the way certain members of the sophomore class—with dubious authority—have handled offenders.

Perhaps, before this column hits the campus, someone in the sophomore class may regret ever having heard of rat caps. Several freshmen are reported gunning for John Adams right this minute. President Pennell has the right idea. "If they don't want to wear them—let them alone."

Wherever you go," Pennell says, "you are going to find students who don't want to wear them. The only thing to do is let them alone."

SEMINOLE SCENES

THE COMFY LIFE MEDIEVALSHED

By FRANCES CAWTHON

The medieval college Joe, despite all his grounds for complaint, had something which most of us now envy.

In a schedule for the University of Paris, practically every other line said "No lecture." I think the faculty collected the birthday, death and burial date of every saint and clergyman in the country, and on those days gave the students a vacation. What a gay time everybody must have had!!

But the administration started to crack down. The following was added to the statutes of the law school, Montpellier, in 1339: "because by the many vacations which are accustomed to be taken in the said school, not so much utility as waste is known to have resulted, we have decreed by the same authority that lectures shall cease on the following days only." Two pages later, the students ended up with only a measley 76 holidays. And I'll be willing to bet they didn't like it a bit.

Perhaps the students back then needed more rest than we did, though. After looking at some of the textbooks they had to read I am sure they did. Some texts we have to read now are boring enough without adding such things like "Commentary of Simplicius on the Predicamenta" and "On the Principles of Nature of master John of Siccavilla."

The professors worried a great deal in those days about how to deliver their lectures. Students had the habit of copying them down word for word and making a small business venture out of circulating them. In many universities the instructors adopted the policy of speaking just as rapidly as possible so this could not happen. Professors must have

Dear Editor . . .

Satisfied!

Dear Editor,

Isn't it a little obvious that our "high exalted" Jim Couch acted rather thoughtlessly in using the Flambeau as an outlet for uncalled for slander of John Adams?

As in the usual procedure between the big and little, "hero" John has had nothing detrimental to say about this poison-tongued lad. Also, having watched him, quite a few of us agree that his "methods" apply mainly to those who insist on acting like spoiled children when they are corrected.

It might be profitable for Jim, and for a few others who fight against rat rules, to learn now, instead of later, how to take things in their stride. I think this would make these people, and everyone else, quite a bit happier.

A SATISFIED FRESHMAN

George Grann Runs

Dear Editor:

I have qualified for the office of Chief Justice of University Court for two sound reasons. One is that I believe I am capable and the other is that I sincerely want this office. I have certain definite convictions as to what a Chief Justice should be on this campus.

To achieve unity and purpose in student government is foremost. So far this year we have not had time to hear arguments among the "wheels" on campus. Petty arguments . . . Petty politics . . . Petty grievances . . . Petty accomplishments. But it will come. It is my contention that to eliminate petty differences and achieve unity and purpose in student government is, therefore, a cardinal must.

As a candidate for Chief Justice of the University Court, I feel that students who have a problem and have been brought before any of our courts, should be treated as fellow students and with an attitude of assistance in the solving of their problem. The idea that students coming before any of the subsidiary courts as criminals and should be punished for their "crime" is ridiculous. The attitude that I intend to further is that of treating the individual as a fellow student, with disposition of the case to the best interests of the student and the student body. Therefore, I do not intend to alienate any individual, regardless of the case involved.

As a member of Men's Judiciary last year, I was able to help forward progressive measures for the men students on this campus. If elected I shall continue this policy for the entire student body.

I would appreciate the opportunity to further serve the student body in making the University Judicial System a progressive and respected function of our growing institution.

Can Staffers Write?

Dear Editor,

I am very much surprised at the Flambeau for printing a letter such as the one which appeared in Friday's paper. Knowing as much about the Rat Court as I do I should say that the writer is completely unfamiliar with the facts.

As a freshman I feel that the Rat Court is doing a fine job in helping to stir up some school spirit which at FSU is almost non-existent. May I suggest that in the future you learn the facts before printing another such slanderous piece.

I would also like to add that I was under the impression that letters to the editor were supposed to be sent in by the readers, not written by a member of the staff.

PLAYBITS

Les Jongleurs Project To Be Presented Wed

BY JEAN FLYNN

New product on the drama agenda this semester is the workshop project, sponsored by Les Jongleurs. Six short plays are in rehearsal at present, to be presented October 17. They are We Want You, High Pressure Area, The Taxi Driver at Home, Quick Lunch, The Birth of an Army, and How to Get a Three-Day Pass.

FULL SCALE PRODUCTION in its third week of work is You Can't Take It With You, by Kaufman and Hart. It's chief difficulty in blocking is the large size of its cast. With a group of six or seven on stage a majority of the time, the director, Frank B. Hanson, finds himself with occasional problems in "stacking" his actors. Dates for this play are Nov. 2, 3, 5 and 6.

Just beginning rehearsals is A Phoenix Too Frequent, with a cast of three. Dynamene, played by Dorothy Silver; Doto, portrayed by Bunny Banks, and Tegeus-Chromis, played by Robert Marsh. November 12 and 13 have been set for production dates.

THE FOLLOWING PLAY will be All My Sons, which was recently made into a successful movie. Try-outs for this play were held on Monday evening. It will be presented in Conradi on November 30, and Dec. 1, 3, and 4.

Les Jongleurs held its first official meeting last Thursday evening. Several drawings were submitted at that time for the pin. One of them will be chosen in the very near future.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

Sandspur tryouts brought a deluge of pulchritude which will give director George Carey nightmares—libidinous if not theatrical. . . .

Testing for the part of a southern siren was a gal named Marion Mattaia. This kid has a voice that would make a Legion porch come alive. She talks like April Stevens sings—saaaxy.

Another sure standout are a couple of gals who pantomime to a Roy Bolger-Ethel Merman hit. . . . Wonder why the powers-that-be don't work in a Sandi Horton special. Maybe I'm slightly reactionary 'cause tapdancing doesn't seem dated to me. . . .

Check the new WFSU show, Sounds in the Night, from eleven to midnight. Len Mellon plays some fine non-commercial items. . . .

Suds hounds left the C.P. on their elbows the other night when they set a keg up on the house. Where did all those nasty songs come from? . . .

What's all this talk about Mr. Adam's ancestry???

The Sweet Shop crew finally let the grounds settle long enough to hit the 'O' club dance Friday night. . . .

Dean Katherine Warren had to elbow her way into Landis the other night to lecture seniors two hours on the un-lady-like behavior on campus. . . . Where???

Campbell Shines in 34-0 Rout of Delta

Many Passing Records Broken In Second Victory of Season

The FSU Seminoles rebounded Saturday night to outscore the aggressive Delta State Statesmen 34-0 in a seesaw battle before a thin home crowd.

The Seminoles had to take to the air to administer their second win of the season, as the running attack was almost completely halted by the determined Delta linemen. FSU scored three times through the air and twice overland, while forcing their opponents to do most of their gaining in the mid-field area.

THE SEMINOLES' FIRST score came midway in the first period on a 55-yard march. The Seminoles took over the ball on their own 45 and advanced to the Delta 36 on a run interference penalty. Italiano passed to Curt Campbell for 11 yards. Gary Folsom ran to the 10 and then Italiano went over on three consecutive running plays. Ray Hudgens booted the point to put the Seminoles out in front 7-0

The second FSU score came at the end of the same period, when Curt Campbell, who turned in the best game of the night, returned a Delta punt 39 yards to the opponents 39. Italiano and Gary Folsom threw to Bob Whitmer on the first play for the touchdown. Hudgens's kick was wide and FSU led 13-0.

The third score came in the third period when a bad Delta punt gave the ball to the Seminoles on the Delta 34. Italiano passed to Whitmer for 24 yards to the 10 and then again connected with Whitmer on the nine, where he lateralled to Earl Folsom, who went the remaining distance unbouched. Huggett converted and FSU led 20-0.

The fourth score came only a few minutes later when the Statesmen were held after the kickoff and punted to theFSU 34. Italiano and Roy Thompson moved to the 49 and a first down, but drew a five yard penalty for delay back to the 45. Italiano immediately passed to Campbell on the 25, and he lugged it rapidly away from his pursuers for a TD. Huggett again converted and FSU was ahead 27-0

The final score of the hard-fought contest came late in the last quarter after Gerald Smoth gathered in a Delta punt and returned it 34 yards to the visitor's 28. Then, with but four minutes remaining, Italiano passed to Whitmer for nine, and Sellers picked up a first down on the 10, via a quarterback sneak. Bradley carried for three. Sellers ran for two, and then Presto Bradley rammed through the final five yards for the final counter. Huggett kicked an offe score for the night stood with FSU 34 over Delta State's 0

DESPITE THE FACT that Coach Don Veller was justified in worrin gabout the over all game he could feel proud about including Curt Campbell in the offensive backfield. Campbell was easily the outstanding player of the game as he starred on both offense and defense. With brilliant receptions, punt returns, interceptions and tackling, Curt was all over the field.

Italiano posted new records for the most passes attempted in one season with 66, most completed with 18 and is steadily closing in on the total passing yardage with 292, just a little short of the 450 he set last year.

The only Seminole injury was to Bobby Fivesah, who received a sprained wrist, and will probably be ready for next week's battle with the powerful Sul Ross Lobos from out Texas way.

V. B. Team to Play Pensacola Fliers

A squad of volleyball enthusiasts from FSU will go to Pensacola Thursday for a two fold purpose. They will compete against the Pensacola Pre Flight team composed of ex-college players and All-Americans, and in doms so, help dedicate the new gymnasium addition to the Pensacola YMCA.

This will be the first match played this year by the volleyballers and they will be the underdogs in the encounter. The Navy pre-Flight team is composed of mostly California men and have the edge in competitive experience over the FSU team.

Coach Bill Odenwal will play a team of four freshmen and two lettermen. The two lettermen are Bill Crook and Jim Clark, others who will see action are Bob Albertson, Ronnie Hambrock, Harry Bitee, Howard Gould, James McFatter, Ronnie Pickett and Matthew Sullivan.

The squad has had two practices as far this year and there is not yet any indicatement of the type of team play that will be displayed in Pensacola, although the Seminoles are rich in individual experience and have several smash servers.

The power spikes of Charlie Floyd, Danny Hobbs and George Edmiston will be greatly missed, but the navy team will be somewhat surprised when they face the hard spikes of Ronald Hambrock, 5'10" from Terra Haute, and Howard Gould, 6'2" from Chicago. Both of these boys have plenty of tournament experience, and this Thursday will be their first college experience.

Arrangements are being worked out to bring the pre-flight to Tallahassee so that the students will be given a chance to see the volleyballers in action.

Opera Guild Needs Choral Members For "Roberta" Cast

A few openings are available for men interested in the chorus of the Light Opera Guild production, Roberta, Dr. Robert L. Briggs producer of the show has stated.

Assistants of staging and make-up are also requested to contact Dr. Briggs in room 201 Music building.

THE JEROME KERN musical will be staged in the Music hall December 6, 7 and 8. Professor Briggs is musical director and Professor Nelle-Bond Dickinson is stage director for the show, which is being sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota, music honorary societies.

Personnel of the singing chorus have been announced by the director. They are Janie Brown, Nancy Day, Mary Lee Harrelson, Mickey Kendall, Virginia Lundy, Frances Tuttle, and Imogene McHale. Also in the chorus are Margie Greene, Josephine Pettit, Judy Russ, Martha Scott, Mary Spencer, Delilah Ashmore, Sonya Mervis and Geraldine Goodnight Hinds.

MEN IN THE singing chorus will be E. L. Allen, Don Cooper, James Hudson, Jim Hutchinson, Joe Pearce James Crews, John Eddins, Curtis Norton, Francis Warn, Thomas Parker and Bill Upshaw.

Dr. Aylward Praises New Dept.

Dr. Francis Aylward in a recent article written for the Bakers National Association Review published in London England, praised the Florida State University newly-installed department of baking science and management. The department is headed by Dr. L. A. Rumsey.

The new department was established through the joint efforts of the Bakers National Association and Dr. Doak S. Campbell, Dr. Rumsey, director, served on the staff of the American Institute in Chicago. He was recently the head of a firm of consultants specializing in advertising as well as science and technology.

In his article, Aylward explained that our country is making science plans to combine practical training with classroom work. Trial studies are now in progress by supervising a summer employment program in a limited number of commercial bakeries.

Canfield Speaks To Educational Graup

Dr. D. Lincoln Canfield head of the modern languages department, will deliver an address to the 47th annual session of the East Tennessee Education Association in Knoxville, Oct. 25-26. The subject of the address will be "Do You Have Articulation In Your Curriculum?"

The committee in charge of the association's modern languages section has arranged for Dr Canfield to be principal speaker at a meeting of that section on Oct. 26. Dr. Canfield also has charge of teacher training at the University in the area of modern languages.

Dormitaries Elect Year's Governars

Klyne Newlen, monitor of lower 300 dormitory, presided over the election of dorm officers held last week.

Officers chosen were: Bob Davis, governor; Kenneth Day, social chairman; Cary Pizzarali, athletic director; and Herbert Holcomb, news reporter.

The upper floor of buildine 300 has also elected its officers for the semester ending February, 1952. They are Phil Sprimer, governor; Joe Lee, intramural sports director; Chuck Sander, social chairman and Dave Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

Varsity Players To Try New Courts

All men expecting to try out for the varsity tennis team next spring are asked to drop in to see Coach Donald Loucks at his office in Bldg. 428, West Campus. The new varsity tennis courts will be ready for play, Tuesday afternoon. October 23, and regular practice will be held there on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday of each week for the next month. All men interested in playing tennis are invited to appear on any of these days. Play will get under way about 3:30.

Guest Rooms Are Available in Alum

Jane Adams, director of the Longmire building, announces the availability of six guest rooms for rent, and other immediate family members of students.

Students are requested to make any reservations in advance. Rooms reserved a week in advance must have a down payment. Additional information can be obtained at the information desk of the Longmire building.

Veteran's Housing

The Pass-a-Grille Regional Office of the Veterans Administration at St. Petersburg Florida recently announced that World War II veterans will find it easier to finance home ownership under the new defense housing act, Public Law 139.

Veterans are asked to contact the Pass-a-Grille office for additional information.

Hartz to Speak In Jacksanville

Dr. Edwin R Hartz, associate professor of social welfare will be principal speaker at the opening program of the 1951-52 Branch, Young Men's Christian Association in Jacksonville on Sunday, Oct. 28.

He has conducted a series of "Family Life" institutes in all sections of the state under the auspices of various churches, Parent-Teachers' Association groups, state colleges and universities, and other groups.

Dr. Hartz will conduct a "Family Life Institute" in Sebring the week of Oct. 23-27. From there he will go to Jacksonville.

Open Meetings Held By Wesley Players

Wesley Players, Methodist dramatic organization, begins its semi-annual series of open meetings on Thursday, at the Wesley Foundation.

Any interested students are invited to attend these open meetings. Out of the four scheduled programs, the student must attend three to be eligible for pledging.

The first of the series will consist of a panel discussion, made up of officers and older members of the Wesley Players. Its purpose will be to explain the details of the organization, and its projects.

The highlight of last Saturday's football game was the leg of Curt Campbell into the offensive backfield and defensive safety slot. Veller found a more than capable replacement for the ailing Tommy Brown, as the rangy Florida flank man was constantly in the opposing team's backfield sparking the defense. Campbell snagged several enemy aerials, ran back several long punt returns, and made some unbelievable catches. To Curt, long an underrated player, who last year was out with injuries, we give you the students' commendation of—well done.

Taking a back seat to the amazing Mr. Campbell, but doing a fine job at tossing the pigskin, old reliable Nelson Italiano got in the correction and broke Seminole passing records.

Even yesterday's Tampa Tribune Sports column and see the fact that the Gators' losses are having on the Florida Alumni. It is said by someone else besides Florida State is playing out of their league.

The article says that Florida is in too stiff a league, and that, coupled with FSU too good (tongue in cheek) for their respectives, the world seems to lead to a leveling between the schools on the gridiron in the near future.)

Although the University of Florida has not found time to play the Florida Sports, the football medium was the only one which the tribbes and sport fans deemed a runaway for Florida. Now that it is beginning to appear as unlikely. It won't be long now before the pressure will really be on G-ville for the commencement of friendly relations with the FSU upstarts. Hope they don't have too much first prestige too long, they might get bypassed by a friendly state institution from up near the Georgia border.

Sigmonnaires Stage Tallahassee

Members of American Legion Auxiliary passing through Tallahassee recently to attend the American Legion Convention in Miami are becoming acquainted with Tallahassee in the home of Florida State.

The initial aerial view of the FSU East Campus, made some by the Seminole Flyers has been placed on display in the welcome booth of the Bradfordville-Bridges American Legion located in the old Kind Building.

Members of the Legion's honorary committee and many of the active Legionnaires and their wives expressed admiration for the diversity of the FSU campus when in the aerial view.

Lew BUCKLEY, Fred MacMURRAY and Eleanor PARKER in scene from the "A MILLIONAIRE FOR CHRISTY," a 20th Century-Fox release

Peck-Mayo Billed In Motion Picture

By HARRY COPELAND

Starting at the State Theater tomorrow for a week's run is one of the most celebrated films of the year—the fabulous, immortal sea-story about a personality modest seaman,Captain Horatio Hornblower.

FILMED IN TECHNICOLOR, C. S. Forester's great historical adventure-romance stars Gregory Peck in the title role as Captain Horatio Hornblower, one of the most memorable fiction heroes ever created.

Starred with Gregory Peck is Virginia Mayo, in one of her most coveted dramatic roles — Lady Barbara, a noblewoman who loses her heart to the inimitable captain.

CAPTAIN HORATIO HORNBLOWER is the story of a British sea-captain who was never quite sure of himself, of his ability to lead others, but who disproves both uncertainties as he sails the seas in performance of his duty to the English Crown.

The technicolor film moves from Caribbean pirate lairs to the great Moorish Empire of the late 18th century, when the American and French revolutions were creating history and changing the entire course of human events.

PLAYING FOR THE LAST TIME today at the Florida Theater in the technicolor Western Cattle Drive, starring Joel McCrea and juvenile star Dean Stockwell.

In a picture that is loaded with out-door thrills, Joel McCrea plays the part of a veteran ranch hand whose understanding helps him convert a spoiled rich boy to an honest, likeable, and reliant young cowhand. McCrea and Stockwell recently appeared in the film that packed a lot of human warmth, Stars in My Crown.

THEY ARE ABLY SUPPORTED by Leon Ames, Bob Steele, and Chill Wills.

Parker star together in a new romantic comedy, A Millionaire for Christy, which starts at the Florida tomorrow and plays through Saturday.

The 20th Century-Fox production is the hilarious story of a resolute secretary whose financial problems lead her to seek out an unexpecting rich husband as a solution. The picture also features Richard Carlson.

Howard Wilson To Have Recital

Howard Wilson, pianist, will present the fourth of the season's faculty recital series Friday at 8:15 p. m. in the Music amphitheatre.

Featured will be Beethoven's Appassionata sonata. A release from the School of music reported that the sonata has been termed "a truly impassioned work gradly conceived and grandly executed."

Excursions by the contemporary American Samuel Barber will be played by Dr. Wilson also. The four sections making up the composition are "excursions" on regional American idioms. Derivations of folk-songs will be used with banjo and ukelele effects on the piano.

Dr. Wilson's program will be completed with two sonatas by Domenico Scarlatti, the Andante and Variations in F minor, by Haydn and an etude, Nocturne and Scherso by Chopin.

Tarpon Club Tops

Ten new members were tapped by the Tarpon club Wednesday night, Oct. 10, in the women's gymnasium on East campus.

New members are Betty Lou Wharton, Hopie Fuller, Pat Slater, Nancy Cavanah, Ardis Bourland, Pat Comer, Marion Meise, Dottie

Economics Professor Says Tax Increases Are Best Way

"Tax increases and credit controls are the best way to fight inflation," said Dr. James Buchanan, professor of economics, during an interview.

Dr. Buchanan says the American people are so afraid of deflation such as occurred during the last depression that they are failing to control inflation. Price controls and other anti-inflationary measures proposed are a delusion which fails to get at the roots of inflation.

The popular notion that in obtaining federal funds one is getting something for nothing, has led business men, farmers, city, state, and municipal governments and others to scramble madly to get their share. Then the people are getting "economically sot!"

DURING THE INTERVIEW the economics professor also said, "The current tense situation the world affairs has led us to allow Russia to dictate our national economic policy. Because of our fear of communism we are spending billions of dollars for defense. It is even possible that Stalin and his communist leaders have intentionally created this crisis knowing the effect it would have and hoping it would strain the American economy to the breaking point."

Dr. Buchanan joined the economics department here this fall. Previously he was employed at the University of Tennessee. He received his doctorate from the University of Chicago.

Letter to the Editor

No Blast John

Dear Editor,

Last week I wrote on the manner in which the Rat Court was being conducted, but because so many parts of this previous letter were open to controversial criticism, I would like to clarify my stand.

I was not blasting John Adams, for his was a job to do and he was doing his best to get it done. I wanted to hint at the lack of authority the administration had installed in the court, for had it been able to exact some small punishment on the offenders, they would not have had to reply on the bluffuf tactics which I criticized last week.

Because still others wish me to give constructive suggestions, I will do so. Next year there should be a three weeks period when all freshmen will be required to wear beanies, with the understanding that they will be punished if they don't, and at the end of these three weeks, a Freshman-Sophomore Day will be held to determine whether the hats remain until after the Homecoming game.

Regardless of the outcome, the freshmen would probably be compelled by class pride to abide by the final decision, for they would have had their chance to gain equality.

As for this year's rat court committee, they were inexperienced and everything they did happened to turn for the worse, through no lack of effort of their own. The sophomores tried to make the best of a bad situation, but failed due to lack of outside cooperation (mine included).

Another game has been won by a margin of 14 points. I say let's forget our mistakes and point to the future and make it a better one.

Vive les Froshes,

JIM COUCH

developed a great wind capacity from that.

After this speech-giving type of lecture, students had to run in a corner somewhere and think, think, think. All this thinking had to make them remember the speech or else. This was supposed to foster meditation, but it probably furthered the to-heck-with-it-all attitude. Nevertheless, it was made the standard rule in most universities, and lecturers who spoke otherwise were often suspended for a year.) The students, who did not like this rapid-fire stuff, often hissed, groaned and threw stones at the profs. The penalty for this was suspension for a year, too.

Some cardinal in the 1400's got the odd idea that "fear and reverence are the life-blood of scholastic discipline." Following this vein of thought, he passed an injunction prohibiting students to sit on benches or chairs. Everybody had to sit on the floor. Sometimes, if the weather were a little bit chilly, the students would be allowed to abandon their "fear and reverence" a little and sit on straw. Hmm. Comfy life they led.

In some places the faculty even hovered around while the students were trying to eat, repeating their lessons and asking questions. I wonder how the Conjuration of Irregular Latin verbs went with roast beef . . .

Surprisingly enough, the standard of conduct in the medieval college was to copy the conduct of young ladies. It was probably hard for several hundred young men to act like several hundred young ladies, but every time the students would start breaking their profile, it was, "How a nice young lady wouldn't do that."

Social Work Club Elects President

Last Tuesday evening the Social Work Club had its first meeting of the school year. The following officers were elected; president, Lorna Cowle; vice-president, John Pombelis; secretary, Pat Caro

The speaker of the evening was Dr. J. J. O'Connell, professor of psychiatry and university psychiatrist, who spoke on "The Role of the Psychiatrist in the Community." Other faculty members present were Miss Dixie Jones, Prof. John Crisp, and the club sponsors, Dr. William Leap and Dr. Lester Pearl.

Freshmen graduates, and transfer social work students are all urged to come to the next meeting of the club next week, along with all the upperclassmen and old members of the club.

Magazine Publishes Article By Crabb

Prof. Eugene Crabb of the School of Music is the author of an article published in the Fall issue of "The Baton," magazine for high school instrumental directors.

Mr. Crabb in his article presents a challenge to band directors to develop an orchestral program comparable to the bands in playing ability and musicianship.

Prof. Crabb is well qualified to discuss both orchestra and band techniques, since he is ar expert performer on both viola and trumpet. He is a member of the Faculty Brass Quartet and String Quartet.

Freshmen graduates, and transfer social work students are all urged to come to the next meeting of the club next week, along with all the upperclassmen and old members of the club.

FSU Student Is Celebrity

Youngest celebrity to occupy a place in the Hall of Fame of the New Miami Memorial Library is Florida State University student Joan Holley, a Miami pianist.

The Hall of Fame honors Floridians who have achieved distinction in the fields of arts and literature. As one of the chosen few, Miss Holley has a display devoted to her biography, pictures, brochures and newspaper clippings of her recitals in the United States and Europe.

Her picture appeared on the July cover of the Southwestern Musician magazine. An article in the same edition described her work and identified her as a student of Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi of the FSU School of Music.

Five Finalists to Compete For H'coming Queen Title

Final Voting for Candidates Tuesday in Lower Westcott

Sally Kennedy, Ruthie Garst, June Conyers, Liz Cook, and Ellen Avis were chosen for the Homecoming queen court at primary elections last Tuesday and Wednesday. The queen will be named from this quintet when final voting is held Tuesday, October 23, in lwoer Westcott.

Monday's votes were thrown out, John Newland, election chairman said. In the Tuesday and Wednesday voting, the one vote ballot was replaced with a five vote ballot. The election committee decided to change the ballot slips at a meeting Monday night.

THE HOMECOMING QUEEN will be presented the night of the annual Pow Wow show at Doak S Campbell stadium October 26, the eve of the FSU-Stetson game

All classes will be missed on Friday the 26 to get the homecoming activities underway.

Alumni registration will begin at 1 p.m. on Friday in the Alumni building. Daytime judging of stores, FSU residence halls, sororities and fraternities will be from 4 until 8 p.m.

THE GARNET and Gold Key banquet is set for 5 p.m. in the Suwannee dining hall. Formerly scheduled in the Lafayette room, the two honoraries decided to open the banquet to alumni this year. Five hundred tickets at $2 per person are available for alumni.

The Pow Wow will begin at 8:30 Friday night. Night judging of decorations will take place from 10 until 11.

Saturday, October 27, the alumni breakfast and annual business meeting will take place in the FSU Lafayette room at 8 a.m. Alumni registration will then be continued in the Alumni building from 9 in the morning until noon.

THE HOMECOMING parade will begin at 9 30 a.m. Saturday, October 27, according to Ed Williamson, chairman. It will form on Call Street and all organizations except the FSU band, which will assemble at the university main gate. Chairman Williamson said the parade will proceed up College Avenue to Adams Street, south on Adams to Pensacola Street, east to Monroe Street, and North to Tennessee Street where it will break up.

Sororities and fraternities may consult members of the faculty or technical and artistic information regarding float construction, says All float entries must be completed by 6 a.m. Saturday, October 27. Judging will take place during the parade

DOWNTOWN MERCHANTS have promised to co-operate with the Homecoming committee by constructing store and street decorations. A group of FSU graduate art students are assisting the merchants with their displays, which will carry out the centennial celebration theme. The assisting art students are Artemus Skevasis, Taizo Miake, Guy Johnson and Nancy Summers.

The football game against the Stetson Hatters will then highlight the week-end activities

The annual Homecoming dance will climax the day in the Suwannee room from 9 until 1 p.m Tex Beneke and orchestra will play for the affair. Tickets are still on sale in lower Westcott at $1.50 per person.

Alice Jackson Chief Justice Of Univ. Court

Margin of 112 Votes Puts Her in Highest Judiciary Office

A margin of 112 votes put Alice Jackson into office as chief justice of the University Court. Final totals were Jackson, 482 and Gnann 370.

Returns, tabulated Tuesday evening, slated Alice Jackson as carrying two of the three precincts. In Westcott she received 198 votes to George's 152; and in the dining hall 277 to his 187. However, Gnann led at the West Campus post office 31 to 7.

THE POSITION of chief justice was vacant at the beginning of the year because last year's election had been contested on the ground that the winning candidate did not have the constitutional requirements to hold office.

The court upheld the plea and the election was declared void. Repeated attempts to appoint or elect a chief justice were unsuccessful until Tuesday's election. Acting as chief justice pro tempore, during the period of confusion, was Bill Hayes.

THIS YEAR'S ELECTION committee decided to hold a primary election Tuesday but because only two candidates ran at this time a second election was unnecessary.

The chief justice presides over the University Court which also includes eight other justices: Two men and women from the senior class and two men and women from the Junior class.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE must be a senior and have one year's experience on the University courts. In order to run a candidate must have a 1.3 average.

Alice Jackson, as chief justice of the University Court, will preside over the highest judiciary organization in the University Government Association.

Honor Code Topic For Discussion On Tues. Program

"Why We Have Our Honor Code on This Campus" was presented by Wallace Dines at the honor committee orientation program, Tuesday night. Wallace is the president of Bi-Y.

Wallace reported that there has been a marked increase of cheating not only in public life but university campus life all over the country.

"We must resolve to fight cheating, lying and stealing on our own campus. This can be done through the education of the honor system and our support of the honor system," the speaker stated.

Following the talk emphasizing honor at Florida State University, the honor committee then presented a skit illustrating the mechanics of the honor code from the violation to the final decision. Taking part in the skit were Frankie Brownlee, Peggy Moore and Mary Ann Slemp and June Tate

The differences between the honor court and the honor committee were then clarified by Nancy Day, honor committee member. Documents explaining the honor code were distributed to the freshmen and transfer students in attendance.

Those present acknowledged the code by signing the honor pledge

Who's Who Chosen By Point System

The point system will again be used for the selection of approximately 30 seniors who will appear in the next volume of Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities, according to the last meeting of the Who's Who committee meeting on October 15.

The committee also decided that to be included in the next issue, the senior must have a one point average to apply. He must list activities on an official form which is to be made available by the committee to anyone interested and turn in the list before deadline which will be announced at a later date.

The following juniors and sophomore members were present at this meeting: Sue Saxon, Jo Nell Proctor, Ted Steinmeyer, Jimmy Barner and June Conyers, chairman.

SEMINOLE JACKETS are modeled by a few members of the Warpath Club. These jackets are being sponsered and sold by the club as a part of its drive to increase school spirit on campus.

Pep Rally Tonight In Music Theatre

The War Path club will sponsor a pep rally in the Music amphitheater at 7 tonight in preparation for the Sul Ross football game tomorrow night. Jett Monroe, head cheerleader will be in charge of the rally.

The original Seminole jackets will be worn again tonight. Jett said that she wants to encourage the students to wear the Indian jacket which denotes spirit for the Florida State University Seminoles. The War Path club is sponsoring the sale of the jackets. Students are asked to contact their representatives in the club to purchase the jacket.

THE SEMINOLE JACKET had its first public showing at the Delta State rally last Friday.

The design of the Seminole jacket material cannot be duplicated in print because the garment is made up of hundreds of multi-colored pieces of cloth hand sewn by Indians.

At the War Path club meeting Tuesday night, it was announced that the men's glee club would not sing the two songs with the original words by Dr. Raymond Bellamy, professor of sociology as was originally planned.

OFFICERS of the War Path club were also elected at the meeting Tuesday. They are president, Frank Nelson; vice-president Evelyn Raulerson; secretary, Eleanor Scott and treasurer, Bill Dunn.

Plans were made for the decoration of the goal posts for all home games. The goal post committee will meet tomorrow at 11 a. m. Committee members in charge of the project are Evelyn Raulerson, Ann Hays, Janis Ward, La Verne Jennings, Terry Sheppard, Jean Escott, Eleanor Scott and Frank Nelson.

Impeachment Bill Raises Controversy In Senate Meeting

A bill for impeachment of University Government Association officers for negligence of duty was introduced at Tuesday's senate meeting by Senator Mary Ruth Summers.

The bill caused much controversy among the senators. It will be re-introduced at the next UGA meeting and voted upon in the form of a constitutional amendment and, if passed, will eventually be voted on by the entire student body.

THE SENATE also set up attendance regulations and appointed a standing committee to handle matters of attendance.

It was decided that three unexcused absences will result in expulsion and three tardies will be counted as an absence. It was suggested that the committee be composed of not more than two seniors, and have one sorority and one fraternity member, two independents, and one not designated

A MOTION by Senator "Poncho" Sved that a standing committee to set up rules for senate procedure and to act in an advisory capacity for the rest of the year be set up was passed.

The senate also approved the appointment of Marjorie Meckstroth as senior senator to replace Nancy Miller.

NewPerformers In 'Flying High'

Seventy-two new performers have been added to the roster of the "Flying High" circus troupe, Coach Jack Haskin has reported.

DORIS KITRELL and Fred Darrow are working on a new French aerial act, which was a featured act with the Ringling show last year. "Flying High" will center their numbers around song themes and will perform while the circus band plays the tunes.

Jerry Fortune, Jane Zevin, Bobby Lee Johnson, Dick Williams, Pat Turnley, Danny Morris, Don Whitehead, Nancy Baxter, Erma Vause, Ione Marraine, Gordon Darby, Clinton Ingram.

Investiture Held In Amphitheater

Formal capping of 1952 prospective graduates took place last night in the Music amphitheater with President Doak S. Campbell beginning the annual senior investiture program with the capping of senior class president, Dick Bradley.

Sophomore brothers and sisters then placed the mortar boards upon the heads of the seniors. Sophomore brothers and sisters sat directly behind the seniors this year to simply the capping process.

PROFESSOR EDWIN R. Hartz, in the address of the evening, emphasized that reason, resourcefulness and responsibility are the deciding intangibles that determine success or failure in the individual.

"The world, today, is demanding graduates who can reason, decide and pass judgment on vital matters without befogging these issues with prejudice, ignorance or vested interests," he said.

IN HIS TALK Professor Hartz said, "Resourcefulness is the key to life of the man who goes beyond the expected. To be resourceful, one needs to know where and how to get the information he needs to meet various situations. Then he needs the ability and the will to put these resources to work in order to solve problems."

Dr. Hartz concluded, "Democracy is not easy to achieve nor has it ever bene. It imposes obligations upon us to make the great political documents of our tradition work. The business of democracy is our business . . . If ever we forget that government belongs to the people, we will be on the way to losing our freedom."

"THE BEST DEFENSE is to make democracy so strong, so true to itself, and its fruits so rewarding, that peoples of all countries will choose freedom as their way of life."

Sophomore brothers and sisters marched in behind their seniors in the processional. Mrs. Ramona C. Beard, School of Music, was at the organ.

SOPHOMORE SISTERS were dressed in white and sophomore brothers in white shirts and dark trousers as they carried the senior mortar boards in the ceremonial tradition.

After the investing, the sophomores sang "Hail to the Caps and Gowns." Will Pennell, University Government Association president, presented the devotional.

The annual event closed with the singing of the Alma Mater followed by the recessional with Miss Beard again at the organ.

TODAY HAS BEEN SET ASIDE as Senior Day, as it is customarily held the day after investiture. Senior Day is for the purpose of recognition of the seniors who are expected to wear their caps and gowns to all classes and throughout the day.

Last night, Landis senior hall held their annual senior breakfast at midnight in the Sweet Shop. The senior breakfast for girls is also a tradition, dating back to the days of the Florida State College for Women.

Deadline Today For FSU Interns

Papers Must Be Filed For Second Semester

Today is the final deadline for filing internship applications for the second semester, Dr. R. L. Goulding, professor of education, has announced. All aplications must be turned in to room 204 Education before 5 p. m.

A release from the education department listed 260 students signed up for internship for the second semester.

LEAVING OCTOBER 29 for internship this semester are 180 students. Ninety-three out of the listed 180 interns are elementary education majors. With the exception of seven, all the elementary interns are girls. Eighty-seven students are in the secondary field of the internship program.

Leon, Hillsborough, Dade, Duval and Bay counties record the higher number of interns with 32, 17 15, 13, 13, respectively. Interning at the demonstration school will be 13 of the students listed in the 32 in Leon, with eight at Leon High School and nine at the Tallahassee elementary school. The two remaining students are outside of Tallahassee.

OTHER COUNTIES to which interns were assigned are Alachua, Brevard, Broward, Calhoun, Columbia, Escambia, Gadsden, Hardee, Holmes, Jackson, Jefferson, Lake, Lee, Levy, Manatee, Marion, Nassau, Okaloosa, Orange, Palm

Smoke Signals Will Feature Fashions

Included in the first issue of Smoke Signals, scheduled to appear November 15, will be a feature on the latest feminine fashions, Kitten Austin and Margaret Marshall, fashion editors, announced Tuesday at a call meeting of the editorial staff.

The feature will highlight the new editorial policy of Florida State University's literary magazine as outlined by Joel Smith, editor in chief. "Smoke Signals is the student's magazine, and should be designed to capture the interest of every student on our campus."

For the fashions, freshmen girls will be photographed in complete outfits made available by Tallahassee merchants. Winter clothes for school, dates, and parties will be highlighted.

Following the new policy, plans have been made to include student models in advertisements by local merchants. The budget for photography has been expanded so that more students and campus activities may be pictorialized in the student magazine.

Activity Fees Must Jump To Catch Our Raising Costs

Do the students realize why there must be an increase in the student activity fee?

Plank number 11 in the editorial policy of the Flambeau is to increase the student activity fee. To accomplish this aim certain procedures must be taken.

In an interview, W. F. Powers, secretary to the Board of Control, explained the red tape (we call it that because our impatient temperaments are facing a grave financial conflict) to accomplish a raise in the student fee.

First, the students must be behind it. Full support of the student body is necessary before any financial action can be taken by the administration. This can be brought about by educating the students with the cold facts.

The student activity fee was set in the fall of 1947 at 36 dollars a year. Here it is 1951, five years later, and the amount collected from students is still the same regardless of the running climb of inflation.

The service offered by each group has increased also, regardless of the inflation. The reason for this is that each group has been more efficient in financial matters. However, the peak of efficiency has been reached. This year, activities receiving student activity money have launched an economy drive. For instance, the Flambeau can run only four pages each issue, consequently the paper has to kill much important student news. After each group economized, cuts, and butchers its spending to haiance with the income—what then. Prices are still going up.

The students have two choices: They may agree to increase the activity fee or they may cut down on some of the services offered.

At the University of Florida the students chose to increase their fee. The increase will be $2.50 a semester, per student. Tha student body there feels that this would be a desirable change over the present system. Some of the extra money would be allotted to their travel fund to meet the higher cost of travel.

The Flambeau proposes that the University council pass a resolution recommending an increase in student activity fees. The executive council members committee should then investigate each group receiving money and estimate how much an increase is needed.

The student senate should support the resolution wholeheartedly. Treasurers in the different organizations should talk with their friends and keep the mova conversation worthy.

As a result Flambeau editorial stated: it is not a matter of choice, hut a matter of necessity. It is the only financially sound plan.

● ANNUAL GRIPE

An annual gripe on F. S. U.'s campus is the University Infirmary. A Flambeau investigation of the basis of discontent has found the majority of student opinions concerning "pill pusher" problems an ignorance of facts. Of course, there are exceptions.

Students either gripe because they can't get in the infirmary or because they can't get out. They want to know why their peaceful slumber must be broken up at 6 in the morning to have a thermometer thrust in their mouths. They want to know why it is that when they have finally managed to fall asleep again that the rattle of dishes and shuffle of feet wake them to an early morning breakfast at 8.

Dr. T. J. Brooks, infirmary physician, said that he was interested in such gripes as those just mentioned because he wants the students to understand the reasons for such trifling necessities.

Different types of illnesses cannot be kept together in the same rooms, therefore some beds remain empty in the infirmary, and some students are sent away because they cannot be put into the same room with someone with a communicable disease or illness.

Between 3 and 6 in the morning, human temperature is lower than at any other time. A recording of this low count is necessary and so students are awakened at 6 instead of 3 or 4. Students are awakened at 6 a.m. for breakfast to enable those students to be let out that day to have breakfast before they are dismissed.

Some students feel they have been done an injustice when they have to lie in bed for three days with a broken bone before it is ever set. It is dangerous according to official authority to put a cast on immediately after the accident because of the inevitable swelling occurring over a broken bone. Immediate setting and casting might necessitate a removing of the cast because of infection or swelling.

Dr. Brooks said that husbands may visit wives in the hospital with the exception of those girls on the porch. He says that the University must keep husbands off the porch. He hasn't found a solution to keep repairers and workmen from stalking through at most unexpected intervals however. The plumbing must go on.

Although it is not realized, restrictions of the infirmary have been lifted in the past years. Students no longer have to pay for medicine, they have the use of the new $12,000 X-ray machine, they have visitors, although a reviving of the visiting hours should be made according to popular opinion; radios may now be had and even furnished by the infirmary for the luxury of the confined students and, as of last year, smoking is allowed in bed.

The infirmary can only accomodata 85 students at a time and of these beds, 50 are used by women. The certain percentage by which the University hospital is largely operated do not allow a large budget margin.

The FSU five-year plan promises hopes for a bigger hospital across from President Campbell's home.

Dr. Brooks commented during the staff member's interview: "We have quit trying to make everybody happy and just do our work."

● TAKE YE HEED!

The selective service board has announced a new set of draft deferment tests to be given this year.

Students can be deferred from the draft if they make a satisfactory grade (70) on the test—or if they make a certain grade percentage in grade average of their class.

If a student studies and makes good grades he can be deferred.

There are five course offered that are impossible to pass with at least a "C" grade.

Men who wish to carry on with their education must get to work on those studies. The Selective Service Director of the University Court, I feel confident that she is a competent job in her newly won position. I believe that what campaigning she was done on this campus, was the cleanest I've ever witnessed while a student at the university.

Besides this M I may, I have a few suggestions to make to the Elections Committee that might help them in the coming Freshman elections.

(1) There was not enough time allowed for the candidates in this last election to advertise that they were running. It is very difficult to reach the 4000 eligible voters on this campus in three days time.

(2) The two precinct stations on Campus was entirely too small efficiently, but the same cannot be said for th precinct on West Campus. The station was not open more than five hours during the election day, and the election law states that the polls shall be open between the hours of nine and six o'clock durin gthe day. The students cannot express their right to vote if the poll is not open.

(3) There was a possibility for the ballot boxes to be stuffed at all three polling stations! The fact that a list of names was not present at the precinct with the eligible students that could vote would allow graduate students and faculty members the right to vote if these individuals were not known to the election officials. Also, the students who could acquire a few extra I.D. cards from their friends could vote at least three times at the different polls, unless he was known to have voted elsewhere by the Boqbohner Council. I think that it would be wise for the Elections Committee to take cognisance of these suggestions and to see what might be done in the future to eradicate these possibilities.

These suggestions are not meant to offer criticism to the Elections Committee or imply that these things did happen in the last election for Chief Justice—they are written only with the idea of assisting those people concerned with these problems.

GEORGE B. GNANN, JR.

Thanks Friends

Dear Fellow-Students:

Indeed, it was a very pleasurable experience to have participated in the recent election of Chief Justice of the university court. Especially noteworthy was the fine manner and spirit of my opponent, George Gnann, who displayed the highest qualities of sportsmanship in his campaign. Hats off to Harriet Parker, campaign chairman, who conducted the campaign in a very well-organized manner. Thanks to Bob Griffin and the Flambeau staff and to Tom Gould and the WVFS staff for their fine cooperation to the candidates. And, to the student body, a high commendation goes for your keen interest and support.

It was a spirit of over-all wholesomeness which prevailed in this election. Let us continue to keep this same fine spirit in the campaigns which are to follow. My pleasure, now, is to serve you to the very best. With your cooperation we can go forward with interest in the judicial branch of our student government.

Sincerely yours,
ALICE JACKSON.

Kindness Failed

Dear Editor:

I have a case of the good old American gripe, even if I am just a lousy Freshman. John Adams did a swell and commendable job on the "Hat Court." The main purpose of this sours is to increase lacking school spirit among the Freshmen. John caught three forths of the offenders, a ratio is criticized instead of commended.

The upper classmen may have brains (?), but for school spirit they are the only known tributary without sufficient means of locomotion," I wonder if this didn't crack up the creek also. John (by Jim's opinion in the recent Flambeau) is the lowest, wicked villian and a gruesome embalmer. John is a fine guy and has a small cleak of H20 in his hair.

And another thing. I feel sorry for the guy who made the posters for "Be Kind to Dumb Animals and Freshmen (in that order) Day. If we Flunkies had a court for these upper classmen who did absolutely nothing on said day, they would find Campbell Stadium. That glorious morning I put my little dinkie on with pride, knowing somethings was going to be done to un-important me. By that afternoon I took the D— thing off and haven't worn it since.

NICKEL BUS FARE MAY RETURN

BY ALLAN HEAD

Possibilities of getting back the old nickle bus fare seem to be promising. Will Pennell and the rest of the University Council appointees before the City Commission last Tuesday and presented the other side of the story. Pennell and Mr. Carter, district executive, upheld the point of view of the bus company.

As he told it, the situation is this: of the four bus lines in the city, two are making money, and two gaining money. Before the change in the schedule went on the FSU circuit, this line was losing money too. In view of increased costs of operation, and to give bus employees a much needed raise, it was considered essential to put this line on a paying basis. At the same time, 50th school authorities are now using only the nickle rate during specified hours.

At the meeting with the City Commission, Pennell seemed willing to continue talks with Carter on this basis. If you've got any ideas, to be "decreased volume of business due to the fact that many people are being given lifts in cars". He also told me, after the meeting that if the volume were raised, the bus company would be willing to go back to the nickle fare.

Will Pennell suggested to the Commission and to Mr. Carter that we might be able to work with the bus company in arranging a more efficient schedule, etc. Mr. Carter welcomed this suggestion, and stated that he was willing to get together with him to talk it over.

The whole thing boils down to this: we can get the nickle fare back if we increase the volume of business and/or suggest sufficient efficiency measures to save the money needed.

At the meeting with the City Commission, Pennell seemed willing to continue talks with Carter on this basis. If you've got any ideas, pass them along to him. He'll need them!

In any talks of that sort, this is what we should look for:

(1). Written guarantees that, if the volume was somehow raised a specified percentage, the company would automatically reduce the rate.

(2). Ironclad assurances that the students would get the appropriate amount of credit for any saving of money due to things promoting increased efficiency on this line.

If Mr. Carter is sincere in his statements, the door to a successful return to the nickle fare seems possible. It will require cooperation on the part of both the students and the bus company, however, and it will be up to Will to come through on the student's side. The benefit to the student body will be worth at least the time and effort involved in such a change. Gentle figure from the bus company as to the percentage of volume needed.

FLORIDA POLITICS

GUBERNATORIAL RACE DISCUSSED

By PAUL GARRISON
and Gilbert Mitchell

C. M. Gay, state comptroller, heretofore mentioned as a potential candidate for governor, has announced that he will not seek the chief executive position this Spring. Immediately following his announcement, Gay was elected president and director of the Citizens National Bank of Cypress Gardens. Gay will be an active head of the bank, but will spend a major portion of his time in the state capitol, where he is seeking reelection as comptroller as are indicated.

At the same time Gay was making his plans known to newsmen, Florida Supreme Court Justice Alto Adams, was submitting his resignation effective next Monday, to Governor Warren here in Tallahassee. This general consensus of opinion here that Adams' resignation, along with Gay's announcement, to stay out of the governor's race, will leave Mrs. Dan Sadler Adams' safe entrance into the gubernatorial brawl next Spring. Both Adams and Gay campaign similar conservative political philosophies.

Former Governor Millard Caldwell, now U. S Civilian Defense Administrator, recently told a news conference in Tallahassee that he would consider supporting Mr. Gay or Judge Adams even if either entered the governor's race. In interviews reports that Judge Adams, if he runs, will have the blessing of the Caldwell faction, or "constituted" as it was called in the gubernatorial campaign of 1948. Whether Mr. Caldwell's endorsement will be a help or hindrance remains to be seen.

In the meantime, Henry S. Baynard, St. Petersburg businessman, stopped in Tallahassee on his way home from Washington and let it be known that he was "toying with the idea" of running for governor. Mr. Baynard seemed to feel that Judge Adams and Mrs. McCarty of Fort Pierce, both candidates from the same county, the lower East Coast section, as a ticket would be badly split and possibly insure him a solid position in the finals. Baynard has said that he will not seek the support of any "political machine" in the avent he does run.

Three candidates have already formally announced for governor. They are Bradley Odhem, Sanford, Mr. Herndon, Tallahassee and Dale Spencer of Kissimmee. None of the three announced candidates has complied with the new Florida election law requiring expense accounts to be filed and expenses every Monday. The Secretary of State has sent telegrams to the candidates about it, but that financial reports are necessary.

Former U. S. Senator Claude Pepper, appearing in Miami this week for a scheduled address, said that he had been seriously considering the idea of running for the U. S. Senate in 1952. However, he said he admitted he had also been that strongly aligned reactionary forces in Florida and the United States were already making plans for his defeat in the event he did run for the race. The Senator declared that he would not sacrifice his (here) principles and political ideals based upon the citizens of Florida to demand from their Congress better health and medical facilities. Senator Pepper said that many doctors, acting in accordance to the dictates and demands of the American Medical Association's powerful lobby had contributed as much as a while month's salary in order to defeat him in 1950.

SEMINOLE SCENES

DID MEDIEVAL MACK HOWL AT NIGHT?

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Life in 1951 dormitories is awful different from that in days of yore.

Nowadays if you have a ten o'clock class you arise a sleepy the morning and get up just in time to brush your teeth, throw on clothes and come away in a mad dash. Not Medieval Mack!

Mack would arise at 6 and dress himself out of bed, such as it was. Then before dawn, His classes started at 8 o'clock, you see. Sometimes he went through a whole quarter without ever getting a good look at the guy who was teaching it, although in many cases it was not his fault entirely before his prof finished his lecture.

And could they go out and howl at night! Not poor Medieval Mack again. In many places it was a rule to be in bed at 11 o'clock. In fact, in some cases the students minded, however, after having to get up in the mornings with the chickens.

Medieval Mack did not go over to a Mecca for a cup of coffee and a doughnut in the mornings. In fact he did not have any breakfast. Students did not have breakfast little snacks in the morning though, they just brought it black market style. Lunch was at 1 and supper usually at six.

By the middle the student ori arrived and free. There was no heat in the private rooms, but on Feast days, when a fire was allowed in the main hall, they could all around and "sing songs in canticles and in listening to poems and chronicles and 'munstrelsy' and 'menestraudye'." Hmm . . . Some of them must have preferred the hall.

Ass rule each student had his own bed and a "window" in which he could study. The universities forbade students to keep dogs and falcons in their rooms, as "purity of air is essential to study," and they wanted to avoid a "constant howling."

There were no dice games, at least in the open, as both dice and chess were taboo on the campuses. Some students were not allowed to go to taverns, engage in trade, to mix with actors or to attend theatrical performances. How very strict rules were obeyed is a point of debate.

Other colleges had the luck to keeping of any animals, especially "a pet bear, wolves and stags." Now why would want to keep a pet bear in his room? Sounds like just blow bubbles and dandruff fighting and hunting pets, and all colleges were for dancing and "jumping around" as they thought students could not study with someone jitter-bugging—whatever they did in those days—in the next room.

Then in the Dark Ages was not very exciting. We can at least keep goldfish in our rooms now—they just blow bubbles and don't howl, and we do have heat. Nobody has to stand in the window to study or slip anybody a sly buck to get a cup of coffee in the mornings. And we all can see what our profs look like. Things seem to get better with age—meaning the conditions, of course.

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

UNIVERSITY QUESTIONS SEGREGATION

By EMORY KING

(Today's column is another Associate Collegiate Press feature. It has been the policy of this column to look far and print stories about situations at other colleges and universities that in many ways parallel events at FSU.)

From the Associated Collegiate Press:

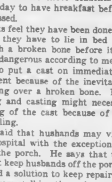
The student body of the University of North Carolina last week challenged the right of the University administration to restrict Negro students to the colored section of the football stadium.

The question arose when Chancellor R. B. House refused to give Negro law student, James R. Walker Jr., a student pass book to replace tickets for the colored section. Walker returned the "segregated" tickets, stating that he would accept nothing but the regular student passbook.

"I would not like any man to any names if he had given me the passbook," said Mr. Walker. "More important to me is the principle involved."

In defense of his action House declared a "distinction between education services required by law and "social services." He said the Athletic Association, which handles tickets and passes, is considered an educational service.

In reply to House, Student President Henry Bowers declared, "It has long been accepted here that all forms of extra-curricular activities are a vital part of the educational process. . . ."



". . . Whereas the administration refuses to watch their team play football from the same advantageous position occupied by other students, it not only did an injustice to those who were denied, but tarnished the real of the student body as well by insinuating that our students have neither the moral character nor the intelligence to conduct themselves as law abiding students."

Last week the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Persons announced it would contest the segregation in court.

Here ends the ACP story.

I see FSU has announced it will not play Bradley this year because they have no Negroes on their team. It's probably a good thing—they have broken em—and what would the white supremacy champions say then?

Someone told me there are only three states left in the South which have not allowed Negro students into their state colleges. Florida seems to be trying to get the distinction of being the last die-hard to give in. For surely it will come.

University officials are currently wondering where they arrange a football game for the date of November 24, reason being that Bradley University will not be able play us on this scheduled date. This cancellation was ely about because of the inclusion of negroes on the bley team for the first time in their history.

This was an unfarseen occurrence and it is a shame that ere are so many reactionaries in the minorities, that cause such trouble, to make the cancellation necessary. Let's pray hat the day of racial segregation on the sports field will soon y over from the South, for this is one truly successful way of ding the South of prejudice.

e athletic committee and coaches are trying to line up a good ule for that date. Maybe we can schedule some one of the South-nference teams for the vacant spot and then get them as a ne season game every year.

And with our 1951 season rolling along, we are ready to battle with our first foe from the wild west. FSU will have sharpen its wits to counter with the wide open brand of ball by which all Texas teams are noted.

he Lobos are a rough crew and will give the still unsettled Semi-a real battle. Prediction—FSU 14 points better than the hard Lobos.

It seems everyone wants to get into the act about FSU and o rise to the big time. Gator athletic council head, Walter Doherty, recently told the Gainesville Quarterback Club after n return from the FSU-Miami game, "Florida State University ared like a high school team but still managed to score two touchdowns against Miami. Miami will have to show a lot more if it expects to do anything against Purdue, Florida, or Syracuse either."

Ish afraid FSU is above commenting on this statement, but Dean Hefty must use his linguistic abilities to help get the University Florida off its pedestal long enough to compete with our teams ith sport there no desire, football definately included.

FSU Faces Sul Ross Lobos

Texas Artistry Will Test FSU

THE FSU SEMINOLES will tap the keg of western gridiron artistry tomorrow when they take the field against the Sul Ross Lobos from Alpine, Texas.

The Lobos are a definitely a rugged team, as they will have 16 returning lettermen and have been Border Conference champions for three straight years.

The Lobos have had a pretty rough season thus far, as they beat California State Poly in their first game and then lost 62-7 to North Texas State, 26-21 to Sam Houston, and 14-7 to Southwest Texas State.

FSU WILL NOT BE able to breathe easily though, for Texas produces more good football teams than any other state in the union. The state of Texas is also well noted for their razzle-dazzle U.T. of wide-open play, and the best FSU defense will be required to halt the Lobo attack, which will be centered around QB Charles Lafoon, an excellent passer.

Other offensive standouts are halfback Don Bingham, and Duane Parsons, and fullback Jim Mobley. Line standouts for the Visitors are Bob Boyles (225), Bill Ike (220), Lee Burnette (210), Tommy Tucker and Wilson Hall.

The Lobos are bringing only 28 men and might become pressed for reserves in the la te minutes of the game, thus giving FSU the same edge Miami held over us there in the Orange Bowl.

SEVERAL FSU PLAYERS who have been sidelined for the last two games might see limited action in the Sul Ross contest. They are, Roy Thompson, Verne Bennet, Harry Bringger, Bobby Fiveash and John Kallowicz. Game time is scheduled for 6.

All New Men Experienced

By JACK MILES

Coached by the sports best promoter, Dr. Hartley D. Price, the gym team is faced with the problem of keeping the National Men's Championship in their power. This season we lost one of our greatest assets, Bill Roethlein, from the varsity team. It takes a lot of gymnasts to make up for the loss.

So what did FSU do? We looked all over the states and drew the best gymnasts available to the fold.

THE TEAM WAS WEAK on the rope climb, the event where the competitor races against time up a twenty-foot rope without the aid of his legs. To add to this event we have from Pennsylvania, Alan Marcus and Jim Tanaka, from Massachusetts we have Bob Hicks and representing Florida in this event is Jim Beiot snud Bob Martin.

We also needed men who could combine tricks into exercises on all the gym apparatus With a good luck we've secured Gene Abrahamson from California, also Al Jurus and Alvin Ruda from Chicago. Ruda is Chicago High School All-Around Champion. Merle Hicks, a good parallel bar worker, has also joined our team.

In the form of extremely good luck, we have Don Holder from New Jersey. Don ranks number nine in the U.S.A. and is now an outstanding prospect for the Olympiad in Helsinki, Finland in April '52".

IN GENERAL ALL AROUND brawn and acrobatic wise control we have Benny Wallace from Georgia, D. Donnely and Vince Shaw. Arthur Stephens, Brother of "Bean" Stephens, former member of the team, is representing Florida. Arthur is from Panama City.

Dick Ireland, an outstanding trampoline artist, has come to our FSU team from Chicago to add more strength to our freshmen team.

AT FIRST THESE BOYS were a little set back when they saw our FSU Varsity Team because they realized how hard they had to work to become active competitors.

I can truthfully say that all these freshmen have been working very hard. Only last week Jim Tanaka took a short trip into the fairy land of unconsciousness when he lost his balance while vaulting over the long horse and struck the floor. In the summer months Bob Hicks dislocated his arm in a bad fall from the flying rings.

We all regretted that these accidents happened, but we couldn't help but admire the "do or die" attitude of these freshmen who are working hard to fill the places left vacant by the graduated seniors. Keep your eyes on these freshmen of today for they may be your champions of tomorrow. We hope!

The 1951-52 Intramurals officially got under way with the playing of six basketball games in the dormitory and fraternity leagues starting last Monday.

The results of this dormitory league games were:

Monday Magnolia (A) opened the basketball season by beating 197 Upper 21-15. Watson tossed in 14 points for the winners while Batiza scored 7 points for the 197 quintet.

Three ninety Upper drew a forfeit from Cockrell, when Cockrell showed up with only four players.

In the third game 394 Upper whipped 396 Upper 30-14 The first half was very close, with a half score of 12-9 but the 394 defense faltered and 394 went on to win. High scorer for the 394 Helms with 18 points. Dan Hobbs accounted for 7 points of the 396 total.

The fourth game was won by the Mesarolog students by forfeit when Magnolia (B) failed to muster the required five players.

Senior Hall (B) beat 390 Lower in the closest game of the night, 22-17 Kraft, of Senior Hall, scored 12 points while Dairs of the losers dropped in 10.

The last game of the opening day was won by 394 Lower when they drew a forfeit from 396 (L).

Wednesday Cockrell won their first game by beating Senior Hall (A) 20-6. Hitch scorer for the Senior Hall five was Hamrick, while Hutchinson and Helms and Al Jurus and Alvin Ruda from Chicago. Ruda is Chicago High School All-Around Champion. Merle Hicks, a good parallel bar worker, has also joined our team.

In the form of extremely good luck, we have Don Holder from New Jersey. Don ranks number nine in the U.S.A. and is now an outstanding prospect for the Olympiad in Helsinki, Finland in April '52".

IN GENERAL ALL AROUND brawn and acrobatic wise control we have Benny Wallace from Georgia, D. Donnely and Vince Shaw. Arthur Stephens, Brother of "Bean" Stephens, former member of the team, is representing Florida. Arthur is from Panama City.

schedule of three games was won by 397 Upper by forfeit from 394 Upper.

In the Fraternity league Tuesday, the first game of the fraternity schedule of six games, which was witnessed by many loyal fraternity members, was won by Sigma Phi Epsilon 38-16 over Theta Chi. Croppess led the S.P.E. team with 9 points while Dye led Theta Chi with 9

Pi Kappa Phi, last year's winner in the fraternity league, started out good this year by outscoring Sigma Chi 22-16 Rush scorer in the game for P.K.P. was Marti and for the losers, Pennywitt who scored 9 points.

In the third game Alpha Tau Omega defeated Delta Nu 22-17. Buchanan was the Sigma Nu high scorer with 8 points.

Phi Delta Theta outscored Delta Tau Delta 20-12. Overstreet toasted in 7 points for the P.D.T. team

Lambda Chi Alpha whipped Phi Kappa Tau 20-2. Kenyan accounted for 8 of the winners' points. Woodhorpe scored the only points for the losers with his two free throws.

In the last game of the opening of the fraternity basketball league, Kappa Alpha defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon 20-17. Miller of S.A.E. was high scorer with 12 and Lester scored 6 points for K.A.

Lafleur Speaks at Physics Seminar

Dr. Lawrence Lafleur, associate professor of philosophy, addressed the physics department's weekly seminar yesterday afternoon.

Dr. LaFleur's talk concerned the theories presented in a book "Worlds in Collision", by Immanuel Velikovsky. The book was widely publicized in advance of publication by reviews in nationally known periodicals.

The associate professor of philosophy based his critical review and discussion upon an article which he has written for publication in a forthcoming issue of "The Scientific Monthly."

Classical Meeting Is Re-Scheduled

The Classical club will meet Wednesday, October 24 at 8 p. m. at the home of Dr. William Kirk, 409 Murat Street.

According to Alberta Large, publicity chairman, the meeting was originally scheduled for last Thursday but had to be postponed to avoid a conflict with Senior Investiture.

The club is held in conjunction with the classics department. All interested in becoming members are invited to attend the Wednesday night meeting.

Religious Groups Have Varied Plans

Episcopal

Four vacancies on the 17-member vestry at Ruge House were filled in a special election last week.

Mildred Crickenberger was elected secretary and Charles Binkley, music leader. Others selected include Hugh Ellingsworth and Bob Velzy.

Baptist

Two Florida State University students were honored with posts when officers of the State Baptist Student Union were elected in Tampa last weekend.

Joanne LeRoy is the new devotional vice-president and Gene Nail the new enlistment vice-president.

Catholic

The Newman Club is planning a dance for Sunday, October 28 during Homecoming weekend, to be held in Lafayette Park. No time has been set.

Presbyterian

Westminster Fellowship will hold a 'Last Roundup Party' in Westminster House at 7:30 Tuesday night. Freshman students will be special guests and all Presbyterian students are invited. Chairman Varian Helms has announced.

Jewish

The Tallahassee Sisterhood will honor Jewish students and faculty members from FSU at an open house Tuesday night at Temple Israel.

Methodist

The Wesley Foundation will entertain the Westminster group in the Methodist Student House tonight from 6:30 to 7:30, with coffee and a program of entertainment.

Trinity Methodist and Tallahassee Heights Methodist Churches will hold affiliation services Sunday in the Methodist Student House at 9:30 and at the morning services of both churches.

The Tallahassee Heights congregation will also have an outdoor dinner honoring the new affiliates.

Edney Announces Reduced Admission For All Speech Plays

A new reduced admission price of 44 cents will go into effect this semester for all community series plays, Dr. C. W. Edney, speech department head, has announced.

Students may purchase tickets at the reduced price by presenting their university identification card at the Conradi theater box office prior to any community series production.

"IN KEEPING with our established policy of offering high quality dramatic fare and entertainment to Florida State University students at a price within their budgets, the department of speech will admit any bona fide student to its plays this season for only 44 cents," he said.

The first production, Kaufman and Hart's Pulitzer Prize winning comedy, You Can't Take It With You, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, November 2 and 3, and Monday and Tuesday, November 5 and 6.

ALL SEATS will be reserved and the box office opens Wednesday October 31. Students are urged to get their tickets early as there has already been a considerable demand for seats by the patrons of the Tallahassee area.

"Increased patronage make it possible to provide the reduction of 31 cents from last year's admission price of 75 cents," Dr. Edney said. The general admission price to non-students remains unchanged.

Business Fraternity Has Party Tonight

The Gamma Lambda chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, international business and professional fraternity, held an informal social meeting Wednesday night in the second floor lounge of Lonmire.

A fish fry for prospective members will be held tonight at Lake Bradford. Members will meet in front of the Sweet Shop at 6:30 p.m.

They shall not be put on trees, signposts or shrubbery. For further information students are to contact Harriet Paul at 2-2782.

ALL POSTERS which have been put up should have been taken down until Sunday. If they are not removed today by 5 p.m. They will be taken down by the elections committee and put on a table in the student government office to elections chairman Harriet Paul.

Campaigning for class officers will begin with a political rally in the Music Auditorium Wednesday Oct. 29, sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa. This will be the only opportunity for the candidates to state their platforms before the primary election.

FINAL ELECTIONS will be held Nov. 7 with another rally, sponsored by ODK, Sunday evening, Nov.

Jerry Thomas, GDK president, said that several candidates have ideas encourage members and pledges to attend rallies before the regularly scheduled meetings. Anyone desiring further information may call Jerry Thomas at ogevension 5721.

Activity Reservations Deadline Tomorrow

Homecoming activity reservations must be made before noon tomorrow at the Longmire Building in the Alumni office. Miss Mildred Parrish, Alumni executive secretary, will accept the reservations.

Reservations are needed for Saturday breakfast and luncheon in the Homecoming dance Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Lafayette Terrace and Gold Key banquet Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Two performers from this year's Gymkana show, Playground, U. S. A., are pictured above. The first performance of this show will be given next week at the Leon County fair.

Final Plans Made For '51 Gymkana

Final preparation for Gymkana's annual show to be presented at the Leon County Fair, Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 2 and 3 is now under way.

This year's performance will again feature Florida State University's Bill Roetzheim, the nation's top gymnast, and Gene Rabbitt. Last year they tied for the national championship on the "buckin' bronco."

PERFORMING on the high bar will be national champion Roetzheim and Carmine Reppa who scored in both national meets

The parallel bars will be scorched by the same pair, Roetzheim and Regna. They placed second and third respectively in the AAU contest.

The flying rings will be piloted by national champion Jack Miles, Joe Regna, and Jack Sharp, who tied Joe for third place in the last national meet. Jack Sharp will captain the "Roetzheimers" Semimoles this year as they lay their national titles on the line.

THE TRAMPOLINE will spring gravity's chief defier, Dick Cushing, into his peerless routines and antics.

According to Coach Price Dick is the nation's greatest competitive and showman trampolinist.

Other top ranking gymnasts and tumblers who will demonstrate their skill and showmanship in FSU's show are Pat Sigurelli, Dan Holder, Bil Vretos, Joe Guse, Charlie Konseran, Bob Martin, "Beans" Stephens, Larry Keenan, Dick Platt, Eddie Evans Harmon Weichel, Dick Ireland, Gene Abrahamson, Al Jurus, Al Ruda, and Steve Wallace.

FSU Journalists Acquire Accents At ACP Meeting

If Florida State University collegiate journalists have taken on slight Pittsburgh accents, blame it on ACP convention held this last weekend at the Hotel William Penn in Pittsburgh.

It was attended by Joel Smith, representing Smoke Signals, Bill Skipper from Tally-Ho, and Bob Griffin, Flambeau editor.

ACP-MOPE CHIEFTAIN noted columnist, author, and lecturer, delivers the main address of the convention at the Friday night banquet. He spoke on the presidential election and the issues which each party will run into the proverbial mud.

Childs, who writes a daily column syndicated by the United Feature Syndicate, Inc., through Robert Taft and Harry Truman will be the opposing candidates.

He made a plea for a cool, non-emotional campaign, not the dirty and vicious fight that clouds the truth.

THE UNIVERSITY of Pittsburgh was host to the convention. The business of the convention was divided into special interest groups with separate sessions for editors and business managers. The groups were further divided into yearbooks, large and small newspapers, and weekly and daily newspapers. There was also a special magazine institute.

Purpose of the conference is to provide a trading post for publications ideas. Members of the working press and business world brings materials to the each convention on these special fields.

DR. ROBERT JONES, assistant director of the journalism research division of the University of Minnesota, presented a set of tests which he claims will show a valid and reliable sample of public opinion.

He discussed his system with college editors and business managers the final day of the convention.

Dr. Jones is the son of Fred Lasslie Kildow, who founded the ACP in 1936.

The programs ended Saturday with all groups holding 'convention evaluation' meetings.

Students, Faculty Leave By Bus

At 2 p. m. today, a chartered Florida State University bus will leave in front of Westcott for the Gainesville game where FSU students and faculty members have been invited to hear noted Florida authorities. Frank Lloyd Wright.

The U of F student organization of the school of architecture is sponsoring Wright's talk and is responsible for the invitation the extended FSU students and the faculty.

Tickets, including the round trip bus fare and admission will total $2.65. Interested faculty members may yet sign up for the trip by contacting Dr. Frederick M. Hodgson.

- CORRECTION

Classes will be dismissed at 1 and 1:30 p.m Friday for Homecoming festivities.

This is to correct a statement in the last edition of the Flambeau in which erroneously printed that classes would be dismissed for all day.

Skit Contest Tryouts Begin Tomorrow Nite

Annual skit contest try-outs will begin tomorrow night at 7 in the East campus gymnasium with the follow-up semi - finals scheduled for Thursday at 7 in the Music amphitheater.

Winners will be selected from each of the three groups representing the university, fraternity, and dormitory.

HIGHLIGHTING the semi-finals Thursday night will be the presentation of the silver trophy to the dormitory winner chosen between the two finalists.

Awardnie the two trophies Friday will be Suzie Austin, Alpha Gamma Delta president, and Joel Smith, Sigma Nu president.

SIGMA NU and Alpha Gamma Delta will be in charge of a program in addition to the four skits Thursday night. Featured on the program will be a barbershop quartet and group singing by Sigma Nu and Alpha Gamma Delta, and some variety show will also be presented.

At the Pow Wow Friday night, the winning sorority and fraternity will be revealed to the students and alumni by Jerry Thomas, on the Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

Pictures from the publicity department will act as judges in the try-outs. Representatives from the sponsoring groups will be present.

EACH GROUP in the try-outs will be limited to a maximum time of try-out. Winners will be announced for their originality, cleverness and presentation of the skit. Skits will be limited to 10 minutes each.

The following fraternities and sororities are entering in the Pow Wow skit contest. Fraternities listed are Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Omega, Phi Mu, Alpha Xi Delta, and Kappa Delta.

Board of Control Okays Plans for New Buildings

Demonstration School, Geology Dept. To Be Housed In New Quarters

Plans for financing a new $875,000 Demonstration school building and a $900,000 geology building for the Florida State University campus were approved Friday by the State Board of Control.

President Doak S. Campbell said that he planned for the school to educate 735 public school pupils while training the future teachers. The school will replace the present Demonstration school which the president termed inadequate.

THE DEMONSTRATION school will be paid for jointly by Leon county and the state. The Leon county school board has agreed to pay off $300,000 over a thirty year period, and the rest will come from State appropriations.

Results by the State Geological survey and United States Geological survey staffs which would use the university facilities, will be used to repay a $900,000 loan to finance the new geology building. The rest of the funds will be obtained from a $250,000 appropriation voted by the last legislature.

THE NEW Demonstration school will be located in the pasture of West Pensacola street, west of the University's shops on Woodward Avenue and south of Maxey Heights. It will house 30 classrooms with two units of all grades and two classrooms for the 12th grade. It is expected that 770 students will be accommodated in the new school.

The geology building will be constructed at the corner of Woodward and Tennessee streets and will house the FSU museum. The FSU museum will occupy one unit, with the other two housing geology labs, offices and the school geology classrooms and laboratories.

IT WAS ALSO been announced that eight of the ten dormitories the under consideration at FSU will be completed in the near future. The eight dormitories will be located in Fraternities and will house 320 men. Also an eight story $800,000 structure will provide housing for 297 coeds.

The fraternity dormitories will be paid for by the room rents charged, $17 per month. This is the same fee charged for any room on the campus. Each dorm costs an average of $100,000.

THE FRATERNITY dormitories are being constructed of brick and cypress siding with flat built-up roofs, of red brick and light concrete blocks with flat built-up roofs and with steel casement sash. The interiors will be of plaster and wood panelling.

Floor plans for all the new dorms are similar. They will each have a dining room, lounge, and recreation room, a house mother room, house mother's suite, and a laundry with built-in wardrobe-dresser combinations and built-in study desks. Both the exterior and interiors are extremely modern and convenient in design.

The eight story dormitory for women is located where Landis hall ant is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1953.

Homecoming dance tickets are still on sale for $1.50 per person in lower Westcott, Bill Shipbrol, Suwannee Room manager announced yesterday. Bill asked that all students buy their tickets early as possible because all-out

"STUDENTS are urged to buy their tickets early as only a limited number of dancers can be accommodated in the Suwannee room hall and for the dance This announcement was made by Joel Smith, publicity co-chairman for the dance. Over-sell of tickets of students will be accommodated in the East campus women's gymnasium.

The Homecoming dance will be held Saturday next from 9 until 1 a. m. and will feature Ted Beneke and his nationally famous band. Beneke is a graduate of Bill Raymond. The dance will climax the weekend festivities.

AFTER GLENN MILLER was declared "missing in action" during World War II, Tex Beneke took over the Miller orchestra. Beneke could have organized his own band, but preferred to carry on Miller's name and keep his band intact.

There will be the fourth big Homecoming dance in Florida State University's existence Last year Charlie Spivak's orchestra played to a record attendance.

"STUDENTS must remember that the Suwannee room is usually filled to capacity and should arrive early in the evening," Bill Shipsbrot said.

The Sophomore council will be in charge of the decorations for the Homecoming dance this year. Jerry Howell will be responsible for the council's project.

Bill Raymond is the featured vocalist with Tex Beneke's band.

Bradley Cancellation Slaps Shame, Disrespect on FSU

(Editor's Note—This editorial is a reprint from the St. Petersburg Times. It was run following FSU's cancellation of the Bradley University football game. It expresses the opinion of the Flambeau.)

* * * *

It is with sickening disgust that we note Florida State University's cancellation of its football game with Bradley University because the Illinois school has some Negroes on its team.

The incident is regrettable not so much that it represents any serious setback in the gradual solution of our problem of race relations, but that it makes FSU—and therefore inferentially the State and people of Florida—appear foolish and juvenile.

The University of Tampa played the same Bradley team a few weeks ago, and we have heard no thunder of revolt rolling across the Bay. Granted that this game was played in Peoria, but a year ago the University of Miami played a team from the University of Iowa with a Negro player in the Orange Bowl. And Miami still stands serene.

The action of the FSU authorities in cancelling the game was as fluttering and as electric fan against a Florida hurricane.

The pattern in baseball was set several years ago when Jackie Robinson was a rookie with the Dodgers. Several St. Louis Cardinals (who know better now) threatened to "strike" rather than play against Robinson. Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, then president of the National league, told the would-be striker that even if it ruined the league for years, he'd throw them out of baseball if they didn't play ball.

"You can't do this" Frick said. "You can't do this because this is America."

That simple statement tells the tale.

We all remember what a wave of resentment swept the whole nation—the South included—back in 1936 when Adolf Hitler walked out of the Olympic Stadium in Berlin rather than award the honors to Jesse Owens, the great Ohio State sprinter and broad jumper who won three titles.

And we are sure that most Southerners joined the rest of the nation in rejoicing when Joe Louis administered that terrible one-round beating to Max Schmeling. Hitler's vaunted "Aryan" champion.

That's the American way.

* * * *

The process of solving the problem of relations is one of gradually building understanding. It cannot be accomplished suddenly, or by fiat.

Athletics is one of the fields which is contributing most to the breakdown of ancient superstitions and prejudices. In every branch of athletics the superb skill and fine sportsmanship of Negroes has won them the admiration and respect of millions. Take boxing, for instance. It is were not for complete public acceptance of Negro boxers, what a mockery "world championships" would be.

Just as there were rumors that "there'll be trouble" when Iowa brought its Negro star to Miami—and there was none—there was even some muttering when the New York Giants came here last spring with their Negro players. And of course they were made welcome by the fans.

In the not-very-long-run it will be as anachronistic for Southern college teams to object to playing against Negroes as it would be for a major league ball team or a bowler to take exception to the color of the skin of his opponents.

That's what makes FSU's empty gesture so shocking. It is in our higher institutions that the example of the whole population must be set. It is so being set in those Southern universities which, under Supreme Court mandates, have broken down the evil wall of racial prejudice.

There the false standards of prejudice are giving away before the mutual respect engendered by the meeting of minds engaged in the same intellectual pursuits, and they gave away between men meeting in athletic contests. And nothing done by little men nursing their petty egoes against a dreadful inferiority complex, or fearing the censure of other little men, can stop this march of progress.

Why? Just because, as Ford Frick said, "This is America."

Two Comedies Open At Local Theaters

Starting at the State tomorrow and playing through Tuesday is a new Mack Sennett comedy, Carnival, which stars Esther Williams, Red Skelton, and Howard Keel.

The technicolor film also features Polla Illiana, Audrey Ann Miller, Keenan Wynn, and Tom Tully.

With a roundup of stars and new tunes, including "Whoa, Emma" and "Young Folks Should Be Married," Texas Carnival is a rollicking comedy about carnival performers, a handsome ranch foreman, and a big rodeo promotion.

An unusual swimming scene is one of the highlights featured in the film in which Esther Williams, dressed in a diaphanous chiffon ensemble, performs a sequence.

Red Skelton brings the picture to a riotous climax in a wild bull-riding finale.

Much publicized Angels in the Outfield, a romantic comedy with a big-league baseball background, starts tomorrow at the Florida for a four-day run.

The baseball film stars Paul Douglass as the hard-boiled manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Janet Leigh as a Household Hints editor assigned to get a story on "What's Wrong With the Pirates" from the woman's angle.

The film also features comedian Keenan Wynn and multi-year-old Donna Corcoran, newest candidate for top billing.

All baseball scenes were filmed at Pittsburgh's Forbes Field. Ty Cobb, baseball immortal, also makes his film debut in the comedy production.

Playing for the last time today at the Florida is Jim Thorpe, All-American, starring Burt Lancaster in the role of one of America's all-around immortals in athletics.

The film also features Steve Cochran and Phyllis Thaxter.

Applications Deadline Nov. 10 For Junior Management Exam

Applicants for the Civil Service examination in junior management assistant examination must file for the exam by Nov. 10.

Civil service form 5000-AB may be obtained in the Vocational Guidance and Placement office, 203 Westcott, or the School of Public administration, 104 Carnegie.

IN ADDITION to passing the test, students considered must be nominated by the Department of State Nominations Board established by the Florida State University faculty. Nominations applications should be made to the chairman of the nominations committee, Dr. Wilder D. Dorty, dean of the School of public administration, 101 Parkside, by Nov. 15.

The United States State Department will select 50 students who pass the written examination to attend its foreign affairs intern program. These students will receive nine months' specialized training which will include courses in the department's foreign service institute, periodic conferences and seminars and both observational and work assignments in the various operating divisions.

THE DEPARTMENT of State will also select approximately 150 additional trainees from those who pass the test. Participants in a six to nine month program. They will be assigned to one of the operating divisions or bureaus of the Department, to be determined by their preferences. They will receive permanent assignments after successfully completing the training intern program.

Salaries for both groups will be the same. Employed college graduate holders will be paid at the rate

Davis To Attend Congress In N. Y

Dorothy Katherine Davis, senior majoring in business education, has been selected as the Florida State University candidate to attend the annual Congress of American Industry in New York, Dec. 3 through 7.

C. G. McGehee, president of the Associated Industries of Florida, announced the selection Monday for candidates have been sent to 1,000 leading colleges and universities. One student to represent Florida will be selected from these candidates.

While in New York the student will attend the Congress, including luncheons and banquets and officially participate in the Christmas season, conferring with business and industrial executives from all sections of the country.

The National Association of Manufacturers has sponsored college students from each state and the District of Columbia at NAM Congress conferences for the past three years. They pay all expenses for the students.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

TAKE A LOOK AT FSU'S GREEKS

By JOEL SMITH

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Joel Smith, president of one of FSU's national fraternity chapters was asked by the editors to write a series of articles in rebuttal to several Flambeau editorials which have caused controversy.)

Until the recent elections at Florida State seldom were written up in an editorial—in fact only twice before can I recall seeing the name of a Greek letter organization in an editorial during the four years that I have worked on the publications at FSU . . . and then it was for the good that one of the fraternities and sororities set so far out ahead of what they do more harm than they do good!

The thing that is so thought provoking in this writer is that we have such a beautiful relationship between the independent students and the fraternity and sorority members on the campus—I still cannot understand why the numerous columns were written as an attack on the Greeks . . . I personally find that local Greeks were unjustly blamed for the mistakes made by college sanctioned fraternities on other campuses. There are no Greek houses in Florida that the editorial page can analyze for the betterment of the University.)

Let's take a look at some of the activities—other than social, in which the Greeks participate. Several sororities on campus have a great deal of work for underprivileged children in the county. The Kappa Deltas, Alpha Gammas and the Zetas name only a few—carry on active campaigns to help the county's cerebral palsied victims. They spend many hours each week working with the children as they make toys for the children and entertain them with parties and give them gifts of money.

The Phi Delts, Zetas, and almost every sorority on campus has a scholarship fund. They set up to help college students further their education, and the surprising thing about these scholarship programs is that the money is open to non-members of the sponsoring group. This is also true of projects that are sponsored and carried out by the members of fraternities and sororities on campus, yet you never see it mentioned in the newspapers because they are done for charity—not publicity.

Take a good look at the Greeks on the FSU campus and then never before you compare them to a sorority that has missed a meal at some time or other. This too, about the wonderful relationship between members and non-members on campus.

SENATE FACES ATTENDANCE PROBLEM

By ALLAN HEAD

Senate appears to be sounding itself up, and is busy working on plans for overcoming the problem of poor attendance. The Bill Summers' impeachment amendment is an indication of the new spirit which has arisen in the senate. Bills will be hard to write an amendment on that subject, however, and certainly it should not be passed without careful examination.

I might suggest that the amendment be changed so as to merely give the senate power to discharge any officer from office for "gross neglect of unpleasance of office. Then let the details be set up as statutes. Our constitution is too cluttered with miscellaneous junk now.

The main problem of student lack of adequate rules of procedure not only exists in the three branches of UGA, but also adequate procedural tools for carrying on business between the three branches.

This problem is being attacked on several fronts concerned, by senior senator "Pancho" Sved. At last Tuesday's Senate meeting Sved secured a bill setting up a standing rules committee. It passed, and the committee will probably be appointed today.

The committee will be responsible for recommending to the Senate various rules of procedure, together with standardized forms for bills, resolutions, etc.

Alex Salpeter, chairman of the Senate Legislative Reference Bureau Investigation Committee, is working on another aspect of this problem.

The LRB was set up primarily to carry out a two-fold task: to help student senators form the various bills, resolutions, etc., of the session, and to act as a reference bureau on problems of student government. (In this connection it is to conduct sur-

YE GADS! ANOTHER HOMECOMING

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Middle-of-the-road homecomings, homecomings . . . Ye gads! I feel like I have been through on all the homecomings of our centennial history.

Even the Omicron Tau chapter of the Club for Ex-Champion Middle-weight Boxers is planning something for homecoming. A little more and I will be given an invitation to the Compendium of the old grammar class.

Gamesville had their Welcome Back. Custom time this weekend, and the rolls rumble on and on. After those two, everybody all their favorite tunes from their most popular records at that time.

Later, he said, they tried to enliarge the equipment by playing classics on the Juke boxes of other campus hang-outs. Seems that the experiment fell flat, however, when one exhausted owner told them to take the records off or else. Students had been spending all their nickels in playing classics.

Then the help had been going quietly, but stylishly, mad!

Amazing! I had no idea that we were so cultured. Even Mrs. Sirret Blues" has a rival in Beethoven's Fifth.

While we are on the topic of culture, I might mention that more of it is to be experienced during a UGA than in those of good manners, that is. Freshmen girls are going to have a hard time with school, others Like You. Etiquette 101 classical music. They have classical records slipped in the place of the latest hot-jazz platters in the Soda Shop. The classics were played a surprisingly short time—three times as long as most popular records at that time.

So far this year gives promise of a very quiet one. I agree with Emory King that "dust" isn't so scandal, although it makes it tough on those of us who have to fill up this page every issue. It is the better for the college, I guess. Last year something was popping every minute. This year every-

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

NOW STAN KNOWS HIS LANDIS PRETTY WELL

BY EMORY KING

Charlie, the Flambeau gremlin exploded into the office early Monday. He was roaring with laughter. In his hand he held a couple of sheets of paper.

"Here," he said through his tears of mirth, "read this, this. I've just left the editor of the Seminole. I'll be damned if he said I'm afraid we won't have a paper tomorrow."

Then he calmed down and "It would serve them right if we printed this thing with all the typographical errors left in it."

A letter to Stan Schmidt read thusly:

Dear Stan:

This letter is not in any way meant in antagonism too or any other stuff writer. However, we as Senior Hall members feel that in two instances that Senior Hall has been used for subject material in your "Campus Characters" in an unjust, unfair, and untruthful manner.

Stan, this note you pointed out that "all Landis Hall needs is a few dead bodies lying around.

Now I am certain, Stan, that I do take enough pride in my parlor to put it to our parlor and to note the amount of calls and callers that you record by observering your sex element was in relation to Senior Hall and you.

In the second instance in whom you referred to our unbridlike conduct in the Dean Warren's soiree and to our Dean of Women Dean Katherine Warren, we would like to point out the following things:

1. Dean Katherine Warren was personally invited by our Chairman of Senior Hall to come over and talk with us about a possible Senior Hall perfect which would be a social perfect for this reason, and could be sponsored by the Senior women.

2. Secondly, at the time of Dean Katherine Warren's arrival "all" Senior women were in the parlor therefore making it impossible for her to shove her way into Landis.

Stan, this may sound a little trite to you but there are some women at this campus who still believe in being the picked kind of women, and not the sour chosen sparker. Dean Warren, that we have such a woman to run some of the "red tape" she did not lecture. We finished with her as friends.

Whether or not your comments were meant as sarcasm or as joke we as Senior Hall do not appreciate them and the implication future your column should at all times be confined to the truth.

Come and help us join the Hall we love ! ! !

Members of Senior Hall

In Landis Dormitory

KING'S COMMENT: This is the first place Stan practically lives in Landis parlor. If anyone should know what the score is in Landis—it is Stan. In the second place, Stan's talk about Dean Katherine Warren came from usually competent sources. I understand he will apologize completely for all "un just, unfair, and untruthful" comments he made concerning the Hall he loves—ed.

ACP EVALUATION

The annual conference of the Associated Collegiate Press, held this year in Pittsburgh, was attended by 507 delegates from 34 states representing 197 publications.

During the three-day conference solutions to a great many publication problems were presented.

It was learned that administration control, student apathy, and unstable finances were not unique problems at this university. Not by a long measure.

Every college represented (109 newspapers and 97 delegates) had the problem of self-restraint, campus news coverage, make-up and typographical difficulties and grave decisions that each editorial staff must make.

Had our business managers been able to go they would have learned how to get the most out of promotion, how to write ad copy, the outlook of the national advertising picture and what college students were buying.

The three delegates attending from Florida State feel they have been inspired and greatly helped by the three-day convention.

Bill Shepherd, representing the Flambeau that he received many constructive ideas that will save students money and aid in turning out a much better annual.

The student magazine, Smoke Signals, was represented by Joel Smith. "I sincerely believe that Smoke Signals readers will benefit from the suggestions and ideas I picked up at the conference."

Flambeau representative was Bob Griffin. He related that he believea a new life will be given student publications indirectly through the influence of this annual meet.

The delegates had the stimulating experience of meeting and debating with Alan Kimmel, the expelled editor of the Chicago Maroon. Alan attended the Communist Peace Rally and then toured all over Russia, courtesy of the Soviet government.

He visited the University of Moscow, Warsaw and Leningrad. After describing

● 20 MILES PLEASE

Two major accidents in one week are two too many.

Last week two Florida State students were involved in accidents. We feel that this is a good time to remind Seminoles with cars to buggies that the speed limit on campus is 20 miles per hour. The importance of driving carefully is obvious when you realize that 5,000 pedestrians parade daily across the campus.

There has been talk recently of a Student Traffic Court to handle the many violations. Maybe some constructive criticism and a campaign or two by those interested would help.

A few more signs to augment the lonely one fronting the freshmen area would be one sure improvement.

his trip he was riddled with pointed questions.

When asked if they had a free student press in Russia after he had strongly urged student editors to uphold their freedom, Alan hemmed and stammered but never directly and firmly answered the question.

"They seem to be free . . . they seem to admire their leader . . . they seem to write what they wanted."

Alan said that there is no militarization of the Russian campus. He reported that his travel was not restricted on the condition that he would return and "enlighten" the American people.

The college representatives were so wise or they had just seen too much propaganda to swallow Kimmel's line about peace.

Though a clever and apt speaker, Kimmel was tripped when he was asked to define "peace." One editor spoke up and said that the 50 students in the room would give 50 definitions of "peace."

Editors discussed the problem of self-restraint, the editor as a censor, and the role of a college editorial page. FSU was behind times in many ways, editors agreed.

An evaluation of the ACP conference showed that the three days had been beneficial to FSU's three delegates. If you see a sudden change for the better, you might conclude it was the result of convention.

...estaurant Management Answers Special Need

The School of Business opened ...partment of hotel and restaurant management in 1943 to ...ssist the need for specialized training in this field.

"As the number of tourist hotels, motels, and restaurants increases, competition will increase and those managers equipped with a solid foundation of education, training, and experience will be in a position to profit ...ne by the opportunity," states Dr. Donald E. Lundberg, head of the department.

THE RESTAURANT and hotel department offers a bachelor of science degree in business administration. Courses such as economics, accounting, family dietary and composition and preparation, problems of handling food in quantity, food promotion and management, business law, engineering and plant maintenance are instructional management are included in the major.

Men who are prominent in the field are invited to speak on subjects of special interest and to discuss operating problems.

ONE OF THE recent guest lecturers was James T. Landon of the Hotel and Restaurant Commission of the state of Florida. The commission supervises over 43,000 eating and sleeping establishments including one-half million guests sleeping accommodations in 12000 restaurants and 3800 motor courts, 500 of which have been built since February.

The department also has a internship program intended to give the students practical experience and to prepare them further for supervisory positions after graduation. At present students are employed at Wakulla Springs Lodge, Florida Hotel, Duval Hotel and the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital as assistants in various departments. They are also em-played as student assistants in the college dining halls.

IN THE FOUR years that the Business School has offered a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration, several hundred students have majored in the "Hospitality Business."

Dr. Arnold E. Lundberg, formerly of Cornell University, and Anna M. Tracy head dietitian in charge of University food production since 1932, head the department, with Gladys Hall as associate professor and special lecturers Lida Adams, Hortense Glenn, and L. A. Rumsey.

Lost Anything? Claim It at Longmire Desk

Miss Jane Adams, director of the Longmire building, has asked that students come to the first floor of the Alumni building and claim lost and found articles.

Among articles turned in are two rat caps, three large silk squares, one small silk square, one pair of black gloves, one black nylon glove, one silver ruler, one glove holder, one plastic rain hood, one plastic envelope, one Phi Kappa Tau pledge manual, one tie clasp, one metal compact, one music clip, one pearl ear ring, one long key chain, two sets of car keys from Davis Auto Sales, Bradenton, Florida and King Motors, Tallahassee, Florida.

The list also includes one dorm key with trinkets initialed "L. E." one silver bracelet, three lead pencils, 12 fountain pens, one sculpture knife, one boy's tie, one pair of sunglasses by Bausch and Lomb, three cases for glasses from Ballard's in Atlanta, Kendrick from Tallahassee, Budd in Miami; one pair of scissors without a case, two pair of glasses in cases, one pair from Hastell, Greeley, Colorado; and one girl's plastic rimmed in a navy blue leather case.

The lost and found department also has one bathing cap, one boy's slipover sweater, one girl's denim shirt coat, one pair of rain-shoes, one rose corduroy child's coat, one reversible jacket, one grey raincoat, one green windbreaker, one Accounting Principles text, which is the fourth edition with name Mary Ann Basdyb in it; one bracelet with the name, Cecil J. Jones on it and one meal ticket with the name Davis on it.

RECEIVING PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE in hotel and restaurant work are department majors at a recent banquet at Wakulla Springs. Shown in the picture holding tray, is Michael O'Shea, noted movie star, whom the students were serving.

Methodist, Baptist Students Constitute Campus Majority

Methodists and Baptists are in the majority among Florida State University students according to a religious preference breakdown released by the office of the registrar.

The preference list revealed that the Methodist group had six members more than the Baptists, Methodists having 1184 members, Baptists, 1158.

OTHER RELIGIOUS FAITHS, in number of members on campus, are Presbyterian, 555; Roman Catholic, 399; and Episcopalian, 384.

Two hundred and fifty-five students listed no religious preference, 32 listed a non-denominational preference and an additional 31 gave no data as to religious preference.

APPROXIMATELY 3890 students listed some Protestant denomination, including 114 who simply listed Protestant.

There are 40 Jewish students on campus, 41 Christian Science and 15 Greek Orthodox.

The faiths, and numbers of students are: Greek Orthodox, 15; Plymouth Brethren,sadelet x Quaker, four; Jehovah's Witness, two; Plymouth Brethren, two; Unity, four; Unitarian, three; Seventh Day Adventist, 38, Nazarene, 56; Mormon, 8; Lutheran, 63, and Jewish, 40.

Students declaring themselves Non-denominational, 32; No preference, 255; no data listed, 21; and Protestant, 114.

F Club Initiates Finish Goating

The goating period for 14 F club initiates came to an end Saturday evening in the formal initiation at Camp Flastacowo. Goating is the probation period testing sportsmanship for girls who have made two Odd-Even teams within three sports seasons. By this method they are made eligible to join the F club.

The goating period may vary from three to seven weeks. During this time the girls are sent to entertain and do errands for the active members of the club.

On the agenda for every goat group is closed goating which calls for spontaneous entertainment of games, woods, skits and a goat sing. At this sing, each goat sings a song which she has composed for the club.

Saturday noon the goats met at the East campus gymnasium to perform for the members. They were dressed in costumes which assigned subjects such as "Everybody gets into the act" or "No One Has." Following the meeting at the gym, each of the 14 walked five miles to Camp Flastacowo. In the evening they presented further entertainment.

Counsel Service About Marriage Open to Students

In conjunction with marriage and family education, a marriage counseling service has been available to students since 1930.

Faculty members who teach in this division offer counseling in their offices by appointment. Professional standards of privacy and confidentiality are strictly maintained.

The scope of problems heard by counselors includes the relationship of students to their parents; dating, courtship, mate-selection, and engagement problems; premarital considerations; and marriage adjustments.

This counseling service is closely integrated with the entire campus guidance program. Thus students may be referred to the university psychiatrist, health service, the Human Relations Institute of Tallahassee, or a practicing physician.

The marriage counseling service is open to all students, faculty, and people of Tallahassee and other parts of the state.

Candidates for the Ph.D. degree in the division of marriage and family may work as counselors for two semesters of internship. According to a recent study, only five universities in the United States offer this internship program for graduates.

The supervision of these doctoral studies is directed by Henry C. Busching, assistant professor, and the entire program is under the administration of Dr. Coyle E. Moore, Dean of the School of Social Welfare.

Report on 1902 Disbursements

Students at Florida State University were fed on a total of $178.47, plus $3 for ice, and $3 for telephone service in May 1902, according to a disbursement report given to FSU by George Lewis, Sr., from his collection of historical documents.

A total of 252 students, who were enrolled during the period October 19, 1901 to May 31, 1902, were served meat at a total cost of $802.86 and milk for $72.18 over the eight month period Wood cost, the school $406.60.

The report says also that the college telephone bill for the eight months totaled only $15, laundry $40.70, and water, $68.62. The total revenue of the college during the same period was $4,381.26.

Warrell, Danforth Grad Likes FSU's Friendliness

"The friendliness here overwhelms me. It goes with the weather!" Ruth Warrell, Danforth graduate student, stated. Ruth will be on the campus for a year during which time she will learn everything possible about student religious life and work with it through observation and active participation in organizations and activities on the campus.

SHE RECEIVED her BS degree at the University of Vermont, last June. A native of East Barnet, Vermont, she has spent most of her life in New England. Ruth's major interests while a college student included women's athletics, Student Christian Association, Congregational Youth Group, 4-H Club, and musical organizations.

She received the award for "most outstanding graduate in scholarship, leadership, and service" from the University of Vermont.

RUTH IS ONE of 135 "Danny Grads," since 1943. These students spend five weeks at Camp Minisink, Shelby, Michigan, in a special course of training, after which each girl is appointed to a college for the period of one academic year. They are not professionally employed representatives of any national body, nor are they under contract to enter the service of any particular organization following the completion of their year.

For the Danny Grad this year is a line of informal study and practical experience with the objective of preparing for lives of active Christian service either in a vocational or volunteer capacity.

"THROUGHOUT this year I will be visiting colleges and universities all over the state," she said. This week-end she will spend at the University of Tampa.

Ruth has already become active in "Bi-Y" the new name for Student Christian Association, on this campus.

Naval Auxiliary Ground Unit Is Established Here

The Naval Air Reserve training officer at Jacksonville has recently commissioned an Organized Auxiliary ground unit in Tallahassee. Commander John T. Blue said yesterday.

The unit will be at full strength with a complement of thirty-three officers and either 1100 or 1200 designators and seven enlisted men with appropriate aviation ratings.

Members will be authorized to receive drill pay at the rate of twenty-four paid drills for every forty-eight drills attended. Payment will be made by check at the end of each month.

At the moment there are a large number of billets open for both officers and enlisted men which will be filled immediately so that training operations may commence.

Those who are interested in joining the unit are invited to attend any Tuesday evening meeting, 7:30, in the Naval Reserve Electronics building at Dale Mabry Field. Further information may be obtained by calling Commander Blue at his home, 2-5860.

New Food Service Information Related

Information on a new food dispensing service, the "food bank", has been released by Florida State University students in restaurant management, by Arthur Landstreet, nationally known hotel executive, recently.

Mr. Landstreet, vice president of the Alsonett Hotel chain, told the students that the food bank was the immediate success when it was tried 10 years ago at a banquet in New Orleans. The "food bank" makes it possible to prepare the foods for a large number of people well in advance and then automatically seal the food to retain its moisture and temperature until time to be served.

Mr. Landstreet is one of several executives who in recent years have been scheduled to lecture to the restaurant management courses on campus.

Alumna of FSCW On Infirmary Staff

Dr. Elizabeth Jeffress, alumna of Florida State College for Women, joined the staff of the Florida State University Hospital, in September.

Dr. Jeffress, a member of the class of 1944, majored in chemistry. She then taught in Leon high school for a semester, in the general science and chemistry fields.

THE SAME YEAR, 1944, she entered Women's Medical College, of Philadelphia, where she completed her training for the degree of medical doctor.

Dr. Jeffress, popularly known as "Jeff," came to Tallahassee after a year of practice in Cary, Indiana.

WHILE A STUDENT here, she was an active member of Women's "F" club and Kiteren, honorary for graduates of Kiteren years. She was tapped for Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities her senior year.

Women's "F" club recently elected Dr. "Jeff" their sponsor for the year.

About Florida State University, she says, "It's changed a lot. And a lot of the changes are for the better."

Religious Council Will Sponsor Campus Services

The Florida State University Religious Council has announced that it will sponsor a series of religious services on the campus from November 5 through 9 Howard Butt Jr., 34-year-old Texas chain grocery executive, will be principal speaker.

The services will be held each morning during the week in the Music hall from 7:30 to 7:50.

FIVE COMMITTEES and several subcommittees of students and faculty have been named in preparation for the services.

Coming with Butt to assist in the meetings are Frank Boggs, 24-year-old song leader from Dallas, Texas, who will be soloist and song leader, and Jack Hamm, 35-year-old commercial artist and professor at Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

THE SPEAKER, whose home is in Corpus Christi, Texas, is vice-president of the H.E.B. Grocery Corporation, which operates 69 supermarkets in the Lone Star State. He is a graduate of Baylor University.

Forty-two students are included on the various committees and subcommittees

The committees are headed by faculty members and by directors of student religious houses on the campus.

THE CARTOONIST and artist, Hamm designs the feature figures "Boots" and "Alley Oop." He will demonstrate his caricaturing during the meetings.

The trio have appeared in youth rallies and revivals and are popular throughout the South.

Interns Honored

Interns will be entertained at Ruge Hall Thursday night at 8. The night-club theme club of Ruge hall, will sponsor it as a Ladies night.

Hushhush of the Sul Ross game was the return of Mike Sellers to the running form that placed him on the all-state team last fall. Big Mike romped for 152 yards in but twelve official tries for an amazing 12.7 average, and the most yards gained in a single this year. It was just short of Buddy Strauss' 142-yard record set against Mississippi College in 1949

This game also marked the best overall team play of the Seminoles during the current season. The team really started out with a bang as they opened large holes in the Lobos' line and then took advantage of every break to hand the undermanned Sul Ross team its fourth set-back in a row.

I have to admit that there are some pretty staunch supporters of the Seminole team, as was apparent to the few spectators. The band, majorettes, and cheerleaders are to be commended for their disregard for personal health in favor of their undying devotion to the Seminole cause.

There was a magnificent effort and will not be forgotten by those of us who were fortunate enough to view the game from the comparative dryness of the press box. Everybody and his brother was trying to think up some excuse to get into that coveted shelter, but to those of you that didn't get in, don't feel so bad. It leaks.

THE MEN'S F CLUB will have a meeting at the women's gym Thursday night at 7:30. Jim Arnold, president, said that all men that have earned varsity letters are invited to attend, and a special football movie will be shown immediately following the routine session.

Students might be interested to note that Tampa U. succeeded in doing the roaing Nelson Hatters last Saturday. The Hatters were undefeated and untied going into the contest, and were favorites after stopping Furman 21-20 the previous week. Furman bounced back to drop Citadel by a sizable margin. We are currently trying to schedule Citadel for November 24 in fill the Bradley cancellation.

UNSUNG HEROES . . . I would like to dedicate this remaining part of my column to pay tribute to the unsung heroes of the football field and Landis green

Sometimes, in the aftermath of a thrilling game, we sports writers forget our lucle, and go hog a1ld in our praise of certain players who were obviously outstanding. It is only after the game has become distant on the horizon that we return to the world of reality, and that is usually too late, for our stories are already in print.

We tend to play up the scorers, passers, pass receivers, and tacklers in our Hally-wood version of the game. This we do because of necessity, but I would like to ask a few questions of those that always count the points scored and tackles made before they praise their heroes.

Who clears out the interference to set up the tackle for the "star," who makes those pin-point blocks to let that "neatback" break to a TD, who fakes the opposing backs out of position to enable one "outstanding end" to make a TD catch, and who does the protection work on those punts and passes?

While we readily admit some players are outstanding, let's not forget that football is a team sport and eleven All-Americans don't necessarily make a good team. Remember this year's, all-star vs. professional game? There is no indispensable man on a winning ball club.

The unsung heroes of Landis green are not people you hardly ever seen, there are those young men and women who are forever helping the little "fumbling lels" learn and practice their tricks. So, the next time you stand with your mouth half-open as you watch them go through their routines, stop and tell the people responsible for it how much you think of their unselfish devotion to the young. It's one of the few really great things people are doing in this money mad age. I am grateful to have witnessed this scene of a dying heritage, and with the highest, humble commendation I know, I say—"Yours in a job well done."

FSU Outswims SU Ross

Mike Sellers Paces Win

Playing their best home game of the year, the FSU Seminoles trounced the Lobos from Sul Ross, 35-13. Mike Sellers was the outstanding player of the game as he scored three times, before a small crowd of 1,000 very wet fans.

The Seminoles wasted no time in scoring as they took the opening kickoff on their own 15-yard line and marched down-field in four plays for the first touchdown. Italiano took the kickoff and returned it 15 yards to the FSU 30. Bringer then scampered 37 yards to the Lobo 39, from where Sellers went around right end for the score.

NOT TO BE OENIED, however, the Lobos came roaring back to score twice and take the lead. The first score came on a 23-yard run by left half John Bailey. Soon after, Duane Parsons intercepted an Italiano pass, and dashed 48 yards to score.

The Seminoles forsed back into the lead early in the second quarter on a 47-yard end run by Italiano. The next score came when Jimmy Lee Taylor, FSU defensive end, blocked a Lobo kick on their 12. Sellers scooped up the loose ball and went 12 yards for a score.

An interception of a Sul Ross pass by Curt Crubbaugh brought the next score. Curt grabbed a Laffoon pass on the Lobos' 39 and went across unTouched.

THE FINAL SCORE came in the third quarter on a sustained drive that saw the Seminoles take the ball 80 yards and score when Sellers took the ball over from the six.

Ernie Huggett, FSU's "educated Joe," kicked five out of five, while Shahan kicked one out of two for Sul Ross.

Another important aspect of the game was the outstanding punting of Tommy Brown, who averaged 42.7 yards per try. Time and again his kicking kept the Lobos bottled up deep in their own territory.

COACH VELLER can be proud of his team's showing in the game, as they showed some poserhouse drives, even though they were handicapped by a muddy field.

The Sul Ross Lobos need not return to Alpine, Tex. ashamed of the game they played. They are the first team to score against the Seminoles at home this season, and early in the game they held a 13-7 lead.

Pensacola Navy Overpowers Seminole Volleyball Team

The FSU volleyball team played Pensacola Navy Preflight in the Pensacola YMCA gym on Thursday, Oct. 19. The Navy team won the first two games and the match by the scores of 15-11, 15-11; but FSU came back to win the next two games, 15-8, 15-9.

Both teams were evenly matched but the Navy team with their smooth play managed to pull ahead in the closing minutes to win both games. The FSU team outpowered the Navy in both games, getting three more kills than the Navy in each game. FSU had a total of 35 kills to 29 for the Navy. Leading spikers for the flight were Howard Gould of FSU and Eastman of Navy with 13 kills apiece. De Bruere of the Navy had 10 kills followed by Bambrick and Clark with nine each.

According to Coach Odenheal, the FSU team, composed of Gould, McFaiter, Crooch, Hambroch, Clark and Bruce, will need lots of work in handling the ball and defensive play. The team, he said, has possibilities of being the strongest FSU has ever had, but they will have to play more consistently than they did against the Navy Pre-Flight.

THE NAVY TEAM was composed mostly of California collegians. Eastman and Patterson were members of the USC team that won the International Collegiate title in 1949 and 1950. Patterson was named on the Collegiate All-American team in 1950.

Arrangements are being made to try to get the Navy Pre-Flight to come to Tallahassee after Homecoming for a match. Commander Reese of the Navy has assured that over 2,000 cadets will witness the return match in Pensacola.

Costumes, Dalls Made By Indians

The Seminole Indian costumes and dolls on display now in the University Bookstore are made by Seminole Indians of the Brighton reservation.

William D. Bortmer of the United States department of interior, who is secretary-treasurer of the reservation, saw the Florida State University-Miami game and thought students at FSU might be interested in the Indian costume. This was because the FSU students are known as the FSU Seminoles.

Centennial of Florida's Higher Education To Be Theme of FSU's '51 Homecoming

THE TUMBLING TOTS in the 1951 Gymkana presentation of "Playland USA" are shown rehearsing their clever act.

'51 Gymkana Show Scheduled at Fair

Coronation to Climax 4-Day Run; Preview Tonight at Charity Carnival

"Playland, U. S. A.," 1951 Gymkana show, is scheduled to begin its four day run Tuesday at the North Florida and Leon County fair.

Students will not be allowed in free as originally announced, for Nov. 2 performance. They will be given a half-price deduction by the presentation of their registration cards, Dr. Hartley Price Gymkana director, announced yesterday.

CLIMAXING the four day program will be the presentation of a queen on the last night. The queen will be selected from the 10 final contestants who will be chosen primarily on the ability to pose a costume representing a well-known sport.

Featured in next week's performances will be Bill Nicholson, annual top gymnast last year, and Gene Rabbitt, who won honorable mention title for national title in the side horse last year. Roerigan will captain the United States Gymnastic team in this year's World Olympic.

A PREVIEW of next week's show will take place tonight at 8:30 when the Chaires elementary and Junior high school parent-teacher's association sponsors its Halloween carnival.

Gymkana members included in tonight's performance are Lawrence Weston as juggler, Charles Dodson, Gene Rabbitt, Tony Carvall and Ireland Harmer as acrobats, Eddie Evans and Lawrence Weston on the trampoline, Jerry Delaney and Mary McNatt on the art as general manager and Jerry Welch as master of ceremonies.

A CALISTHENICS exhibition will be given by Keesnon and Shelby Tucker. On the side horse will be Gene Rabbit. Kesson is on the clubs and will later appear in a balancing act. A tor dance will be given by Gladys Baker and Jerry Pennell will be featured vocalist. The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots are also on the program.

Not included in tonight's show is the high bar act which will be done by Roetzheim and Carmine Bruno next Tuesday. Roetzheim and Reena scored in both national athletic meets last year. They will also perform on the parallel bars in which they placed second and third respectively in the A.A.U. contest last year.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S acts will also include Dick Outline on the trampoline and Jack Miles, Joe Sims and Jack Sharp on the flying rings.

Gymnasts and tumblers who will also demonstrate are Ben Wallace, Al Ruda, Al Jurus, Gene Whitaker, Dick Ireland, Harmer Mitchell, Eddie Evans, Don Platt, Jerry Weston, "Beans" Stephens, Al Martin, Charles Keesnon, Al Jesse, Bill Vretos, Dan Holder and Pat Bumarelli.

Soph Annual Pictures Slated Next Week

Sophomores are asked to have their Tally-Ho annual pictures taken next week, Gail Kelly Allen, editor of the annual.

Freshmen pictures may also still be taken, Gail said, for those who missed their appointmentes or did not make one.

Appointments should be made as soon as possible, she said. Organizations are asked to sign up immediately for picture appointments.

First Elections For Freshmen On Slate Tues.

Eleven Classes To Have Reunion Luncheons Sat.

The classes of 1912, '13, '14 '15, '31, '32, '33, '34, '41 '50 and '51 will have their reunion luncheons at noon tomorrow in the Florida State University Lafayette room in the dining hall building.

Miss Alma Warren, Alumni Association president, announced that businesses and hosts have been appointed for the luncheons by the association.

THE FOUR classes who were in school together, for example, the classes from 1912 through 1915, will hold their reunions together.

Under this system the classes meet about every fifth year. Many alumni come from long distances to attend the annual class reunions and greet their former classmates, according to Miss Millicent Parrish, alumni association executive secretary.

Mrs. Dora Skipper will serve as general chairman for the luncheons, assisted by Mrs. Alice

President Presents Review of Policies

A review of current University Government Association projects and policies was presented by C. A. president, Will Pennell, Tuesday afternoon at the weekly meeting.

Pennell said the questionnaires for evaluating the university government have been passed out to all campus organizations. The papers are for the purpose of asking the organizations their opinion about what is needed at Florida State. Questions included are "Why is it needed?" "Where it is needed", and "How should it be done."

QUESTION BLANKS can be returned to the UGA president at the Alumni building through campus mail.

Pennell also informed the senators that an interview in the office of the athletic composition for the Florida University will be on the agenda of UGA projects.

The UGA president stated that the traffic court committee has been reorganized and promoted that the East campus athletic equipment will soon be available for the use of men students.

At the Tuesday meeting an act to provide for an amendment to the constitution for the impeachment of elected officials was passed. The bill will later be voted on by the entire student body.

SENATOR Mary Ruth Summers introduced the amendment bill at the last meeting of the senate. The bill was brought up because of the need for a check against members of the senate who were inclined to neglect their elected positions.

This year the senate has set up a standing committee to set up attendance regulations. Three unexcused absences will result in expulsion and three tardies will be counted as an absence. Another standing committee was also set up last week to draw rules for senate procedure and to set in an advisory capacity for the rest of the year.

TUESDAY, a legislative reference bureau was revised by the senators with appointments to be made as soon as possible.

In addition, permission was given to Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity to pay for the fixing of the radios in the university infirmary.

All members were present Tuesday. Jo Nell Proctor, secretary reported, with the exception of senior men's senator, Wailer Jarl

Celebration Officially Begins With Dismissal of Classes

The centennial celebration of higher education in Florida, theme of the 1951 Florida State University Homecoming, will officially begin with the dismissal of classes today at 1 p. m. on East campus and 1:30 p. m. on West campus.

FSU is celebrating its 100th year of higher public education, which began in 1851 when the present college was known as the Seminary west of the Suwanee. Only men were allowed to attend this school which was transformed into a military training school during the Civil war. In 1905 it became the Florida State College for Women and the present Florida State University was established in 1947 as a co-educational college.

FSU ALUMNI will begin arriving early this morning and registration begins today at 1 p. m. in the Longmire building. It will continue until 6 p.m. today and will be held again tomorrow from 9 a.m. until noon to take care of late arrivals.

George Redd's orchestra will be on hand at the West Campus Student Union from 4 to 6 p. m. to furnish music for the tea dance. The dance is a new innovation in the traditional Homecoming program.

APPROXIMATELY five hundred members of the Florida Key honoraries, alumni, and guests will attend the banquet at 5 p. m. in the Suwannee dining hall. Guest speaker will be Dr. Henry D. Bennett, director of the Point Four program, U. S. Department of State. At this time the presidents of the 10 honoraries will present honorary membership to the outstanding persons chosen by the members of Garnet and Gold Key.

Tonight at 8:30, the winning

Adams Chairman ODK-Red Cross Blood Program

John Adams has been appointed co-chairman of the ODK-Red Cross blood procurement program.

Two more national fraternities, Kappa Alpha and Phi Kappa Tau, have pledged 100 per cent donation to the blood program. Previously Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon pledged 100 per cent support.

IN A SPEECH Wednesday, President Truman, made a nationwide plea for blood for the Red Cross banks.

New information, released by ODK chairman of the project, Bob Griffin, stated that the saucer-wade drive is the main emphasis. Life magazine last Friday, ran a picture of the new procurement method and transportation to the front lines in Korea.

"Florida State is slightly behind other universities in the blood donation project," said Griffin, relating his interviews at a recent press conference on the directing of the project on other campuses.

On many campuses the student government handles the project and invites donors. The local fraternity council on the campuses handle the blood donations. Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership-scholastic society, handles it on this campus.

THE BLOOD donation program is well under way at the University of Miami, last Friday over 200 registered to give blood.

It will be impossible to have available a Bloodmobile until the latter part of November. John Adams, new co-chairman, related. The Red Cross must make arrangements for the Bloodmobile to travel from Jacksonville where the nearest headquarters is.

John made a plea for any students wishing to work with the project. They may contact Adams or Florida Flambeau office. Student captains will be announced soon.

Deadline Is Jan. 4 For Grad Invitations

February graduate's deadline for ordering graduation invitations will be January 4. Orders will be taken at the University book store, J. Gordon Wheeler, manager of the book store, said that interested may place their invitations before they leave on their interning program.

Parade Lineup Is Announced

25 Floats Are Entered In Homecoming Parade

Bands, floats and cars slated to appear in the Homecoming parade tomorrow must be lined up and ready to start by 9:30 a.m., according to parade Chairman Ed Williamson.

Approximately 25 campus organizations are entering the float decoration contest, Bill Upshaw contest chairman, announced.

All organizations other than the Florida State University band will assemble at Call Street, starting point for the parade. The Marching Chiefs, FSU band, will assemble at the University main gate.

WHEN CHAIRMAN Williamson gives the signal the lineup in the parade will proceed up College Avenue to Adams Street, south on Adams to Tennessee Street, east to Monroe Street, and north to Tennessee Street, where it will break up.

Highlight of the event will be the presentation of the floats which sororities, fraternities, dormitories, and other campus organizations have been constructing this past week. Bill Upshaw, float contest chairman, announced that judging would take place during the Homecoming parade.

THE WINNING organization will receive a loving cup. Any organization accepting the award three consecutive years retains permanent ownership.

The only rules for the float contest, according to Upshaw, were that entrants first register with him before the deadline. Floats be completed by 8 a.m. tomorrow morning, and the total cost of each float not to exceed $35.

Kappa Alpha will be led by a Color Guard consisting of the ROTC Ordinance students, immediately followed by the ROTC Marching Chiefs and the cheerleaders.

Next in the line-up will be the motorcade of dignitaries. Seaton President Ollie Edmunds, and the PSU President Doak S. Campbell.

The Air Force float, constituting the Honor Guard, will be followed by the Homecoming Queen's float. Members of the University Government Association and the Sophomore Council constructed the Queen's float.

NEXT IN LINE will be the Florida State University band and the

H'coming Dance to Climax Activities Of Florida State's Big Weekend

Climaxing the week-end Homecoming activities will be the Homecoming dance tomorrow night in the Suwannee room dining hall. The dance will start from 9 until 1 a. m.

Featuring Tex Beneke, his vocalists, Shirley Wilson and Bill Raymond, the dance will be carried out on the 1951 centennial theme.

EVENT OF the evening will be the second appearance of the Homecoming queen and her court at 10:30. The queen's identity will first be revealed tonight at the annual Pow Wow.

A small floor for the couples who wish to avoid the crowds of the Beneke dance in the Suwannee room will be held in the women's gymnasium, dance chairman Dan Sikes announced. The smaller dance will be open the same number as the dances.

JERRY KOHLER'S ten piece dance band will play in the gym, the dance chairman said.

Tickets for the smaller dance will cost 50c and be sold at the door only.

The Homecoming queen will also be announced at the smaller dance with her court at approximately 11 p.m., Gould said.

Tex Beneke

Tickets at $1.50 per person for the Suwannee Homecoming dance will be continued to be sold until dance begins tomorrow night, Gould said. Tomorrow night tickets will be sold only at the main entrance of the Suwannee room. Students who already have their tickets should make it a point to go to the two side doors.

"Tex"

THERE WILL be two people at each entrance to take up tickets until 1 a. m. at the end of the dance, the chairman stated.

Check rooms will be provided at the side door of Reynolds and Bryan halls.

"No drinks will be allowed in the Suwannee room as the room being overly crowded could become a very dangerous fire hazard," the chairman noted.

THE EVENING'S entertainer, Beneke, was so dubbed by Glenn Miller when he came up from Texas to join the Miller organization in New York. One drinking misnomer from Beneke and Glenn nicknamed him "Tex." His real name is Gordon Lee Beneke Beneke was discovered as a singer until 1938 after he had joined the Miller band. While touring with Miller one night Tex, to keep awake, began to sing "Ida Sweet as Apple Cider." Miller said nothing at the time but later made arrangement of "Ida" and told Beneke he was to do the vocal "Ida" is still his biggest request number.

BANDLEADER Tex Beneke has played the saxophone over a 4,500 dates since he play-

Queen Will Recieve Crown In Stadium Tonight at 8:30

Highlighting today's Homecoming activities, will be the coronation of the 1951 Homecoming Queen at the "Pow Wow" in the Doak S. Campbell stadium at 8:30 p. m.

Jett Munroe and Bobbie Pettis, the 1950 and 1949 queens, will crown the new queen, whom FSU students elected Tuesday. The five finalists, four of whom will comprise the royal court, were Bunnie Garst, sponsored by Theta Chi; Sally Kennedy, Pi Beta Phi; June Conyers, Landa Senior hall; Ellen Avis, Sigma Phi Epsilon; and Elizabeth Cooke, Alpha Xi Delta.

The "Pow Wow" will also be highlighted by the presentation of the prize-winning skit, selected at the finals last night in the Alpha Gamma Delta-Sigma Nu Skit Contest. No admission entered the contest. A loving cup will be presented to the winning organization tonight.

The winning fraternities from the Wednesday night finals are Sigma Chi and Sigma Phi Epsilon. Alpha Xi Delta and Alpha Delta Pi are the two winning sororities.

Tonight the two winners of the four in the run-offs will present their skits.

Members of the newly-organized Warpath club in Seminole Indian regalia, will take charge of the mammoth pep rally. The yare urging all other students to wear Indian costumes if possible.

Univ. Council Eyes Bus Fare

The proposed reduction of bus fares from ten cents to the original price of a nickel was the primary issue before the University council Tuesday afternoon.

The dean of student welfare, Dr. J. Brown Culpepper, told the UGA council that the vice-president of the bus company, Mr. C. L. Carter, said that the volume of business is not large enough to bring the bus fare back down to a nickel, but Mr. Carter has offered the school an alternative

THE BUS company president suggested that the bookstore sell a ticket worth 12 rides for $1 to the students. Ninety-six cents of the dollar would go to the bus company and four cents would go back to the bookstore for handling the transactions. Carter also said that it might be possible to sell student transportation cards for 20 rides at a cost of $1.60

The council has not yet taken action on the proposal.

The committee has planned a standard application form for all seniors to show all activities by year.

STANDARD FORM applications may be secured at the office of the dean of student welfare, Dr. J. Broward Culpepper or the Alumni office on the first floor of the Longmire building. June said that the applications must be turned in to the student welfare office by 5 p.m. on Friday, November 2.

The chairman further reported that a more elastic system is being set up. The committee plans to publicize the activities for which credit will be given.

THE COUNCIL decided Tuesday that the 1951 Homecoming queen, who will be revealed tonight, will represent FSU in the Maid of Cotton contest.

Plans for re-organizing the traffic court were also discussed.

Absent were Jimmy Barnes and Doris Jean Smith.

Counseling System Is Quite Extensive

During registration most new students were handed white cards entitled "counselor" with the name of a faculty member written on it. Most of these students talked with this counselor who advised them what courses to take.

Many students thought that this was a nice gesture on the part of the administration and many more took it for granted that this was a regular procedure provided by the university for all students. Both these theories are right, but what the students have not considered is the fact that these counselors know a lot more about various problems brought to them than the student realizes.

THE EDUCATIONAL counselor performs five general functions including explaining to the students the General Education program, assisting the student in arranging his yearly study program, helping the student in his choice of major field, serving as a link between students and administrative offices, and serving as a faculty friend to the student.

Besides giving educational counseling these faculty members aid students in finding work, or in adjusting to a health problem if necessary, they advise their counselees on personal problems.

LONG BEFORE the student arrives, the office of Co-ordinators has a line-up on his interests and his possible field of study. Thus he can be assigned to an educational counselor.

The student finds his counselor a well-informed, sympathetic, and intensely interested person, well trained by the office of the Co-ordinator to handle his problem. Relatively few state universities have such comprehensive counseling programs for all students," says Dr. Melvene Hardee, Co-ordinator of Counselors at FSU.

THE COUNSELING program at FSU started only four years ago with a handful of counselors and has grown to a present strength of 111 counselors for incoming freshmen and transfers. The department of counseling also assists 200 upperclassmen undecided about a major.

Men's Senior Hall

Senior Hall held dorm elections recently, and elected Jim Lohmeyer, governor. Gerald Spence, Wayne Edris, Willis Tyrrell, and Joe Lane were chosen to represent their respective districts on the house council.

After Miller was declared "missing in action" during World War II, Beneke took over the Miller orchestra. He could have organized his own band, but preferred to carry on the Miller name.

Bill Raymond, 23-year-old vocalist with Beneke has also began his career early. Bill has sung with three vocal groups, has been a soloist, and night club master of ceremonies, and has been vocalist with five dance orchestras.

Shirley Wilson, vocalist and now 21, started out in show business at 16. This is her first appearance with a top name band.

skits, which were selected last night at the semi-finals of the Alpha Gamma Delta-Sigma Nu Skit contest, will be presented and awards made. Members of the Warpath Club, in full Indian regalia, will also be on hand at the 1951 "Pow Wow" tonight in Campbell Stadium.

CLIMAX of the evening will be the official coronation of the 1951 Homecoming Queen, elected last Tuesday in the final voting from the five semi-finalists.

Also present tonight will be the University Singers, conducted by Professor Wiley L. Housewright; the FSU football band, under the direction of Bob Braunagel; the cheerleaders, headed by Jaki Mincer, and the entire 1951 football squad.

THE ANNUAL ALUMNI breakfast and business meeting in the Lafayette Room at 8 a.m. is the first event scheduled tomorrow.

At 9:30 a.m. the Homecoming parade will form at Call Street and proceed up College Avenue to Adams Street, south on Adams to Pensacola Street, east to Monroe Street, and north to Tennessee Street where it will break up.

THE PARADE will be followed with a barbecue at noon at Camp Flastacowo, honoring special guests.

TWO-THIRTY is the time of the kick-off for the FSU-Stetson Homecoming game in Campbell field. Half-time celebration will feature the presentation of the Homecoming queen and her court.

The half-time ceremonies include the Marching Chiefs in a program commemorating the centennial celebration.

Coming on the field from the north side of the field, the band will form 1851 while they play Remember, and then going into a formation of 1865, they will then play Dixie and Stars and Stripes Forever in commemoration of the Civil War.

Culmination of the display will be the formation of a hat and an arrow honoring Stetson and Florida State University.

Following the game open houses and informal coffees will be held at the dormitories and the various sorority and fraternity houses.

The final week-end event will be the Homecoming dance, the fourth of its kind, tomorrow night in the Suwannee Room. Decoration for the dance is under direction of the Sophomore council and music will be presented by Tex Beneke and his orchestra.

Centennial Homecoming

Florida State University has made much progress since it was known as THE SEMINARY WEST OF THE SUWANNEE way back in 1851.

From the small beginning as a regional seminary—up through the ranks as a state college—Florida State has grown to the full-fledged university it is today.

We pay our respects today to this great school—its administrators, its faculty, its housekeeping forces, its grand body of students—our hats off to—

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

From hitching post to hotrod—from crinoline to blue jeans—we here at Alford's through eighty of these hundred years have watched this fine institution grow and grow. We have shared the uphills and downhills—rejoiced and sorrowed—grown bigger and better with Florida State.

Because of all this we feel a special warm glow of pride in sharing this great occasion with you.

CLASS MEMBER OF 1876

Oldest Alum Is Mr. Perkins

"Old Timer"

By FRANCES CAWTHON

A University likes to be able to boast with pride to its alumni and say, "They are one of us; they are our representatives out in the world." Florida State could have no better representative than its oldest alumnus, Thomas James Perkins.

Perkins, who lives in White Springs, Florida, with his daughter, Harriette, is an alert-minded 97-year-old man who graduated from the class of 1876, when Florida Agricultural University was West Florida Seminary.

A NATIVE Tallahassean, Tommie as he was called by everyone, entered the "College" in October, 1873. The school, then, he said, had about 150 students. Classes were held in a large two-story brick building, with the first two years taught upstairs and the last two downstairs. There were no separate classrooms. Perkins recalled that two very large embankments on the south side of the building had been constructed to guard the college during the Civil War. The school had no official president that he could remember, as W. W. Woodward taught the first two years, and a Dr. Jacobs was Professor Wade, the last two.

Perkins could not recall how much tuition and tuition fees did cost as compared with those of today.

Parents footed the bills in those days just like many of them do today.

Since Perkins' home was in Tallahassee, he was what might be called a day student. "Our home was a mile distant from the College," he said, "and I would walk back and forth. Sometimes I would ride the distance without stopping."

ALTHOUGH THE college did not offer too much in the way of well-rounded sports or social calendar, Perkins, who both loved sports and excelled in them, found his own athletic outlets. He and the other boys played Prisoners Base and had a rubber ball over the college building, trying to hit anybody on the other side. The school did have two baseball clubs, but Perkins was not only short, but on the Grasshopper Club, but again, he worked his way back to second place and was there for the remainder of the time.

Perkins said that every boy of any means went to the College after Primary school. "If there were any quarrels among the students," he said, "after hours we would go behind the building and fight it out."

BACK IN THE 1876's "you knew everybody worth knowing in Tallahassee," according to Perkins. The town had approximately four thousand inhabitants and five churches. Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Roman Catholic and Baptist. The girls had a separate college and the Negroes had a school not far from the Seminary.

Perkins was born in Tallahassee on October 21, 1860. His father came here in 1832 from Baltimore, Maryland, and his mother from Charleston, S. C. They built their home next to an Indian camp in the town. The Perkinses had ten children of whom Tommie was the ninth.

PERKINS SAID that his father was a close friend of Prince Murat nephew of Napoleon who lived in Tallahassee, and his wife, the niece of George Washington. Another friend was Richard Keith Call, the third territorial governor of Florida and a companion of Andrew Jackson in the Indian wars of north Florida. Mr. Perkins was vice-president and general manager of the railroad from St. Marks to Tallahassee, the first in the state of Florida, on which strimers and some mule-drawn cars were used.,

Perkins not only had an influencial father, but an ancestory worthy of note. The family name was founded in England in 1376. One of the ancestors was James Brawshaw, a member of the High Court that tried Charles the First. Another was a fourth cousin of George the Fourth of England. Perkins mother was also related to John C. Calhoun.

AFTER PERKINS left West Florida Seminary, he clerked in a drug store for a year. He then went to the University of the South for two years and Eastman National Business College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

His strenuous-loving tendencies caused him to jump from a Lover's Leap to the top of another mountain fifty feet below while at the University of the South. If he missed he had a five hundred feet drop to the valley below. Perkins was the first to try this. Three others have been known to attempt the leap afterwards, one who was killed. He also has traveled widely, explored coal mines, and jumped from a train some forty miles an hour.

WHEN PERKINS was 24, he married Miss Elizabeth Shanen of Camden, S. C. They were married for 50 years, and have a son in Indianapolis, Ind., and a daughter living with him in White Springs. He was in the railroad business for 57 years.

Though a great-grandfather with ninety-one years behind him, Perkins is still keen-witted and interested in the world about him. People tell him he does not look over 65 even though he has been on the point of death eighteen times. He drives his own car and goes swimming frequently, keeping body as well as mind in sound, up-to-date shape.

"And if God is willing," says our oldest alumnus, "I may reach one hundred years. Think of it!"

FSCW's '41 Class To Hold Reunion This Homecoming

Among the listed 10 classes of Florida State College for Women and Florida State University who are holding reunions at Homecoming, is the class of 1941.

Mrs. Arthur B. Chitty, permanent president of that class, has reported in detail the whereabouts and status of the 364 members of the group.

OF THE 364, 254 are still living in Florida, with 110 out of state, scattered widely over the entire nation. Nine are abroad in Europe and Asia.

Two hundred and eighty of the ladies are married and report 255 children, two-thirds of which are boys.

Many of the graduates now have advanced degrees: medical doctors as well as doctors of philosophy, and a large number of master's degrees.

SEVERAL of the class have taught at FSU since receiving their diplomas; in the departments of journalism, botany, physical education, and in the school of music. At present, however, none of the group is in the faculty.

Mrs. Chitty reported to the other classes planning reunions that a great many changes and improvements have been made since this institution has become co-educational.

The classes who are planning reunions at FSU are '31, '36, '41, '34, '33, '31, '15, '14, '13 and '12.

Wit and Sharp Humor Typical Of Men's Dean Otis McBride

Taking care of the men students on a full time basis at Florida State University, solving their many personal problems and counseling with them in their scholastic work has not dulled one whit the sharp humor of Dr. Otis McBride, FSU dean of men.

IT'S A GREAT challenge in dealing with human nature in all its various phases and we try to make the most of our opportunities to help these young men toward their real goals in life," Dean McBride says.

In his daily routine of duties Dean McBride is responsible to the FSU dean of student welfare and through him directly to the president. He has general supervision of extra curricular activities of the men students both on and off the campus and is responsible for the social recreation of the men students, their health and their housing. He investigates any cases of maladjustment in academic work of the students and works out mutual problems with the dean of women in student social and recreation programs.

HE SERVED in the Army from 1942 to 1946 with the Air Forces and spent most of his time overseas at such points as Casablanca, Karachi and other places.

He was a teacher of English at George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., and while there wrote a number of special articles dealing with the teaching of English. He is a member of the Kappa Delta Pi, Phi Delta Kappa, Pi Gamma Mu and the Alpha Pi Omega Fraternities.

DEAN McBRIDE has an important role at the University with the building of new dormitories, since his office must assume the responsibility for the proper housing of the men there and the direction of recreation and social activities for the mens students.

"Very often a student who is doing only fair work in his studies, with a little help, advise and encouragement becomes an "A" student, ranking with the best in the University," Dean McBride says "That's why we are always on the alert to encourage the students to give their best efforts now so they will continue to give their best after they leave the University."

From a Lonely Quiet Field 100 Years of Hot Progress

In 1851, when higher education was officially established in the sparsely settled state of Florida, the campus of Florida State University was a lonely field on top of a sloping wooded hill.

Today, after 100 years of dynamic progress, this institution has grown with amazing speed to become one of the foremost universities in the south.

At present FSU is worth close to 14 million dollars in tangible wealth. It is impossible to measure the relative value of intelligent minds produced by this school.

The greatest progress has been experienced in the last 10 years under the commendable and remarkable leadership of FSU President Doak S. Campbell. In the homecoming edition last year, a full page dedication was run in appreciation of the efforts and energy of this friendly, foresighted man.

What will tomorrow be like on FSU's friendly campus? Today students, faculty, and the administration alike are trying in every way to improve campus life.

Thus, it does not seem impossible that tomorrow's Tallahassee campus will offer quite a few changes to everyday alums. In the first place those returning will probably see faculty and students traveling around on bicycles.

By 1956 the fifty-year plan will have been completed, and the new buildings will no longer be brand new but will have been fifty-year old land marks. The registrar's office will probably have over 50,000 students registered for twice as many courses as there are today. Many new departments (new to us, but old to them) will have been added since 1951.

The year 2051 will see many new changes in student regulations. New ideas in student government, brought about through different UGA presidents and possible membership in NSA, will be in apple-pie working order. The student senate will really be accomplishing big things.

By then there will be a world student organization representing student groups from all nations. Petty things which concern us today will cease to exist. In tomorrow's world, but rather, large problems will be crying to be solved.

An international student world organization will have a voice in politics and college students will be more conscious of the outside world beyond the red brick walls. Technical and mechanical advances will bring the world even closer and will enable students to communicate with each other more satisfactorily.

Youth groups similar to those started by the Nazis and the Russians will have shifted their emphasis from militarism to humanitarianism. The pageantry of Homecoming will be replaced by celebrations that will help advance studies of peoples throughout the world. The world 100 years from now will realize that only through education may lasting peace be achieved.

"There is no law of progress. Our future is in our own hands, to make or to mar. It will be an uphill fight to the end, and would we have it otherwise?" Let no one suppose that evolution will ever exempt us from struggles."—Dean Inge.

We realize that progress is never without conflict.

We, the students, faculty, alumni, and friends of FSU, hold the reins of progress in our hands.

May we steer with wisdom.

● WELCOME BACK

To all alumni and former students, we extend a most hearty welcome. As you return to the campus of your University, you meet many of your friends and re-live many pleasant experiences of your college years.

This 1951 Homecoming marks the end of one hundred years of higher education on the State of Florida. We are proud of the record of this century. However, we turn our eyes to the future as we accept our share of responsibility for the century ahead.

We are proud of our alumni. On behalf of our splendid faculty and student body, I express the hope that your stay may be pleasant and that you will come again soon.

Doak S. Campbell
President, F.S.U.

● SWEET MEMORY

"You've got to fight, fight, fight

Alumni and old friends of Florida State will hear this phrase ofte.. during this eventful weekend. It is the FSU fight song, introduced just one year ago tonight.

This song, along with the Alma Mater, Hymn to the Garnet and Gold, Dr. W. G. Dodd's Spirit o' Seminole, has been recorded for your permanent enjoyment.

Song album orders containing five records, recorded by seven of FSU's famous music groups, are now being taken at the Alumni registration desk and in the Alumni office.

After the glamorous homecoming is over, remember with one of these fine albums.

● GIVE A THOUGHT

In an atmosphere of tension and fear of war, peoples around the world marked Wednesday, the sixth anniversary of the United Nations, the world organization dedicated to the task of preserving peace.

Most students failed to give second thought to the day, the ideals of the UN, or the great job it is performing in the world. Students were too wrapped up in happy homecoming preparations.

Have your fun classmates . . . but remember, your friend is fighting a real war and facing death that you may enjoy this weekend.

● 50 YEARS AGO

Has this school progressed in fifty years?

For a laugh, a smile, or just a comparison to 'way back when' take note of these editorials that were printed in the 1901-1902 volume of The Argo, yearbook of Florida State College.

The organization of the Olympian Athletic Association opens a new era in college athletics here. No longer will the FSC take a back seat in athletics in this state, but it may be safely prophesied that in a very few years she will rank foremost upon the track and field.

From the 1903-1904 we find this choice bit.

The prediction of last year's Argo that the Florida State College would soon be at the head in inter-collegiate athletics is rapidly becoming true. The stand that she took in football last autumn assures even the rankest pessimist that she is forging to the front.

* * *

It was during this year that FSC beat Florida Agriculture College the University of Florida's arch rival.

Then the girls moved in in 1905 . . . .

● THANKS FRIENDS

The colorful garnet and gold programs entitled "Time for Homecoming" which all of the students received in the mail were the gift of three people this year.

The University is very grateful to these three persons for donating their time and money so that everyone might have an attractive schedule of events. The project was both an artistic and an expensive one.

To State Representative Charles E. Sherperd of the Record Press, St. Augustine, who was our printer; Mr. Al Schleuning of the Dixie Engraving company, who did the engraving and Mose Tyler, both of FSU and St. Petersburg, our able artist, we owe a debt of appreciation.

Florida State is very proud to have such people think so much of its welfare and progress.

● TOM-FOOLERY

Th Flambeau is not anti-Greek.

Rumor has it that certain persons are 'down' on the paper because of certain editorial columns run several issues ago.

First, the Flambeau's news editor, managing editor, society editor, and numerous members of the junior staff are Greeks.

Second, the Flambeau aims, as stated in its editorial policy, to give a complete and unbiased report of campus, state and world events. Editorials are the opinion of the paper and columnists express their own opinion, uncensored by the Flambeau staff.

It is true that certain Greek houses use publicity the inter-fraternity council tried to approach local merchants and have them withhold advertising in the student news paper. The town people realize that they make money by selling to students and to sell something they must advertise. This move failed.

The inter-fraternity council also asked each fraternity to boycott the student newspaper by refusal to give any news or information unless they paid for it. Even social homecoming edition. This failed also, as can be seen by today's paper.

Sororities were above such tom-foolery . . . on another section of this paper the gals have features, stories, and pictures galore.

The editor of the Flambeau believes the fraternities cut their own necks by their refusal. Three frats thought she ban foolish and turned in their news. It is wondered what returning Alumni will think when they scan the paper looking for their old frat's news and lo . . . nothing.

The majority of the students in frats should realize that there is no "anti" feeling of any kind among the newspaper staff.

Some mature forethought is advised to inter-fraternity council before they try and pull two more such childish stunts.

POLITICAL POST

MEDICAL LOBBY KILLS CRITICAL BILL

By PAUL E. GARRISON
VERNON PEEPLES

Reactionary Republicans, led by Senators Dirksen and Taft, with the assistance of some Democrat, recently engineered the defeat of Senate Bill 337, one of the most carefully considered and needed drivers measures ever to appear before the Senate.

Senator John Pastore (Dem., Rhode Island), in presenting this bill to the Senate, said "The pending bill is designed to provide critically needed financial assistance to those schools on which this nation depends to train doctors and nurses so badly needed by both our Armed Forces and by the civilian population of this nation."

The bill would have provided financial aid to medical, dental, osteopathic and nursing schools enabling them to meet the rising costs of instruction and would have enabled them to increase their enrollment. It also provided liberal financial scholarships to worthy and needy students.

The nation's medical schools are in a desperate financial plight. The country does not have enough doctors, and the American Medical Association has admitted in spite of their opposition to this measure that the war will need at least 15,000 additional doctors by 1960.

Senator Pastore stressed three pertinent points in the discussion of his bill.

He said: "First, this is amergency legislation designed to meet a real and critical emergency. Secondly, the objectives sought by this proposed legislation are directly related both to the immediate needs of the Armed Forces and to our Civilian Defense program. Third, while this measure calls for an outlay of many millions—$267,000,000 in five years—this is nonetheless an economy measure. The money involved would represent an investment in the future health of this nation."

The bill originally had the alleged support of leading Republicans and Democrats, including Senator Taft, but apparently the pressure exerted by the American Medical Association heavily endowed lobby proved to be too much for many of the Senate's noble members. Taft did a complete back-flip when the measure came up for a roll call vote. His flimsy excuse for opposing the measure was his fear that the national budget could not afford the measure at this time.

Consequently, a group of the nation's wealthiest physicians have organized the "Medical Committee of the Draft Taft Club of America" to urge the United States to draft Taft to the Presidency in 1952.

Every doctor will be asked to give a minimum of $10.00 to the fund, thereby repaying Taft for what he has done to work reactionary health and medical legislation.

Senator Murray (Dem.-Montana) pleaded with his colleagues to vote for the Pastore bill. He said: "The A. M. A. tells you not to pass this bill. The A. M. A. is the one organization which once supported the bill, but which now through methods it has changed—save that we need it more than ever—demands that you, too, reverse yourselves and vote it down. I assume you know that the top command of the A. M. A. wants you to defeat this bill. I assume you know, too, that those members of the A. M. A. who know most about the bill—the deans of the medical school—want it passed. I am sure that despite a lobby spending three million dollars a year to influence legislation in this

I am sure you will defy that lobby and in the interest of this nation and of the States you represent, vote overwhelmingly to pass this bill."

The bill was defeated—42 against and 13 for the measure. Florida's senator, Senator Spessard L. Holland was recorded as not voting. Senator Holland stated this valuable piece of legislation. Senator Holland was recorded as having voted as this particular measure.

SEMINOLE SCENES

DID FSCW GALS MATCH OUR ENTHUSIASM

By FRANCES CAWTHON

As if it hadn't already been said a million times, "Welcome Back, Alumni."

It makes you a little bit proud to watch the classes of by-gone years come piling in through the Westcott gate. They are as wide-eyed as we all were when we first started to Florida State, and that kind of makes you feel good. Like you are showing the new Florida State University one to which you believe we have done something to improve.

The old grads, gathering from their cluttered rooms to find some amazing changes in the old school, don't limp quite so noticeably, seeing excitedly, "Why I remember when . . . " or "This used to be the way you do." They are covered a chance or the something-or-other-has-been-added.

In about twenty years, though, I imagine we will be doing the same. We probably will find ourselves lost in an expanded campus, whose center is what was once only the outskirts of the university. Students will pedal by on their bicycles—or we would like to think, automobiles—to classes in sturdy new buildings. We will go into the dormitories and find accommodations there we don't dare dream of now.

The Homecoming game will be with some big league team, which we shall, naturally, trounce. When we pick up a Flambeau or a Garnet and Gold, we will find student publications with larger space and frequent issues. Enrollment will be up to new heights, and school spirit will be at its zenith.

At least we hope we will come home to all that.

While in the process of doing all this projecting into the future, wondering how much Homecoming will change through the years, We have gotten away from the delightful Odd-Even events as our main stay, but not too many people seem very excited about a Florida State University Homecoming. Wonder if the old gals matched or overran our enthusiasm.

Other places go wild with school spirit, party-parties and pep-rallies, but we have thrown into a weekend. And they usually do throw everything else into it, too.

It is doubtful that such a mad whirl homecoming is a good thing. But then there was no record-breaking-up type of grad reunions.

More than one Seminole is building floats in their sleep. After a week of punchins colored tag-ins through fire, one girl said she had never seen so many empty boxes. But we'll bet there is a lot over, too. One night I come home to find a float construction in the next night she resembles a scotch plaid. Paint remover companies should get rich after this weekend.

ODYSSEY OF CHARLIE

CHARLIES' DEATH DUE TO HEAVY STUDIES

BY EMORY KING

It is with much regret that I announce the untimely demise of Charlie, the Flambeau gremlin. Last night, he died from a broken typewriter. I found him this morning.

Perhaps a few words of explanation are due. You see, Charlie died because his inventor has passed from the scene. Yesterday I resigned as associate editor and columnist for the Florida Flambeau. This will undoubtedly shock those who predicted that I would get my diploma in essential while writing a story for the paper.

It was with much sorrow that I handed in my resignation. During the past two years I have loved working for the student body and for the paper. It is with no little ease that I now retire to study again.

It is perhaps paradoxial that one of the major things that brought me to the Flambeau takes me away—love. An unhappy love drove me to remain happy one takes me away

Through the paper I have found a release of self-expression—a fulfillment of the need to do help others — and a knowledge that I have perhaps contributed something toward the betterment of the university I am proud to call my alma mater—if I ever graduate.

Before I go finally I would like to say a few things about certain groups and certain people here on the campus.

TO UGA PRESIDENT Pennell and the rest of the government:

You have the ability, resources and responsibility to make student government here a real living institution on the campus. You have been sharply criticized by me and other members of the student body. Please learn to take this criticism in the spirit in which it is given. The student government here can be great if you will only have the courage of your convictions.

TO PRESIDENT CAMPBELL and members of the administration.

It has been a real pleasure to work with you during these two years. At times I am sure my writing has brought both of us grief. For that I am sorry—but I stand today for everything that I have tried for in the past. Misunderstandings and foolish mistakes have plagued my work—and yours. It is my hope that I have served FSU as I know you do. Please try to understand the student newspapermen as they practice their trial and error journalism.

TO THE EDITOR and the staff:

It has been fun to work with you these two years. Don't give up the ship—no matter what happens. Freedom of the student press is the most valuable asset we have.

TO THE STUDENT BODY:

A university is what the students make it. Watch your student leaders. Be sure they give you what you want. Don't be apathetic. Let's make the most of our four years.

GOODBYE.

Baseball Movie Wins Critics' "Yes" Nod

At the Florida Theatre today and tomorrow is a picture which merits high approval. For anyone who wants to see a film that has the warmth of superb human comedy and a refreshing touch of the angelic, Angels in the Outfield is this columnist's suggestion.

Filmed at Pittsburgh's famed Forbe's Field, home of the Pittsburg Pirates, Angels in the Outfield is one of those rare baseball movie productions that Metro-Goldyn-Mayer has produced.

The film takes him in acting quality, dramatic unity, and emotional impact. The comedy is warm and human, with that emotional response which determines in the final analysis a successful picture. Man Story, Emotional climax follows emotional climax in a dramatic build up that has one wondering whether to laugh or cry.

Paul Douglas plays the role of a hard-bolled, hot-tempered baseball manager who prides his players for the freble-minded playing that he put them in eighth place in the final league standings. His performance is commendable

Janet Leigh displays her dramatic versatility in her portrayal of a pert newspaper editor of Roadshed Rules. It was been assigned to write an article on "What's Wrong With the Pirates" Florida's woman's editor.

Keenan Wynn is on hand with his usual supply of memorable lines as a pessimist who is Doug-las' antagonist.

But the supreme, crowning town to this heart-warming story about baseball and angels is the introduction of lovable little Donna Corcoran, whose unwrit and powsistent prayers bring the "Hess, only Choir Nine" to the rescue of the Pirates. Eight-year-old Donna dominates every scene with natural warmth and dramatic response that makes her one of the most valuable child-star discoveries in years.

Starting Sunday and playing through Tuesday at the Florida Theatre is a film that is filled with mystery, suspense, and strange love. Entitled "The Man With a Cloak", the film stars Joseph Cotten and Barbara Stanwyck in one of their most unusual roles.

Leslie Caron, new French star, and Louis Calhern head the festured cast.

Texas Carnival continues at the State Theatre. A technicolor musical comedy, the film stars Esther Williams, Howard Keel, and Red Skelton. the film offers entainment in the field of popular music, swimming, and hilarious comedy. When Red Skelton and Esther Williams are mistaken for a rich millionaire and his sister, a series of riosous complications follow that find Skelton involved in $17,000 debt and a wild chimpanzoon race.

Dear Editor...

Dear Editor:

In view of the fact that I was recently appointed Chairman of the University Traffic-Safety Association Traffic-Safety Court, I thought it advisable to enlighten the student body on the rules, regulations and ideals of this court.

This court was established last year by the UGA Senate for the explicit purpose of helping the students at the University where the traffic problems so prevalent on this campus. It was known that the majority of the students simply had automobiles, and therefore could not be expected to enact legislation for the protection of these students, and those who do not have cars.

Although this Traffic Court legislation was passed by the University Senate last year, it has not enough time remaining in the school year to function. Hence its functions. Therefore this semester will be the initial start of this Court. In connection with this I think the student body should be acquainted with some of the more important sections of the statute. Three of these are as follows:

(1) Section 9 "Jurisdiction of the Traffic-Safety Court. The Jurisdiction of the Traffic Court shall extend to all undergraduates of FSU, and only in cases of official reporting of violations of the Uniform Code of Traffic Regulation Traffic-Safety Court, I thought it advisable to enlighten the student body on the rules, regulations and ideals of this court.

(2) Section 10. "Authority. Penalties. Fines, only, may be made in addition to the guilty of violation of the Traffic-Code in the following manner: First offense—a warning notice; (2) $1; (3) $3; (4) $5, and (5) $5 for each fine thereafter."

(3) Section 11. Appeals from the Traffic-Safety Court. "Any guilty party of the Traffic-Safety Court may appealed to the UGA Court on grounds of technical error or injustice complaints. Here it shall be heard again in its entirety, and no double punishment rendered by the UGA Court."

As you can readily see, these regulations have been engendered to injure the students brought before this court, but rather to secure their safety on the campus.

I sincerely hope that along with my associates, Arden Rabhan and Charlie Milford, this court shall function as a well-meaning and worthwhile division of the University Government Association.

Sincerely yours to make it such.

George Graham Jr
Chairman, Traffic Court.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

Arise ye victims of non-drinking parties. In a burst of glory we may yet lose our blues, sobriety and inhibitions. Who said anything about Bowmans Auto Court, I was talking about the collective dance and subsidiary chick chasing, booze inhaling and like projects.

One of the best things about the much maligned typical American is his ability to lay aside the tools for an enjoyment if not alcoholic weekend, SOOOO

I know how crowded it is last year and how you couldn't see Spivak for the bobbing smilers. Yeah, I know it looks like Buck Rogers will deliver your next check but you can't afford to miss a school-sanctioned wingding which doesn't involve looking at the early Prof through blood-soaked eyeballs . . . .

The most-heard excuse for passing up this year's Homecoming brawl is pretty moldy. The rain talk around it, the timid ref hesitatingly, "It's formal." the honest say with the shrug, "me no or don't own a formal." Since when is that a legitimate reason? If a blue suit and a tie that doesn't look up will get you into the Cub Room of the Stork or Top O' the Mark it certainly shouldn't get you stared at in the Suwannee Room.

Come-dance and dress you there—I'll be the boy in the shiny shiny blue serge. . . .

1952 Sandspur Show Gets Under Way

Song and Dance Gang

Ever since the term "Sandspur" received pleasant connotations back in 1947 the production bearing this name has been the cause of much curiosity each year.

This year's show was written by a young Episcopal ministerial student, Dan Dearing.

A WELL thought out musical comedy, it might be called a burlesque on college life. Reports say it is the fastest moving Sandspur production yet staged. The musical score helps the plot develop instead of providing an interlude.

A colossal production number, well worth the Hollywood adjective, is guaranteed to be unlike anything you've ever seen.

Bill Backus, FSU senior, is the producer of this year's performance.

GEORGE Carey, speech major, is producer of the show. Tuesday night, director Carey presented his "get touch" policy which he described as an "unnerring one." Essentially, this is the story of Danny, a young man who inherits a girls' school from an uncle he'd never heard of.

However, before taking possession of the property, the will stipulates he must attend the college for one year.

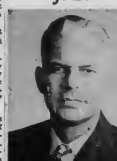
IT HAPPENS that Danny has three gallant buddies who volunteer to go through his internship with him. One of these makes his living selling lingerie, and the other two, being intellectuals, do nothing.

What happens when 4 guys and 4,000 girls mix together?

Could be a bang-up Sandspur Show for 1952.

Student Problems Can Be Solved

"J. B."



No matter what his problem, the individual student at Florida State University has somebody to talk it over with and help him reach a satisfactory solution.

Such is the duty of the Student Welfare Division, headed by Dean J. Broward Culpepper.

"With the coming of co-education to Florida State University some three years ago, it was early recognized that there would be the necessity of expanding the program of services to students," Dean Culpepper says.

"Accordingly, the university has developed a broad program of services, many phases of which involve counseling and guidance, with the purpose of meeting adequately the various needs of its students."

With the tremendous growth of the university, Dr. Culpepper says, the counseling, guidance, clinical and welfare services to students need constantly to be reviewed and expanded to keep pace with the institution's growth and to prevent students being lost in the bigness of the university.

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper

Included in Dr. Culpepper's broad scope of activities are admission and registration work, educational and social counseling, health counseling, vocational counseling and placement, medical services, housing, recreation, intramural and athletic activities and student feeding. In addition to these responsibilities, the division assumes the job of providing scholarships, student loans and work opportunities.

Dean Culpepper was director of the division of research and field services at Florida State University prior to his appointment in 1947 as Dean of Student Welfare. Before his appointment to FSU in 1946 Culpepper was administrative co-ordinator of the Leon County schools (1942-45).

He came to Tallahassee from Louisiana where he was principal training principal. Dr. Culpepper has also served as principal of the P. K. Yonge Laboratory School and assistant professor of education at the University of Florida.

He earlier taught at the University of West Virginia and at Miami University. He was a member of the Florida Citizens Committee on Education and is collaborating author of the book, "The Emotionalized Attitudes."

A graduate of the University of Florida, he holds the Master's and Doctor's degrees from Columbia University. He did additional graduate study at George Washington and Ohio State Universities.

During 1944 and 1945, Culpepper served as a lieutenant (jg) in the Navy.

WFSU Announces Election Policy

WFSU this week announced the policy it is setting up to handle election speeches.

The campus radio station will avail its facilities to any candidate, with certain time restrictions.

CANDIDATES for president will be limited to five minutes for speeches, and all other candidates will have three minutes.

Preliminary election speeches will be aired on Monday night from 7 to 10 o'clock. Speeches for the election finals will be aired on the night preceding election day.

ALL OPINIONS expressed during the speeches will be those of the respective candidates, and not of the radio station, WFSU stresses.

Men's Senior Hall Plans Open House

Men's Senior Hall will have a four-piece orchestra for their open house following the FSU vs. Stetson game tomorrow afternoon. The group, which is headed by Jim Powell, will play from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m.

Governor Fuller Warren, President Campbell, Stetson President and officials, plus many other important figures have been invited to attend the occasion.

Committee heads for the open house are: Gerald Spence, decorations; Roy Chapman, refreshments; and Joe Lane, invitations.

Candidates wishing to use air time should sign for it any time after noon, Sunday. The time chart will be posted on the door of Room 400, Longmire Building.

H'coming Celebration 25 Years Ago Today

By AL PIERCE

During this gala year celebrating the 100th anniversary of Florida State's existence as an institution of higher learning, we are occupied with the activities revolving around us as contemporary students.

But how many have wondered what sorts of things our sister and brother alumni did to celebrate such events as Homecoming 25 years ago. Upon digging into the not-so-dep - and - dark past the chameleon brought up a faint glimmer of the spirit shown by the students of that dazzling era in American youth when rolled-down hose, the shimmy-shake and raccoon coats were all the rage and the fraternity man sang "Moonlight Bay" to the tune of a banjo to his girl.

THE INFORMATION for this article is based on the memory of a lady familiar to many on campus, Dr. Katherine W. Montgomery, head of the Physical Education department. She has been close to our school both as a student and a member of the faculty for many years.

According to Dr. Montgomery things began happening around the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. On Tuesday night the Odd classes, the classes who would graduate in odd-numbered years, put on a gala extravaganza called "the Demonstration" in which the girls would stage plays, skits and musicals in much the same manner that our present Sandspur productions are presented. Wednesday night was the night for the Evens classes to shine in a similar production. Each night the members of the teams representing each class who would compete in the athletic games which were to highlight the three-day long celebration were introduced.

AS DR. MONTGOMERY recalls, the odds always seemed to have the more peppy demonstrations through the years, and the evens were the more "refined and aesthetic, however, both nights Westcott Auditorium was packed to capacity with spectators."

Wednesday morning "Color Rush" found teams from both Odds and Evens running races, the winners decorating different buildings on the then small campus with their team's colors.

BOTH TUESDAY and Wednesday nights were reserved for the "Night Out." After lights out Tuesday night the Odds were permitted to go out around campus and celebrate with such novelties as jack-o-lantern parades, bonfires and pep rallies. Wednesday night the Evens had their night out and made good use of it too, says Dr. Montgomery, who was herself a member of the Evens Class of 1918.

On Thursday morning, Thanksgiving day, everyone attended early services in the various churches in town and at 9 o'clock the games began. Through the years, Dr. Montgomery states, various games were played during Homecoming. During the years with which this article is concerned, basketball and volleyball were the popular sports, although in the early 1940's field hockey and soccer held the rein and not until 1947 when this institution first admitted men and became Florida State University did football become the major event of Homecoming.

A NOTE OF NOVELTY was added back in the early days when both teams made their grand entrance to the games. Dr. Montgomery remembers that one team came clanging onto the athletic field in fire engines complete with blaring sirens and firemen dressed in their complete suits of "business clothes." The other team striving to be less portentious, came roaring up in autos with a complete police escort of motorcycles, police cars and more sirens giving a great fanfare to their arrival. It must have been a pretty noisy campus for a few minutes—quite different from the quiet, ivy-covered halls we know now.

The games, held on the athletic field near the Women's Gym attracted throngs of people, not only families of students and alumni, but many townspeople as well. People in 1926 knew how to cheer their sides as well as we do now, and the excitement and school spirit shown very nearly compared with our present-day feelings about sports except that there are probably many more hoarse-voiced males in the crowds now than there were shrill female shrieks back in the 20's.

AFTER THE games, early Thursday afternoon, everyone was invited to Thanksgiving dinner in the Suwannee Dining Hall where on each table seating about 25 there was a whole turkey waiting to be carved which lent a family-style flavor to the dinner. At a special table the winning team sat and were royally feted for their victory of the morning's affairs.

After the dinner everyone retired to various socials and teas on and around campus and spent a comparatively quiet afternoon making ready for the big Homecoming dance that evening. If we think for one minute that, because this was a women's school, there was a shortage of men for the dances, we are sadly mistaken. The men from University of Florida at Gainesville literally "took over" on Thursday night and really gave the 'gals' from FSCW something to talk about for a long time after. (They really dazzled 'em!)

FRIDAY WAS a bad day for everyone in general. Classes began again as usual and the infirmary was filled with cases of sheer exhaustion. The Friday afternoon Homecoming could appropriately have been called "cut day" and if the attendance records were to be scanned, they would, no doubt, show a decided slump in most student activity.

Basically the spirit and willingness to make these Homecomings a success prevails whether it is 1926 or 1951. This year we are sure the students of Florida State will make Homecoming an event to look back upon with happy memories

Filling the November 24 date left vacant by Bradley's cancellation is giving the administration and athletic department their headaches. So far, they have contacted Furman, Mississippi State, Citadel, Davidson, Georgia, and George Washington and have been turned down by all. Maybe those people who want FSU to schedule better teams might try talking other colleges into playing us. We are trying our best to get a first rate team for the date, and have been trying to get first rate teams for next season, but most larger teams don't feel up to taking on the rising Seminoles.

The University of North Dakota has contacted the athletic department in an effort to fill the open date, but FSU officials feel that they would be in the same class as Delta State and Troy State. We would rather have no game than be accused of scheduling another track meet.

As long as the Bradley cancellation is being brought out into the open, I would like to make a few points clear. First—FSU drew up an agreement to play Bradley University here in Tallahassee and in that agreement it was clearly stated that we would not be able to play them should their team have any Negroes playing. Bradley agreed to this and then backed out of the agreement because of the Negro players which had been included on the Bradley team for the first time in their school history.

Second—Regardless of this fact, FSU officials should have been glad to play the Bradley team, but fear of the radical minority. That silly-ass team is only head in times like these, caused them to take the precautionary way out.

There are some people that always want to stir up trouble when the large majority is in favor of playing, in order to help break the race barrier in the South, and these are the people the officials were afraid of.

As far as I am concerned, a football player is a football player, and an athlete is an athlete and I'd play against any color that I were on a team. I believe all of our athletes would too so let's blame Southern tradition and backlog for this mistake and hope we will soon be able to schedule any team in the country.

Having to resolve as to the color of their players' skin.

Now to the game of the week.

Stetson with its loaded eleven will be steaming into Tally bent on sweet revenge after their two years of being trounced by the Seminoles. Regardless of their good record, I just can't see a Hatter win. I'll pick FSU for its third straight by one touchdown.

FSU's ALD Group Is Oldest in Florida

Nineteen members of the sophomore class of Florida State College for Women in September of 1941, met to form the oldest chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshmen women's honorary in the state of Florida.

Dr. Olivia Dorman who was then dean of women was installed as organizing chapter under the sponsorship of Phi Beta Kappa. The installation banquet was held in October of 1941. The chapter at the University of Miami was installed in January of 1950, is the second oldest, and the University of Florida chapter installed two days after that of Miami, is the youngest.

THE SCHOLASTIC honorary was founded at the University of Virginia in the spring of 1924 by the Dean and assistant dean of women. The purpose was to promote scholarship and the cultural phases of college life among freshmen women. In 1926 Alpha Lambda Delta became a national organization with the installation of a chapter at Purdue University. At the first national convention in 1930, a constitution was drafted which stated that any freshman woman having an average of 2.5 for the first semester of her freshman year or an average of 2.5 for the entire freshman year might be issued a bid for Alpha Lambda Delta.

Alpha Lambda Delta chapters spring readily to colleges over the United States until there are now 64 chapter in colleges over the nation.

FRANKIE CLARK ..... who was junior for the group which Dr. Olivia Dorman serves as faculty advisor. Officers are president, Jean Everett; vice president, Mary Audrey Whitehurst; secretary, Laverne Jennings; treasurer, Manuella Crespo; historian, Earlynn Vance, and reporter, Mary Alberta Louthan.

The National President is Dean Lide Sprague of Southern Methodist University and Dean Katherine Warren who is an honorary member of FSU's chapter, member-at-large of the Southern district.

Big Changes Are Seen During F S U Year

What a change a year can make!

There are as everyone knows many changes around the campus which take place over a period of years in a university. But even a short time can make many differences.

LAST YEAR students attended all big events in Westcott auditorium. Actual series, tests, convocations and graduations were all held there. This year they've been forced to use the gymnasium for most such meetings. Westcott auditorium has been condemned and students have been having to meet in smaller groups in other campus auditoriums.

A male resident of East Campus was a rare creature last year. Only a few privileged men were able so find housing in Senior dormitory. This year Magnolia a former girls' dormitory, and the Village have been turned over to the use of the university.

HAT CAPS, and a rat court, came to Florida State's campus last year for the first time. Previously one could find a few scarlet and gold caps around the campus but there was no rule saying Freshmen had to wear them. This year the new students had to wear caps or be sent to the court.

Changes in student activities in the Longmire building were also made—social schools or departments experimented with the establishment of Saturday classes, and Florida State's sporting life took a new look For the first time, the university stepped into the gay season by playing the University of Miami. Freshmen girls, ordinarily restricted to campus for a six weeks' period, were allowed to pack their suitcases and attend the big event.

ON THE RELIGION'S side, two new student houses were added, the Presbyterian and the Methodist, and the Catholic Newman club gained a house mother.

Johnson to Lead Hatters In Attempt for Revenge

Florida State University and the Stetson University will square off in Doak S. Campbell stadium tomorrow in the renewal of this schools most hitter rivalry. The starting time is scheduled for 2:00 and will highlight the daytime homecoming activities.

The Seminoles are in their best shape of the season as they have all the injuries, sustained in early games, pretty well mended. Tommy Brown ace defensive safety man and Roy Thompson ex-Georgia Tech halfback, plus numerous others are all on top shape and should be ready for the fracas.

THE SEMINOLES have been having closed practices all week in preparation for today's duel. Bill Driver ran Hatter plays against the FSU defense and received many a jolt at the hands of the surging Seminoles Bill was knocked unconscious once and dazed several other times by the hard hitting defensive team.

They will have to keep up that sort of drive, if they expect to stop All-America honorable mention Bill Johnson. Johnson has been packing the Hatter attack, and highlighted the present season by piloting the Stetson team over the favored Furman team.

STETSON IS the only college team in Florida that is still undefeated, although they were tied last week by the Sarasota-Cole Tampa Spartans in a hotly contested game. Stetson has allowed on-ly 24 points in four games, and Furman scored 20 of these when the Hatters edged them 21-20.

FSU will be the seventh meeting of the two clubs in a rivalry that stems from as far back as 1901, when then Florida State College tied the Hatters 5-5. The Seminoles won the next two, 18-6 and then the football was discontinued until FSU was made co-educational in 1947. 21-20.

Odd-Even Rivalry Began Back in '15

Odd-even competition began in 1915 with the Sophomore and senior classes forming the Odds, and the junior and freshman classes forming the Evens.

Forming the Evens. The Evens chose green and gold for their colors and the Odds red, white and purple.

The first main game to be played between the two teams was basketball which was played on Thanksgiving and called Homecoming. This was the biggest affair of Odd-Even on campus.

BEFORE THIS big game, each of the classes were permitted a night out. The Evens on their night out would circle with green and gold lights, dressed in sheets as Even Spirits and sit by a big bonfire singing songs. The Odds would have a pajama parade carrying jack-a-lanterns which chiefly through the use under the pines as they Paraded around the buildings.

A play or demonstration was put on by the classes with the script written by Inger Sjoderin Tody this is known as Sandspur. At one occasion the Evens portrayed the Even Spirits dying and going to Hell and several times they tried to rise up before those Even spirits arose.

THE EVEN SONG came from this and has lasted through the years.

Even spirits never die them bones Gwine rise again Hi-ten-ho Reels and knock 'em in the ocean them bones gwine rise again I know indeed I know it, sister, I know it — Them bones gwine rise again The bells of Hell go ding-a-ling-a-ling for the Odds are not for us Up where the angels sing-a-ling-a-ling

There s where you will find us Oh dealy, where is they sing-a-ling-a-ling and Odds, they victory Don't ring-a-ling-a-ling but sing-alling -a-ling for me. Then hail to the Green and the Gold, to the glory that will unfold. A team that will add praise of the standards on bish that we raise. Then hail to the girls staunch and true to the tie that binds Evens old and new. With hearts pure as gold, we'll uphold the glorious fame and lofty fame of dear old Evens.

THE ODD SONG which has lasted through the years is "So well it is with the Red and White down with the green and gold Our Odd team is out for a victory, We'll break the battle-ax over Evens heads when we meet them Our team is going to beat them! Out of old FSU, there'll be no sound 'till our fists, rahs, rip through the air in the morning the Evens will be found on the ground with the odd team arranging around."

Before the big game there would be a huge breakfast with songs and speeches. The game would also with hundreds of people attending

Tommy-Sa-La-odmilitastire"

THE GAME ITSELF carried with it certain traditions. those of each team making a special entrance. After the game they would have a banquet with Odd and Even tables standing to each other.

Cheerleaders were chosen to lead the cheers at pep meetings. It was a great honor to be elected to this position.

In 1920 the color races were formed. That is, at a certain time each team would run to different buildings and the team that got there first was entitled to the building.

In 1926 most of the Odd-Even sports that we play today were being played. Soccer, hockey, archery, volleyball, and basketball were played in the winter, while baseball, track and field swimming were played in the spring.

THE OUT-STANDING Odd girls were chosen to become members of honorary, and the Even girls to become Esterean. This was one of the most important clubs on campus to be a member of, to belong.

Some of the outstanding Odd-Even leaders from 1914-1940 were Katherine Montgomery, Betty Bell, Mary Wood Emma Spence Mary Seitle, Elizabeth Autrey, Helen Bryan, Sara Spencer Mc-Smith, Elizabeth and Harriett Robinson, Helen Waldo Annie Burr, Carolyn Watson Betty Osland, Peaches McKay, Violet Brooks, Trey Parker, Janet Wells, Grace Fox, Oladys Vaughn and Eleanor Burr.

In 1947 the last Odd-Even basketball homecoming game was played because the attitude changed to intercollegiate football as the college turned co-ed.

Old Grad Recalls FSU's First Days

A student of Florida State College in 1901 was Mr. Gayle P. McCord, Supreme Court clerk since 1939 and a lawyer in Tallahassee for 30 years.

Mr. McCord told a Flambeau reporter that Florida State college was formerly a prep school and college back in 1900 and that he had been a member of the junior class when the school was established in 1903

"The school was quite different in those days, stated Mr. McCord. Debating was the main interest and the highlight of the commencement each year was the big rivalry between two debating societies. The Platonic and the Anaxarorean. I was in the latter and my brother was in the former. One year I had to debate my brother, and I don't think building in 1911 will ever forget that.

"In the early part of the century, fraternities started to spring up on the campus. The Kappa Alpha fraternity had been here, but it was on a strong political SAE and others with equally out a one year probation contracts . . . the school was absolutely.

Sororities were on their way on to the campus. Kappa Delta was already instituted, and a petition for Chi Omega was being chartered. It finally became chartered after the school was segregated to female.

The only sports we had were football and baseball in which I played right guard. In football and its base in baseball. The girls were assisting basketball but football and baseball were the the sports. An attempt football schedule would consist of East Florida Seminary of Gainesville, now U of F's, Florida Agriculture and Mechanical School of Lake City Auburn or Georgia Tech. All-star teams from back couple years. Some of these, Sanford, and THE BIG [illegible] . . . Stetson

That's why I wouldn't miss this game for anything. Stetson was Supreme Court clerk since 1939 and a lawyer in Tallahassee for 30 years.

First Seminole Beat Bainbridge In 1903 Opener

"We were excited (and what) more, if the truth be told, we were a little scared. So was the air that prevaded the boy, way back in 1903 when Coach W. W. Hughes led the first Florida State College football team against the Bainbridge, Georgia squad.

The Bainbridge outfit was made up of several University of Georgia veterans and outweighed FSC. It was quite a ball game here in Tallahassee that memorable day forty-eight years ago, with Florida State coming through with a 5-0 win over the Georgians.

There were two more ties on the FSC schedule that year both with Florida Agricultural College (now University of Florida). The first was played in Tallahassee with FSC coming out on top 6-6 Take note Gators', but in the return match at Lake City the outcome was reversed. This time FAC won 6-0. So was Florida State's first gridiron season completed with a record of two wins against a single loss.

Tomorrow afternoon when Dr. Don Veller sends his high-powered Seminoles against Stetson, 1903 will seem a long time ago, but the admonishment will remain undoubtedly the same.

Exemption Exams Scheduled Nov. 13

Exemption examinations in the areas of General Education, with the exception of English and mathematics which were given at the beginning of the semester will be given on Nov. 13 and 14, at 7:30 p.m. in room 314 of the education building. This statement was released through the office of Dr. M. H. DeGraff, director of the test service bureau.

In order for a student to take the exam he must have a recommendation from the educational counselor, dean or the chairman of the area in which he wishes to take the examination. The recommendations must be filled in the test service bureau by November 8, 1951.

for men east of the Suwannee river and one for women West of the Suwannee . . . the one on the West being the East Florida Seminary for Men and on the West, became the Florida State College for Women. In 1947 the state legislature opened both schools to co-education. East Florida Seminary became The University of Florida and Florida State College for Women became the "Seminole" school. Florida State University.

SHAW'S SHAWS

Football Seminoles Boast Assorted Backgrounds

LAMBEAU—Football Biograph

DICK TURK—

Dick Turk is the hard hit-g fullback from South Bend, diana, who, now in his nior year is still one of FSU's si reliable ground gainers.

Dick attended Riley High School South Bend, where he earned e football letter. He is major- in Business Management at U.

He is a husky 5'-10", and is dy-mite on the hoof, and can really lode going through the line.

ERNIE HUGGETT—

The "educated toe" of the FSU tball squad is little Ernie Hug- the converted running back m the University of Indiana.

Ernie comes from Mishawaka, diana, where he went to high ool and earned three letters.

Huggett stands 5'-7½" and ghs 170 pounds. He is major- in Physical Education, and uld like to coach after gradua-n.

NELSON ITALIANO—

The big halfback with the No. on his broad back is Nelson liano. He is rated as the finest ensive ball player on the FSU uad.

"Sonny" is from Tampa, where went to Plant High School, d earned letters in football and sketball.

Nelson stands 5'-11" and fills his frame with 185 pounds. He especially good at open field nning, but can pass and kick. With some improvement he d be a "Little All-American."

Nelson is a Senior and is ma-ing in business administration transferred from Florida after Sophomore year, but did not any football for the Gators.

ROY THOMPSON—

The best newcomer on the FSU Roy Thompson, from ghtsville, Ga., is the halfback watch for in the future. Roy junior and a transfer student probably be the man to carry e ball around the ends for ach Veller. He is an excep-onal runner and can also pass in equate fashion. On defense he a fine blocker and is always in ere trying.

Roy stands 5'-10" and weighs He attended Baylor High hool in Chattanooga.

TOMMY OWEN—

A returning center, who has stly matured since last year, en has a fine chance of cap-ng the No. one center job. nce last season he has gained pounds, and promises to be a minole standout of the future.

Tommy hails from Webster, ere he attended high school, became All-Conference center two years. He stands 6'-1" and ghs 190 pounds. He is taking e-law.

HARRY BRINGGER—

Back for another season as reg-ar right halfback, is Harry ingger, the 185-pound Junior m Winter Haven.

Harry was one of the mainstays last year's undefeated and un-ed football squads, and promises take up where he left off. He a fast and shifty runner, and e of FSU's best pass receivers.

Last year Harry had the dis-nction of having five passes rown to him, catching all five d scoring on all five.

BOB WODRICH

One of the Seminoles' best tackles, Bob Wodrich is back again this Fall ten pounds heavier and one year more of football experience. He now stands 6'1" and weighs 205 pounds.

Bob hails from Miami, Fla., where he attended Senior high school, and won letters in football and track.

Bob is equally fine on offense and defense and Coach Veller expects to use him at both. He is a Sophomore and is majoring in Business Adiministration.

NAT POLAK

Nat Polak is only a Freshman, but has already taken over as varsity defensive tackle, and greater things are expected for the future.

Nat claims Miami, Fla., as his home town. He attended Senior high school, and became All-City tackle.

He is 5'-10" and weighs 190 pounds. Nat is majoring in Physical Education, but shows an interest in the ministry.

He is one of the newcomers who are expected to help put FSU in big-time football.

TOMMY BROWN, slim 155-pound safety man is no newcomer to local grid circles. Brown was an all-around athlete at Leon High, starring in football, basketball, baseball, track, and golf. He captained the 1947 Lion football team and was chosen on the All-Northeast football and basketball teams. Tommy also teamed with another Lion to cop the loop golf crown.

After a brief hitch in the army Brown received an appointment to West Point and made the varsity football team in his sophomore year. He was a regular in the Army defensive platoon and played a starring role in the Army's 1949 win over Michigan.

Tommy is a senior and has been a standout on the Seminole team. He has done a superb job as defensive safety-man and is currently the teams leading punter. Tommy has been injured several times and every time he gets pushed around by opposing teams, Eddie Quest, team trainer shudders, for fear that Tommy's shoulder will again cause him to be sidelined.

VICTOR J. SZCZEPANIK is a junior and a first squad tackle from East Rochester, Pa. The 188 pound lineman comes from traditional football country that producers the country's best linamen. He is not too big but makes up for it by his speed and love of contact. This is Vic's third year on the varsity and this year he has helped greatly in our victories.

In high school he played football, track, and basketball. He was captain of his football team and an active member of the Hi-Y.

Vic is mjoring in Business Administration and in the future he hopes to work in the Air Force.

BOBBY FIVEASH—

Is a 175 pound transfer sophomore from Bainbridge, Ga. Bobby, who is a first string halfback, is one of the most promising backs on the FSU squad. He excells in passing, blocking and running.

Some of his high school sports were track, baseball and football. Bobby was All-Regional, All State, and captain of his high school football team.

He is a Physical Education major and hopes to coach and teach in the future, and with all his achievements we know Bobby will keep going along on to his goal.

DONALD LINTON—

One of the mainstays of the Seminole line this year has been Donald Linton from Port St. Joe, Florida. Donald, a junior, majoring in physical education, wants to teach and coach when he graduates.

In high school, Don was not only the football captain and the most valuable player, he also played basketball and baseball in addition to being on the student council and in the Key Club. This is Don's second year on the varsity here at FSU.

BILL DRIVER—

To watch Bill Driver perform on the gridiron, you could believe that he was the president of the lettermen's club in high school but you would find it hard to imagine him as a member of the National Honor Society, Mathematics Club or in the band. Well, Bill did belong to those rather unusual activities, unusual that is, for a football, basketball, track and tennis player which he was during his off hours.

Majoring in physical education, Bill will either coach or join the Air Force upon his graduation. In his high school career, Bill earned a record-breaking total of twelve varsity letters, making the all-state team in football at halfback.

CHARLES BOOTH—

Charlie Booth, better known as "C. M.", played football, basketball and track during his high school career at Lakeland, Florida and made the all-conference team in football. Among his other activities were the Lettermen's Club and the Junior Lion's Club.

Charlie is majoring in business administration and intends to become associated with his father in the insurance business in Lakeland.

If he sells insurance with the aggressiveness and skill that he holds down the middle of the Seminole line, he can certainly consider this writer as a future prospect.

EARL O'NEAL—

197 pound junior guard and tackle comes from Valdosta, Ga. He is a hard worker as has been seen by his performances this year, he is becoming an outstanding lineman because of his fine blocking and speed.

Earl was active in high school basketball for two years and played football three years, in which he was all-conference two years and All-State one year. He was also All-State Junior College at South Georgia Junior College.

In college so far he is sticking to football. Earl is a Physical Education major and in the future he hopes to coach in either Florida or in his native state of Georgie.

RONALD KING—

One of the most promising football players in the state this year is Ronald King, a bone-crushing young fullback from Daytona Beach, Fla., at Mainland High School in Daytona. Ronald played football, basketball and track plus belonging to the Hi-Y and Varsity Club. He made the all-conference team for two years straight in football and basketball, being named on the all-state team in football. He was the Northeast Conference champion in the shot and the discus.

He played freshman football at Tulsa University and is on the FSU track team in addition to playing football. A physical Education major, Ronnie intends to coach after graduation.

MORRIS DAWKINS

Florida State University's football captain for the 1951 season is one of those guys that has achieved his fame only through days of hard work. Dawkins, a native of Miami, attended Miami Jackson high school where he played guard and tackle. At 23 years of age "Bill" (his nickname) stands a full 5'11" and weigh 195 pounds.

The well built captain played two years of varsity football at the Miami Jackson high school. Nothing really great was ever achieved by Dawkins in high school.

After serving in the U. S. Army "Dawk" decided that it was time to attend college. First he tried out for the University of Miami's gridiron crew but Andy Gustafson's staff decided that they didn't need our captain. Bob Lucas, a moral supporter since childhood days, and Dawkins decided to journey up to the Tallahassee "dreamland" and play football here.

Bill started making a name for himself by those bone-crushing tackles he is noted for. After two years of being a comparative unknown he really came into his own last year. He received such honors as, his name in "Who's Who in American Sports," being selected as the third best small college player in the nation, a position on the official "All-State" and All Dixie Conference first teams, and last and certainly not least being elected as captain of F. S. U.'s 1951 Seminole team. Realistically it is only fitting that a fellow like Dawkins, with that never say die spirit, should blossom out into one of the greatest athletes that Florida State has ever known.

Dr. Don Veller uses Dawkins at guard mostly, but the coach may see fit to shift him to tackle for the Stetson game. Guard, tackle or any other position; we are sure to get another well played ball game out of our man—our captain.

The Miami boy is a former chairmen of the University Athletic Committee, and presently a member of Gold Key, treasurer of the men's F club and a charter member of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

P. E. BRADLEY

A ballplayer who really knows what to do when running a football team. Preston has a surplus of nicknames but none of them seem to stick very well. In height (5'5") he is a little man among giants but when his 180 pounds stack up against the opposition he is ready to do some mighty effective blocking and as it has been shown "some mighty snappy ball carrying." The Lake Wales junior transferred to our team from the Tampa University.

Bradley spent most of his high school days in Virginia but his senior year he transferred to Lake Wales high school and earned four letters, these included Football, basketball, baseball and track.

This fall in our first game of the season, with Troy State, he made some outstanding gains from his quarterback post. In the short time that he has been here at Florida State he has played fullback, wingback and his present position of quarter or blocking back.

P. E. is a member of Gold Key, Arnold Air Society, L'APACHE—National social honorary, and is the president of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Presently the well built blond is taking pre-med and is going to get his major in math. Looking a little farther ahead he forsees attending Tulane University's medical school.

CURTIS CAMPBELL

Pensacola, Florida's good will ambassador on the Florida State University's football team. Curt is one of the most versatile men on our squad, he plays offensive end and defensive halfback. Lean and lanky are two words that describe his 6'1' 170 pound frame.

Tate high school of Pensacola proudly presents a man that was on many of their varsity athletic squads. Campbell was a three year letterman in the four major sports: football basketball, baseball and track.

Campbell was injured last year and was out of action for the majority of the season. He came into the Seminole camp this year with many doubts that he would ever again round into top football shape. Curt started snagging those passes like old "Gluefingers" from his end post. Soon Veller decided that Campbell was the man to take up some of the slack at wingback. Starting in his first game at his new wingback post, Campbell led the squad to an impressive victory. Not only on the offense but the defense too; Campbell sparkled.

Now classified as a junior, Campbell wants to get his degree from the university in the school of journalism. A public relations major to be exact. When graduated he has strong suspicions that there is a future for him in the United States Air Force.

Curtis is a member of the men's F club, the Arnold Air Society, and the Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity.

STEVE KALENICH—

"Pops" as Steve is affectionally called by the rest of the pigskin boys, is a graduate of South Akron High School, in Akron, Ohio. He is usually seen with the rest of the "cats" in front of the Mecca making eyes at the throngs of girls that pass by. Steve weighs 185 pounds and is 5'11" inches tall. At 22 years of age he rates the starting position at center for the Seminoles. Kalenich is of Serbian descent.

Akron's "All City" gridiron team included Steve Kalenich on its roster in 1946. "Pops" earned a total of seven letters in high school.

Steve is one of those fellows that football people like to have in the home team's uniform come kickoff time.

When Steve was a freshman, last year, he came down here and battled for the starting assignment at center; soon he proved that he was a fine offensive center. This fall he returned to preseason practice and received a broken ankle in the early drills. Time has healed the break and he is in tip top shape for homecoming's feature game.

The solid built Serb fell in love with Florida and is looking forward to the day that he is given a coaching job here in the state.

Kalenich is a member of the men's F club and the Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity.

Flambeau

JAMES ARNOLD—

The Georgia "Ploughboy," is noted as one of the finest defensive ends ever to pull on football togs for Florida State University. The little 153-pound sophomore, who stands 5'9", is one of the two smallest men on our well drilled squad; Tom Brown being the other. Arnold is an excellent example of a little man playing a big man's game.

In high school Jimmy found time to earn at least one letter in four sports. In baseball and basketball he claimed one letter each, while he earned three in football and two in track. In his third year as a letterman in football, young Jim merited a position at end on Southwest Georgia's "All-Region" team. In track, while running in the Georgia State High School track meet, "Ploughboy" was just nosed out for the mile run championship.

In his first college football game, James blocked two punts and proved that he had what it takes.

Because of a football scholarship, Arnold was not allowed to run in Dixie Conference competition. He still managed to earn a letter and set a new school record of 10:29.4, for the two-mile run.

Jimmy is president of the men's F Club, a member of the Sigma Delta Psi national athletic fraternity, and a member of The Cavaliers a national dancing organization.

He hopes to get his degree from FSU in physical education and beat the paths back to his old high school in Bainbridge to accept a coaching job.

Everyone knows that "Ploughboy" is seen at the "botspots" but hardly anyone realizes that he is really a fireman back in his hometown.

Despite the rumors that Jim, slops hogs and ploughs his corn every morning before he attends class, we are proud to say that he is a student at Florida State University.

MILAN SELLERS—

Barberton, Ohio's contribution to the star-studded lineup of our Seminoles. "Mike" Sellers, currently alternating between tailback and fullback, weighs 210 pounds and his solid frame stands 6'1" tall. Sellers, who is a veteran of two years in the United States Navy, is 24 years old and of Serbian descent.

As an athlete in Barberton High School, "Iron Mike," proved that he had greater things in store for him in college. He earned three letters in football, three letters in basketball, and still found time to earn two baseball letters.

At F. S. U. Mike had little trouble latching onto the starting assignment at fullback. He is an excellent line plunger, but keen sports fans will quickly say that Sellers is one of the mainstays on defense. On the strength of his crunching tackles and crackling ball carrying he was selected on the official "All-Florida" football team at fullback. Mike easily rated as the best fullback in the Dixie Conference last year and was also selected on that mythical "All-Star" team.

The Indiana University transfer, will probably alternate with Nelson Italiano between fullback and tailback on the offense and take care of his old linebackers post on the defense, come Saturday.

You can quote Mike, who is president of The University Recreation Association, as saying that "F. S. U. is the greatest." This

MIKE SELLERS, right, and Ernie Huggett practice extra point placements. Huggett has kicked 14 out of 18 attempts this year, while Sellers has lugged the pigskin across the double stripe five times to lead the Seminole scoring parade, which has accounted for 122 points as compared to 48 for our opponents.

FSU's 39 Depts Have 2,235 Courses

The average college education usually takes four years. At least it takes that long to obtain a degree. How long then would it take to receive a complete education in every phase of knowledge at a university?

Florida State University's new 1951 catalog lists 39 departments offering 2,235 courses. The average course is three hours. The average student attends school for two semesters out of each year.

AT THIS RATE it would take the average student at FSU 200 years to finish every course offered by the University.

If this new atomic age should ever develop the average person into a "modern-day Mathuselah," such a 200-year-plan might be required by Florida State graduates.

Under such a plan it would mean that this year's graduates of FSU would have to have enrolled as Freshmen in 1753. 39 years before George Washington was inaugurated as first president. Think what this plan would do to the history courses.

THIS YEAR the School of Business offers 191 courses, which is the largest number offered, while the Archaeology department and the Military Air Science and Tactics department, with eight courses each, offer the smallest number.

Over 100 courses are offered to the 8,000 students at FSU by six departments, including the Business and Commerce department. The others include the School of Education with 123 courses, Modern Languages with 113, Psychology offering 106, Music listing 104, and Physical Education with 102.

GRADUATE WORK is offered by every department except two at Florida States. These are the Anthropology and Archeology department and the department of Military Air Science and Tactics.

Fourteen of the 39 departments at FSU offer between 50 to 100 courses for the students. These departments with the number of courses, both undergraduate and graduate which will be taught on the semester basis this fall, are:

Department	Courses
Art	74
Art Education	53
Bacteriology and Botany	54
Classical Language, Literature	69
Clothing and Textiles	51
English	86
History	97
Home and Family Life	66
Mathematics	55
Philosophy	65
Physics	54
Social Work	64
Speech	84

Eighteen departments at Florida State offer between 1 to 50 courses beginning this semester. These include:

Departments	Courses
Anthropology and Archaeology	8
Economics	42
Food and Nutrition	43
Geography	49
Geology	22
Health Education	26
Home Economics	10
Home Economics Education	25
Institution Administration	22
Journalism	43
Library Training	4
Meteorology	17
Military Science	46
Political Science	46
Physiology	24
Public Administration	46
Restaurant & Hotel Management	14
Sociology	42

THE CURRICULUM for the newly-developed School of Nursing is still in the process of being established. When completed it will add more time and courses to the total of the departments.

Completion of all these courses would mean that the student had at least touched on every phase of knowledge at FSU.

Such a university graduate should have a complete education. That is, if he didn't forget the first 100 years.

Large Percentage Have Scholarships

Approximately 1 out of every 14 students is enrolled this semester under a scholarship. The university now has more than 30 scholarships and loan funds totaling some $100,000 for financial assistance to worthy students needing such aid to complete their education, according to President Doak S. Campbell.

These scholarships and loans are handled by Glover E. Tully, director of the FSU office of vocational guidance and placement. They are given in addition to the Senate, Lewis, and House of Representative scholarships provided by the Florida Legislature on the basis of competitive examination.

TULLY SAID that application for scholarship aid has been on the increase since the discontinuance of many of the GI educational privileges, and the rising cost of education.

Scholarship holders at FSU are more prevalent in the ranks of the upper classes, as freshman scholarship holders have won such scholarships in competitive examinations before coming to the university campus.

Financial aid is given to students on the basis of proven need, scholastic talents, and future promise said Tully.

IN ADDITION some scholarship grants have additional provisions made by donors. A recent new scholarship provided by a Tallahassee attorney requires that the holder prepare for a career in religious education.

The new scholarship known as the Mary and J. Velma Dean scholarship, established by J. Velma Dean and his wife, Ila offers $400 per year for Leon High School graduates who show financial need and superior scholastic talent.

The Mitchell N. Drew Memorial Scholarship, established by Mrs. Allen N. Drew Cauley as a memorial to her late husband, is another new scholarship in the line-up.

THIS GRANT is available to a graduate of Quincy or Greensboro High Schools. Each recipient will be chosen by the principals of the two schools and the Gadsden County School Superintendent.

Carolyn Drew of Quincy has been chosen as the first recipient of the Drew Scholarship, and Jeanette Tadlock of Tallahassee is the first holder of the Keen Scholarship.

Faculty Members Serve Elsewhere

Faculty members on leave of absence are serving the cause of education in several foreign countries through programs of the United States Department of State and U. S. Office of Education.

Several faculty members have returned to the campus after having served abroad under special grants and awards made on the basis of their outstanding qualifications for the work required.

Dr. Ralph L. Eyman, dean of the School of Education, granted a leave of absence effective last July 16, is now in Burma working with the U. S. Office of Education and Department of State in its point four program. He plans to return to the United States during the Summer of 1952. Dr. Mode Stone is serving as acting dean of the school in absence of Dr. Eyman.

DR. LOUIS SHORES, dean of the School of Library Training and Service, will leave on October 1 for Great Britain. He has been given a leave of absence until June 1, 1952, to accept a Fulbright Grant from the United States Department of State. He will engage in research and a study of reference materials and servive in the libraries of the United Kingdom. During his absence Dr. Robert O. Clapp will serve as acting dean of the school.

Professor Graydon S. DeLand in the department of modern languages is serving as director of the Cultural Center in La Paz, Bolivia under a U. S. Department of State sponsored grant. He has been given a leave of absence from the University by the State Board of Control from August 1, 1951 to August 1, 1952.

DR. WILLIAM RANDEL, associate professor of English, has resumed his duties here after a year's leave of absence in Helsinki, Finland. He was granted the leave from September 15, 1950, to September 15, 1952, to accept a position as the first professor of American Literature at the University of Finland in Helsinki.

Dr. Richard B. Ende, professor of journalism, is serving as public affairs officer in Bergen, Norway. He was granted a leave of absence from Florida State University from July 1, 1951, to July 1, 1952.

Dr. W. Hugh Stickler, associate dean in charge of general education took part in a workshop on higher education in Germany during the past month under a grant award from the U. S. Department of State. He was given a leave of absence from August 13 to September 13, 1951.

Suzie Seminole Faces Problem For Success

Suzie Seminole is faced with a big problem for the coming weekend—"What to do to be a big success for that first Homecoming!"

Don't fret! It's really not as difficult as it may seem. Here we'd like to offer a few suggestions for the festivities: First of all, be yourself and he'll love you for it. If you're one of the chosen Indian Princesses whose Brave is arranging via alligator, that is—from Gainesville, you'll want to look your best to greet the fugitive from boys' town. But gals, you who are dating your local steady, you want to get off on the right foot, so let's start with Friday afternoon—A C /after classes/.

CHOOSE A LIGHTWEIGHT wardrobe, or one of your newer sweater and skirt outfits, depending on the weather. A corduroy would fill the bill nicely also. Remember, there might not be time to change for dinner and the Pow-Wow, and any of these outfits will be appropriate for all these occasions.

Bottom number one for the weekend should be neatness. The hair will be decorated and the feature. We squaws should be in the right amount of reserve. Then in our dress. When the last minute work details fail to you a the same moment primer charmtus arrives—don't fret, hand him the hammer and run for the mower.

There will be various functions all over the campsie after the Pow Wow. Neal Miss FSU will be appropriate in her Pow-Wow outfit and a jacket or a gabardine against if the chill night air. Clothes you without his arm—mens heater.

SATURDAY MORNING: Now you so to sleep Friday night, you don't want to look baggy-eyed, but those note comparing sessions for when HE's not here to ence your lack of sleep. Remember, this is the BIG DAY—

Meet him for breakfast and please be on time—it's the least he can expect. In your plaid dress he will you'll look good, clean, rest and wonderfully attractive to him. Show him around the campus and don't despair if he doesn't have a "four wheel personality"—you get a much better view on foot.

Choose a suit for the game, with contrasting or matching accessories. It was hot last year, but you'll have to judge the weather yourself in accordance with your wardrobe. Remember, it's a football game—a sports occasion and not a fashion show. Your preference should be your guide when deciding whether or not to wear hat or gloves — you'll look equally well-dressed with or without them.

OPEN HOUSES and dinner following the game. Stay put in your school outfit; your change for the dance is the climax and you don't want to clutter the act.

For the dance by The Smoke's Room you'll want to bring starry eyes. Give yourself plenty of time — remember he has to dress too, and he might want to attend one of the boys' "fortification parties." Your formal should have been pressed before, so you can spend half the night that way. Relax a little, but do be ready when he arrives. The myth of "loving a man eating weenie with the hoop-skirts

To fall in Tallahassee, so the grandpa tells us. Discard the orchids in favor of satin, net, or something in the theme. White and black are excellent colors this fall. Don't forget his favorite flower or perfume and also that little much of anything will leave you cold.

SURE YOU'LL BE fazzed out by the intermission. With 1:30 permission you've still got some time to keep your chin up. You can do it and still be a proper school coed. Remember, he's your date this weekend.

And so to bed and dreams Sunday morning is always anti-climactic but if you're careful you won't disturb his impression of you and your Homecoming.

If you're dreading for church, choose a wool dress, a suit, or even one of your dressy crepes and chiffons. Hat and gloves are a must! This outfit will serve for your late breakfast and dinner date for those sessions over the Sunday papers in the parlor Planners should be your Sunday attitude, to contrast pleasantly with the preceding excitement.

When he bids you adieu Sunday afternoon and you are faced with memories and returning to homework, you'll be confident that you've been a success in his book as "the" weekend date.

Five Candidates Boast Many Varied Interests on Campus

One of the above five Seminole beauties will be crowned Queen of the 1951 FSU Homecoming festivities tonight at the Pow Wow.

The remaining four girls will serve as attendants to the queen's court and will be presented along with the Queen to the spectators in Campbell stadium.

The title of Homecoming Queen is generally considered to be the most coveted of all the spoils bestowed throughout the year at FSU. Jeri Murray, last year's Homecoming queen, will step down from her throne tonight after presenting her solemn crown to the new queen.

Who will reign supreme over this gala weekend's clue—it will be one of the following.

Ellen Avis, sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, is a nineteen year old brown eyed brunette who hails from Vero Beach. A junior counselor, Ellen is president of Bryan hall. As a freshman she was Queen of Jennie Murphree and a class senator. Last year she served on Judiciary. Ellen is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Garnet Key, Alpha Lambda Delta, sophomore council. She is also active in the Canterbury club and is chaplain of Tri Delt. She is majoring in Elementary Education and Spanish and plans on teaching after graduation.

Liz Cooke, from Miami, is being sponsored by her sorority, Alpha Xi Delta. A junior Home Economics education major, she graduated from Lake Wales High school. She likes all sports, and is Alpha Xi's star volleyball and baseball player.

Five foot one inch June Conyers will represent Landis senior hall. June is president of the sophomore class, a sophomore counselor, a member of Village Vamps, and active in Westminster Fellowship. Honey-blond with blue eyes, June is from Gainesville.

The Theta Chis are sponsoring blond green-eyed Ruthie Garst, a junior from Bradenton, for the queen title. Ruthie is a Sigma Kappa and is majoring in secretarial science. Previously, Ruthie has been voted Miss Tallahassee, a Miss Southern Belle, and is now being nominated for Pike Dream Girl. She is in the Circus, Cotillion and takes part in intramural volleyball contests.

Sally Kennedy from Pensacola is being sponsored by her sorority, Pi Beta Phi. Sally's ambition is to teach in kindergarten. She is active in Circus and Village Vamps and is social chairman of Pi Phi. Last year she was in the Homecoming queen's court and was vice-president of Broward.

Back in Mom's Day it Really Was Tough

Rules for Florida State University coeds have certainly changed since mother went to college—then Florida State College for Women.

Back in mother's day—and even grandmother's coed days—movie-going was chaperoned and all callers were required to leave each night by 10:15. Seniors, however, were allowed to chaperon underclassmen for movies occasionally.

As far as possible Saturday and Monday evenings were observed by students of the 1922-27 colleen era for receiving callers, according to the 1922 Bulletin of Student Government Association at FSCW titled, "Information on Customs and Regulations."

Absolutely no smoking by college students was tolerated by university officials. And Ina Reverston Hall in Reynolds Dormitory was "for women only."

Modern-day rules at Florida State University allow the coeds to entertain gentlemen callers in the recreation halls of the dorms. Quite often today the coeds study in these rooms during the evenings or listen to music. When mother went to the university, she was not permitted to dance with men. She could play no popular music on Sunday. And chaperones were required to accompany students on a trip to Gainesville for weekend dances.

Florida State University coeds have always been required to sign in on returning from a social engagement off campus. But in the 1920's failure to sign in meant that a coed must pay a fine of 50 cents and sometimes receive other penalties. FSU House Council deals with the coed who fails to sign in today.

The UGA Bulletin of the 1920's say that students were "expected to recognize and speak to gentlemen, but not carry on extended conversations or have walks with them when in town." And these coeds were not allowed to visit in town on Saturdays and Sundays except when arrangements were made in the Bryan Hall office.

On Sundays the college students were not allowed to go riding with young men. But the bulletin says that hiking parties in the country on Sundays were encouraged by the University. In 1929, however, a few rules were lifted and coeds were allowed to ride with men through arrangements with social directors.

The college had its own rules about sportswear for the coeds in the 1920's. "Hosiery is not to be worn rolled below knees when wearing gymnasium suits," the bulletin stated.

FSCW girls in that day were allowed to swim in Lake Bradford near College camp. Mother had one privilege, however—that her daughter attending FSU today does not have. She was allowed to swim at Cody Pavilion after at night provided she had passed her swimming test.

Until 1929 coleens coeds were required to attend church on Sundays and to keep attendance records. Only in case of illness was she allowed to skip church. Church-going is still strongly encouraged by the university.

So anytime you think Florida State University coeds get weary of present-day rules — they should take a walk to the library and read the rules that existed in mother's college days!

Couples Homes Prove Point

The cleverly decorated homes of the young married couples living on the West Campus are proving to sceptics that practical as well as theoretical courses are being taught at FSU.

Ideas learned in "Homemaking for Young Moderns," a course offered by the school of home economics, plus the ingenuity of the young couples, have turned the West Campus army barracks into attractive homes.

PROBLEMS OF housing, buying, and arrangement of furniture are only a few of the many problems students are likely to face later than are studied in the home and family life course.

The main emphasis in the course is on the individual and what he may do to assure the success of his own home. "Individual questions and group discussions are encouraged," Mrs. Hortense Glenn, instructor of the home and family course, says.

Such practical subjects as finding a place to live, household furnishings and maintenance, managing a household, money management, and planning for children are discussed in the classes.

What a picture, eh fellas?

By WOODLEY GRIZZARD

Months ago in New York, Paris, Los Angeles, Dallas, and Florida's own Miami, amid sketches, paints, models, and head scarves the dictators of the fashion world were planning wardrobes for women for the fall of 1951.

Whether or not they had Florida State University's Centennial Homecoming particularly in mind is not the question. What we co-eds can adapt from their edicts in relationship to our respective wardrobes is our immediate concern.

Vogue, Charm, Mademoiselle, Bazaar, and Seventeen could have helped last fall when Dad was footing the bill, but now in the eleventh hour we'll have to rely on our own taste and intuitive.

THE FORMAL Saturday night will be essentially the height of the fashion scene of the weekend. Short formals are really "it" this year (the men won't admit it, but they love 'em). However, if you want to hide your legs after showing them on all other occasions of the weekend, you'll still have plenty of company in the traditional floor length formal. Hoops still rate high on the male record, too! Strapless gowns will be in the majority, but you can cover your shoulders with a stole or a good coat of makeup of powder.

Almost any fall or winter color will be good. Bright fall colors —rust, old gold, coco, plum and the ever popular reds and greens will be the favorites. Remember when you choose the formal that you will be wearing it, and it should flatter your figure and coloring.

AS FOR EVENING slippers, traditional gold or silver are always becoming. Your evening bag should match as should your jewelry. Don't overdo a good thing however. Flats, either glittered or sandals are much easier for long soigee on the dance floor.

Fall's purple is the latest of all colors. We'll catch glimpses of it in sweater and skirt outfits, suits at the game formals, and even accessories. But your best fall suit, green, brown, black, grey, wine, or navy, will do very well for the classic between Sinson and Florida State. Choose one of the new crepe blouses or a short sleeve sweater in complimenting or contrasting color to accentuate your complexion. Accessories should compliment the suit, with hat and gloves optional.

THE LENGTH is the controversy of the year. Paris says up, while the American's are advocating the longer line. Choose on your leg the most flattering length, and let discrimination be your guide. Heels or flats won't present a problem if you forget the length from the floor, and let your legs and your taste make the decision.

To pep up the old standby sweater and skirt outfit which is

Ann, too, can dress up or down, as becomes her occasion, in her suit of fawn grey with collar and cuffs of deeper grey velvet, the jacket is made with nipped in waist. What delightful weather for football!

First F S U Sorority Chartered in 1902

By MARCIA MORRIS

Fifty years ago when only long skirts and silk stockings were crossed on the library stairs, and bobbed heads were bent over books because—there were no men to talk to—when cars were a menace and cigarettes, a disgrace—when gals could use curling irons and lipsticks only behind locked doors—and Florida State was known as the "College For Women," the first women's fraternity was founded on this campus. It was called Kappa Delta.

Now in our Centennial we've come a long way—in 1951 there are sixteen national groups on campus—some very old others very recent—but all with a long list of honors and activities that they have participated in since obtaining their charters. Now let's take a "peek at the Greeks" through the years up to this 1951 Homecoming Day!

KAPPA DELTA was founded in Farmville, Virginia on October 23, 1897, and on this campus in 1902. Kappa Alpha fraternity assisted the K.D.'s in obtaining their charter, hence it is the Kappa Alpha chapter of Kappa Delta. The first sorority house built on campus was built by K.D. and is now occupied by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Philanthropic service has always been a project of K.D. and the local chapter helps with the Tallahassee Children's Clinic. Through the years Kappa Delta has been well represented in Homecoming festivities. Two years ago Sue Jean Thomas was a member of the Queen's court, only to be succeeded by Betty Ann Holland last year. Gail Tomlinson will appear during the halftime of this year's game as Head Majorette with "The Marching Chiefs." The K.D.'s are teaching a "Stetson Anatomy Lesson" in their 1951 house decorations. Jennie Carper is chairman of the house, with Virginia Anderson and Pat Smoak taking the Homecoming float in hand. Open House after the game is the highlight of entertainment in the Kappa Delta House.

CHI OMEGA was founded in 1895 at the University of Arkansas, and now has 112 chapters throughout the United States, more than any other sorority. Chi Omega presents each year the national Achievement Award to the most outstanding woman in the United States. This award is made at the White House in Washington, and Mrs. Roosevelt is on the selection committee.

Gamma chapter of Chi Omega was founded on this campus in 1908 and was the second sorority to come on campus. A charter member was Rowena Lonsmire, for whom the student alumni building was named. This chapter has twice won the Chi Omega National Council Cup for being the most outstanding Chi Omega Chapter in the nation. Chi Omega is known on this campus for its presentation of the annual pollitical science award made every year to the most outstanding woman student in that field. Two years ago Chi Omegas were the winners of the Little Brown Jug Sing as well as the Homecoming house decorations contest. Last year Chi O's used "plenty of soap" in their decorations, telling the Seminoles to "Clean Up With Seminole Velle." The balcony of the house held a large soap box with bubbles on the ground, a Seminole woman was washing out "Tiger Rags." Chairman was Nancy Holland. Their float carried out the "Southern Belle" theme, complete with magnolias and a big sign saying "Welcome Y'all!" This year the Chi O's are starring a big show—the president of "Topping the Hatters." Co-chairmen of float decorations are Sylvia Strange and Patsy Sisson. Co-chairmen of float decorations are Joan Mikesell and Barbara Brewton. Chi O's, headed by Lucy Williams, Social Chairman, will hold open house after the game and a supper Saturday night before the dance.

ALPHA DELTA PI came to the Tallahassee campus in 1906, but the national chapter was established long before, in 1851 at Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Georgia. This past year ΔΔΠ's A.D.Pi chapter was chosen the most efficient in Alpha Pi province. Last semester also saw the A.D.Pi's win Pan Hellenic's award for scholarship, 1951. However a look into their house will tell you that brains and capability aren't the girls' only assets, for many A.D.Pi beauties have been chosen "fraternity sweethearts." A.D Pi is running a hat shop this home-coming at 537 College Ave., featuring styles from 1851 to the present, and featuring the "War Bonnet" as their "Blue Ribbon Hat." Another of their decorations committee, headed by Ann Warren, would like that trophy in place of their blue ribbon. Ann Monroe is acting as float chairman and Quinter Lee Mobley is in charge of skit practices. All work and no play does make for a dull weekend so entertainment features are open house after the game, and a dance on Saturday night.

DELTA DELTA DELTA was established in Tallahassee on March 13, 1914. Members of Tri Delt have always been outstanding in campus affairs as well as in helping with outside organizations such as Red Cross. Each year Tri Delta awards a gift scholarship to some deserving girl in this university. Three years ago, at our first Homecoming, Tri Delta sponsored Clara Moffett Howell as Florida State's first Homecoming Queen. First place in house decorations also went to Delta Delta Delta that year; and the following their decorations were termed "most original." In 1950 the Delts captured third place with a theme based around "Llewelyn" Studios; and this year they're back in the swing, trying to place a fourth time with their newest ideas—Stetson's train halted by FSU's Seminole." Alice Davidson is supervising house decorations for Tri Delt and Betsy Small is directing float operations. Vivian Zigrang overall chairman of Homecoming Weekend has planned some bang-up functions beginning with a party at the house following the Pow Wow. The game Saturday will be followed by dinner for Tri Delta and their dates.

SIGMA KAPPA—founded at Colby College, Waterville Maine in 1874 has progressed a long way when in 1920 its Tallahassee chapter was founded. This year the Sigma Kappas are celebrating the Centennial with the University by adapting the overall theme for their house decorations. In front of their house is a huge bottle of spirit labeled—"Old Centennial" and carrying apropos slogans. Beside the bottle is a family album depicting former FSU champions. Sigma Kappa won first place with their float—"Orchids to You"—year before last, and have their fingers crossed again. Ruthie Garatmore widely known as Miss Tallahasee — will appear in the Queen's court this Homecoming.

Florida Beta Chapter of PI BETA PHI was established here in 1921, and is celebrating its 30th year with the University's Centennial. Since that year the Golden Arrow girls have been well represented on campus—even in football where they have won the trophy from the Thetas the past two years. Last year Pi Phi also received a trophy for the highest overall scholastic average on campus. During last year's Homecoming festivities Jett Monroe was chosen Homecoming Queen, and Sally Kennedy appeared in the court. Sally will again represent Pi Phi in this year's court. Their float won two second places, one for beauty and one for originality, this past Homecoming. The 1950 house decorations proclaimed "Tigers don't make such hot cakes," carrying out the Little Black Sambo theme. This year the Pi Phi's are remodelling and rebuilding their house so are unable to enter decorations. They will entertain, however, with an open house after the Pow Wow and a "football dinner"—buffet style—at the Floridan before the dance Saturday night. Dot Dean is in charge of the Homecoming Float; Nancy Burcham is chairman of the skit committee and Sally Kennedy is Social Chairman.

Beta Nu of KAPPA ALPHA THETA, founded on this campus in 1924, moved into their new house at 515 W. Park just three years ago. The Pharaoh decorations last year, The motto for their house decorations read "Seminoles like Sambo put Tigers on hot gridiron." This year latest word on Theta Row is that it is an exception. In 1949, Bobbie Pettit was Homecoming Queen and last year Joanne Vaughn was chosen a member of the court. Theta captured first place in float last year. The motto for their house decorations read "Seminoles like Sambo put Tigers on hot gridiron." This year latest word on Theta Row is that it is an exception. In 1949, Bobbie Pettit was Homecoming Queen and last year Joanne Vaughn was chosen a member of the court. Theta captured first place in float last year. The motto for their house decorations read "Seminoles like Sambo put Tigers on hot gridiron." This year latest word on Theta Row is that it is "We blockum Stetson Hatters here!" Evelyn Hamm is overall chairman for the house and float decorations. Working with her is Homecoming Queen Candice Crandict and Yvonna McCarthy. An open house will be held after the game with Marilyn Stephens, chairman, assisted by Janie Bugg, social chairman.

Tallahassee chapter of DELTA ZETA—now totaling 47 members—was installed at Florida State in 1924. Members of DZ are busy working on various activities for clubs on campus, but plan to find time enough to work on house and float decorations as they once duplicate their wins of former years. House theme last year featured a huge Seminole barbecuing a Tiger for the DZs. while this year the gals are saying "Hats Off" to a mad Hatter being made even madder by another king sized Seminole. Pat Hampton is in charge of house decorations. An informal dance will be the high spot for Delta Zetas and their dates Friday night. The game Saturday will be followed by open house.

The ALPHA GAMMA DELTAS, established at F.S.U. in 1925, have a glittering record of outstanding honors. In 1947, the first year of co-education the Alpha Gams were the first Pan House decorations. 1948 saw Margie Hiatt in the Queen's court while Pat Cole represented the Alpha Gams in the 1949 version of the court. Theme for the house decorations this last year was "Major Catastrophe" and the float was an Indian canoe. As Homecomings progressed so did the Alpha Gams when their 1950 house decorations "Steam Over Sewanee," won second prize. The latest was carried by a huge steamboat with burning smokestacks and a water wheel turning to the tune of Dixie music. For '51 the Alpha Gams say "Watch the Seminole Spook the Hatters." Alpha Gams are cosponsors with Sigma Nu of the Pow Wow skit contest Thursday night. Functions at the house begin with supper for the girls and their dates after the Pow Wow. Open house an intermission party, and a Sunday morning breakfast complete the weekend calendar.

Beta Gamma chapter of ZETA TAU ALPHA was established on this campus in 1925. Colors are steel gray and turquoise blue. The most outstanding national projects for Zeta include help for cerebral palsy children and a scholarship fund for worthy students. The dream of a new Zeta house was realized on this campus in February, 1949, when the new white brick building at 514 W. College Ave. was completed. Zeta House decorations this Homecoming will be centered about a hotel theme. "Check Those Hatters," a canopy leading from their front doorway will read. A reception will be held at the house Friday afternoon from 4:30 till 5:30 for alumni and visiting Zetas. An open house after the Pow Wow and an intermission party will conclude the weekend events.

The Florida State University chapter of ALPHA XI DELTA was established in 1928. The Centennial Education celebration of FSU will be commemorated in the theme at the Alpha Xi house this weekend. The gals say "Let's teach Stetson a lesson" in their front porch schoolroom. Last year the Alpha Xi's "Shipped the Tigers down the Suwanee" with their Show Boat theme. Liz Cooke is a member of the 1951 Queen's court.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA honors October 15, 1885, as its founding date at DePauw University, Greencastle, Indiana. Alpha Chi came to this campus in 1939. The girls cherish the red carnation as their flower and feature it at their annual Carnation Ball, the highlight of Alpha Chi weekend.

Last year, the Alpha Chi's won first place in the float contest for having the "most beautiful" one —"Hitting on the Suwanee." Their house decorations "Seminole Circus" will be followed up this year with an "Eat 'em Seminoles" theme. Kathy Petteway is in charge of house decorations, while Pat Temple is float chairman.

PHI MU sorority was founded at Wesleyan College in Macon, Georgia, on March 4, 1852. It now has over seventy active chapters in colleges and universities throughout the country. Important to all Phi Mu's is their Centennial which will be celebrated on March 4. This year 35 chapter members are living in the new Phi Mu house. Theme of their Homecoming decorations will be "Come on to my post" which features a huge Seminole gurl standing in front of the house, hatchet in hand, winking her eye and repeating these words. Their skit for the Pow Wow contest will be called "Seminetics Perform at Half Time." Polly Lassiter is in charge of Homecoming decorations. Helen Abbrams is supervising the float, and Carol Gray is directing the skit. Open House will be held after the Pow Wow on Friday night and after the game on Saturday.

ALPHA OMICRON PI came into existence on FSU's campus in 1928. The chapter went inactive in 1938 but resurned in the fall of 1948. The next year A.O.Pi's moved into the former president's home at 230 S. Woodward Ave. Last year A.O.Pi came out in first place for house decorations with their "Seminole Barbershop" theme. Their "Tiger was being trimmed from "De'head to Da'feat." The 1950 float entered by Alpha Omicron Pi was based on the "Beauty and the Beast" theme, in the center of the float was a huge cage containing a ferocious tiger. As the user growled and paced the A.O.Pi's threw rosebuds to the crowd.

Beta Mu chapter of GAMMA PHI BETA was installed on this campus with 28 charter members on April 28, 1950. The Gamma Phi's moved into their new house in the fall of the same year. In their first year on campus the Gamma Phi's were winners of the Little Brown Jug Sing contest, and they plan to make it 3) a bigger and better year. Last year their house was decorated with the theme song of Jean Shade, field secretary. On September 19, nineteen girls were initiated with the Golden Arches of D.G The chapter now boasts 33 members. In 1951 as Florida State University celebrates its "Centennial," Delta Gamma celebrates its first Tallahassee homecoming. At the Delta Gam house on West College Ave. the Seminole Medicine Man diagnoses the Hatters as mad

LOOKING VERY collegiate indeed, Ann Hawkins is dressed for almost any game, dance, or party. She wears a versatile woolen dress of camel hair. The sporty collar and standout pockets are finished in coca fringe on the sides of her jaunty panelled skirt. Highlight of Ann's costume is Kelly green suede belt that adds just a touch of excitement. Ann chooses brown calf pumps to complete the outfit. A "flicker from Vogue"? You bet!

Greek A-B-C's Are Studied by Students

Newness — the keynote of a freshman's arrival on campus — new faces, new friends, new places, new knowledge, and even . . . a new alphabet. Yes, instead of their pals's Susie and Sammie Seminole, are all wrapped up in the Delta's, Alpha's, and Gamma's of life it sororities and 14 fraternities on campus. What inspires this zeal for higher learning in the co-ed's fickle mind? It's rush week—1951 —September for the sorority girls, and October for the frats.

RUSH WEEK periods are strictly planned and regulated by the two Greek governing bodies—Pan Hellenic for the sororities, and Inter-Fraternity Council for the fraternities. The body of Pan Hellenic is made up of two representatives from each group on campus, while frats only have one representative each. Officers of both groups are elected on a yearly rotation basis.

Formal receptions begin the sorority rushing and are followed by three days of afternoon parties, three dates, and light flash dates. Before and after the formal rush period a silent period is enforced. Sorority girls are not allowed to wear their pins on campus until the time declared by Pan Hellenic. These are perhaps two of the most misunderstood and yet most important regulations, for it is necessary that each rushee has a maximum opportunity of making up her own mind.

DURING THE QUIET hours rushees are not allowed to talk to fraternity women other than at parties, and can have no discussion with alumni or others connected with frat groups. After the specified period of waiting, bid lists are posted and preferential signing takes place. When bids have been issued, pledging ceremonies are held at the various houses on the same designated afternoon.

Fraternity rushing begins with the open houses to which all freshman boys are invited. The rushee takes his date card with him and the various fraternities sign. Fraternities may extend a bid at any time after rushing is officially open but the rushee cannot accept legally until the hour designated by IFC, when they go to their chosen houses for pledging.

Allan Head, President FSGA Announces Executive Meeting

Allan Head, president of the Florida Student Government Association, announced today that the Fall Executive committee meeting is being held October 27-28 at Florida Southern College in Lakeland. The program and date for the fall convention of Florida Student Government will be formulated at that time.

The FSGA Executive committee is made up of the four officers and three members elected from other schools. Officers this year are Allan Head, president, FSU; Henry Finley, vice-president, Florida A&M; Carl Cowden, secretary-treasurer, U. of Tampa; Vernon King, parliamentarian, Edward Waters Jr. College. The three remaining members are James Luce, Florida Southern; Isabelle Wilkins, Barry College; and Jack Holden, U of Miami.

"WE ARE going to have a top-notch program this year", predicted Head. "It is going to be more worth-while and inspirational than ever before. Our purpose is to serve the interests of the student governments of this state, and the conventions will be planned with that goal in mind.

The date of the fall convention is Florida Southern. The place for the Spring Convention is as yet undecided. Both conventions will be held jointly with the Florida Intercollegiate Press Association.

THE FSGA is composed of the student governments of the colleges and universities in the state of Florida. It is dedicated to the exchange of ideas and information on problems of student welfare.

Last year the conventions were held at the University of Miami and the University of Florida. Attending the spring convention at the U. of F. were delegates from the University of Miami, the University of Tampa, Florida Southern College, the University of Florida, Florida A & M, the Florida State University, Barry College, and Edward Waters Junior College.

a must, try the new three colored ribbon ties, the little square scarf, or an appropriate flower. The crest neckpieces are especially good, but whatever you choose don't look cluttered. For a change, tuck in your sweater and add a belt. The trim, conservative look, tailored, not gaudy, is a gal's best bet.

IF YOUR wardrobe includes a gabardine, wool, or corduroy dress, again tailored, you'll find it's just the thing for Friday afternoon or Saturday morning. Corduroy suits especially the skirt and vest fashion, will give you that informal yet reserved appearance which Homecoming dates expect and want in you. Grey suede loafers can compliment this outfit, and have reached a new high in popularity.

It goes without saying that no matter what the color or style, neatness and conservativeness should be your constant guide while choosing what you will wear this all important weekend.

Football Biography

was his reply when he was asked, "what do you think of Florida State?"

He is impressed with Florida and plans to get a coaching job here in the state, when he receives his degree in physical education.

GARY FOLSOM—

The "Gator" show did that get in! as many of his bosom buddies call him, is 5'10" tall, weighs 165 pounds and possesses some of the prettiest wavy hair imaginable!

Gary spent most of his spare time during high school earning three letters in football and four letters in baseball. As a halfback for Red the dazzling for his Jacksonville team. As a senior he played in the Florida State High School All-Star football game in Miami, after receiving honorable-mention for the All-Southern high school squad. As a catcher for Landon High School he was a feared hitter.

"Gator" is one of those men who has to be content to play behind a more experienced ball player. He is the man, who may be the key to our future F. S. U. football teams.

Gary, is undoubtedly impressed by the system of football that is taught by Dr. Don Veller and his aides. (From a look at Veller's record you might safely say that Gary is not the only man deeply impressed).

Folsom, a sophomore in the school of Business Administration, has a future mapped out that includes being a traveling salesman. Could it be that he has heard too many good traveling salesman jokes? In the background there is a desire to become a coach, maybe that is what he really wants to do.

He may be seen, along with some more of the cats, at the Mecca at most any time of the day when he is not in class.

F. S. U.'s version of "the fighting Gator" is an Alpha Tau Omega pledge.

BOB SCHMELZ—

Willoughby Ohio claims one of the most versatile linemen in college football today. Willough Union High School prepared Bob Schmelz for his rise into the ranks here at Florida State University. He stands a full 6' high and weighs 190 pounds.

Bob was awarded two letters in football and two letters in basketball from his high school on Lake Erie. Playing with those teams, he was one of the unsung heroes. Not until he entered Florida State did he really find himself a home on the gridiron.

Here he has already earned three letters and is eligible for his fourth. An unknown his first year, he injured his knee early in his sophomore year and fought his way into a starting position in the third year. Last year, Schmelz merited his position on the All Dixie Conference team and was also given honorable mentions for Florida's official All-State college eleven. Rawboned Bob plays most of his football at guard.

Schmelz is very much impressed with Florida and has a desire to get a coaching job in the state after he graduates in June with a degree in Physical Education. Could there be other reasons?

Bob, who has to wear contact lenses while playing football, is not "just a football player." He claims membership in such exclusive organizations as Gold Key, L'APACHE—men's Social honorary, Armed Air Society—Men's A. R. O. T. C. honorary, and he is a charter member of the Theta Chi Fraternity at F. S. U. He holds such offices as Senior member of the Honor court, and secretary of the Men's Y Club.

Bob is one of those transplanted yankees who has seen the light.

Religious Activities Will Feature Parties

Parties and open houses center around Homecoming spotlight activities in the various student religious houses this week.

METHODIST

The Wesley Foundation house will be open to all students, past and present, following Saturday's football game. A coffee will be held at 5 o'clock. A display of old pictures of the university will be on show in an alumni corner.

EPISCOPAL

Rev. Mr. Walter K. Morley, chaplain of Ruse House, the Episcopal student center, sent out letters inviting all former students to join present students at an open house there following the game.

BAPTIST

Baptist Student House will be open to all students and alumni for a post-game get-together. Ba-rah Margaret Davis, open house chairman, has announced that special entertainment will be provided.

LUTHERAN

Members of Gamma Delta, Lutheran student organization, will stage a Halloween party Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Students are asked to meet in front of Music Hall for transportation.

Two students have been elected to fill vacancies in the club. Evelyn Amundson is the new secretary and Carol Trimmer, publicity director.

A pledge ceremony will be held Nov 4 for students wishing to become members. Names should be turned in to Ed Kucera, Gamma Delta president, before that date.

PRESBYTERIAN

Westminster Fellowship also will observe open house for students an dhomecomers following the football game. Nine Tate, social chairman, is in charge.

CATHOLIC

An open house and a picnic are slated by Newman club during the Homecoming weekend. The open house will follow the football game.

Club members and returning Catholic alumni will meet Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Newman House for the picnic. It is being held in Lafayette Park throughout the afternoon in honor of Rev. Mr. J. Keohane, Newman Club chaplain, who is leaving Tallahassee.

Hillel Foundation Selects Officers

Two officers of the Hillel Foundation were elected recently at the Temple Israel.

Elected were president, Dave Leeman; vice-president, Stan Rabin; recording secretary, Miss Tillie Capelouto; corresponding secretary, Miss Eileen Deutsch; treasurer, Miss Helen Bell.

Future meetings of the Boal Brith Hillel Foundation will be held on Monday evenings at 7 p.m. at the Temple Israel.

Co-ed Rules Alter Since Mom's Day

In the dark days of the early '30s, when money and jobs were rare in the United States, for the girls at Florida State College for Women seemed to run along evenly.

A few little items can be found in the newspapers of back then which showed that things were not entirely normal, but in the main students carried on the same activities as they do now.

SORORITY RUSHING, the welcoming of freshmen, dormitory teas, all went on as usual. The Cotillion had their dancing lessons, and the sophisticates of the Freshman class were even then picked to be Villare Vamps. Artist series were providing the students with good music, and the cafeteria, with good vegetable fried meals.

The Flambeau printed on its editorial page of g 1932 paper g release from the New York Times which showed that the depression had not too much affected hither edjvation. "Attendance in American colleges and universities is at its highest level in history despite the economic depression which characterized the year 1931." The report pointed out that the enrollment was 12 per cent higher than of "the prosperous period five years ago." The enrollment for Florida State College for Women showed no decrease over the letter years either.

OTHER EDITORIALS which centered on the depression concerned one about the fear that the economic conditions of the nation would cause a serious health burden in the nation for about five years afterwards, and one about the American Academy of Music advocating music to lighten the weary, hungry peoples of the world.

The students did as much as they could to help in combating the economic distress of the needy. They took up collections to support the Children's Home Society and other charitable organizations.

ANY COLLEGE student with g few bills in her pocket could have an enjoyable time shopping in Tallahassee stores. One of the most exclusive stores in the city offered such buys as dresses for $1.95. Many merchants offered free bus transportation to those

Scientific Research Is Active at F S U

By MIKE BEAUDOIN

Probably the most important—yet the least publicized—work being done in the world today is scientific research, a part of which is continually going on at Florida State University.

Almost everything we eat, wear or use today is the result of thousands of hours of study and research by scientists working in various parts of the world.

FSU IS contributing in no small way to this continual search for knowledge. There are today at FSU 18 men working on private or governmental grants, delving into the unknown for something that will make this a better world in which to live.

There is little glory in the work of research. The scientific world produces few Pasteurs and Curies.

Dr. Karl Ditmer, head of FSU's chemistry department, says there is a growing trend toward research by both government and private industry. Leading industrial corporations today are employing more scientists than ever before in history, he said.

"This makes it hard for us to see research workers," Ditmer said. He added that he could immediately place a dozen or more graduate students in paying jobs today if he could find them.

SUPPORT FOR research projects at FSU is drawn from many sources. The university, the re-wishins to make purchases in their stores. Sales of merchandise with very low price tags were common.

The placement bureau of the colleee, however, did not have much to offer the graduates in the way of jobs. In almost all the teachins jobs, except those of commerce and primary teaching, the supply greatly overflowed the demand. Although the students still felt relatively secure in their college life, the world for a few years had little to offer them outside the bounds of campus.

Dr. Ernest Grunwald is studying the properties of solutions in physical chemistry supported by a Research Corporation grant which provides funds for research assistantships and equipment. Dr Grunwald and Dr. John Leffler together are directing a research contract with the Office of Army Ordnance Research on molecular complexes. These research efforts are making major contributions to chemistry and our national security.

ALSO IN organic chemistry working under a Research Corporation grant, Dr. Werner Herz is attempting to learn more about certain chemicals closely related to molecules found in local plants. Dr. Harry Walborsky is doing research in organic chemistry on the preparation of some fluorine compounds which may inhibit undesirable growth.

Dr. Ditmer and Dr. Earl Friedman are doing biochemical research supported by the U. S. Department of Health Institutes. The office of Naval Research, Parke Davis and Company and Sloan-Ketterins Foundation for Cancer Research are also supporting Dr. Ditmer's research for methods of Freshmen—'You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet!'

By PAT ROBINSON

The frosh may complain about how different life seems here at FSU but as Al Jolson so aptly put it, "You ain't seen nothin' yet!"

My college career began in Mexico. I was still wet behind the ears so to speak when I entered the Summer session of the National University of Mexico one week after my graduation from St. Petersburg High School.

MY FIRST GLIMPSE of the university was rather a startling one. It could in no way be compared to the attractive buildings we have here on our campus at FSU. There are no tall pine trees for the moon to shine through at night nor beautiful green lawns to sit upon.

The University of Mexico is scattered throughout the metropolis of Mexico City. The department of arts and sciences which I attended was located on a busy thoroughfare near the heart of the city. The edifice itself was f gaunt brownstone building devoid of all signs of life. It appeared to be more like a jail than a university. The building was drab and making drugs for the controls of infectious diseases. The compounds designed and prepared by Dr. Ditmer may also prove important in veterinary medicine.

DR. ROWLAND F. Johnson's research in inorganic chemistry is being done on a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission while Dr. Raymund Sheline, who joined the chemistry department faculty last Sept. 1, is conducting research on Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Dr. Harold Beard is working with the FSU department of textiles and clothing and bacteriology on an Army Chemical Research Corps contract and Dr. Michael Kasha, new faculty member, is working on plans for an adequate molecular spectroscopy laboratory.

Dr. Leland J. Lewis, who retired Oct. 1, is head of the chemistry department, plans to continue his research on camellias and other local plant problems. Dr. Russell Keire is doing research work on the cuina nut.

THE FSU chemistry department, with assistance of some of the nation's outstanding graduate students, has attracted international attention through its research programs.

Two of the department's graduate students, George G. Kelley West Palm Beach, and Boris Gutbezahl, New York, have been given two of the nation's highest predoctoral fellowships Kelly received a U. S. Public Health fellowship to work for his doctorate in biochemistry under Dr. Ditmer and Gutbezahl has an Atomic Energy fellowship to work under supervision of Dr. Ernest Grunwald.

had hers on all the first floor windows. It was quite a somber contjast to my romantic illusions of an ivy-covered college nestled in the quiet mountains of Mexico.

FOR THE STUDENTS in Mexico there is no such thins as "dormitory life." Outside of sleeping, rent a room-in a private home. I lived in a Mexican home and paid $40 a month for a room, three wonderful meals a day, laundry and maid service. A note of interest you might like to know that a servant is paid approximately $10 a month, U. S. currency.

So, havins no "dormitory life," the only sleeping done by students at the university is during classes.

The academic year in Mexico is from the middle of February to the middle of November and classes, quite contrary to ours, begin around three in the afternoon and end about ten at night. In fact the whole mode of Mexican life is quite the reverse of ours.

MY CLASSES, Monday through Friday, began at eight in the morning and lasted until one in the afternoon, so as not to conflict with the regular university courses. My curriculum included everything from phonetics to typical Mexican dances and songs. The classes were conducted in the same manner as lecture classes are conducted here on the FSU campus with the exception that the professors are always addressed as "Maestro." The majority of the "Maestros" are men, as are most of the students.

One great difference between university life in Mexico as compared to life here at FSU is the manner in which they dress. The men wear suits and ties and the girls usually wear high heels and suits or something very dressy. Aside from this difference their collesiate life is quite like ours.

AMERICAN-TYPE football is just coming into the limelight and as the football games school spirit really hits an all-high level. In fact, the game is taken so seriously that before entering the gates of the football stadium, pocomen frisk the students for rocks and pistols so as to protect the opposing team and the referees. Basketball is another typical American institution that was introduced along with football and was greeted with great enthusiasm, especially by the male spe.ie.

The social life of the university consists mostly of cokes and cigarets at the University Inn. A very small number of Mexican girls smoke, or would think of leaving the house with their hair rolled up, or be seen in a pair of blue jeans. The college men, too, very seldom wear less than a suit and quite in contrast to our American "Joe College," who supposedly greets all gals with a "Hi! Pull up a stump and sit down . . ." the Mexican "Joe College" almost always stands when a girl joins the group and offers her his chair and is just the very essence of politeness.

THE MEXICAN college students always seemed to go out of their way to be nice to the American student and took an interest in all we did. Their friendship was such to the extent that they rented one of the nicest clubs in Mexico City, hired an orchestra that knew a lot of popular American songs, and gave a dance in honor of us American students attending the summer session of the university. The dance was, incidentally, a huge success.

So you see frosh, those five weeks that you got back here in seldom wear less than a suit and camous weren't so bad after all.

TALLAHASSEE THEATERS
Celebrating the GOLDEN JUBILEE of the American Movie Theatre

PLAYBITS....

By Carol Besse

Joe, boy, how's about going over to the Conradi theatre and taking a look at the play they got on?"

"Joe, heck, let's go downtown to the movies. I can't stand those plays."

"Haven't you heard? They reduced the price to 44 cents this year. Now even you and I, peasants that we are, can afford in for culture."

"No, kidding? But I'd rather see a good cops and robbers movie. That highbrow stuff gives me a headache."

"Well, boy, this show has got cops and robbers. There's an old geezer, see, that hasn't been paying his income tax. Because the Internal Revenue buerau thinks he's dead so when they catch up with him, they take his whole family to jail, and when he still won't pay up, the cops just about go crazy trying to figure out what to do with him."

"We-e-ell, I like a real down to earth love story, too."

"This play has got a love story so down to earth you'll think it's you and your girl. This gal in the play wants to marry the boss' son, see, but his family don't think she's good enough for him. So they have a heck of a time. She makes her family all primed to meet the boy friend's family and then they show up on the wrong night, and catch her family with its pants down."

"Yeh" Well, I bet they haven't got Betty Grable!"

"That's the best part of it. That cute little freshman, Libby Mauch, is dancing all over the place. She wants to be a ballerina, see, and she's gotta practice all the time. And besides that, they got a hurlesque queen who wanders in and out, and a real oompphy Russian countess who makes blintzes all over the living room."

"How's about a message? All them plays have got a lot of philosophy in them somewhere."

"I guess the only message in this play is live the way you want to and enjoy yourself."

"That sounds alright to me, but I only got four bits and I gotta eat."

"So you pay 44 cents to get to the play and got six cents left. What are you griping about?"

"Okay, okay, I'm sold. Take off. I'll meet you at Conradi at eight Friday night."

"Yeh, we gotta get there in time to get tickets. The curtain goes up at 8:15."

Kaufman and Hart's Play Opens Friday

Speech Comedy Has Earned Top Stage, Screen Honors

"You Can't Take It With You," a comedy by Kaufman and Hart, will open in the Conradi theatre next Friday night at 8:15. As a play "You Can't Take It With You" won the Pulitzer Prize, and in 1938 when Frank Sapra produced it as a moving picture, it won an academy award.

The play is being directed by Frank R. Hanson, assistant professor, who said "The greatest problem in this play is to keep a balance between the farcial and sentimental."

"Historically this play is the earliest to blend farce and sentiment in American theatre which may have been a factor in it's winning the Pulitzer Prize, and undoubtedly accounts for its popularity. It is even now being done as a radio serial starring Walter Brennan."

DIRECTOR HANSON said "The cast is working very hard. The thing they need most now is audience reaction. Since this play is written with that reaction constantly in mind it is difficult to predict laughs and timing until we actually play before a group of people."

The 200-300 properties needed for the play are a challenge according to Win Park, technical director.

"The props are a difficult problem. We're scouring Tallahassee with the idea that nothing is impossible," Mr. Park said.

TICKET SALES are already mounting, according to Roger Busfield, in charge of departmental publicity. This is the first time that the reduced student price of 44 cents has been in effect, and it is expected that many more students will attend this year's productions than have done so here-to-fore.

The play, which is built around the fabulous Sycamore family seems to have all the elements of comedy and sentiment that Kaufman and Hart could contrive. The odd occupations in which the family engages are funny in themselves. Add to a play thwarted love, Internal Revenue collectors, and numerous fireworks explosions, and you have an evening of unparalled entertainment.

THIS PLAY is one of the most successful ever written by the team of Kaufman and Hart who authored such hits as "George Washington Slept Here" and "Stage Door."

Starring in the comedy are Roger Busfield as Grandpa and Virlan Lee as Penelope Sycamore.

Feature roles will be played by Robert Ducker as Boris Kolenkhov, Ronald Martin as Mr. Kirby and Inas-Nell Noman as Olga.

OTHER MEMBERS of the cast include Libby Mauch as Essie, the aspiring-ballerina daughter, Malorie McDaniels as Rheba, the cook; Kenneth Martin as Paul Sycamore, the basement fireworks inventor; Donald Remington as Mr. De Pinna, the star boarder, fireworks inventor and artist's model for Mrs. Sycamore; Lee K. Hindman as Ed Essie's young husband who wants to be a printer; Bill Tebo as Donald, a general handyman.

Carolyn Briles plays Alice, the feminine romantic lead. Lockey Yon is Henderson, a representative of the law, Blair Hennessy as Tony Kirby, the male romantic lead; Beatrice Lambert as Gay Wellington, an ex-burlesque queen; Jayne Gardner as the socially correct Mrs. Kirby, and Three Men played by George Sims, Jack Hopkins and Tom Crichton.

PRODUCTION CREWS for the play are Evelyn Gray, assistant director, Bill Tebo, stage manager, George Sims, assistant stage manager, Rose Blancaneax and Lee Hildman, special effects and sound, Lillian Frerson, paints, Leah LaPlante, Barbara Brown and Gail Baker, hand properties, and Shirley Drake, John Thomas Ard, Catherine Banks and Inas-Nell Noman, dressing properties.

Robert Marsh, Jack Kazanzas and Bob Warner are on lights, Mary Alice Newton, Bert Holtander, Joe Yon and Nancy Dickenson, costumes, Dot Wimble, Libby Mauch and Beatrice Lambert, makeup, Sharon Lane, Ronald Martin, Robert Parker, George Cary, Alberta Large, Martha Bill, John Howard and Carol Besse, publicity and promotion.

Many Students Live Off Campus In Residences

While the majority of Florida State University students live in dormitories or sorority houses, a large number live "off campus."

FSU Registrar Charles H. Walker estimates that between 1,200 and 1,500 students attending the university this year live in places of residence other than those provided by the university.

MANY ARE Tallahasse "Day Students" here who live at home while attending the university. A great number are students who live in apartments or boarding houses near the campus.

Graduates and undergraduates alike live off campus. Florida State co-eds are given permission to live off campus after they are 21 years old. Until they reach that age they must live in the university housing facilities unless they live with parents or guardians.

FSU CO-EDS living off campus are not required to follow the university house regulations.

Even though such regulations are not applied to these students living off campus, the university expects them to live up to the basic standards of good conduct.

THE FSU Women's Senate set a precedent for the students living on campus last year when they passed a ruling allowing a student to have 10 minutes for lateness during the month. This period can be taken in one time or may be used to cover several latenesses provided the time does not go over 10 minutes for one month.

When a "dormitory or sorority" co-ed signs in late, over the 10-minute mark, she is sent to the FSU lower court. One Tallahassee day student has remarked. "The only difference in her case and mine is that she waits until the campus court meets. My case is tried in "court" in my own living room by my parents every night I happen to be late!"

STUDENTS LIVING off campus are required to pay the same registration fees as others. They have the same educational and recreational facilities open to them. And many even take their meals in the dining hall along with "campus" students and many FSU faculty and staff members.

Thespians Rehearse Comedy

New Speech Prof Brings Rich Background With Him To Dept

Director

The forthcoming production, "You Can't Take It With You," is being directed by Frank B. Hanson, assistant professor of speech, who came to Florida State University this fall.

"I am particularly pleased with the department here because it offers so many opportunities for the students to perform in and direct plays," he says.

"Our position here is not the usual one in college theatre of not enough activity to keep all the people interested busy, but instead it's a need for even more people to join in the many activities we offer."

MR. HANSON attended the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York city, and then traveled for eight years as a professional actor, singer and director. Of this experience, he says, "Professional experience is learning the hard way what colleges can teach more easily. It is a long and arduous process and not the most efficient. The average beginner entering professional theatre is rather in the position of someone learning to play the piano by ear; he either may or may not do it."

Following this period Mr. Hanson played with various dance orchestras in northern New England and eventually matriculated at the University of Maine. While at Maine he collaborated with Mrs. Hanson in writing composing and staging several musical comedies, one of which won a fellowship from the American Academy of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCP).

LIKE SO MANY others, Mr. Hanson's education was interrupted by the war. He flew 31 missions with the 8th Air Force over occupied Europe and was awarded the Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

After his return to the United States, he was, for a short time a director of soldier shows. He then served with the Air Transport Command flying the "hump" between India and China.

Upon return to civilian life, Mr. Hanson continued his studies at the University of North Carolina where he was awarded his M. A. in theatre in 1946. During the next two years he taught and directed plays at the University of Maine.

In 1946, Mr. Hanson went to Yale University and he has completed all residence requirements for the Ph. D. in theatre history.

Mr. Frank B. Hanson

"Being at Yale had the advantage of bringing me in contact with outstanding educators and and theatre people, and living in New Haven, which is famous as a tryout town, gave the invaluable opportunity for seeing dozens of Broadway shows being whipped into shape" he says of the time spent there.

MR. HANSON CAME to FSU this fall to teach theatre history and advanced directing.

"I think that FSU is unique in having such a strong department of speech," he says. "In my travels and associations with many speech and drama departments, I have never seen one with so many exceptionally qualified instructors and such a high rating of scholarship.

"It is not that the speech department is exceptional in a school this size, but rather that I have not seen its equal in any school of any size." he concluded.

Russell Plans Play Costumes

Douglas A. Russell, Californian from Santa Rosa, has come to FSU to teach costume design, make-up and speech 106.

Mr. Russell laid the foundations for his career early in childhood. His favorite pastime was reading historical novels and he became fascinated with the descriptions of the elaborate and colorful costumes in them. This lead him to begin his own collection of costumes of all types.

DURING HIGH SCHOOL he was active in all phases of school dramatics.

After high school he joined the army and was sent to Stanford University and Texas A. and M. to study engineering. Later he traveled throughout the U. S. in special services doing shows for army personnel.

After army service, Mr. Russell went back to Stanford and completed work for his B. A. and M. A. in drama with a minor in art. For the last four summers he has designed original costumes for the Oregon Shakespearean Festival at Ashland, Oregon, and taught at Southern Oregon College of Education. Last year he taught costuming at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

HIS GREATEST interest is in Shakespearean costume. Mr. Russell hopes to have an opportunity to dress such a play here. He says "... there is no reason to stay away from elaborately costumed plays on the basis of costs. By improvising

Only Room Rentals Show Slight Gain

It costs a little more to go to college this year (doesn't everything?) but mainly it isn't due to prices at Florida State University.

A survey of this year's costs compared with last year's shows cost only the prices of room rentals have shown a slight increase. The cost of food, books, laundry for women and other things sold on the campus will be about the same.

The cost of rooms for men and women this year rashes from $45 per semester on the West campus to $76.00 in some of the new dormitories on the east campus. Last year prices ranged from $41 to $68.

FOOD PRICES, one of the biggest cost items for a college student, will not be advanced in any way, according to Miss Anna Mae Tracy, head dietitian at FSU.

Miss Tracy said "sure our costs are rising but we'll be able to continue putting out quality meals at minimum cost." She added that there would probably be no surplus this year, however. Formerly the revenue at the dining hall was sufficient to set aside a small reserve fund, she said.

Tuition and registration fees this year will be the same as last. There is no tuition for Florida students. $175 for out-of-state students.

REGISTRATION FEE required of all students, is $50. There is also a 75 cents nonoffice fee and women students can have their laundry done for $12 a semester.

The cost of piano and music lessons will remain the same, ranging from $25.50 to $75. Practice room rentals are also the same, from $3 to $12.

Once they get off the campus the FSU students will have to pay the same generally higher costs as Tallahassee residents. This increase applies to manly, too numerous to mention, articles including food.

THERE HAVE been some few price decreases in recent months but they are more than offset by increases.

FSU students annually spend many thousands of dollars in Tallahassee for food, clothing, gifts and recreation.

How much does it cost for a year in college? The average student from Florida pays about $200 for room, registration and other fees. Book costs vary, depending on the number of second hand books obtained.

MISS TRACY said a student should spend about $1.50 per day to eat a good balanced diet in the dining hall. But, she added, many students get by on much less than that. There are many students she related, who will eat coffee and doughnuts for breakfast instead of a full meal. Students pay for only what they eat, not a set fee for meals.

THE CLOCK TURNS BACK

Homecoming, 1925, FSCW

FSU is once again rolling up its sleeves and plowing into preparations for Homecomma. Fraternities and dormitories will enter floats in the Saturday parade, visitors will speed down from points north, and up from Gainesville and points south, cars will sport streamers, signs, flags, boys will sport white bucks and bulging hip pockets.

There'll be banquets, dances, parties. All this and Tex Beneke spell Homecoming 1951. But let's take the telescope and look into the other end. Homecoming 1925, FSCW.

EDWARD CONRADI, in place of Doak Campbell, has his feet on the presidents desk, and he may be following with interest the latest reports on the odd even teams. What an exciting Homecoming this will be! Old Edward's got a 50 to one bet on the odds. After all, Elizabeth Musselby, better known as Bleeps Bess, is out there once again for the old volleyball team.

The Campus is really bussing. Some of the luckier girls have dates coming up from Gainesville in spite of the long eight-hour drive. Edward makes a mental note to ask advisors to be especially on the lookout for wayward women who are to ride in an automobile with a young man.

Edward also vows to warn sorority house mothers that no dancing with members of the opposite sex can take place in the houses without special permission from the Dean's office. Charades can be suggested as a suitable substitute. However, due to the festivity of the occasion, Edward is permitting a dance to include young men in the gymnasium after the last game, but he suspects that this is asking for trouble.

YOUNG PEOPLE are getting harder and harder to handle these days, sighs he, and no wonder! Skirts above the knees and the waistline right on the hips. And those raccoon coats the boys are wearing. Just his luck to sell in back of one at the games, grumbles Ed. The way those things shed means hay fever the rest of the year.

Edward must also remember to "Mother knows what's best." You've heard that expression many times and at Florida State University the women students look to Dean of Women Katherine Warren for advice and counseling.

From 1939 to 1947, Miss Warren served as assistant dean of women at what was then the Florida State College for Women. She succeeded Dr Olivia Dorman as the dean of women in June, 1947 when Dr. Dorman resigned to accept another position.

MISS WARREN is a past State president of the American Association of University Women and also of the Florida Association of Deans and Counselors. She is a member of the Kappa Delta Pi, National education honorary society.

"I've always loved this school," Dean Warren says in referrns to Florida State University. "When I was a student myself at the then Florida State College for Women I found that active participation in student affairs has its many benefits.

DEAN WARREN entered the FSCW in 1926 and was elected president of the freshman class in her first year. She returned to her home in Jacksonville to help her father in his clothing store the next year and also worked for a State legislator as a typist during a session of the Legislature.

She re-entered FSCW in 1930 and became active in all of the various student activities, graduating with honors in 1933. She majored in mathematics and pre-

The moral of this feature? Thank heaven for 1951 co-eds, and Vets incomparable transplants! This is really going to be a Homecoming.

Ancient Rules Provide Laugh

Ragging Allowed on Saturdays

A students at Florida State College for Women in the early 1900's had about as many rules to remember as lessons. Life was not as easy going then as the co-eds of today find it.

Record books of the Florida Government association for the years of 1912, 1913, and 1914 revealed that the students had to stay very close by their ivy halls.

STUDENTS COULD NOT go from one hall to another during the study hours, which lasted from study flash until the next morning. If they did manage to get into another dormitory, it was only on the written permission of the house president. Two monitors also watched the tables in the dining hall so report any lazydiness or absence.

Cuts Monday out of each month underclassmen were allowed to attend a movie, provided they had Juniors and seniors actins as chaperones. Students by special permission were allowed to go to the picture show one Saturday night in every month, provided there was a group of ten with a teacher or a matron as chaperon.

STUDENTS HAD to sign out before going to town, to church or to the library. Special books were placed in Bryan and the east halls for this. Girls going to town had to be back on campus by five o'clock p.m. No cooking was allowed except on Saturday evenings and all day Monday in specified places and by special permission.

Senior normal and junior college students were allowed to go to town twice a week. These students weresalso allowed four cuts from breakfast each semester. Excuses from church were granted by the nurses only. Youns men could come to call on girls but once a month.

SEVERAL CASES, quoted directly from the records, show that the girls of the early 1900's had some of the same revolts against restrictions.

"It was discussed and decided in regard to rasging, that the girls would be allowed to rag only on Saturday nights. On every other night, the walks and the two-step would be permitted. Angelica Y and Edith H were restricted for two weeks for ragging during the week.

"WYNEMA B., Melba M., and Lillian R. were reported to the committee for misbehavior down town, talking to a man, and going to the Leon hotel. Also Wynema B. was reported for wearing a silk skirt without a slip, and for wearing green hose.

"Eunice S. and Iris B. were reported for walking in the cemetery Sunday afternoon. They were summoned and stated that they had directed had given them permission to so walking, and they didn't know that it was wrong. They did not talk to anyone in the cemetery.

EVA S. was restricted for sitting with company at the side of the administration building. For this mistake she had all of her Commencement privileges taken away. Thelma P. was reported to the committee for missing two music lessons. It was decided that the president speak to her teacher about the matter, and if it could not be settled any other way, Thelma should be restricted for one week.

"ETHEL H. WAS reported for leaving a student body meeting.

A moment that will stop every ion during the FSU Homecomi- ng game Saturday will be the ing of the Alma Mater.

For many of the returning dent, the story of the Alma ter, how it was selected, who te it and when, may not be miliar.

It was adopted May 24, 1949, ter a contest was held the pre- ous year. Composer of it was nny Lawrence, then an FSU dent. It's a completely original g and its words and music ear the love of students and ni for the school.

It has a mellow, sentimental e and the words will bring to minds of alumni a mental ture of the campus. These are e lyrics of the Alma Mater:

NO EXPLANATION NEEDED

Freedom Found In Music

"Music is so natural and so simple that it needs no explanation. Each listener is entitled to explain it and feel it in his own way. Here is real freedom."

These are the words of Karl O. Kuersteiner, dean of Florida State University's School of Music, which since its establishment in 1910, has achieved a top ranking national reputation.

Up until 1949 it was housed in various buildings on the campus. But last year the school moved into its new $1,600,000 building, considered one of the most modern and best equipped music plants in this country.

THE MAGNIFICENT new building has five general classrooms, 11 offices, 30 teaching studios, a library with individual listening rooms for recorded music and 60 practice rooms. It also has a recital hall which will seat 600, and an outdoor amphitheatre which will seat 900.

The newest theories in the science of acoustics were used in the design of the building. First, the music rooms are so built that the sound will be of proper quality. Second, the construction features non-parallel walls which absorb sound so that practice or performance of music in one room will not be disturbing in other parts of the building.

AIR-CONDITIONING throughout is another feature which is important to musical instruments. Humidity and temperature are constant, which makes it easier to play instruments as they don't get out of tune as easily as under normal atmospheric conditions. And it also helps preserve them.

Thus fine building is one of the things that has brought the music school a high reputation, a reputation attested by the fact that enrolled in its graduate program are students from nearly all the 48 states. And about half of these are working toward doctorates—either the Ph.D in music education, or the Ed. D., doctorate of education.

THE FACULTY of the music school also has a high reputation, both in America and abroad. Ernst von Dohnanyi, professor of composition and piano, is internationally known as a pianist, composer and conductor. During regular between academic terms he is a recording artist for a major national company.

Sidney Foster is another of the widely known members of the faculty. A pianist, he is a professor of piano. Called by critics "a sensational young American artist," Foster this year will make his second appearance with the New York Philharmonic.

A HIGH PLACE in musicology is held by Warren Dwight Allen, another member of the music faculty. He was associated with Stanford University for 20 years and is a student and author of many works on music history and literature. They dealt mainly with the use and value of music and its impact on society.

WORD SKETCH OF CAMPBELL

F S U President Is Well-Poised Man

Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell is known today as a well-poised man who can face legislative committee sessions, meetings of his 400-plus faculty or a gathering of his 8,000 student body without a quiver.

That wasn't so 45 years ago when, as a lad of 16 in the Arkansas hills of his birth, he embarked on the path as an educator by teaching a small summer school class. "I felt confident on the outside but I was right nervous inside," Dr. Campbell recalls. The greying FSU leader still has the little bell he rang to call his first students to class.

THE 23-LINE Who's Who in America sketch on him gives a glimpse of his achievements since then. One of the accomplishments of which he is most proud is the growth of FSU under his guidance, and its successful transition from a women's college to a co-educational university.

There were 1,800 students at "the college on the hill" when he became president of then Florida State College for Women in 1941. Today's enrollment exceeds 8,000, a growth of over 300 per cent, while the population of Florida during the period increased by 44.6 per cent.

ONE THING that guides Dr. Campbell in his work is his deep conviction that every public institution should consider as its "first obligation: to make students good citizens, and give them skills they need to get jobs and become economically self-sustaining."

"Doak"

Dr. Doak S. Campbell

"I have a profound belief," adds Dr. Campbell, "that education of our total population is our best means of preserving democracy. A man who has been schooled to think for himself is certainly less likely to be led off into any subversive group. I don't think Communist thinking gets very far with our students."

DR. CAMPBELL, who always is willing to talk about education and FSU, is much in demand on the civic club and banquet circuit as a speaker. He won't soon forget one of these occasions when his name was confused with that of an All-American football player. He still chuckles when he remembers being presented as "our guest speaker, Doak Walker." Walker was an All-American football player at Southern Methodist University.

Actually, sports always have interested Dr. Campbell. He's an avid fan of FSU teams and as an undergraduate at Ouachita College in Arkadelphia, Ark., he was a distance runner in track.

DURING THOSE unhurried years at Ouachita the young scholar took practically every course offered. In his senior year he chose education as his field, after previous struggles to decide between medicine and the law.

After receiving his Bachelor's Degree in 1911, Dr. Campbell successively served as a school superintendent, Arkansas Baptist religious education director, and chemistry teacher at Central College at Conway, Ark. He also got married, to his childhood sweetheart Helen Gray Smith. To them were born two children, Doak S.

Education Board Decides Policies

The most powerful board in determining policies of public education in Florida receives little recognition for its work.

This agency is the constitution- Education. The Education Board also established State Board of Education, which has to answer only to the men who make the laws of Florida.

CONFUSING IT are four members of the State Cabinet and the Governor. Its meetings are held concurrently with Cabinet meetings. When there is discussion slanted for it to handle, the Cabinet goes into session as the Board of Education.

Secretary of State R. A. Gray, Attorney General Richard Ervin, State Treasurer J. Edwin Larson, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Thomas D. Bailey, along with Governor Fuller Warren, make up this important board. Bailey is its secretary.

Most of the actual work in higher education is done by the State Board of Control, composed of five private citizens. As Bailey puts it, "We've always been fortunate enough to get outstanding citizens on the Board of Control, and for the reason that they do their work so thoroughly there is little left for us to do."

THE BOARD of Education's duties are outlined in Article XII, Section 2 of the Florida Constitution. They are mainly supervisory in nature. Most higher education action is taken through the Board of Control, some of it being subject to approval of the Board of Education.

One such item is the hiring of presidents for state institutions. Bailey notes that the Board of Control makes the recommendation and it is passed on by the Board of Education.

In fact the act establishing the Board of Control gives its duties as: "In conjunction with and subject to the supervision and control of the State Board of Education, to exercise supervision and control over the University of Florida, Florida State University, Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College for Negroes, and the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind; to make all rules and regulations necessary for the governance of these institutions; to appoint all managers, faculty, teachers, servants and employes, and remove the same when necessary."

THESE DUTIES fit hand in glove with those of the Board of Control.

But in the main, as far as higher education Florida is concerned, the Board of Education "doesn't usually instigate business," Bailey says. "In the majority of cases the actions we take are just to approve actions taken earlier by the State Board of Control."

one can achieve some wonderful costume effects and spend very little money.

Mr. Russell is now at work on the costumes for the first production of the year, "You Can't Take With You," though he says, "It's a comparatively easy job. This play is all in modern dress and the chief job of the costumer is to see that the students' clothes don't clash with the sets or each other."

Things have definitely changed since the old days. Now no one worries whether you wear green hose or black, and it is no more a crime to speak to a man. If things have changed in that length of time, one can only imagine what the future holds for the college co-ed.

associate professor of piano, and many other members of the music faculty have high reputations.

THE FACULTY is an extremely active one in writing music and books and articles about music. Last year they were responsible for 171 published works, ranging from studies in music teaching, to symphonies and operas.

A three-fold program of the music school is: to afford the University student a personal experience in music through a well directed program of music education; to prepare the student who desires to enter music as a profession, and to offer graduate study for the artist, scholar and teacher of music.

Over the years the school also has attempted to fill certain broad needs in musical service. Weekly recitals, training courses for teachers, extension and correspondence work, a summer music camp for high school students are among the activities.

THE SCHOOL also has eight major music groups. There are the 80-voice women's glee club, directed by Joseph Running. A University symphony of 60 pieces is conducted by Robert Sedore. Robert Braunagel is director of the University marching band and the symphonic band.

J. Dayton Smith directs the male chorus, and Wiley Housewright directs the University Singers of 100 men and women.

YET ANOTHER GROUP, is the 80-piece Florida State Symphony, conducted by Dean Kuerstelner. Students, faculty members, and musicians from Jacksonville, Tampa, Pensacola and other cities, are its performers.

It was 50 years ago that the first seed of what grew to be this active School of Music was planted. In 1905 a department of music was established. In 1910 its status was changed to that of a school of music, which makes it one of the oldest schools of FSU.

FOR 24 YEARS Ella Scobie Opperman directed the school until her retirement in 1944. She is now dean emeritus of music. Her "untiring efforts" have been credited as "the guiding force which built the school as a strong and integrated unit of the University."

Under her deanship the school won full accreditation in 1930 as a member of the National Association of Schools of Music.

Karl O. Kuerstelner was named acting dean of the school on Dean Opperman's retirement in 1944, and was later made full dean. He brought with him to FSU a background of distinction in the field of music, and a national reputation as a composer, director and violinist.

HIS STUDIES in the art his life has been tied up with since high school days in Kentucky, have taken him to Europe, where he was the pupil of world renowned artists. One study period saw him working under Oera de Kresz, at the Royal Academy in Budapest, Hungary.

Before coming to FSU he was associated with the University of Kansas as a music professor and as conductor of the University Symphony.

This background equipped him well to take the lead in the establishment of the Florida State Symphony. "Florida is one of the few states in its income bracket which does not have a professional symphony," he notes. "The idea in starting a State symphony was principally to get the people of Florida acquainted with symphonic music, in hopes it will spread and cause professional symphonies to be initiated in the State."

IT'S DEAN Kuerstelner's wholehearted belief that "music is part of humanity, and for this reason it must have a chance to be heard wherever people are."

To him music is the most democratic medium of expression. He puts it this way: "In the participation of music society learn the democratic way of life in that all instruments of a musical organization have to be blended for the common good."

Music is something entirely personal, he believes, in that each individual has the right to interpret it the way he wishes, to feel it the way his own peculiar emotional makeup responds.

The hesperornis, a bird which depended on water for its very existence, once lived in what is the state of Kansas.

FSU President

Jr. and Elizabeth Caroline. Mrs. Campbell passed away in 1938.

IN LESS THAN five years at Central, Dr. Campbell had become business manager then vice president and in 1930 he was elected to succeed the retiring president of the school.

As he did not feel the small struggling institution could do incredible work under a four-year program, he converted it into a Junior college which brought it full academic recognition and better financial backing. His junior college work led to his election in 1931 as secretary of the American Association of Junior Colleges, which post he held 11 years.

IN 1928 he resigned at Central to complete his graduate study at George Peabody College, where he took his M.A. and Ph.D. Degrees the next two years. He stayed at Peabody as associate director of the Division of Surveys and Field Studies, later becoming head of that work. In 1938 he was named dean of the Graduate School, which position he held until receiving the appointment as president of Florida State College for Women in 1941.

When Dr. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, the former Miss Edna Simmons, who was a faculty member of Wilson Teacher's College when they were married earlier in 1941 came to FSU they brought with them a policy that the welfare of the student body is paramount.

The "house on the hill" where the Campbells reside has resounded thousands of times to the laughter and the "shop talk" of the students in their frequent visits to the president's home.

THAT IT IS always "open house" at the president's home for FSU students as well as a cordial welcome in his office for students with special problems is generally known and recognized over the University campus.

In the midst of a heavy schedule of University business, board meetings and the many other executing duties of the FSU president's office, Dr. Campbell has always found time to give the student body generously of his time.

AN example is that during Freshman Orientation Week, President and Mrs. Campbell give a reception for all new students. Although with the growth of the University in recent years the number of new students has reached many hundreds, they both still find time to greet and shake hands with each student.

THE STUDENTS for their part have come to appreciate and respect their University president because of his great interest in them.

"While classroom buildings, dormitories and the many other material things needed for a University to function are important," Dr. Campbell says, "we have always placed the proper development of our students into future leaders and citizens of tomorrow as our important task."

"We know that to be able to do this we must give our students a well rounded life that embraces both the academic and the "home away from home" environment. This we have tried to do in every possible manner."

OUTSIDE HIS busy life as University president, Dr. Campbell's favorite hobby is collecting things especially autographed pictures of well-known contemporary musicians and old books and magazines. He has autographed pictures of many celebrities in the field of music. And he also has a second edition copy of the Mc-Guffey's Reader, a stock textbook in grade schools years ago. He a also fond of flowers but, he says, "the growing of them is Mrs. Campbell's pursuit."

Dr. Campbell's research and literary achievements include three books, "Curriculum Development," and "Readings in Curriculum Development," co-authored with H. L. Caswell, and "Democracy and the American Way of Life" with Wrightstone.

Among his honors he can list work as consultant to Presidents Roosevelt's Advisory Committee on Education in 1937; membership on the Tennessee Board of Education; past president of both the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the Florida Baptist Convention, along with membership in many educational organizations.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 24
THE CLAM

"I should have kept my big mouth shut!"

Fresh out of Bivalve, N. J., he arrived on the campus all bug-eyed and his big mouth hanging open. He was immediately sucked into a "shell game" and found himself making all the quick-trick cigarette tests. But his native instinct told him that such an important item as cigarette mildness couldn't be tossed off lightly. Millions of smokers everywhere have discovered, too, that there's but one true test of mildness.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke... on a pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

Playland USA,' Gymkana Show, Opens at Fair

Florida State Students To Receive Admission For Half Price Fare

Florida State University students will be admitted at half price to the 1951 Gymkana show "Playland U.S.A." which begins its four-day run tonight at the North Florida Fair, Dr. Hartley Price, Gymkana director, has announced.

The fair will open this morning with a giant parade composed of marching units from Florida State University, Florida A. and M. College and local high schools.

STARRING in the 1951 Gymkana show will be Bill Roetzheim, national top gymnast last year, and Gene Rabbitt, who tied Roetzheim for national honors on the side horse.

The climax of the four-day run will come Friday night with the selection of the Gymkana queen from among 23 final contestants. She will be selected on her ability to design an original costume, representing a well-known sport, and on charm, poise, and beauty.

GYMKANA members appearing in the show will include Lawrence Western, juggler; Charles Keoson, Gene Rabbitt, Tony Flitter, Dick Ireland, Harmer Fechle, Eddie Evans, and Lawrence Weston on the trampoline; Keoson and Gladys Tinkler in calisthenics; and Gene Rabbitt on the side horse.

ALSO appearing will be Keoson on the clubs and in a balancing act; Gladys Tinkler, toe dancer; Pat Fenny, vocalist; Roetzheim and Carmine Regna, high bar and parallel bars; Dick ..., trampoline; and Jack ..., Joe Regna, and Jack Sharp on the flying rings.

Other gymnasts and tumblers who will perform include Ben ..., Al Ruda, Al Juras, Gene Johanson, Dick Ireland, Harmer Weschel, Eddie Evans, Dick ..., Larry Weston, "Beans" ..., Bob Martin, Charles ..., Joe Gusic, Bill Vrettros, ... Holder, and Pat Signarelli.

A portion of the Gymkana teams presented a preview of this year's show before the Chaires elementary and junior high school Parent-Teachers Association's annual Halloween carnival last Friday.

Dr. Henry Bennett Speaks at Banquet

A small steel hand plow in the hands of a farmer can help combat communism more than thousands spent in diplomatic capitals of the world.

This was the belief of Dr. Henry G. Bennett, administrator of the Point Four program of the federal government.

SPEAKING AT the annual Gold and Garnet Key banquet Friday night, Dr. Bennett stated that the United States' struggle against the Kremlin's campaign of world conquest has tended to obscure the new revolution that is underway in the world.

There has been a revolt in the under developed areas of Latin America, Africa, the Middle East, and Asia. The revolt has been against equally real and hated impersonal enemies, poverty, hunger, sickness, and ignorance.

PRESIDENT OF Oklahoma A. and M., Dr. Bennett issued a challenge to institutions of learning that can properly recognize the new revolution and train persons to take advantage of it.

"As the most powerful nation in the world, producing more than ... the entire globe's industrial output we are leaders in the movement to help people," emphasized the noted educator.

SPEAKING WITH a "Will Rogers accent," Dr. Bennett summed up his talk by saying, "Freedom and prosperity need no longer be matters of practice within certain latitudes and longitudes because the free world has within its hands the means of bringing to life to all men the proposition that they are created equal."

Football Tickets Are Now on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the Florida State University-Jacksonville Naval Air Base football game to be played Saturday at 2:30 in the Gator Bowl.

Tickets may be purchased at the athletic department ticket office on West campus until Friday at ... p.m. The student rate is 75 ... with general admission ... $1.50.

Queen Sally Kennedy Reigns Over Homecoming Activities

Inaugurating the Homecoming celebration of the weekend was the coronation of the 1951 Homecoming Queen, Sally Kennedy, before the largest homecoming attendance of alumni in Florida State University's history Friday night.

Sally, 20 year old junior and sponsored by Pi Beta Phi, was crowned at the annual Pow Wow celebration by 1950 Queen Jett Munroe. Also present was the 1949 Queen Bobbie Pettit.

IN THE QUEEN'S court were June Conyers, sponsored by Landis senior hall, Ruthie Garst, representing the Theta Chi fraternity, Ellen Avis, sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon; and Elizabeth Cooke, representing Alpha Xi Delta.

Highlighting the Pow Wow were the winning skits in the Alpha Gamma Delta-Sigma Nu Skit contest. The trophy winning fraternity and sorority were Sigma Phi Epsilon and Alpha Delta Pi. They reproduced their skits as part of the pep rally program.

ALPHA DELTA PI presented a series of scenes of college life at FSU during the past 100 years. Sigma Phi Epsilon had a satire on members of the Stetson team who were introduced by master of ceremonies Richard Yeager.

The pep rally program, which culminated with a fireworks display, also included the introduction of the Seminole football squad and music by the FSU band, directed by Bob Braunagel.

THE WEEK-END activities began with the registration of alumni Friday afternoon. Miss Mildred Parrish, FSU alumni secretary, said approximately 500 alumni signed the registration book. She said that many more who attended only part of the events did not register.

The Garnet and Gold Key banquet was held at 5:15 Friday in the Suwanee room. The banquet this year was open to more alumni with 500 tickets available. Guest speaker of the evening was Dr. Henry G. Bennett.

Honorary membership was presented state senator, Leroy Collins of Leon County, by Stan Gould, Gold Key president. Mrs. Rod K. Shaw, wife of business manager, Rod K. Shaw, was made an honorary member of Garnet Key by Alice Jackson, president of Garnet Key.

THE ANNUAL PARADE was presented Saturday morning with approximately 25 campus organizations entering the float contest. The parade proceeded up College Avenue to Adams street, south on Adams to Pensacola street, east to Monroe street and north to Tennessee street where it disbanded.

Saturday noon a barbecue was held in honor of alumni at Camp Flastacowo. Following the barbecue was the FSU-Stetson tilt with FSU scoring over Stetson by a close margin of three points.

Climaxing the week-end activities was the Homecoming dance featuring Tex Beneke, his orchestra and two vocalists, Shirley Wilson and Bill Raymond. The affair was highlighted by the presentation of the Homecoming queen and her court. A smaller dance was held in the women's gymnasium for those students who were too late to get in the Suwanee room dance.

Winning Floats And Decorations Draw Approval

Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, Kappa Sigma fraternity, and Alpha Delta Pi sorority, won first places for house and float decorations in last weekend's Homecoming contests.

Alpha Omicron Pi took top honors for the second consecutive year in the Greek letter division of the house decoration contest with "Movietime, FSU", a drive-in movie scene featuring a revolving screen that depicted the University's hundred years of growth.

KAPPA SIGMA's prize-winning float, tagged most original in Saturday's parade, featured two Indian girls luring opponents into a wigwam where a Seminole scalper was hiding.

Alpha Delta Pi sorority's float was chosen the most beautiful. It featured girl's wearing the latest in hat creations and seated in large transparent hat boxes

Dignitaries Attend Annual Barbecue

Florida State University tapped a rich portion of the state's political wealth when the annual Homecoming barbecue was staged for honor guests on the shores of Lake Bradford Saturday.

College presidents, gubernatorial candidates, and state functionaries along with students and Alumni mixed with each other in the largest barbecue gathering since its inception four years ago.

THE CANDIDATES for governor were there. Dan McCarty, the Fort Pierce citrus grower who was a runner-up to Governor Warren in the 1948 campaign and an announced candidate for the next year's race was visiting with friends at the annual affair.

At least two other figures mentioned as gubernatorial candidates next year were present. They were resigned State Supreme Court Justice, Alto Adams and President Wallace Sturgis of the State Senate.

U. S. SENATOR Spessard Holland, Florida's wartime Governor and now the state's senior member in the U. S. Senate led the list of dignitaries. Bob Sikes, U. S. Congressman from this vast West Florida area also participated in the festivities.

Four presidents of universities were present. Dr. H. G. Bennett, head of the State Department's Point Four program, and honor speaker at the Garnet and Gold Key banquet the night before was there along with Dr. Ollie Edmunds, president of Stetson University, Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU's president, and Dr. J. Hollis Miller, president of the University of Florida.

The affair drew such an influx of legislators that it inspired one to remark, "a handful more and we can set about legislative business."

Rally for Jax Game To Be Held Thursday

A pep rally will be held in the amphitheater Thursday night at 7 to give the football team a send-off to Jacksonville where they will play the Jacksonville Naval Air Station in the Gator Bowl

Speech Play To Begin Run Friday Night

Vivian Law and Roger Busfield will star in "You Can't Take It With You" in the Conradi theater Friday night at 8:15. The comedy is scheduled for a four-night run, Nov. 2, 3, 5 and 6.

Also featured will be Robert Ducker, Ronald Martin and Inza-Nell Roman.

STUDENTS WILL be admitted at the reduced student rate of 44 cents if they present their identification cards when they purchase their tickets. They are asked to get their tickets this week as sales are mounting rapidly.

THE BOX office will be open Wednesday through Tuesday from 12 to 5 p.m. and each night of the performance from 7 to 8:30.

"There is not a fleck of satire in "You Can't Take It With You," wrote critic Richard Lockridge, "but only gargantuan absurdity, hilariously preposterous antics and the rumble of friendly laughter with madly comic people."

CAST MEMBERS include Libby Mauch, Marjorie McDaniels, Kenneth Martin, Donald Remington, Lee K. Hildman, Bill Tebo, Carolyn Briles, Lockey Yon, Blair Hennessey, Beatrice Lambert, Jayne Gardner, George Sims, Jack Hopkins, and Tom Crichton.

The comedy is under the direction of Frank B. Hanson, with technical direction by Win Park and costumes by Doug Russell.

THE PLAY opened on Broadway in 1936 and won the Pulitzer Prize for the best original play of the 1936-1937 season. It also won an Academy Award in 1938 under director Frank Capra when it became a movie.

Among the difficulties encountered by the players and crew at FSU were the finding of some 200-odd props and the ballet routines necessary for Libby Mauch who plays one of the daughters of the Sycamore family. Another member of the cast has even learned to play an xylophone for his role.

Freshman Primaries Held Today in Three Precincts

Eighty-Five Candidates Vie for Positions As Class Officers in Spirited Election

Primary freshmen elections are being held today with eighty-five candidates in the running. Precincts open for voting are in Lower Westcott, the Seminole dining hall and the West Campus post office.

Candidates had an opportunity to state their platforms before today's primaries at the Omicron Delta Kappa political rally last night in the Music amphitheater.

Jerry Thomas, political rally chairman, stated that the finalists would be given another chance to speak on Monday, Nov. 5, the night before the final election. The second rally will be held at 7 in the music amphitheater. "The Collegians," men's glee club, will present vocal entertainment.

HARRIET PAUL, elections chairman, stated that posters may not be nailed to walls, nor put up within the buildings where precincts are open.

The elections committee chairman announced that all committee members are expected to be in the University Government Association room on the second floor of the Alumni building tonight at 7 to count votes. The sophomore council will also assist in the counting of votes.

All candidates who have found that their posters and signs have been removed will find them either on a table in Lower Westcott or a table in the dining hall. The students must not put posters in these buildings, Harriet stated.

FRESHMEN candidates for president are James Harry Dunn, Joe Wheat, Stanford Orrick, Gracen Smith, David Dreis, Bob Berto, George F. Carnes, and Cinnie Brown.

Vice-president candidates are Philip Wieting, Iola Arnold, Joan Furard, Henry L. Hudson Jr., Lynda Lane, Tom Overstreet, Mimi Patterson, Dorothy Cooke, Carolyn Read, John W. Howard, Lilian Avis, Nancy Bond, and May Yonge.

Campaigning for secretary are Pat Nesper, Eloise Combs, Suzanne Tindell, Dorothy Johnson, Joan Brown, Jackie Wilkerson, Kay Kayse, Joyce Carnes, Kay Haines, Susan Copelin, Dot Wells, Margaret Ann Weaver, Jo Fabian, and Marilyn Malde.

CANDIDATES for treasurer are Anita Richardson, Barbara Jane Collinsworth, Betty Jo Miller, Ralph E. Johnson, Don van Hise, Sarah Jane Helms, Sue Free, Jo Anne Setzer, Carolyn Johnson, and Pat Lorimer.

Running for parliamentarian are Lynda "Puddin" Helms, Nancy Black, Nancy Rae Munt, Mary Grace Shoemaker, Martha Sue Humphreys, Nancy Sossamon, and Pat Ingalls.

Social chairman candidates are Dorothy Tyler, Jackie Price, Patricia Filson, Jeanne Cronmiller, and Ann Williams.

RUNNING for men's senate are Dave Kennedy, Victor Rusgaltus, Robert Wyatt, Bill Stancik, Eugene Lawler, Ray Kickliter, Phil Springer, Art Allwood, and Don Alan Whitehead.

Running for women's senate are Sara Whitehead, Boots Paris, Joanne Poe, Patricia Blair, Lois Stroup, Jan Craig, Charline Caviness, Sylvia Reed, Charis Coulter, Anne Whitney, Delano Driver, Dodie LaPlatt, Pat Cooper, Beatrice Smith, Nancy Fagen, Joan Dozier, Ann Adams, Mary Lea Brown, and Phoebe Jackson.

Deadline Set For Who's Who

Applications Available Now in Longmire Bldg.

Forms for application to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities may now be obtained at the information desk in the Longmire building. Who's Who selection will be done by the activity-point system, as it was done last year.

The activities must be listed on the official forms and returned to the information desk by 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 2.

ALL SENIORS with a one-point average are eligible to apply. Approximately 30 seniors will be chosen.

Chairman of the Who's Who committee, June Conyers, said that those seniors who are interning this semester would receive their form by mail.

Points will be given for all UGA officers, including senate, executive council, class officers, house officers, and standing committee chairmen.

POINTS WILL also be given to editors and members of the staffs of the various campus publications, members in the university court, members in honoraries, including D.K., Mortar Board, Junior counselors, Sophomore council, Alpha Lambda Delta, and Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota.

OTHER activities that can be listed are captains of varsity sports, WFSU staff, varsity debate squad, off-campus court chairman, cheerleader, men's sports letter, women's F club, Sandspur, music and speech productions, participation in varsity sports, ROTC Cadet Colonel, Lieut. Col., Major, and membership in any recognized campus organization.

Any offices not here listed, which the candidate considers important, should be written down at the end of the form and will be given careful consideration by the committee

'Traffic Week' Will be Held

"The next two weeks at Florida State University shall be recognized by the Traffic-Safety Court as "Traffic Orientation Weeks" for the students living on and off the campus who own cars." This statement was made by George Gnann, Jr., chairman of the Safety Court today.

The Court, along with the administration, feels that the student body should be allowed at least two weeks to become sufficiently acquainted with the rules and regulations governing traffic violations on East and West campus. The committee urges that all students read something pertinent to the Traffic Code as set up unanimously by the University Senate in the 1950-1951 session

"THE MOST important point for students to realize is the fact that this Court was set up for the express purpose of insuring their safety and the safety of others visiting on the campuses It is no way intended for this court to alienate or unduly punish any individual as a result of the decisions rendered by the Court. But it is intended to make this Court a respected part of the University Government Association.

"It is expected that within the next two weeks the students shall have gone by Mr. Don Farquharson's office, the assistant business manager, on the main floor of Wescott building and registered their car. At that time the student will receive a car sticker to be placed on the inside of the right

Oxford and Florida State In Third Annual Debate

I SAY OLD BOYS. William Rees-Mogg, left, and Dick Taverne, graduate students at Oxford University, will debate tonight against Bill Carmack and Huber Ellingsworth speech graduate students. Pip, pip, and a jolly good time, what!

The third annual Oxford-Florida State University debate will be presented tonight at 8 in the Music amphitheater, it has been announced by Dr. Clarence W. Edney, speech department head. The speech department is sponsoring the event.

The topic to be considered is, "Resolved, that any attempt to outlaw the Communist party endangers the liberties they are designed to protect." The Oxford team will affirm the proposition and the FSU men will speak in opposition to it. Dr. Edwin Walker, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will serve as chairman.

DICK TAVERNE and William Rees-Mogg will represent the British and Huber Ellingsworth and Bill Carmach will speak for FSU.

Both the Englishmen are graduates of Balliol college at Oxford. Taverne, a former secretary of the Oxford Union Society, and ex-president of the Oxford University Labor club, intends to practice law upon leaving Oxford. He has a wide background, having lived in Holland and the U.S. as well as in Britain.

Rees-Mogg is interested in becoming a journalist. He is ex-president of the Oxford Union Society and the University Conservative Association and is a veteran of the Royal Air Force.

CARMACK is a graduate of Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas, where he was a varsity debater for two years. While at Cameron Junior College, Lawton, Okla., he won the Oklahoma Junior College extemporaneous speaking trophy as well as a state championship debate award. Last year he tied with the senior men's team from the University of Florida for senior men's championship at the Southern Speech Tournament in Gainesville. He is assisting with the forensic program at FSU while working on a graduate degree in speech.

Ellingsworth attended Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, and Pacific University, Forest Grove, Oregon. He was an intercollegiate debater for four years and was awarded the degree of special distinction in debate, oratory and instruction in Pi Kappa Delta, national forensics honorary. He was a member of the team which won the Northwest debate championship and represented the Northwest region at the West Point National Debate Tournament in 1949 while at Pacific U. He has also served as debate coach at Washington State College and Southeastern Lousiana College. At FSU, Mr. Ellingsworth is a doctoral student in speech.

LAST YEAR the Oxford-FSU debate on socialized medicine drew a capacity crowd of students, faculty and townspeople who voted against the proposal that a program of medical care to be paid for at public expense should be set up.

A meeting between British and American debate teams usually presents an interesting clash in style between the humor of the British who relie less on factual material and the Americans who lean heavily toward logic and factual material according to a speech department release

The British team is on a tour of the United States. Before coming to FSU they debated at the University of Miami They will leave here immediately for a debate with David Lipscomb College in Nashville.

Seniors Must Sign For Placement Talk

All seniors expecting to graduate in February, June or August of 1952 are asked to sign up for a placement interview immediately.

They may sign on the Vocational Guidance and Placement bulletin board on the lower floor of Westcott for the day and hour preferred for their conference. Each student will receive a letter giving the exact date of their interview during the first semester.

Flambeau Reporter Compulsory Meeting

There will be a compulsory meeting of all Flambeau reporters and staff members this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in the Flambeau office.

All students wishing to work on the paper as a news reporter, feature writer, sports reporter or member of business staff are invited.

Try To Kill Indifference This Easy, Rewarding Way

The Flambeau would like to reprint an article run in the Christian Science Monitor last September. It is written by Emory King, a senior at Florida State University.

* * * *

If a student in college wishes to gain an over-all concept of the university, its life, its business, and its place in our society, I feel he should become a member of the college newspaper staff.

Working on a college paper offers the best opportunities for a student to get acquainted, not only with the complex social and business life around him, but also with the social structure he will encounter outside the ivy-covered walls of the institution.

I feel that too many students are going to college spending four years there, and then leaving without really knowing where they have been, and why. In these trying times every student should attempt to gain insight into society and the reason for our democratic way of life.

Understanding people and their problems is of major importance today if we are to have real and lasting peace. Working for a newspaper can aid students to meet and know many people, and can aid one in understanding them and their problems.

There are many advantages to being a reporter, or even a copy boy. I have found. The student body may be indifferent toward the officials of the school and their problems, but this sort of attitude does not usually prevail in the college newspaper office. Every day these student newsmen come in contact with the educators. Gradually they come to know and understand the whys and wherefores of the rules, regulations, and restrictions placed upon college youth.

Besides the understanding of the business end of the university, the student journalist has the great opportunity to study and understand human nature. Also, and in part perhaps more important, he has an opportunity to help other people. He soon learns that a constructive editorial, a plea for tolerance, or a news story that helps someone find a missing pet, for instance, is far more rewarding than all the "gripes" he can muster.

Newspaper work readily lends itself to the self-expression that is so essential for a student. A pupils does not have to be majoring in journalism in order to write for a college newspaper, many reporters have never seen the inside of a journalism school, but they are admirable writers of features, news stories, and editorials.

The Flambeau is calling a special meeting this afternoon at 5 in the Flambeau office, second floor Alumni building. Each and every student is urged to be present.

Fraternities and sororities are invited to send pledges up to this meeting.

To print the complete news the Flambeau needs a staff. The staff offers the private advantages of being a reporter and then . . . see you tonight.

● SOME EXHIBIT

Double bows, rods, and cheers go to one Pat Renick, decoration chairman of the ingenious exhibit in front of Gilchrist.

The nineteen-foot leering center of interest, an FSU Indian, was in the midst of dousing a cringing mad hatter into a large barrel. The hatter soon became a part of the home-brewed Hatterchol, which was drunk delightedly by a grinning, pie-eyed Cheshire cat.

The contraption took a brainstorm, so chairman Renick explains. Indeed, the complex lighting features and sychronized tears from the hatter's cheeks were models for future winners.

To everybody who had a house decoration the Gilchrist girls say they liked yours also.

● WE'RE OFF!

"The half of knowledge is to know how to teach" — one hundred and eighty prospective teachers as they begin their eight week sojourn throughout the State next Monday in coordination with the FSU intern program.

All farcial education courses have been sat through and major courses passed to the extent of having enough hours and credits for graduation. Legal documents of appraisal and permission to transfer the past three years of training upon the children of Florida has been supplied the 180.

An identification photo of the efficient, dignified, understanding and capable pro-spective teacher has been sent each high school and elementary school to "portray" the worthiness of the student.

With a few faded lecture notes to use for snitchers in time of need, a few old dusty texts for references in hopes that the neglected pages can be leafed through now that time allows it, they're off.

Famous last words to you 93 elementary and 87 secondary teachers who have donned your masks of maturity, resist the inclination to spit back when your pets start throwing spit balls; apply your psychology 205 and control that urge to tell the boss to please your interning teacher even if it goes against the principles of the school of education, you'll get better results.

To you seven men, we'll miss you.

● VOTE TODAY

Today the Freshman class will elect their officers for the year. A good class will go to the polls today and vote for their own and their vote.

This election is not a laughing matter. Events for the freshman class, both of a social and a more serious nature, will be handled by those elected. A class which means a group of close-working students who "get things done" needs competent officials.

The freshmen senators will represent their class in our government association. They must do the speaking for the rest, and therefore. it is doubly important that they be capable of the job.

The freshmen have to the polls today and vote. But they should at the same time cast a ballot backed by wise and intelligent thinking.

Dear Editor . . .

President

October 28, 1951.
TO THE FRESHMAN CLASS:
I wish to take this opportunity to announce my candidacy for this office of President of the Freshman Class.

The only promise I make is to serve the Freshman Class to the best of my ability.

If elected, I will use the position on University Council to the best interests of the class. I will strive to make this Freshman Carnival bet-ter than ever had at F.S.U.

I sincerely wish to serve you, the freshman class as your president and ask for your support in the election next Tuesday, October 30.

Sincerely,
Grover Carnes.

Dear Editor:

I am running for the office of President of the freshman class. By standing, I would be honored since the fact that I am not the type of person who likes to seek his laurels. I am a person who will work. The presidential office, I believe, needs this type of person.

In campaigning for this office, I am going to leave the "medals" I won in high school at home. I feel that I haven't I have done while on this campus will suffice. I have been written up in a reporter and cartoonist on this paper; I have been publicity for the station on WFSU; and I have been working on publicity for the Warpath Club.

The Freshman Carnival is scheduled this year, which is that in the position of President I could help make it successful. Inspired with the idea of a Freshman Stunt Night; I am sure that I can help publicize on the Freshman Carnival.

If I get the office of President, I will try to carry out the campaign planks of my platform which I have listed below. I have no empty perfecting. There are four planks in my platform. They are:

1. More publicity for our school, our football team, in the state, and other students and more athletics. I believe the bigger teams we have the more publicity we receive.

2. Name tags with rat caps. Many students were brought into rat court for not wearing name tags which they never got. My plank alters the freshmen to receive, for the same price, a celluloid name tag. It would cost approximately a half much more to buy them. These type tags are used for conventions and I think that if the rat court brings us in for something, they ought to have a basis for the charge. This gives them a basis. Members of our class now will be members of rat court next year. Let's do a good job.

3. A change in the name of the camp. Flatsacwa is an abbreviation of Florida State College for Women. It is no longer that institution . . . let's change the name.

4. A leap year dance. This would enable the girl to ask that boy she has had a date and pay the bill. Next year is leap year — a perfect time for the dance.

Well, there you have it . . . though FSU I've been working all year if you'll let me. If you'll mark the spot next to my name, I'll appreciate it because if I'm President of our freshman class, I WILL WORK.

Sincerely,
DAVID BREIS.

Veep

Members of the Freshman Class:
Elections FSU is here and again one of your candidates for Secretary. From my previous experience as Secretary of state and as Secretary of my class in high school, I know the responsibilities of this office.

I will certainly appreciate your vote; and if elected I will work with the other class officers to the best of my ability in making all of our projects a success and our Freshman Carnival the best ever. I will do all I can ture every freshman to vote today.

Sincerely,
Dot Wells

Dear Editor:

I am running qualified for the office of Freshman Vice-President.

Today you will vote for Freshman officers. Make your choices. Let me urge you to vote. Take into consideration all the qualifications and evidence have set up.

It's true I can't promise you cokes in every water fountain, hot popcorn in every classroom, or weekends galore. But I do promise you my full time and consideration. If elected I can assure you this.

One of the main duties of the Freshman Vice-President is the Freshman Carnival. Some of you may have been here last year at FSU and realize the goals afiaih, but wait until you see this year's. It will be big-ger and better than all the rest combined. This I do promise you. It will take considerable time and work to put on a show of this magnitude.

I think that if the rat court brings

OPEN LETTER TO MORTAR BOARD AND ODK

Last year I made certain credit goes to Mortar Board†, made an important contribution to the development of a more effective student government here. You sponsored, following the Spring Pan-Hellenic Council Leadership Training Conference at Camp Flastacowa, a meeting for the old and new officers of our government, and publications ranked together in re-view the achievements of the past year and working out plans for the continued improvement this year.

The main purpose of this conference was to provide some sort of continuity, but you also emphasized student training in leadership techniques and parliamentary procedures. As a first step, the conference was a good one. The student body is the ongoing rewards from that training will be very great this year.

But it was only the first step.

HOMECOMING OVER, ITS BACK TO GRIND

By FRANCES CAWTHON

It's all over! We can put the decorations in the trash can now, put away the tux for formal, and go back to the studies. I do not however, wish to recommend that game the annual Monte Carlo affair was a non-profit, all-student affair.

'All three vice officers were civilian clothes,' a member complained. 'They came up to all the popcorn, and then proceeded to make the punch'.

At Ball State the student newspaper reports that men have ceased to be the masculine husky specimens of brawn and, climbing-vine types. This generalization is taken from the fact that the Ball State men's band was recently placed on campaign. Seventy co-eds registered while only 40 men mustered enough courage.

Homecoming spirits (make a pun of that one) were plenty high (another blow) here this weekend. The alumni was so enthusiastic, so they say, the team was unable to hear some of the alumni signals.

CONFERENCE

UGA should have a special training course with particular emphasis placed on the learning of the techniques appropriate to carrying out its functions. The members of each branch should have a thorough knowledge of its duties and information necessary to the successful carrying out of his duties.

I feel that the Public Administration Department would be a good help in their field. (to would the Speech Department with reference to the Seminoles, and the Parliamentary procedure), and the Political Science Department (goals and values).

This is not a problem to be solved by one department, but should be done on it now. It will pay off.

Dear Editor . . .

with your full cooperation it will be the biggest event of the year for the Freshman Class.

In my experiences as an officer, I don't think anyone ever objected to my actions and conclusions. The reason for this is because I never undertook any task or did any work without the full cooperation and agreement of the group.

If elected I promise you to do my best to uphold the standards you place upon me and serve you to the very best of my ability.

Jimmy Patterson

Dear Freshman Class:

I have decided to run for the office of vice-president because I feel that I can best help and serve our class in this office.

Many plans are ahead for our class, so we will need co-operation. One of the biggest events is the Freshman Carnival, for which the vice-president has many responsibilities. During my junior year in high school I was chairman of the Carnival, thus I feel that I am qualified for this task as well as the many others which might arise at FSU.

I hope you will put trust in me and give me the chance to show you I want to make this freshman class the best that has ever been on the campus.

Today, as you know, is the primary election. Please vote and show your concern for the class.

Very truly,

Dear Sir:

I would briefly like to explain my reasons for becoming a candidate for the office of President of The University Government Association. In the past I have held several offices, the most notable last year The Senior Class Vice-President and a Boy's State delegate. I feel that my experience has been in these organisations; to such an extent that I have been developed a keen interest in school politics.

If elected to the U. G. A. is a vital organization on our campus. On it rests the duty of obtaining harmony between the student body and the officials. It has to promote the equal welfare of all students and not just the special interest of one organization, or group of organizations. The U. G. A. is with its great responsibilities, should have perfect attendance at all meetings, and have the cooperation of all students.

It is my intention to try to promote all of these ideals if I am elected class senator and also I shall continue to work hard in school affairs from the basis THE U. G. A. serve all students.

Yours very truly,
Bill Stancik.

Dear Freshmen:

We are the class of 1956. What are we going to accomplish within the next four short years? Whatever is accomplished will be done by you and the leaders you elect.

As a class we are one and we must learn to work together in close harmony, effectively and for the benefit of the class. We have already shown our willingness to work as a unit, and give me the honor to have you I want to make this freshman class the best that has ever been on the campus.

Today, as you know, is the primary election. Please vote and show your concern for the class.

Very truly,

Parliamentarian

Dear Editor:

If I am elected as parliamentarian of the freshmen class I will strive to achieve the high standards that are expected of me.

I will enforce parliamentary procedure, and work with all the freshmen officers for the benefit of the freshmen class.

I will also strive to help make the freshmen projects better than the past years, all of which is our Freshmen Carnival.

I can assure you that each and every vote cast for me will be appreciated.

Nancy Sossamon.

Senator

My friends and fellow Freshmen:

I am a candidate for the office of Freshman Senator. The main thing you want to know is what we candidates stand for so I submit my platform for your approval.

I. I will make a survey to see whether the students get a definite worth of recreational activities such as dances, etc. for every dollar they have invested in their student activity fee. If they don't, I will do everything in my power to remedy this.

2. I will investigate Rat Court to see if it needs reorganization to our class next year will not be criticized as the Sophomores have been this year.

3 Tradition and school spirit is something we need more of at FSU. The Freshman Class has more of this than all the upperclasses combined. If I am elected your Senator, I will endeavor to instill the Freshman Class more in even greater and better traditions.

In the Senate you can count on me to take an active part in supporting measures sponsored by the Freshman Class, and I will introduce any new, reasonable legislation requested by you, and will support it to the best of my ability.

An honest pledge that I will not be responsible to any clique or group, but to you, the class as a whole. However, I will be obligated to You, the Freshman Class.

Sincerely yours,
Phil Sprague

Dear Fellow Freshmen,

Our Freshmen year is far has been full of social activities, some hard to take and others very enjoyable. We now approach our elections next Wednesday, October 31.

The work of Senate interests me very much, so I am now a candidate for our University Senate. I have served on the University Government Association, and am responsible for legislating rules and regulations for the student body and for some of it's constitutional changes.

As a Freshmen Senator also I would put all my energy into the Freshmen Carnival, our most social event of the year, and help set up the Rat Court for next year. Ironing out many of the problems and adding new ideas.

So remeber as you vote—Don't be fancy. Vote for Nancy!

Sincerely,
Nancy Fagen.

Dear Freshmen:

I have held offices in the student government and other organizations in high school.

I feel that I am qualified to represent you as your PRESHMEN SENATOR.

I will appreciate your consideration on voting day.

Sincerely,
Lois Stroup

Dear Fellow Students,

Are you ready to ask yourself why I am running for the office of Freshman Senator.

Well, here is my reason. I am very interested in our student government here at FSU, and would like to help the student body as much as I can. I feel that I will do best by being a senator in this office I would get involved with the student affairs and be able to do more about the problems that would be able to in any other office.

With the hope that you will

The Play's the Thing .

A guy who knows nothing more about the Theatre Arts than that he likes Barry's dialogue and William probably has no right to criticize the Speech department.

Ignorance of a subject never gave me pause before, though, and so . . .

The play for pay Theatre is a necessarily callous medium. Castina as anything else is geared to drawing the most money in units of $4.40, as the traps off Broadway or the Loop call hold.

Such is the elbowing existence the devotee of face may decide to quit for the barren or insurance office for more ego rewarding if not remunerative jobs. That's the life of a pro and one of the things he accepts before he cashes any checks.

But should a college devoted to the teaching of drama be as callous as all that? Shouldn't their desire to whip up good productions be satisfied slightly with a desire to give all drama majors experience under fire?

It seems to this theatrically uninitiated that any other system would be giving experience to the very people who needed it least.

Not that Speech department productions should be reduced to strict amateurism but leaving out the human element would appear slightly bly-wheelish at college level. It may be an eventual boon to the drama ego but it sure as hell doesn't help the chronic also-rans. . . .

STUDENTS are requested to go by the University Honor Court room, located on the second floor of the Alumni Building. They will pick up a copy of the University Traffic Code, which shall be available to all car owning students after Thursday of this week.

The office shall be open from Thursday, Nov. 1 until Monday, Nov. 5 betwen the hours of 3 to 5 p.m. in the afternoon.

Students may inquire at the University Honor Court room about any question that may arise concerning the Traffic Code and the possibility of violations. "We shall be more than happy to assist the student body in the solution of any question that deals with this newly enacted legislation. We feel confident that the undergraduate, car-owning students at F.S.U. shall cooperate with the Traffic-Safety Court one-hundred percent," said George Onann.

University deans seldom compete with cover girls, but the photograph of Dr. Lawrence R. Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism, is featured on the cover of October's Quill and Scroll.

A photograph of Dean Campbell with his three sons, Malcolm, 7, Douglas, 5, and Barry, 3, accompanies an interview entitled "The Answer Is Yes." The author is John Newton Baker director of Public Relations at Florida State.

Written for high school students and teachers, the interview stresses seven significant values of work on the school press. Most important of these, it reports, is citizenship.

"Why Religion?" to be Slogan Of "Pause For Power" Week

"Pause for Power" services will be held on the Florida State University campus weekday mornings, Nov. 5 through 9, as planned by the University Religious Council. The meetings are scheduled from 7:20 to 7:50 a.m. in the Music Hall.

The slogan for the week will be "Why Religion?" It will be the subject under discussion by three young men brought to the campus through the First Baptist Church and sponsored by the interdenominational leadership and administration of the university.

MILLIONAIRE Howard Butt, Jr., of Corpus Christi, Texas, will be speaker. He will be assisted by Frank Boggs, 24 year old singer from Dallas, Texas, and Jack Hamm, 35-year-old commercial art professor at Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

Butt, 24, attended Baylor University where he was named to "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities." He is now vice-president of H.E.B. Grocery corporation which operates 60 chain stores in Texas and has its own dairy and food processing plants.

BOGGS, also a Baylor graduate, was voted "Most Representative Man" on the campus while a student. He was guest soloist on two programs presented by Billy Graham, national evangelist. He specialized in sacred music work.

"Boots" and "Alley Cop," comic strips, were once drawn by Hamm, the art instructor.

CURRENTLY Hamm, in addition to his teaching load at Baylor, sends out religious cartoons without charge to 200 newspapers in the United States.

He will demonstrate his talent for caricaturing during the morning services.

At least 40 students from several religious houses on the campus are serving on committees in preparation for the meetings. The committees are headed by staff and faculty members at FSU and by local pastors.

Stokes and Fogel Attend IFC Meet

Garland Stokes and Floyd Fogel will represent Florida State University inter-fraternity council at the national meeting of the Council in Point Comfort, Va., Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

Otis McBride, dean of men, and George Hellman, fraternity counselor, will also attend the national meeting.

The meeting will be held in Hotel Chamberlain at Point Comfort.

Fellow Freshmen:

My only campaign promise is that I will do my best to be a good representative for our class in the Men's Senate. I believe I can do the job, and I sincerely want to represent us.

Of course, voting for the best candidate is the most important thing, but you can't vote for the right person if you don't vote at all. Let's show F.S.U. once again that the class of '55 is alert and intrided by everybody casting a ballot this week.

Fellow Students,

I am offering you my services as Freshman Senator for this year.

I feel I have sufficient experience to qualify for this office having served in high school student government for three years. I also attended two state council conventions and girls' state.

I realize the duties of a woman senator, and am ready to do my utmost at all times to fulfill these duties for the betterment of the students and college.

Remember your vote is a contribution to better student government

Outplayed Seminoles Win

FSU Monopolizes on Breaks To Beat Stetson for 4th Win

Florida State University's Seminoles, outplayed throughout the entire first half, rebounded in the final two quarters to hand the Stetson Hatters a 13-10 defeat, their first of the present campaign, before a thoroughly satisfied crowd of 13,701.

THE SEMINOLES took advantage of a third quarter 36 yard punt by Ray Thompson, and a fourth quarter blocked Hatter punt to annex their third straight game of the year, and fourth in a row over the Stetson eleven. These breaks nixed the dye for the outclassed Seminoles, after Stetson's Don Martin had given the Hatters a 3-0 half time lead with his 14-yard field goal in the first six minutes of play.

Led by the sparkling passing of Bill Johnson, the Hatters completely swamped the Seminoles in the first half but were unable to score when they sot within striking range.

FLORIDA STATE managed only three first downs in the initial half as the Hatter defense enabled the Seminole backs assault and smash bodies when to 65 yards on the ground and 7 thru the air. Meanwhile the Hatters were picking up 83 on the turf and 64 thrown the skyways for a total of nine first downs.

The story was practically reversed in the next half, as the Seminoles, traditionally a second half club when the chips are down, came out like a new team. Thompson received the opening kickoff 42 yards to the State 45 score Italiano passed to Campbell for a first down on the Hatter 39. This march was halted on the next play when Italiano fumbled and Stetson recovered.

After another exchange of fumbles, Armstrong kicked to the Seminole 12. Thompson ran to the 14, and then on the next play smashed into the left side where he was momentarily halted, but managed to shake loose. He stumbled through the secondary and then, with the aid of several key blocks, reversed his equilibrium and raced to the Hatter 10 yard line where he was hauled down by several Stetson players.

THEN BIG MIKE SELLERS eyeing down field heroforer smashed through the entire Hatter sound for seven yards, and then did a super-human performance for the score. Hugpetz's conversion put FSU out in front 7-3 with six minutes remaining in the third period.

Shortly after the last quarter, with Stetson held on their 23, Preston Bradley broke through to block Armstrong's kick, picked it up and ran the remaining seven yards for the final FSU score. Hugpetz missed the conversion attempt but the Seminoles were out front to stay.

THE EVER - GAME Hatters roared back with the FSU kickoff, with Johnson passing from the 23 to the 35, and then running to the FSU 39. He then faded and hit Raffaele on the 30, and Raffaele spurmed and swiveled throughout the entire Seminole team for the only Hatter TD of the game. Martin planted the ball through the uprights and the scoring was over for the afternoon.

After four desparation passes by Johnson failed, FSU took over on the Stetson 47 and drove to the nine where time ran out.

Seminole Camp Is Reconditioned For Students

Ye followers of the leisurely wooded trail, come with me on the hidden way to happi pleasure. I have discovered the place where all outdoor types congregate, short of a nudist colony.

This place, although not completely secretive, is definitely exclusive for all Seminoles and unknown to most. However for those of you that have been deprived of its whereabouts and its nature, please pay strict attention.

Since last year, the industrious assistant camp director of Camp Flastacoso (whoops I've let the name out of the bag) George Edwards has been scurrying about getting the place all cleaned up and prepared and has it looking better than it has ever looked before.

The rickety old wooden dock with its many missing boards and nails has been replaced by a sturdy structure of solid concrete. The wobbly uncertain floats have also been enlarged and students no longer need fear the terror of old rusty nails prodding them on the back when they lie down.

Concrete benches are strewn along the white sandy beach and several new gunning aircraft are under construction for those of the more strenuous nature.

The local yachtsmen will also be interested to know that many canoes and sail-canoes are available for them, and may be had the asking.

I'm sure all you woodmen, and frm indications at oubt there are many of you, to hurry on out to the East Campus from every hour on the hour on both Saturday and Sunday. They start at 1:00 and last but returns at 5:30. Be sure to take your I.D. cards so you can get in the gate.

Women's Gym Open From 2-4 Saturday

The Women's Physical Education Association is going to open the east campus gymnasium every Saturday afternoon from 2-4 for the students relaxation and enjoyment.

The grand opening starts Saturday, November 3 with badminton, ping pong, volleyball, and bowling on the agenda.

Evens Beat Odds In Soccer Game

The Even soccer team pushed across three goals last Friday, to even their scrummage practice series with the Odd team, which won the previous week.

The Odd team started out fast with Saddie Presnell wing scorin a quick two-pointer to put the Odds out in front. They followers a little later in the contest, who their leader, Jo Anne Young was injured and removed from the contest.

The Even team, playing steady ball all the way, made the series even as they smashed the Odd defense for three goals by Dottie Templeton, Lucy Hargrave, and Leila Lynen.

Water Safety Class

A Red Cross water safety course will start Thursday, at 4 p.m. in 202 Physical education building. Mary Frances Hall, instructor in physical education for women, has announced.

The classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights from 4:30 to 10:30. Only qualified senior lifesavers are eligible to enroll.

Second Series Of Qualification Tests Planned for Dec.

The second series of Selective Service College Qualification tests will be given December 13 for students whose academic year will end January, 1952. Mr. John Flournoy, announced yesterday.

Applications for the tests, December 13 test must be postmarked not later than midnight, November 5, 1951. The scores must be in the files of the local boards when cases are considered in January.

ALSO INCLUDED in the second testing period is the date April 24, 1952. Applications for this date must be postmarked not later than midnight, March 10, 1952.

The tests are conducted by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey, and applicants, blanks may be obtained in the local board office downtown Tallahassee.

To be eligible to take the test an applicant must be a Selective Service registrant who intends to request for occupational deferment as a student, must be satisfactorily pursuing a full time college course leading to a degree and must not have previously taken the test.

ACCORDING TO Flournoy students who do not make grades over 70 may have a difficult time convincing their draft boards that they deserve to be deferred. A total of 230,000 students took the first series of tests last spring and this summer. Sixty-three percent of those made seventy or better on the test.

The criteria for deferment as a student is either a satisfactory score of 70 on the draft test or a satisfactory rank in the class to which the student belongs.

SENIORS accepted for admission to a graduate school may satisfy the criteria if they rank in the upper half of their class or make 75 on the test.

Students already enrolled in graduate schools who are making satisfactory grades may be deferred without the test.

Fall From Float Injury Not Serious

Last reports from the Florida State University infirmary say that FSU student, Carolyn Wentworth's condition is "good." Carolyn was injured Saturday because of a fall from the Pi Kapa Phi fraternity float at the conclusion of the homecoming parade.

Infirmary reports said that Carolyn is merely suffering from bad bruises, and that X-ray examination failed to indicate any fractures.

Dr. Elizabeth Jeffries, is in charge of the freshman student.

The float, bearing thirty girls in top hats, had stopped in front of the fraternity house at 217 Dewey street and Carolyn fell off as it was starting to move again.

Carolyn will be kept at the infirmary for special treatment for a few days.

INTRAMURALS

By VIC BUSGAITIS

Starting the second week of intramural basketball off with a bang, Senior Hall 'D' won their second straight as well as Magnolia 'A' and 394 'L'. A summary of Monday's five-game schedule in the dorm league follows:

Senior Hall 'D' won a tough game in their meeting with the Newman Club who were playing their first game but finally came out on the winning end of the 15-13 score. The Senior Hall attack was led by Kroff with seven points.

In the second game 394 'L' also went on to win their second consecutive game by trimming Magnolia 'B' 21-13. Schnitzer of the Marmolla five was high scorer with eight points while Compton tossed in six for the 394 squad.

396 (Lower) failed for the second straight game to field a team and lost automatic forfeit, this time to 390 'L' thus giving the 390 team its first victory.

Magnolia 'A' spoiled 394 (Upper's) chances of making it two straight by winning 17-13, on the sharpshooting of Watson who scored eight points. Hazler led the 394 attack with six points.

In the final game of the evening, Monroe Hall rambled past 396 'U', 23-12. Wally Hamrick and Milford contributed six points each to the S. H. victory. Dan Hobbs and Jim Diamond tossed in four markers each for 396-ites.

FRATERNITY LEAGUE

Starting off the evening Sigma Nu walloped winless Theta Chi 36-12 for their first win. NeWland led the Sigma Nu attack with 10 points.

In the second game Alpha Tau Omega went on to win their third straight by outscoring Pi Kappa Alpha 19-13. Kalanch threw in seven points for ATO, and Grare shot in seven points for PKA.

Sigma Phi Epsilon shaded Pi Kapp Phi 14-12 for their third victory. Droopers helped achieve SPE's third victory with eight points.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon trounced Delta Tau Delta 24-9 for their second victory. It was DTD's second loss. Miller racked up eight points for the victors.

In the final game Kappa Alpha nipped Kappa Sigma 29-22. Lester's eight points helped KA win their third victory.

This week finds the frat league playing only on Tuesday with five games being played:

Tuesday, Oct. 30:
6:00—DTD-LCA.
6:45—KS-PST.
7:30—SN-PKP.
8:15—SC-SPE.
9:00—TC-PKA.

Three teams in the frat league continued their undefeated ways by winning their fourth games. The unbeaten teams are Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Alpha Epsilon, and Kappa Alpha.

Leading off in the Thursday schedule Lambda Chi Alpha won their second game by outscoring Phi Delta Theta 17-11. It was the Phi Delta second loss. Landry led the winners with six points.

In the second game ATO nipped Sigma Chi 27-20. The loss was the second for SC. Baldwin scored eight points for the winners while Ashmore for Sigma Chi also threw in eight.

Pi Kappa Phi evened their two losses by winning their second game by beating winless Theta Chi 21-7. The PKP attack was led by Baker who took scoring honors with 11 points.

In the fourth game of the evening Sigma Phi Epsilon riddled Pi Kappa Alpha for their fourth straight. The loss was the third for PIKA. Crutchfield and Scarboro led the SPE five on to victory with 11 points each.

Kappa Alpha shaded Phi Kapps Tau 21-18 for their fourth consecutive win. Lester was high scorer with eight tallys while helped KA to hand PKT their second loss.

Jr. Culture Test To be Given Nov. 8 In the Music Hall

The General culture test required of all juniors will be given November 8th at 7:00 p.m. in the Music hall. Juniors are asked to write name on the back of an envelope due to insure avoiding the penalty of $5.00 fee and detachment from the new examinations.

Seniors who have failed to take the test have been notified by personal notice. The test will take approximately one hour and one half hours.

THE PRIMARY function of the culture test is for a guidance instrument. Present uses of the test indicate its potential values. The individual student receives his Act evaluation regarding his performance on the test. This information is interpreted on the Miller Analogies Test and Graduate Students are urged to consult advisors on the significance and implications of their scores.

Each academic dean receives a copy of the above information for his files.

The results of each student's performance on the tests is recorded in the Personnel Records Office. There they are continuously available to counselors and interested faculty members.

Summaries of the performances of FSU students are transmitted to the General Educational office of Studies and Examinations. This will serve as one indicator as to the effectiveness of the general education program.

DATA concerning the performance of students on the tests are transmitted to the general educational committee.

The office of Vocational Guidance and Placement makes constant use of the data. The tests are available for research purposes.

Feature Writers

There will be a party for all Flambeau feature writers and those who are interested in writing features on Wednesday, November 7 at 3 p.m. in the Flambeau office.

Traffic Court Issues Booklets Stating Rules

These May Be Received Between 3 and 5 At University Court

The Traffic-Safety Court yesterday released Traffic-Safety Code Booklets which contain a list of violations and authority as set down in the statute passed by the University Senate in 1951.

Students may secure this booklet between the hours of 3 and 5 at the University Honor Court, second floor of the Alumni Building and between 8 and 5 at Mr. Don Farquharson's office, 108A Westcott.

IT IS IMPERATIVE that students understood and support the Traffic-Safety code. George Onanis, safety council chairman said. The city of Tallahassee, which has complete jurisdiction over the roads and highways desires with Florida State University has assured the University administration that city officials will not be placed in the position of the students abide by the regulations and prove that they are capable of handling their own affairs and traffic.

A VIOLATION of the Traffic-Safety Code is when students have no recognition stickers on their cars. It has been recommended that after the Nov. 7 deadline, officials be stationed at each campus entrance to prohibit any student car from entering without a sticker. These stickers may be obtained at Mr. Farquharson's office, free of charge.

Students who have questions concerning the code may contact students on the Court and their assistants at the Honor Court office, or Mr. Farquharson's office. This information was released by George Onanis, chairman of the Traffic-Safety Court.

Research Grant For $12,000 Awarded F.S.U.

Florida State University has been awarded a $12,000 research grant to develop a lightweight fabric to use for enclosure of a biological laboratory, decontaminating trucks, cars and clothes in case of bacteriological warfare.

The Chemical Corps' Biological Laboratories at Camp Detrick, Frederick, Md., awarded the project to the FSU departments of bacteriology, chemistry, and mechanics and textiles.

The departments will investigate fabrics, coatings, resins and other substances for tarpaulins to be used for bacteriological decontamination.

Dr. Hazel Stevens, head of the department of bacteriology and textiles, will be technical representative for the University. Dr. Martin Soka Henry, professor of bacteriology, and Dr. Harold C. Beard associate professor of chemistry will join Dr. Stevens in heading the project.

Dr. Charles R. Phillips, chief of the PD division of the Chemical Corps Biological Laboratories, and Frederick T. Lenue, test branch of laboratories, have recently worked with the FSU group in setting up the research project.

BULLETIN

An athletic contest with the University of Florida is here at last.

Coach Bud Kennedy announced last night that the Florida State University basketball team will play the second-rolish Gator Bowl tournament to be held December 28 in Jacksonville.

Other teams that have been invited and have accepted are Clemson, Georgia, and University of Florida.

This means that the Seminoles will compete against all three of the above mentioned.

Council Views FSU Business

June Conyers, chairman of the Who's Who Committee, announced at the University Council meeting, Wednesday that application blanks have been made available to all students and that the tentative Who's Who application deadline November 2 will be extended.

At the next council meeting, the committee expects to be able to present its final point-system plan for choosing nominees, she added.

SING HOMECOMING Queen, Sally Kershaw, was disqualified from the Maid of Cotton contest. Ted Steinmeyer suggested that other finalists be considered. However the matter was set aside indefinitely by the council as the Maid of Cotton candidate must be willing and able to go on tour from January until July.

The recent amendment to the constitution passed by the Senate and referring to the impeachment of any U G A official was read and received a vote of confidence from the council.

Unprecedented Victory Won by Gracen Smith

Senate Passes Absentee Bill Unanimously

The University Senate unanimously passed an attendance bill, introduced by Senator Pat Rennick, at its weekly meeting Tuesday.

The bill states that any three unexcused absences will be penalized by one semester hour. THREE TARDIES will be equivalent to one unexcused absence and all not present at roll call will be regarded as tardy

An absentee committee was created to take charge of the enforcement of the bill. It is left to the discretion of this committee whether an absence is or is not excusable. The committee will consist of two men and two women, but not more than two seniors may be appointed. The absentee committee chairman will be appointed by Jim Kirk, senate chairman.

SENATOR WISHING to obtain an excuse must hand in a written request to the chairman of the absentee committee at the next regular meeting after the absence week prior to the next meeting.

In case of emergency, the written excuse must be in the hands of the chairman at the meeting following the absence.

The senate also discussed the uses of the student activity fee. A report by Senator Bill Yeo on several representatives work with the Finance Budget committee of University Council on this problem was passed. Senators Syed and Rennick volunteered for the job.

SENATOR SYED, chairman of the Standing Rules committee, reported that in the future the Senate librarian will be requested to keep a record of all bills presented whether they are passed or rejected.

A letter submitting the resignation of Walter Jardine, senior men's senator was read, accepted, seconded and passed.

TWO TEMPORARY appointments were approved. Bill Yeo will fill the senior vacancy on Student Union and the internship of Barbara Caruthers and Bess Enge will fill a vacancy on Social Affairs left by Mary Stuart Smith.

All seats from Monday's meeting were Nancy Smith, Walter Jardine and Bobby Drake.

Freshmen Elect Three Others In Primary Held Tuesday

In an unprecedented election victory, Gracen Smith gained the freshman presidency with a three-vote majority in the primary election Tuesday. Smith received 243 votes out of 483, while George Carmea, his nearest rival, polled 105.

Also decided in the primary were the freshman representatives to the Men's Senate. Dave Rennedy, with 372 votes, Phil Springer, with 182, and Don Alan Whitehead, with 161, all polled a majority.

RUN-OFF ELECTIONS will be held next Tuesday, Nov. 6, for the offices of vice-president, secretary, treasurer, parliamentarian, social chairman, and Women's Senate representatives.

Omicron Delta Kappa men's honorary, will again sponsor a political rally for the candidates the night previous to the elections in the Music amphitheater. The rally will open at 7 p. m., Monday.

THREE GIRLS will be on the rally platform to present their cases Tuesday in run-off. They are Dorothy Cooke, who received 83 votes; Mimi Patterson, 94; and Hilma Ava, 68. Thirteen candidates had entered the primary.

The field for secretary has been cut down from 14 to 4, with Joyce Carns, 69; Dorothy Johnson, 47; Pat Neeper, 47; and Dot Wells, 45; qualifying for the run-off.

FOR TREASURER, Jean Van Hise, 82; Carolyn Johnson, 69; Barbara Sue Coleman Smith, 59; and Jo Anne Setzer, 59, will appear on Tuesday's ballot.

Nancy Blue, 95; Lenny "Puddin" Helms, 98; and Mary Grace Shoemaker, 84, survived the parliamentarian primaries. Jackie Price, 182, and Ann Williams, 121, will be on the social chairman line.

IN THE RACE for Women's Senate, five candidates out of the primary total of 19 will be in Tuesday's election. Three three senatorial seats, Charis Coulter, 133; Joan Dowdy, 122; Lois Strong, 108; Phoebe Jackson, 94, and Sara Whitehead, 90, remain in the race.

In the primary elections, only two precincts, Westcott and the Dinina Hall, Kappa Chi Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu and Alpha Tau Omega.

The exact date for the procurement of Blood Donors will probably be after the Thanksgiving holidays.

All arrangements must be made before this time" emphasized Griffin. The student wishing to work with the project or sign one of the pledge cards may do so in the Flambeau office.

Five Men Pledged

The new pledges are Bob Wodrich, Tom Simmons, Stanley Humphries, Jim Smith and John Howard.

ODK Receives Drive Pledges

Over 350 Students Pledge Their Blood

Over 350 students have pledged blood to the Omicron Delta Kappa-Red Cross blood drive.

The pledges have come primarily from social fraternities, although government groups and the Women's Tarpon club have given support to the blood drive.

Women students under 21 must have parental consent before the Red Cross will accept donations.

NOVEMBER 15 has been established as National Emphasis Week for the armed forces' needs for blood donor program in which this campus will take an active solicitation of written pledges.

Cards have been printed which students may fill out. They are a written agreement to give blood on call when the procurement date is set.

Chairman of the ODK project, Bob Griffin, Co-operation of John Adams, co-chairman, has set up a system of captains to solicit pledges on campus.

IT IS EXPECTED that the Interfraternity council will pass a unanimous resolution of support of the project, Garland Stokes, IFC president, has stated.

Co-chairman John Adams has called a special meeting of all blood captains Tuesday at 4 in the University Government room.

IT APPEARS THAT more pledged support to date are Tarpon club, University and Social fraternities. Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha Delta, Alpha Gamma Chi Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu and Alpha Tau Omega.

The exact date for the procurement by Blood Commission will probably be after the Thanksgiving holidays.

COMMUNISM IS DISCUSSED

Witty British Debators Win Audience

By BEVERLY LACAYO

The Britishers once again proved their versatility and wit in the third international debate held on this campus Tuesday night and sponsored by the speech department.

An enthusiastic audience of six-hundred heard the Oxford University students William Rees-Mogg and Dick Taverne clash with FSU's Bill Carmack and Huber Ellingsworth over the motion that "any attempt to outlaw the communist party endangers the liberties it is designed to protect."

THE FIRST speaker, Dick Taverne, won the audience over completely by his comment on the high political tone of athletics and especially football on our campus. After the Miami game speech proved important was given to the moral victory than to the mere sordid tallying of points," he finished in a clipped British accent.

The debate was lively and to the point. After both teams agreed that the Communist party was a threat to free nations, the British touched off the first real point of controversy, by stating that any Anti-Communist" legislation would be attacking only the Communist propaganda system in this country, and with freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Shopping Communist espionage and sabotage, did not need any specific "Anti-Communist" laws, they contended, as the government was already legally able to take care of spies and saboteurs.

VICTORS AND VANQUISHED—The Florida State and Oxford debate teams are shown conferring after the debate held Tuesday night are Dick Taverne, Bill Carmack, William Rees-Mogg and Huber Ellingsworth.

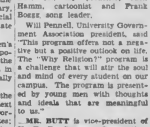
FSU COUNTERED that the nature of the Communist party was militaristic rather than intellectual and socialistic as the British said and many innocent people were duped into following the line and working against the interests of our country. Communist inspired strikes were cited as an example of this.

A second point brought out by the British was that any outlawing action would drive the Communists underground. However, had stated, The propaganda put out by the party was always done with the millionaire and the public. FSU quoted J. Edgar Hoover to back up his statement that the party was already underground and that the FBI was keeping a check on them

Final stages of the argument were centered on just whose liberties would be restricted by the passing of Anti-Communist legislation. Carmack and Ellingsworth claimed that it would certainly restrict the liberties of the Communists since this was only necessary to refrain from completely destroying ours.

HERE OXFORD made its comment that it explained that since the revolution would be aimed at destroying liberties, it would hurt only the Communists but also any one who spoke or wrote in favor of them expressed the same criticisms. Carmack's argument was invalid, that Communism's expressed right to free government.

The debate closed with a brief question period, in which the audience participated actively. A percent sample ballot of audience opinion at the end of the debate showed that 74 of the present opinions were finally and 138 were in favor of it.



URC Services Begin Monday At 7:20 AM

A series of five "Pause for Power" services will begin Monday at 7:20 a.m. in the Music hall.

They are sponsored by the Florida State University Religious Council and featuring Howard E. Butt Jr., lay preacher, Jack Hamm, cartoonist and Frank Bozzo, song leader.

Will Pennell, University Government Association president, said "This program offers not a negative but a positive outlook on life. The "Why Religion?" program is a challenge that will stir the soul and mind of every student on our campus. The program is presented by young men with thoughts and ideas that are meaningful to us."

MR. BUTT is vice-president of H. E. Butt Grocery Corporation, Corpus Christi, Texas, but spends approximately half his time as a lay preacher. He is a graduate of Baylor University where he was chosen for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and a member of Sigma Tau Delta.

Jack Hamm, professor of Commercial Art in Baylor University, is the world's most widely read religious feature artist. He formerly drew "Boost" and "Ally Oop" but now devotes his time to teaching and drawing religious cartoons for 200 newspapers without charge. He will do comic caricatures and religious cartoons during the week of his attendance.

FRANK BOGGS is a 24-year-old dramatic bass soloist and song leader from Dallas, Texas. While at Baylor University he was chosen for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and is a Baylor "Most Representative Man." He will be soloist for the Pause for Power on a coast-to-coast network beginning Nov. 11.

The theme for the services "Why Religion?", will be answered by each of the three men participating. Butt will speak at the congregation in songs and Hamm will do caricaturing.

Gunter Will Give Voice Recital In FSU Music Hall

Herman Gunter, Jr., assistant professor of voice, will be featured in the first vocal recital of this year's faculty recital series tonight at 8:15 in the Music hall.

Assisting him as piano accompanist will be Mary Esther Winslow.

A NATIVE of Tallahassee, Mr. Gunter received musical training from local teachers, and finished his education at both Florida State Florida and the Union Theological Seminary in New York City. Before joining the faculty here he taught at Ohio State University.

Professor Gunter has had extensive concert and radio experience in Florida, New York City and Columbus, Ohio. In New York he was a member of the Radio City Presbyterian Church choir, and baritone soloist with the James Memorial Chapel Choir.

HIS PROGRAM will be drawn from the great musical classics ranging from the Invocation and Orpheus from Peri's Euridice to songs by contemporary American composers.

Included in his program will be "Hear Ye Virgins and Weep" by Handel, Invocation of Orpheus by Peri, An die Musie by Schubert, Fuscrise by Wolf Werrowed by Kardos and Comack Love Song by Kouma.

Freshmen Change Majors Frequently

Of the 843 new students who are in their choice of major on their applications, 205 of them had changed their fields of interest one or more times by the end of orientation week, according to Dr. Melvene Hardee Co-ordinator of Counseling.

Among those to change were 113 students who had stated on their applications that they were undecided. Twenty six who thought they were settled in a major, were undecided by the time they arrived at college. Forty-nine students changed from one field to another during orientation week.

When asked how this shifting of major was regarded by the faculty and administration, Dr. Hardee replied, "Educational counselors are coming to recognize that change of mind on the part of students is usual. However, we who work closely with students on educational and vocational objectives feel that the decision about a major will be made early."

Forms and Bulletins Now at Test Bureau

Application forms and a bulletin of information for the one-day testing session of the common examinations to be given on Feb 16, 1952, may be obtained from the Testing Service Bureau.

This is to correct the statement that was made in the Flambeau that the application forms could be secured from the Vocational Guidance office

Huge Crowd Attends Political Rally

FINE DEBATE, HOT DISCUSSIONS FOLLOW

By ROBERT GRIFFIN

The Oxford - FSU debate was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all those who seek the intellectual outlet, so rarely offered on this campus.

In some quarters the debate is still going on. Soda shops resounded loudly the pros and cons of the resolution after the two-hour exchange of English accent and Texas drawl was over.

An audience ballot was taken after the debate and the boys from Britain won by 40 votes, 325 ballots were cast.

It was not a vote on the merits of the debate (although, no doubt the discussion that preceded the ballot has a lot to do with the outcome) but rather a public opinion poll on the merits of the motion: That the communist party should not be outlawed.

I follow the same party in opinion. I wonder if a minority can be outlawed (as the motion proposed) in this country.

A man with keen reasoning and logic would have a difficult task defining the communist party, whom it includes and what are its aims.

As Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black once said: The commies are a batsy dozen and haven't sold their ware to anyone.

The debate seemed to point out that they were a minority in the countries in Eastern Europe and democratic forms lost out there. The Soviet Army took over in those countries and was able to control only by means of armed might. This is exactly what the free people are trying to avoid today.

If communism is an idea, it is impossible to outlaw an idea.

Whatever side you took, or are now taking, the debate helped many students shake some of the cob-webs of their inactive minds.

College papers all over the country have been giving the Flambeau a plug in their news columns. Most of the comment has resulted from the ACP convention held in Pittsburgh. FSU's three publication delegates circulated quite a bit and their suggestions have been exploding all over the nation.

Time magazine is running, this week, a "Portrait of the Younger Generation" but first appraisal of what this younger generation is thinking and saying about itself, its country and its future.

Time correspondent combed nation in every section of the country and found that American youth in general are silent, fatalistic, security minded, conservative, morally confused, tolerant, and politically apathetic.

This column will carry an appraisal of the appraisal to the nation, when reading students next Tuesday.

FSGA-FIPA CONVENTION SITE PICKED

By ALLAN HEAD

With my usual foresight and astute planning, I managed to miss the best football game I will probably have this season. All because I happened to be in Lakeland for the weekend instead of here, and so missed the Stetson game.

But Florida Southern echoed to my cheers when I heard we had won—and from the reports that I eard the valiant U. of F had once again gone down to defeat.

What happened was that from our bedecked and ribald campus in that wonderful city of Lakeland was Florida Student Government Association business. Twas a convention of delegates meeting to plan the program for the Fall Convention, and we fixed up a dilly of a time. We heard FSGC conventions, and despite the limelight got a lot of work would like to tell all you FGA officers that this one will be the best yet.

Convention dates are the 6-7-8 of December, with registration on the afternoon and evening of the 5th. Site was picked at last year's Spring Convention, and is Florida Southern, at Lakeland. And by the way — that Frank Lloyd Wright architecture is really something. While wandering around under the arcades and in the halls and courtyards between I always had the uncomfortable feeling that it just couldn't be true.

I heard the valiant U. of F. had Although I have held numerous Stopped by in G'ville to see my best girl, and found out she was in Tallahassee. Ran head wide down there as a "FSU Spy." Seems the ALLIGATORS found out about it, and I was a story she sent back to the FLAMBEAU, and immediately set a reporter to track me down.

This story was featured as a "Woman Hunt," and Mary Jane claims that now her fellow students post an accusing finger and holler "Spy!" at her as she walks across campus.

Elections committee was asked time and time again last year to present concrete written policies for Executive Council to pass on. Time and time again they were promised.

To date they have not shown up. Harriet Paul, elections committee chairman, says they are written, "but not typed." Let's get them typed and turned in to University Council.

The need for concrete written policies was never so evident than in this last Freshman election. No one, other than perhaps the chairman of the elections committee knew the basis for deciding who would be the run-off for senate positions. And policy concerning that important matter is not typed, as yet, much less adopted by Council.

POLITICAL POST

TAFT WELCOMES McCARTHY'S SUPPORT

By PAUL E. GARRISON

VERNON, Vermont

Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, who declares that he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination next year, will make the first of his speeches on January 26, 1952 in a quest for votes.

The last isolationist Republican senator will appear in Orlando under the auspices of the Florida Republican Executive Committee. In a recent interview, said to be the latest ever granted a public official in Washington, Taft emphatically underlined that he was a candidate for President on the Republican ticket because "I believe I am the best qualified person who can wave the type of campaign necessary to elect a Republican".

Taft has already welcomed the active support of Senator Joseph McCarthy, currently billed as the Senate's most vicious demagogue, and it is believed therefore, to foresee the type campaign Mr. Republican will conduct.

Senator McCarthy will also speak in Florida soon in the interest of his party, although the exact date has not yet been announced. Democrats and Republicans who will come to Florida wooing for votes are: Carrol Reece, Democratic chairman, and Republican National Committee, who will address Florida Jaycees convention in Jacksonville today and tomorrow; Senator Duff, of Pennsylvania; Senator Dirksen of Illinois; Senator Cain of Washington; and Senator Knowland of California. Also, Governor Gabrielson, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who has been severely criticized by in recent RFC scandals will address the Young Republicans on November 17th in Williams Park.

Democrat Republicans have been clamoring for months to secure additional funds for the Hisley committee, a committee set up by the 1951 Florida legislature to investigate various irregularities of the state government. However, the legislature adjourned without appropriating effective authority for the Committee to subpoena witnesses or funds with which to work.

The Committee has asked the cabinet for $15,000, but no action has yet been taken to grant the additional funds. In the meantime, Rep. William C. Cramer, Pinellas County Republican from St. Petersburg has attempted to secure a tax measure, which increases the tax burden already being carried by white collar workers, organized labor, while decreasing, in proportion, the taxes upon corporations and big business.

DAMYANKEES SING DIXIE AT U OF F

(Editor's Note: This is not a rebel paper . . . we have Yankees in the office and Miss Cawthen doesn't like the headline, but it happens to fit exactly.)

By FRANCES CAWTHON

As I have said before, I think that the word Dixie means not "Ah'm from Dixie" feeling around here. The answer as to why has not yet presented itself very locally.

Our colleagues to the southeast, numbering about three thousand Gators in Gainesville, have been known to sing the word Dixie now for a long time. They are the only people I know deep in the Dixie belt of whom they are always going around, "oh, whistle" they want to be "land of cotton" with such gusto.

That crowd can sing "Dixie" with more power than 200 dissemines can muster. At the football games, everyone stands up and pours out his heart. Anybody who has the audacity, the nerve, and the absolute crudeness to remain seated when "Dixie" is being played, takes his life in his hands—or rather, the hands of several hundred enraged Southern belles and shirts made in the Confeb flag design.

Almost all the cars have a flag of the Rebel South flying in the radio aerials, and stickers on the windows abide. A football game or any such function like that is not complete until the banner of the Confederacy has a part, or there is some fellow dressed in gray giving out with a Rebel yell.

If there are any Yankees who are determined to remain cool and steadfast in their northern spirit and at the same time go to the University of Florida, I give them my sympathy. I surely would like to be one against a whole University.

Whether or not this same feeling for the Stars and Bars will come up as far as Tallahassee and prove to be a question to be pondered. So far, it looks as if some of it is venturing farther northward. I only know one thing: If it comes in any greater amounts I am going to start up a company manufacturing Confederate flags, stickers, and Rebel yells.

When I get rich, I intend to retire on mah little ole plantation.

Chartreuse Mule and Band Wouldn't Help FSU Apathy

Do you suppose if someone would place a chartreuse mule in the middle of Lower Westcott and assemble a 200-piece band to serenade it during class hours, that ten per cent of the student body might show concern?

Many students and older people as well have noticed a tendency toward student apathy which seems to be lashing into college campuses the country over. Florida State University has not been ignored either by this torrential wave.

One can look around campus and see daily signs of this growing unconcern among the students for participating in campus activities and for the prominent affairs of the world without our red brick walls and the Westcott gate. One recent example which can be cited as proof is the freshman political rally which was held in the amphitheater Monday night. Approximately fifty students were present, in addition to the candidates . . . and the registrar's office records show approximately 1000 freshmen in attendance here.

It is true that freshman elections followed in the wake of FSU's centennial homecoming celebration. And it is also true that this rally did not receive much publicity in the Flambeau due to the big homecoming edition last Friday. In other instances of student apathy there have also been logical reasons.

But to what can we attribute the general feeling of unconcern about everything? Whose fault is it? Are the students entirely to blame for this feeling or should campus organizations take some of the blame also?

● SHORT SNORT

A short snort on election procedure past and present.

Students are wondering when a set, unified, clarified, standardized procedure will be set up for student elections.

No doubt, when the UGA constitution is re-vamped, much energy and debate will be spent on how and why students are elected. Here are a few suggestions.

One: Time of election. The Pow Wow states that freshman officers will be elected during the Fall in the month of November. The exact date is left to the discretion of the election committee chairman and University Council. Scheduling the freshman primaries on the heels of homecoming is felt by many as bad timing.

Two: Confused information. Many ambitious politicos end up their cerebral displays, then had to remove them. Some set standards should be established for future elections.

Three: Precincts. There was no West Campus precinct. It has been the procedure in the past to have three precincts for voting. A survey should be made to find out where and how many precincts are needed. Will Pennell, president of the student body, has proposed, very wisely, to have three precincts in front of the freshmen women's dormatories.

Four: Mistakes. There were two mistakes on the ballot that were not discovered until mid-morning. The first ballot before being corrected said students could only vote on one senator. One candidate's name was left off the ballot and had to be written in.

Five: Controversy over runoff. Four people will enter the finals from several offices. This is due to the fact that the four had a majority. Some clarification is needed on exactly how many will be allowed to enter the finals. Up until now it has been only two candidates.

All blame should not fall on the election committee. The group, under the direction of Harriet Paul, had to count and tabulate the many ballots. They deserve praise for their time. The fault is in the constitution.

The constitution is disorganized.

A student has to search through the entire constitution to find scatterings of information on election procedure.

The committee on constitutional revision has quite a job.

● ROOM REASONS

The 1951 "gymstravaganza" show has outgrown the Florida State University campus.

Dr. Hartley Price, director of the champion team commented yesterday that the East campus gymnasium is not large enough to accommodate the show. Being staged at the North Florida Fair also offers more facreaching publicity than the FSU gym.

In order to finance bigger plans for the championship production, it has been necessary for the gymnasts to join the North Florida Fair members, off campus this year, instead of presenting their usual independent noway show in the fine Art University gym.

The North Florida Fair split will enable the FSU team to be financially able to sponsor road trips over the country and also sponsor the champions, Bill Roetzheim, Gene Rahhitz, Bill Vreitzer, and Charlie Keossean when they go to the nationals this year.

At a 30 cent half-price ticket for admission, students have little room for gripe. It is a world famous team. However some minds are slow to conceive and be happy at only paying half-price for a show they have seen in past years for nothing. It's inflation, they say.

The North Florida Fair grounds present transportation problems for the average coeds. It has been brought to our attention, however, that gymkana enthusiasts have been known to come as far as Chicago to see the show.

Tonight the show is FSU night and will feature the queen judging. It has been set aside especially for students. Price asked that students be at the fair grounds around 7 to see the Gymkana queen contestants in their originally designed sporting co-tumes.

The average crowd of 4,000 will probably be there in addition to FSU. Price has advised an early arrival to the off-campus "gymstravaganza."

Dear Editor...

Veep

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to publically thank all those who gave their time and effort in my campaign for vice-president. I would also like to thank the Flambeau, ODK and WFSU for giving me the privilege of using their facilities in making our campaign speeches possible.

Let me remind you that next Tuesday the Freshman finals will be held. I urge you again to VOTE. It's going to be a wonderful year and you want the best officers possible. These last elections are very important so get out and express your opinion.

Thanks a million again everyone and I'll see you next Tuesday.

Sincerely,
MIMI PATTERSON.

Secretary

Dear Freshmen:

I sincerely appreciate the opportunity you have given me to run in the final election for secretary.

I would like to thank everyone for your support. I feel that the office of secretary carries many responsibilities. I am willing to work and work hard.

My previous experience includes holding offices in various clubs in high school. I believe I am faithful with the duties of the office.

Again, thanks and I'll be grateful for every vote you cast for me this time.

Sincerely,
DOT JOHNSON.

Treasurer

Dear Freshmen:

Thanks for each person who helped me in the primaries. If I am a treasurer I know you will want someone who will truly represent you and who is responsible and seriously concerned with the duties of the office.

I feel I am capable of the responsibilities, and if elected I will use every bit of my power to prove your confidence in me.

Sincerely,
JOYCE SEITZER

Treasurer

Dear Freshmen:

It seems that every time I run or am elected for an office it is treasurer.

I have been State Treasurer of the Florida Future Homemakers of America, Treasurer of the Senior Class, Treasurer of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, and one or two others. Seriously, if you think that I would be capable of holding the office I shall appreciate your vote and will work hard to deserve it from feeling that you waited it.

My only platform is, "Let's make this the year that the Freshman Class accomplishes the Most and is the most outstanding group on campus."

Sincerely,
Carolyn Johnson.

Parliamentarian

Dear Freshmen:

This is just a friendly note to all of you thanking you for your support in the past election, and I have the best class ever in FSU and the best order.

I am running for Parliamentarian because I, too, want to have the best class and want to help you in keeping the best order. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
MARY GRACE SHOEMAKER.

Social Chairman

Dear Freshmen:

First, I want to thank all of you who have been so wonderful in supporting me in my campaign for Social Chairman.

If elected I'm sure we will all have a lot of fun during our freshman year. That's make it a memorable year with "more fun for everyone."

Sincerely,
JACKIE PRICE.

Women's Senate

Fellow Students:

I deeply appreciate the support given me in the past election, and I would like to thank all those who helped me.

Although I have held numerous high school and state offices, I do not feel that it is necessary to enumerate them here. If I am elected to the office of Senator I would like to use this opportunity to serve you students. I will work diligently, and I shall always keep the welfare of the student body uppermost in my mind.

If you feel that I am qualified I really appreciate your continued support.

Sincerely,
JOAN DOZIER

Women's Senate

Dear Freshmen:

I think that I'm well qualified for the job as representative to the Women's Senate and I know that I am willing and able to serve.

Being interested in student government, I would certainly appreciate your vote if elected to serve you to the best of my ability.

Sincerely,
Kara Whitehead

Social Chairman

Dear fellow classmates:

I wish to say sincere thanks to

FSU and Gator rivalry in the same auditorium . . .

The difference between sophisticated satire and pie-throwing slapstick. The British with rapier-like thrusts after winning over their audience proceed to liken their opponents to a well-worn Swiss cheese.

Mr. Carmack, a Texan with a style of trip-hammer speech, slashed his head-bowered, bleeding listeners into acquiescent insensibility. His manner suggested that here we are the n-th of an obvious situation for the consumption of his something of which brilliant audience.

The condescending Americans were anything but gallant to students debating in a foreign country. While their confident friends from across the sea were in the process of a tour of the United States, Messrs. Carmack and Ellingsworth made several slurring references to Great Britain. Mr. Ellingsworth hit bottom with an uncalled-for observation that "the British were again digging deep into our pockets." One was tempted to inquire what British lend-lease had to do with the question: Whether or not to outlaw the Communist party . . .

The British seemed aware of the human element and the water level of the American student. The Americans seemed to proceed on the assumption that the speaker was crying for the colorless arguments they presented. . . .

Seminole Scout

Jim Couch

That November 24 open date is beginning to become a problem to athletic officials. It seems no one is willing to play us. North Carolina State is the last team to turn us down and would have provided a first class contest. The Wolfpack has only won two this year, but have had one touchdown losses to Clemson, Duke, and William and Mary. Negotiations are still in progress for the date.

Last week's game again proved the ability of the Seminoles to come to life in the second half when it is needed most. Both teams looked good in the last half, but the Seminoles looked the best as the Hatters tired quickly. Many Seminoles were outstanding in the homecoming day battle, although Curt Campbell, Rey Thompson, Bill Dawkins, Vic Sacrapanis, Bob Schmehl, and Steve Kalenich were constantly in the Hatters' hair.

The Hatters were right in the same class with the Seminoles, as their Coach Joe McKnight said, "They just ran out of steam." But be the steam was knocked out of them?

This week's game is somewhat of a mystery to all, as the Jax Navy team has been scouted only once and are shrouded in question marks. The Sailors have jumped to an easy 4-2 victory early in the season, but that was over a month ago and the Navy has probably improved quite a bit since then. The Navy has always been known to stay in there until the final gun and this will be no exception. However, I'll stick to the ever powerful Seminoles to squelch all "upset" rumors with a four touchdown margin.

Basketball is not too far around the corner, with the opener scheduled for November 26. While watching scrimmage the other night, I noticed that Coach Kennedy has his boys working pretty good already. One team, composed of Tom McLaughlin, Bud Marsee, Jeff Fischer, Irv Quinn, and Jim Tom Richardson, was working all offensive patterns against another and acted as if they had a program on two-pointers as they missed about one in ten. Not bad for a bunch of amateurs.

Time boys aren't the only ones making with the dead eyes although to name all of the rest, would take 'til tomorrow night. It seem as if the Seminole rooters are in for another good season. Is it possible that the loyal FSU athletic teams? Records seem to indicate a negative, but who's complaining?

An Open Letter to Coach Don Veller:

The questions this letter raises should be aired not in the student newspaper but rather in a barber shop or local tavern. However seeing there would be less danger of your construing this as a "case sup po-sit" rather than as it is intended; the questioning Seminole drummer and admirer of your coaching record.

First off, some of us are wondering about the big backfield switch which sent the fleet Nelse Italiano to hitting heads with opposing giants while Mike Sellers, spirited line-crasher, rode the ends. What has change same the use of Nelse, a breakaway runner any coach in the country would slobber over, to the rugged defensive end post. He was surprisingly good at it—but there must be ten others on the squad who could do as well. Many of us feel that some standouts are being overplayed while many talented boys are overlooked.

One of the best used and most talented guys on the squad is fleet-running Dick Turk. Watching him in his infrequent appearances on the turf of Campbell Stadium has convinced bleacheries that Turk can really get those yards against the best. Another candidate for the Forgotten Man of the Year is center Tommy Owen. The rugged lineman from Webster, has been riding the boards regularly all season after running first string up to the season's start. A current first stringer Steve Kalenich, you have a fine center but I believe he would be the first to admit he is only a shade (if that) better than Owen. Why then should Kalenich be a 60 minute man and Owen not crack the lineup for a single play during the best Homecoming game against Stetson?

We repeat Coach, that we have nothing but respect for your ability and are sure there are adequate answers to the above questions. We also think, however, that as loyal FSU supporters, we should know them too. . .

Respectfully Yours,
A Befuddled Fan

Seminoles Face Jax Navy
B Team Stops Panama City

FSU Favored For Fifth Win

The FSU Seminoles take on the Jacksonville Naval Air Station this week-end over in the Gator Bowl, with kickoff slated for 2:30.

This will be the Seminoles' first regular season game with a service team, since they pulverized the MacDill Field eleven—74-0 back in 1949. However this contest does not promise to be a repeat of that track meet.

The Navy broke Fatherly Navy's 16-game winning streak last week when they bested them 13-6, and seem to have a greatly improved ball club over the one that lost to Stetson 42-0 at the first of the season.

The Seminoles, fresh from their close win over the Hatters, will be the decided favorites in the contest. They are at full strength, and with the exception of Preston Bradley, who has been shifted from quarterback to end to offensive guard, the Seminoles will take the field as they did against Stetson.

The Seminole backfield will be composed of Roy Thompson, Bobby Fiveash, Mike Sellers, and Nelson Italiano. Rey Thompson set a record last Saturday with his 59-yard run, the longest from scrimmage on the Seminole record. Italiano sets new records every time he passes. He has already eclipsed the season records of 39 attempts and 16 completions, which he set last year. Sellers, who led the Seminole scoring last year with 34 points, is again out in front with six touchdowns for 36 points so far this season. Sellers also leads in the running department with 215 yards, while Italiano heads the passing department with 268 yards on 22 completions out of 52 attempts.

Tommy Brown, in spite of last weeks average of 29.7, still has a very respectable 36.5 for 17 punts. Brown also has a 15.6 average on his punt returns to lead in that department.

In the pass receiving department, Bob Whitmer and Curt Campbell are leading with 170 and 147 yards respectively. Campbell is just once short of the passing department, and six, set by Ted Hewitt in 1949.

Tickets may be bought at the Gate, with ticket office open half price (75c) if the student brings his I. D. card.

Officers Elected

Pi Kappa Lambda, musical honorary society, elected officers for the coming year at a recent meeting.

New officers of the society, elected for a two-year term, are Ramona C. Beard, president; Sadie Phippe, vice-president; Herman Gunter Jr., secretary, and Carlisle Floyd, treasurer.

Retiring officers, who have served for the past two years, are Owen Sellers, president; John Boda, vice-president; Ramona Beard, secretary, and Robert Braunagel, treasurer.

FSU Track Coach Named Leader Of Area NAIB Group

Ken Miller, head coach of FSU's Dixie Conference Championship track team, has been appointed district chairman of what is a member of the National Athletic Committee for the NAIB track. The appointment was made by W. A. Herington, president of the NAIB last week and Coach Miller announced his acceptance yesterday.

The NAIB (National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball) is a nationwide organization of small colleges and universities, and has for many years conducted a national basketball tournament at Kansas City. This year the association plans to add athletic activities to include track, with district, state and national meets.

Coach Miller, whose area will include the states of Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, and West Virginia, says he has nothing definite to announce at this time relative to a meet for area 7.

"Plans are still in the formative stage." Coach Miller declared, "and I'm afraid I won't know much more until word limit will I meet with other area chairmen sometime this winter. I believe we can hope for district and area meets, however, with the top men in the area meet competing in the national NAIB finals."

Exams for Gen. Ed To Be Nov. 13, 15

The General Education Exemption Examinations, excluding English and Mathematics, will be given November 13 and 15 at 7:30 p. m. in Room 214 in the Education building, announced M. H. DeGroff, director of the Test Service Bureau.

To order for a student to take the exemption examinations he must have a recommendation from his educational counselor or dean or the chairman of the area in which he wishes to take the exam. These recommendations must be filed in the Test Service Bureau by November 9, 1951.

'B' Team Romps Over Seahawks

The Florida State University "B" team completely smashed the semi-pro Panama City Seahawks Wednesday night, as they ran and passed themselves to a decisive 57-7 victory on a Panama City rain drenched field.

LED BY THE RUNNING of Al "Crazylegs" Woodham, who scored three times and passed for a fourth, the Seminoles wasted little time in showing their superiority over the Seahawks, as Ronald King drove over from the eight-yard line early into the opening minutes of play, for the first of his two scores for the evening.

The Seminoles scored twice in each of the first three quarters and tacked on three more in the last frame. Dennis Woodham and King, George Carnes, Tom Sebastian, Bill David and Jimmy Bliss-wood also crossed the double-stripe, while Manuel Moshinas converted after three out of the nine.

WOODHAM SCORED twice in the third period and once in the fourth on runs of 27, 31, and 32. He also connected with Jerry Elenwood in the fourth period for a 49 yard pass.

Kins got one in the first and one in the fourth on runs of eight and five. Quarterbacks Goring and David both got theirs in the second quarter on 29 and 21 yard gallops respectively.

Tackles Don Linton, and George Kirby, centers Fred Brown and Buddy Bryant, along with Moshinas were the standouts in the defensive line. The Seminoles rolls up 28 yards over the ground.

DORMITORY LEAGUE

Monday evening started out a little bad as both 307(U) and 390(U) failed to appear for their game so they both lost by forfeit.

The second game had 394(L) trimming the Meteorology Boys 20-10 for their third straight win which put them in first place in Section Two of the Dorm league. Sergein racked up 10 points for the leaders.

Newman Club playing their second game, shaded 396(L) for their first win. Eagan helped the Newman five beat the winless 396 team by scoring 9 points.

290(L) nipped Magnolia (B) 20-16 in the fourth contest. Davis led the winners with 16 points as did Sherm so for the losers.

Closing the evening Cockrell defeated 396(U) 26-16. The Cockrell attack was led by Hutchinson who threw in 10 points. Hobbs and Polka led the 396 scoring.

Five games are scheduled for the dorm league on Monday: at 6:15 394(U) meets 380(U); at 6:45 Cockrell tangles with 397(U); 7:30, Mag.(A) against S.H.(A); 8:15, 394(L) meets 290(L) and to the last game S.H.(B) goes against Mag.(B).

The top six scorers in the dorm league are: Watson of Magnolia (A) with 32 points in two games; Knapp of Senior Hall(B), 21 points in two games; Davis of 390(L) with 20 points in two games; Hobbs of 396(U) with 19 points in three games; Hutchinson of Cockrell with 17 in two games; Helms of 394(U) with 16 points in two games.

the members of the freshman class for supporting me in the primary election.

As you know one of the chief duties of the class is the annual freshman carnival. This year I know we want the biggest and best carnival yet. I feel well qualified as I have had a great deal of experience planning social functions in high school.

I would appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
Amy Williams

and JUDY SIMKINS

Mother Barrett, chaperone at the Alpha Delta Pi house, planned a surprise Halloween party for the pledges Wednesday night.

ADPi's had a ban on Homecoming, winning first prize in the float and skit contests, and placing third with their house decorations.

Newly elected officers of the Alpha Gamma Delta pledge class are Margie Kimbrell, President; Mary Dinning, Vice President; Mary Ann Sperry, Secretary. Ann Reddell, Treasurer, and Carolyn Johnson, Chaplain. Nancy Kilgore is program chairman, while Janelle Hull is in charge of the bulletin board. The Alpha Gams anticipate a visit from their Grand President, Mrs. H. C. Plemmer, next week. On Monday, the Alpha Gams prepared and served the Freshmen's tea for the College Exceptional Children's Class.

Alpha Xi Delta won third place for the most beautiful float in the Homecoming parade, and was runner up in the skit contest. Alpha Xi's also have an undefeated volleyball team—winners of League A.

Chi Omega pledges entertained pledges of other sororities with their annual Halloween party at 5 p.m. on Wednesday.

Delta Delta Delta has already begun work with their first song practice scheduled Thursday night at 7:30. Sunday, the Tri Delts gave a supper for the K.A.'s. Tri Del's won honorable mention for their house decorations this past week end.

Delta Zeta celebrated Halloween Wednesday night with the "Pikes" by giving a party at the house. Delta Z's captured second place on their float in the Homecoming parade. The Delta Zeta House was the scene for a Circus rush party Thursday night; Saturday night there will be a slumber party, and on Sunday, a coffee.

Delta Gammas entertained the Phi Delts at a party Tuesday night. Dr. Ida Lou Reed of their informal parties to be given for fraternities.

Pledges of Kappa Alpha Theta have elected their new officers. They are president, Charlotte Hardy; secretary, Donna Lou Harper; activities chairman, Jeanne Parker; Courtesy chairman, Joan Edwards and scholarship chairman, Mildred Burroughs.

New initiates of Kappa Delta are Laura Beers and Kathleen Toole. Pledge class officers are Lois Stroup, president; Nancy Bond, vice president; Bette Ann Ray secretary and Ann McKay, treasurer.

Eight Offices To Be Filled In Freshmen Finals Today

President and Three Men Senators Elected in Last Week's Primaries

Eight offices will be voted upon by freshmen students today in the final election of freshmen candidates. Voting precincts are in lower Westcott and the Seminole dining hall lobby.

Run-offs for vice-president, secretary, treasurer, parliamentarian, social chairman and Women's Senate representatives are in today's offing.

POLITICAL RALLY for the remaining candidates took place last night in the Music amphitheater.

Elected in the primary election a week ago today was freshman president, Graeen Smith. This is the first time in Florida State University's history that the freshman president has been elected in the primary election. Smith, with 240 votes gained over his nearest rival, George Carnes, by 138 points.

Other candidates elected in the freshmen class primary were men's senate representatives. The winners were Dave Kennedy, Phil Sumner and Don Alan Whitehead.

ON TODAY'S BALLOT for vice-president are Dorothy Cooke, Mimi Patterson and Lillian Avila. The candidates had 85, 84, and 68 votes respectively in last Tuesday's balloting.

Four girls are in the run-offs for class secretary today. Freshman Joyce Carna, Dorothy Johnson, Pat Nesper and Dot Wells. Carns polled highest in the primaries with 82 votes. Johnson and Nesper got with 47 votes each with 45.

Today's ballot for treasurer will be Don Van Hise, with 82 votes from last week's election. Johnson with 68, Barbara Jane Collinsworth 58, and Jo Anne Setzer, 59.

FINALISTS for parliamentarian are Nancy Black with a 96 vote lead from the primary election. Finalists "Pudin" Helms, 182, and Mary Grace Shoemaker, 84. Social chairman will be elected from Estes and Ann Williams with 121 are the finalists for social chairman.

Five remaining candidates vying for the Women's Senate for the three senatorial seats will be on today. They are Charis Coulter, 139 votes from last week's election; Dixie 132, Lois Stroup, 108; Rosie Jackson, 94 and Sara Whitehead, 90.

Annual Rush Week Begins Wednesday For Village Vamps

The Village Vamps will begin their annual rushing with two parties Wednesday night.

Marianne Gillen, president, said that the new members are chosen on the basis of poise, personality, and scholarship.

TWO MORE parties will be held for this week to be followed by formal tapping of new members in December. Not more than 30 freshman girls are chosen for the organization each year.

The Vamps function in honoring and ushering in the new girls that they have ushered at all social series and last year, at Sandspur.

THEY ACTED as hostesses for the Pre Game Party at Vamp Vista, week end last year. An annual event is the fashion show in which the new taps model, given for the benefit of the Community Chest. This year for the first time, the Vamps are ushering for all speech department productions," Marianne said.

Officers of the Village Vamps are Marianne Gillen, president; Judy Ellis, vice president; Lucille Sherry, secretary; Anice Spencer, treasurer, and Anne Hawkins, projects chairman.

Picture Appointments Con Now Be Made

Upperclassmen may have their pictures taken by appointment now with Rose, Inc. Gail Smith, chairman has announced. Organizations may sign up for appointments before Dec. 18, the Tally-Ho editor said.

The Tally-Ho still needs typists, artists and people interested in advertising. Students interested may contact Gail Albritton on the fourth floor Alumni building Monday, 3 to 5; Tuesday, 2 to 5, Thursday, 2 to 5, and Friday 2 to 3.

G'kana Queen To be Crowned By Campbell

President Doak S. Campbell will crown the 1951 Gymkana queen tonight at 7:30 on the North Florida fair grounds, before the final performance of "Playland U. S. A."

Because of weather conditions the coronation of Dr. Hartley Queen and the Florida State University student body were postponed until tonight. Students will have to present ID cards to get in for half-price.

ST. JOHN'S which was originally set for Friday night and the queen's crowning for Saturday night.

The city bus company will run buses to the fair grounds tonight from 8:15 until 7 p. m. in front of Westcott. Dr. Price has announced.

Because of the very close voting by the judges, there will be two related events tonight: only one queen, but two attendants. One will be chosen for poise and the other for beauty. The other contestants will be members of the court. Misses Ann Dorman, Price, director of Gymkana; Douglas Duke, Duke Motors company; H. W. Rose, Florida Industrial commission; Mrs. William Woods and Mrs. John French, secretary in the University Public Relations office.

THE STATE FLORIDA fair closed last night after a week's run. Tonight's Gymkana show will be given at the fair grounds, however.

The theme of this year's Gymkana show is a tour of the United States. After the tour, the team returns to Tallyho and finds that it is the place they like best.

THE CROWNING of the Queen will take place at the beginning of the show so that she can reign over the night's festivities.

Contestants in the beauty contest portray are Carolyn Hadden, Miss Price Pulliam, Yvonne Dionne and Swimmer; Peggy Pelot, Miss Yachtina; Faye Bervaldi, Miss Hat Check Girl; Bee Bee Wood, Trampoline; Frances Ann Richardson, Miss Ice Skater, and Lila Ann Blair, Miss Rodeo.

ALSO, Miss Barbara Strode, Miss Accent; Miss Sara Sloan, Miss Angler; Melba Snapp, Miss Pretzel; Sum Jones, Miss Interpretive Dance; Betty Yeiswine, Miss Lifeguard, Kaye Kayse, Miss Mountain Climber; Jeanie Cheney, singer, Miss Baseball, and Eleanor Gard, Miss Hunter.

Reside and admission tonight will be sixty cents and forty cents for children. Price has stated.

Soph Class Unites Wed.

The first sophomore class meeting of the year will be held Wednesday, at 7 p. m. in the Music amphitheater, Tom Conyers, class president, has announced.

"I URGE all sophomores to attend this meeting," Jume said. "Since it is the first meeting of the year, we have many plans to present and discuss."

The meeting's primary purpose is to discuss plans for the annual sophomore hop, the class president said. A vote will be taken as to whether the sophomores want to have an open or closed dance.

Last year's class sponsored an open dance for the benefit of the Campus Chest drive then going on. "We do not plan to do so this year that I know of," Jume noted.

CLASS OFFICERS will be present at that tomorrow night's meeting. "They were introduced at the end of last year," the blonde president said, "but we thought it advisable to reorganize the class with the officers."

Class officers include June Conyers, president; Pat Wise, vice president; Petrea Campbell, secretary; Joyce Whiddon, treasurer; Marcella Morris, social chairman; Betty Sue Fryer, social chairman; Florida Norvelle and Sandy Meyer, women senators and Milton Carothers, Roy Slaton and Gene Turano, men's senators.

Coed Dormitories To Hove Meetings

All women's dormitories are holding compulsory house meetings Thursday night at 9:45

Every dormitory will be closed at that hour in order to have the meetings and every woman must be present.

Huge Marching Exhibition Set For Game Sat.

Twenty Prep Bands Congregate Here For First FSU Band Day

Twenty bands led by the "Marching Chiefs," will present a display of letter formations and precision marching in the Doak S. Campbell stadium Saturday, during the half-time of the Florida State University-Wofford game.

Twenty high school bands from Florida and Georgia, numbering more than 1100 musicians, will be guests of FSU for the first Band Day ever held on this campus. They will participate in a pre-game parade through the Tallahassee business district, in addition to the marching exhibition on the gridiron.

THE PARADE will form on the parking lot west of the Capitol at 12 noon and will proceed north on Adams St. to Call St., east on Call to Monroe and South on Monroe to the Capitol building. The bandsmen will then board buses for the stadium where they will sit in a special section as guests of the University.

The half-time show, under the direction of Robert Brumagel, will feature the execution of field formation by the massed bands. They will form a huge USA during the playing of Dr. Hartley's them, and a 100 yard long FSU.

FEATURING the Band Day will also bring to the campus the high school seniors in North Florida, who FSU has invited to see the football game as the guests of the University.

Florida bands participating will include those from Leon High School, Wewahitchka, Bonifay, Cross City, Fonce de Leon, Quincy, Monticello, Live Oak, Chattahoochee and Apalachicola.

Also present will be bands from Milton, Tallahassee, Quincy, Perry, Havana, Port Walton, Chipley and Bonifay.

The Thomasville and Bainbridge, Georgia, bands will also be present.

The first FSU Band Day is under the direction of Dr. Howard Danford, Director of Athletics, and Dr. Karl Kuerstainer, Dean of the School of Music. Darwin Smith is serving as Coordinator of Band Day Activities.

Traffic Court's First 30 Cases Slated Tomorrow

A meeting of the Traffic court committee will be held at 8 p.m. in the University honor court chamber tomorrow night, Cecil Combs will be tried. This announcement was made by George Gnann, traffic court chairman.

Also on the traffic court are Arden Eubanks, Charlie Milford, Ola Hinson and Jim Sandspur.

TOMORROW is the deadline for students to be tried at 8 p.m. in the University honor court chamber tomorrow night, Gnann said. It is a violation of the traffic-safety code for students have not registration stickers on their cars.

Gnann has announced that after tomorrow's deadline of officials be given a ticket for $5 plus entrance to prohibit any student car entering without a sticker.

The stickers may be obtained from Mr. Sam Gray, assistant to the 108 E Westcott.

STUDENTS WHO have questions concerning the traffic code contact University court members and their assistants at the Honor court office.

"It is imperative that students understand and support the traffic-safety code," Gnann said. The city of Tallahassee has assured the University administration that city officials will be placed on campus if the students abide by the regulations and prove capable of insuring their own safety.

Morrison Announces Reporters' Meeting

A compulsory meeting of all reporters will be held this afternoon in the Flambeau office at 5 p. m., Hazel Morrison, news editor, has announced.

The news editor asked that reporters seeking on the Friday edition observe the Wednesday noon deadline for all copy. "We cannot overemphasize the importance of deadlines," she said. Deadline for Tuesday's copy is Saturday noon, Hazel also added.

Armistice Day Shuts Down FSU's Morning Classes

CHAIRMEN DISCUSS DRIVE. Chairman Robert Griffin, right, and Co-Chairman John Adams, left, go over plans for the Omicron Delta Kappa blood bank drive now in progress. ODK is sponsoring the drive along with the Red Cross for the wounded soldiers in Korea.

Captains for Blood Donor Program Meet

Every campus organization that has pledged blood to the Omicron Delta Kappa-Red Cross blood drive is requested to send representatives to a meeting this afternoon at 4 in the Longmire auditorium, second floor Alumni building.

Captains from each campus organization will be selected at this meeting. These blood drive captains will be responsible for a certain number of persons in the group they represent. It will be their duty to see that blood donors from their group show up at the proper time, and that their group gets all information on the drive.

MIMEOGRAPHED information sheets have been sent to every campus sorority, fraternity, student government group and club.

It will answer such questions as: Who can give blood? How long does it take? Does it hurt? How can I be sure I have a pint of blood to spare? What happens to my blood after it is prepared? What if I am asked to give blood at a time when I have a class? and how can I pledge blood?

A CONTEST is being run to see which local sorority will achieve the greatest percentage donation to the blood drive first. The results will be announced in Friday's Flambeau.

John Adams, co-chairman of the drive, has selected the slogan, "Give Blood Now" as the Program for the weekend. It is hoped that the drive will be over the pressment will be released in Friday's Flambeau also.

STUNTS CAN pledge blood by contacting either ODK Chairman Bob Griffin, or co-Chairman John Adams, in care of the Florida Flambeau office and signing a pledge card.

"It is important," stressed Griffin, "that all girls under 21 years of age have written parents permission to contribute. It is imperative, if members of your group fall into this age bracket they write home immediately and obtain permission."

Director Calls Sandspur Meet

Bill Backus, Sandspur producer, has announced a meeting of all Sandspur personnel tonight at 7 in 303 Westcott.

Backus said that this year's show is still in need of more stage crew members.

THE PRODUCERS noted that the cast at present is rehearsing songs and that the set designs are near completion. Actual rehearsals do not begin until Jan. 3, he said.

"I personally guarantee this year's Sandspur will be nothing like Florida State University has seen before," stated Backus. The dances and songs fit into the plot carrying out a burlesque on life as the play takes place on a college campus."

ACTUAL rehearsals of this year's show will not begin until Jan. 3, the producer added.

Because of a limited seating capacity this year, it is probable that the Sandspur performance will have a five night run Backus said.

Admission this year will be 75 cents including tax. This is a ten-cent raise over last year's price.

This year we are faced with a dance problem. The question will be presented to the students soon for the only solution upon which we can agree is that we do away with its annual dance the producer said.

Local Churches Hold Services Sunday to Commemorate Day

Morning classes will be dismissed and offices closed on Monday, Nov. 12, in observance of Armistice Day, President Doak S. Campbell has announced.

Exat campus classes will resume at 1 p.m. and West campus classes at 1:30 p.m. Monday. Academic activities and other business will be resumed Monday afternoon.

THE FREE MORNING will allow many faculty and staff members to participate in the American Legion Armistice day program.

Since Armistice day comes on Sunday this year, the main schedule of events falls on Monday. The Tallahassee churches, however will hold special services on Sunday and all Lecignaires are urged to attend.

The program Monday will start with a breakfast at the Legion home on Lake Ella at 6:30 a.m. All veterans are asked to attend. At 8:15, Major General Bryant and Mr. L. O. Boatright will address a group at the courthouse.

THE PARADE will form in front of the Floridan Hotel at 10:15' The Florida State University ROTC band, the city high school band and the 120 place Post M. band will join the Legionnaires.

A program will be held after the parade in the courthouse square with music afforded by the bands, Mary Day, soprano soloist with the Liberty choral group, a 30 men chorus from Florida A. and M. and Senator Spessard Holland.

MR. BOATNER will speak to the Legion at 2 p.m. and Mr. Frank J. Falsone, state department commander, will speak on "Why I Came to Tallahassee Today."

An open house will be held at the Legion home on Lake Ella at 1 p.m. Monday.

Remaining the Armistice Day celebrations will be the Armistice Day Military ball at 8 p.m. The place of the ball is set for the American Legion home. An autoclave will be given away on tickets to the dance.

Especially related to the day's festivities are the veterans. They are asked to attend the breakfast, the parade, to the open house and to be at the open house at the Legion home.

CAPACITY AUDIENCES VIEW PLAY

Comedy Closes After Four Day Run

By CAROL BESSE

"You Can't Take It With You" will play its final performance tonight in the Carnell theater after scoring with capacity audiences the last three nights of the performances.

Since its premiere more than 10 years ago this play has been delighting audiences everywhere, although there are some weak moments in it.

THE FIRST ACT is slow but it is the usual theater setting than in the playing. The love story between Alice Sycamore and Tony Kirby is painful and the actors do little to spare the audience. However the weak spots are redeemed by the plaring of the cast as a whole.

Penny Sycamore, as Penny Sycamore, has a beautifully sustained performance throughout. Her interpretation of a flutfery matron is captivating, and she does much to hold the play together.

GRANDPA, played by Roger Busfield, is especially effective in the final act when the turning point of the play rests on his discovery. There Mr. Busfield dominates the scenes which bring the play to a happy end.

There are several bright characters particularly among the brightest Robert Ducker, Donald Simmons and Kenneth Marsh.

Mr. Ducker as Boris Kolenkov, the Russian ballet teacher, plays with a humorous and tender-ness which delights the audience. He provides some of the most humorous moments with his remarks on Russia and Russians in general.

DONALD REMINGTON, as Mr. DePinna, is essential fine in the details of his characterization. He holds a small part into a funny caricature by injecting humorous mannerisms into the mild little man who wondered into the Sycamore household 8 years ago and just stayed.

Kenneth Martin plays Paul Sycamore with the right touch of acting. His is one of the smaller roles which consist mostly of standing around and looking bored. Also bored, which Mr. Martin plays magnificently. His character portrization helps to keep the whole play running smoothly.

ALSO OUTSTANDING in their roles are Libby Mauch, Lee K. Williams, Jayne Gardner, Ines-Nell Roman Beagle-Lambert, Marjorie McDaniel, Bill Tebo, Lockey Von, Blair Hennessey, Carolyn Brim, George Sims, Jack Hopkins and Tom Crichton also acquitted.

The time and costumes provide a suitable atmosphere for the eccentric Sycamore family.

Compared to Flaming 20's We Are But A Wee Flicker

With ample advance publicity, Time magazine released their correspondents' appraisal of what our generation is thinking and saying about itself, its country and its future.

"The most startling fact about the younger generation is its silence. With some rare exceptions, youth is nowhere near the rostrum. By comparison with the Flaming Youth of their fathers and mothers, today's younger generation (18-28) is a still, small flame," said Time.

We do believe this is a fact, but not a startling fact in that the strange silence is unrecognized. Two articles appearing in the New York Times last May reported after a survey of seventy-two major colleges in the United States that a "subtle creeping paralysis of freedom of thought and speech . . . especially in an area traditionally reserved for free exploration of knowledge and truth has entered the college campuses."

Generally, youth feel that their elders have failed to inspire . . . youth are as conventional as their parents. As Time said: "Youth's ambitions have shrunk . . . they fear depression . . . they want a moderate good job and . . . security. They want to be "well-fixed."

There is a feeling that it is neither desirable nor practical to do things that are different from what the next fellow is doing.

Said a girl in Minneapolis: "The individual is almost dead today, but young people are unaware of it."

On this campus any student (or faculty member) that advocates socialism, anti-segregation, preparation for marriage, students' rights . . . et al, is severely reprimanded or criticized. The Tom Paine of 200 years ago is still radical today.

If fear is the mother of foresight we have a fear of the increasing passiveness in this country. It is a strange feeling, as if no frontiers are left to conquer. Lack of school spirit has always existed on the college campus, but never before has there been such a lacking growth and flourish of the drive.

"The only freedom worth possessing is that which gives enlargement to a people's energy, intellect and virtues.

"Progress, the growth of intelligence and power, is the end and boon of liberty; and, without this, a people may have the name, but want the substance and spirit of freedom." Channing has this to say about freedom.

Today as men die for the freedom they protect, let us well be aware of our ideals. Though we never reach our ideals, the thought of them gives some of us on to higher and better things.

This conventionalism and gregariousness, of the Younger Generation which Time has pointed out. Has warning. While involved with the external threat of Russian Slavery let us not forget this second threat—passiveness towards our basic freedoms.

We thank Time for the warning.

● NO EASY ANSWER

Women's Senate is going to take a poll on the question of whether or not our co-eds should be allowed to drink. We think this is a question which should be discussed and debated widely, for it is a question that admits no easy or formal answer.

Those who are against it usually center their arguments around one or more of the following points:

(1) Alcoholic drinks are evil, i. e., morally wrong in themselves. Therefore anyone who indulges in them is morally wrong.

(2) Too many of our co-eds are immature and would not be able to make a rational choice as to whether or not to drink, or how much to drink.

(3) If the girls are too immature to take care of themselves, and make a rational adjustment to this new liberty, the following evils maye be expected:

(a) School license because of lowered inhibitions.

(b) Unladylike behavior: staggering, unmannerliness, etc.

(4) Our academic standards would sink even lower, due to the multiplied number of "mornings after." Even more than now, the value of college would be seen in "having a good time," rather than getting an education.

(5) There will be no place you could draw the line; if you set it as "conduct unbecoming a lady," what does that mean these days?

(6) We would have our enrollment cut, as many of the mothers and fathers send their daughters here because they know drinking is not allowed.

Are these all valid points? Are those which perhaps are valid outweighed by other considerations? We urge you again to discuss this among yourselves—It is an important question.

● ARE YOU BEHIND?

At 12 o'clock noon on July 24, 1950, Lieutenant William Brockmeier was lying on a stretcher at an aid station of the Korean front.

He was waiting there to die.

But he didn't die. And here, Bill Brockmeier tells you why:

"I couldn't see very well when I first opened by eyes. Then the mist cleared, and I saw the chaplain bending over me.

"Then I knew I had heard a voice: 'There's no more plasma' . . . So this is how it is. Well, here goes Brockmeier.

"I tried to remember what happened.

"Oh, yes . . . we were halfway up the hill. My platoon had been ordered to stall the Reds while a new U. S. regiment dug in.

"No the Reds had us pinned down. There were fewer of my guys with me. Bro . . .

"There was a lull. I crawled up to the ridge of a little gully to look around.

"Then I got a red-hot jab in my belly and my legs caved in. I blacked out. That's all I remember until I saw the chaplain.

"Just as things were getting dark again, I felt a jab in my arm. I looked up. There was a medic, holding a bottle of plasma.

"Later at the hospital I found out how lucky I was. The sniper's bullet had gone clear through my stomach and nicked my spine. When they got me to the aid station I was paralyzed and bleeding to death.

"But at that moment a new batch of plasma came into the station. It saved my life."

o o o

It may be your blood that will be saving the lives it is near future. With the ODK-Red Cross blood drive in full swing, campus organizations are rapidly falling in line with this service to their country and their university.

● MAKE IT WORK

Tomorrow will mark the beginning of the activity of the student traffic court. For almost six months members of the UGA have labored long and patiently to set up the court.

Now it is ready. The months of work have not been in vain. The student government officers have had the full cooperation of the administration and faculty.

Tomorrow the student body will begin to handle the traffic affairs on the campus. The students will make the rules and regulations governing traffic—and the students will enforce those laws.

The last Legislature passed an act providing that all campus traffic violations should be handled by the local town police department. Recently, Judge Julian Alford, city judge of Tallahassee has ruled that the students may operate their own traffic court and that their decisions will be final—so long as the court is run in the right manner.

If the students prove to the city officials that they cannot handle their own affairs in a mature adult way—they will lose the chance to have a traffic court.

The decision rests fully with us. Student rights and student government stands on what happens in the traffic court in the next few months.

● WORKERS ARISE!

The workers will rise again!

Today (tomorrow) will go to the polls to elect their representatives in student government.

Most of the candidates are running on a platform of trying to inject some school spirit in the freshman class. So far the class as an organized unit has been non-existant. This was proven hv the turnout to the two ODK political rallies.

The frosh are dead.

In fact, this freshman class has been the least spirited, most apathetic since FSCW went co-educational five years ago.

When the present seniors were frosh a record spelling of 300 votes voted for their class officers in the primaries. And there weren't as many freshmen on campus either.

If the present freshman class officers want records to beat, try equaling the records the class of '52 made when they were in the beanie stage. It will take some work.

And speaking of work . . . this would be an excellent criteria for judging those who will vote on today. Make your nominees promise to work (in senate), work (on class projects) and work (to better the class).

The workers will rise again!

HEAD LINES

NEW VALUES NEEDED FOR OLD SPIRIT

By ALLEN HEAD

This may be a "voice crying in the wilderness" or a valid statement when "the time is out of John." I don't know. Or maybe I am simply maladjusted, and should consult the nearest psychologist.

But somehow it amazes me that we should be concentrating with such enthusiasm upon the task of turning our system of higher education into a vast three-ring circus. Symbolically, we have forgotten the emblem of our university: three torches standing for Truth, Art and Virtue, and have put in its place the ubiquitous "Sammy Seminole."

Let me make myself clear: I'm in favor of drinking, smoking, card playing, dancing, football games and sex. Particularly the last. But is "raising hell" the one and single goal of college life?

Is the worth of a university measured in terms of the number of bottles emptied, or the number of girls ruined by its paid gladiators? And is therefore the only way to gain school spirit to encourage your fellow students to indulge in mass hysteria at "Pep Rallys," and be ready to fight for the "honor" of their football team?

With the kind of schooling our School of Education majors are giving the grammar and high school kids, it is little wonder that when they his colleges they are hopelessly immature and ignorant. But that is no excuse for higher education to further the process. That way, we merely end up with the Generation of Vipers degenerating the vipers.

Leave me not think that we have to go back to the monastery, or be getting up at 6:00 a.m. and to bed at 8:00 p.m. Let's just face the facts. Let's realize that truth is something seldom found in "True Love Romances," comic books, or newspapers; that art has not ended with the age of the Esquire girl; and that sexual virtue is something a helava lot more than the "Hymenland Fiction we have today.

The relationships between the opposite sexes have turned into a big game, with everyone out for what he or she can get. Cynicism, boasting of conquests and a pseudo-sophisticated air mark the average student. If you get hurt, it's just because you didn't play the game right. "Shafts before you get shafted."

We should have a University Recreation Director; take the important function out from under the Dean of Men's and Women's Offices. We should have a solid and balanced Artist Series Program—one the student body would enjoy. We should encourage programs like the recent International Debate; bring in controversial speakers of all shades of opinion. We should stand up for the right of faculty members to express their opinions freely without fear of dismissal.

We should base our school spirit on the firm and enduring values of our university, social, cultural and educational. It's harder, but it pays off in the long run.

SEMINOLE SCENES

RAIN-SOAKED FAIR HAS STRONG LURE

By FRANCES CAWTHON

What is it about a fair that will magnetically draw you in even the foulest weather?

In a cold, blowing rain Friday night, we went to ah and oh over some squealing, dirty pigs, mammoth cows and other livestock hoek. I think even the chickens would have had better sense to stay home in such weather but they had a choice about the matter.

After touring the livestock section and wondering why the meat we eat did not look like it came on creatures such as they had there, we headed for the other exhibits.

The lure of getting something for nothing had us all signing our names at a dozen booths for free prizes. All we ended up with was writer's cramps and a terrific headache. We never sat how much a block of ice, set in Woolsthen, had melted since last Tuesday.

Florida State University had a booth, too. Records blared out our school songs, and there were pictures of the different phases of university life. Some College Joe showed a gigantic smile as he told about so make a detailed study of it. Somebody said he was in the picture. Boy, what vanity there is!

It was so cold out there in that steady rain that when we got a cup af coffee, we swam around in it for a couple of times just to get warm.

We not only were content to wander around and get soaked looking at everything. We thought there must be a quicker way to get wet, so we went on the ride. Moral of the story: Keep your mouth closed or else you drown.

I really think the owners of those candied apple places have a deal on with the dentists. I was determined I was not in my life as I did trying to eat one af those things. They have one advantage. When a person's teeth are all stuck together they cannot talk. First time I've heard some people quiet since I met them.

Things are kind of slow at a fair like that when there is so much rain. But people have the gift of enjoying themselves even in the worst of situations. Getting a little liquor in one way; reading all the free literature is another. Some college kids—nameless out of respect to their intelligence—sat in front of an empty little movie screen for about an hour.

They appeared very intently interested in the "program," even looking in the "empty spots." At times quite a crowd got wet, so that's going on.

What are they shoving here?" they asked. Some sat down and waited for the show to begin again, and others put their head around to look at the screen, and once in a while a look at the Seminoles with frowns on their faces. Ah, youth. It was a crazy, but is can have fun even at a rain-soaked dreary fair.

Dr. Martin Speaks At Prof. Meeting

Dr. Albert B. Martin, vice-president of Florida State University, will be the main speaker at the November meeting of the American Association of University Professors of Florida, to be held this week by Dr. William C. Kirk, president of the local chapter of the organization. The meeting will be held in the Longmire auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 13.

Dr. Martin came to Florida State University the past summer and has addressed numerous conventions since his arrival. He is a graduate of Southwestern University and the University of Texas.

The local chapter of AAUP is making the November meeting an open session so that all members of the faculty will have an opportunity to hear Dr. Martin.

Medical Dean To Be On Campus Friday

Dr. Robert I. Watson, dean of the Admissions Committee of Washington University's Medical school, will be on campus Friday to speak to pre-medical students.

Students interested in talking to him may make an appointment through Dr. J. Paul Reynolds.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-medical honorary society, will sponsor a tea for Dr. Watson at 7:30 in the second floor lounge of the Alumni building.

Youths From Fifteen Nations Discuss Union of Europe

In the Homecoming Flambeau editorial it was predicted that in the year 2051, students will exchange ideas across the world as they do between close campuses in a medieval museum in Bedlam, youths from 15 European nations are tackling the problem of uniting Europe. The name of this unique experiment in international education is the College of Europe.

THE GROUP of 35 students from all parts of the continent are taking practical steps to transform an unsteady group of small countries into a "solid bulwark of democracy."

To 21-year-old Peter Dodd of Seattle, an American who attended the college as an observer, his eight months there were a "fascinating experience with Europe in miniature."

Dodd expresses that the student's approach to the complex problems of European unity was free of what he calls "fuzzy idealism."

TO SUPPORT this, the youth edited the college's practical goal of giving a European training to those who may soon have to take the lead in efforts to unite a score of countries in spite of age-old traditions. Right now, for example, he pointed out, the Marshall Plan, Point Four Army under Eisenhower, and the Schuman Plan for intergrating French and German coal production need personnel who, as Dodd says, have "more than a national consciousness."

As the work continues in replacing prejudice, economic and cultural barriers, with international cooperation, a broad point of view will be even more essential in the opinion of the directors and founders of the college.

SINCE ALL the students have been warned to temper their national loyalties for their dream of solving country lines have broken out at the college. Dodd recalls, however, that it took several months for the Germans and French to overcome their tradition of enmity.

"We all learned the way you do things at home isn't the only way," he says. "And even if we didn't always agree with each other, we at least came to understand different points of view."

Poetically Yours . . .

Pat Hebert's poem in the last issue created such a stir, much more than that engendered by one D.P., that we've asked for another mind-fels moment.

THE DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY
By Pat Hebert

He speaks of Elliot and all the men who turned to follow things;
that is not enough:
the climates of mind and the art are not essential only what is real is good: what eyes can see what hands can touch like leaves upon each other what sars can hear.
If this were true it would be measured carefully and timed without emotion:
It would be simple.

Schmidt Oversteps

Dear Editor:

We are all in favor of the good neighbor policy and we are glad that Stan Schmidt and others enjoyed hearing the Britishers speak.

However, we also believe that charity begins at home; and a collection such as the one Stan Schmidt wrote in Friday's Flambeau showed no appreciation of the merits of the Britishers on Tuesday night. He was capable of judging neither the amount nor the quality of the work that the P.S.U. team put into the debate or he would have been less quick to sit back and compose ludicrous figures of speech criticizing their delivery and arguments.

The arguments presented by Bill Carmack and Hulser Eimers were excellently thought out and well expressed. Their logic was not above the audience level, although it didn't get across to Mr. Schmidt. And their sense of humor was far from "Pie-throwing slapstick." Our boys may not have had an English accent to thrill the public into accepting whatever they said, but they did have to read their "sophisticated satire" from note cards in front of them.

We agree with Mr. Schmidt that P.S.U.'s remark about Britishers again digging deep into the American pocket was uncalled for, but that in no way erases the fact that his Friday column was an unkind and worthless evaluation of two very interesting and well-prepared speakers.

Another thing we would like to point out is that the headline and caption under the picture that went with your front page article ("British debaters win audience and "Victors and vanquished") were both misleading. The Cleafords boys did not "win the debate" by an audience vote. The ballots taken up at the close of the question period represented how the audience felt on the question "Should we outlaw the Communist party?", not which team did the better debating.

Sincerely,
Beverly Lacey,
Janice Arbegast.

Because of you - - -

Dear Editor:

We, the students of the FSU demonstration school, wish to extend our sincere thanks to Florida State University's band for their beauty applause at the game and peat them in the North Florida Fair parade last Tuesday.

Due to the long wait for the parade to begin, the hot, tiresome and slapstick." Our boys may not walk up Monroe street, and the have had an English accent to thrill the public into accepting last school to march, our music whatever they said, but they was pretty low as we neared the did have to read their "sophis- County Court house.

No one will ever know gratefull we were when the Marine Chief's applauded and remarked, "That's our school!"

It could be seen how proud we were by the lilt of our heads, the spring in our steps, and the rise in our laughter.

Thanks

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

The world is going to hell.

There are discouragingly few things about life and people I'm sure of . . . these are some of them.

Individualism is on its last legs. People don't slip into conformity, they jump into the mold. Gone are the days when each man had an individuality of his own set of values by which he lived. Values are packaged items rotten from billboards (passed at 60 miles per hour), from movies (with popcorn sticking to your fingers), from headlines and picture articles (Life brings you the picture story of Mr. R. C. Jones being divested of a particularly colorful set of sailstones!).

Normal people are bores.

The most neurotic people I know are far and away the most interesting.

They occasionally have an idea or two not wholly approved of by the Lions and the Library Committee for the Suppression of Degradent Literature.

Their ideas are summed up by the observation that they cheer villains and throw blintzes at heroes. They rarely do things they don't want to. Their vocabularies are spiced with foul expressions and by word and deed do they celebrate bestial urges and the blinde By Jaycee standards they are a misbegotten crew of misfits.

The conformists and bleeding hearts are sure are little throwers are trying to help, too.

But that's the way I want to go. . . .

Flutist and Pianist To Give Duo-Recital

Friday evening, Bertil Boer, flutist will present a duo-recital with John Boda, pianist, in the music hall. The program, scheduled for 8:15 p.m. will be open to the public.

Prof. Boer received his musical training at the Royal Academy of Music in Stockholm, Sweden and at George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn. He has been flute soloist with twelve major Scandinavian orchestras, and guest conductor of six orchestras in Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

A composer as well as an concert flutist and conductor, Mr. Boer has written works for orchestra, band and chorus. His incidental music for the three-act play The King was broadcast over the Swedish network, and an oratorio for solo voice, chorus and orchestra has been performed in Stockholm.

He will include one of his own compositions, Impromptu Pastorale on his program next Friday. Other works on the recital will be Suite in An Ancient Style by Emil Kronke, Concerto in G Major by Mozart, Pastevale Suite by Gunnar de Frumerie, and Sonata Pastorale by Cyril Scott.

Marine Officers To Come to FSU

Captain James W. Donnell, U. S. Marine Corps, will visit Florida State University on the campus for a reconnaissance and "get acquainted" visit.

Captain Donnell and Staff Sergeant Howard P McGriff will be here to explain Marine Corps Officer Training programs to college officials and arrange for a future visit in 1952.

College undergraduates have an opportunity to enroll in the Platoon Leaders Class of the Corps while attending an uninterrupted four-year college course. A similar Officer Candidate Course is available for college seniors and graduates.

Students desiring information may contact Captain Donnell at the Office of Officer Procurement: Headquarters, Southeastern Recruiting Division, Building 43, U. S. Naval Air Station, Atlanta, Ga.

Leeper to Address ICD Forum Tonight

Mary Leeper will speak at the first forum of the Interdivisional Child Development Forum tonight at 8 in the Science auditorium.

Miss Leeper is executive secretary of the Association for Childhood Education International. She will speak on the present status of child study programs here and abroad.

Silver Loving Cup To Be Awarded Home Ec Soph

A silver loving cup will be presented to the sophomore enrolled in the School of Home Economics with the highest scholastic average for her freshman year November 6.

The award will be given at the Omicron Nu, Home Economics honorary tea at 7:45 in the Longwood lounge.

A second award will be made to the senior in the School of Home Economics who has maintained the highest scholastic average during her previous three years. This award is made possible by the Borden Milk Company.

New members will be initiated at the Tuesday meeting. All home economics majors who made the dean's list in the second semester of 1951 or during the summer session will be honored.

Last year, Miss Anne Witherspoon who had an average of 2.74, received the senior award of $200. Miss Mary Helen Speed was presented the sophomore award for the highest average during her freshman year. Mary Helen had a 2.66 average.

Films to be Shown By Hobby Shop

The Hobby Shop will present a series of films on arts, metal work and leathercraft in the West Campus Student Union, beginning Nov. 13 at 8 p. m. It is open to the public.

"Art of Leather Carving" is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 12, "Leather Work" to be shown on Nov. 26, "Copper and Silver," Dec. 3 and "Leather Modeling," Dec. 10.

The Hobby Shop still has a small supply of currently unavailable copper, brass and aluminum for art metal projects. Many types of leather may be obtained at present and an order of rawhide and unusual leathers is on the way.

There is no charge for use of the Hobby Shop and students may bring their own materials. Instruction is available during shop hours, Monday through Thursday, 7 to 10.

The majors present were Dottie Templeton, Buddy Moody, Jo-die Castellan, Joan Oward, Sadie Prenell, Elaine Chapman, Doris Partin, Mary Ann Bachelor, Myrt Herndon, Pat Gerdeman, Betty Sue Barber, Frannie Pully, Bootsie Para, Betty Ann Haynes, Hink Cobb, Betty Cooper, Sally Maynard, Anna Athanasson, Mac McWilliams, Milk Mink, Joanne Young, Betty Ann Theobald, Barbara Collinsworth, and Pat Pinchea, a former F. S. U. student now teaching in Crawford high school.

NEW FSU TARPON 'MINNOWS'—This group of Florida State University coeds have been admitted into membership of the famed Tarpon Club as "Minnows" after demonstrating their ability in swimming and water showmanship. They were selected by the club members from nearly 50 girl swimmers in the tryouts and will have a special act of their own at the semi-annual Tarpon Club water show Dec. 12-15. Left to right in the front row of the "T" the girls have formed here are Jean Riggell, club vice president; Mary Hope Fuller, Nancy Cavanagh, and Dottie Jirotz. The line of girls from the front to the rear are Anita Richardson, Harlen Maida, Betty Lou Wharton, Pat Slater, Pat Lorimier, Pat Comer, and Ardis Eastland. Miss Lou Skoka, also a new Tarpon Club "Minnow" was not present when this picture was made. The FSU Tarpon Club has gained national fame through its semi-annual water shows and has appeared in several major cities as well as being the subject of movie shorts.

Cavaliers Gain Fine Reputation

The Cavaliers, a group of Florida State men who have gained the reputation of being the best dancers on campus, is far more than just an organization which rests on the glory of being a national dancing honorary.

These men have taken on more responsibility toward FSU than just that of looking "dashine" in their familiar black and white costumes, and awing on-lookers with their tricky steps at all the dances. In conjunction with Cotillian, women's dance honorary, they give valuable time every year in helping those students who do not know how to dance and putting a bit of polish on the steps of those who do.

NOT ONLY do the campus Kelleys and Astaires help those less gifted in foot-work, but for the past two years they have given the freshmen a welcoming dance. This year many upperclassmen, including the freshmen, enjoyed the annual Flay Night. Besides this event, the Cavaliers also sponsor a variety show with prizes going to the winners. The show was inaugurated last year as an all-school affair with the purpose of what the Cavliers hoped would be the promoting of better relations among the organizations and students on campus.

The Cavaliers also help the Cotillian in their tapping of new members. They themselves have a will hold tryouts for their organization in the next few weeks. They also are planning initiation, dances, parties and other social functions for the year. All male students are invited to attend the tryout periods which are held once each semester.

THE BETA chapter of this campus was established in 1947 and is the brother organization of the Cotillian. Taps are chosen on the basis of dancing ability, scholarship and personality.

Cosmo Cardone is president of the organization. Dave Pinson is vice president; Ted Bixler, secretary; Buddy Latham, corresponding secretary; Marty Sullivan, treasurer; Tom Edwards, sargeant-at-arms; Nick Pappas, social chairman, and Carlos Stone, publicity chairman. Jerry Thomas, graduate student, is national vice president of the Cavaliers. The National Cavalier convention in Florida will be held at Florida State the second semester of this year. Among the other social and business functions, the Beta chapter is planning a dinner dance. Members are expected to come from Gainesville, Miami and Rollins. The national Cavalier song was written by Doug Alley with music by Thomas Wright, both of Florida State.

Members of the Cavaliers comprise all barrnties of university life. Jim Arnold and Earl O'Neal, of the varsity football squad, are members, along with Joe and Carmen Regna, gymnastic stars. Last year the Cavaliers made up the dancing chorus in the Sandpaper production, and this year members have many positions from the leading role to back stage work.

Latest Features To Be in New Dorm

The new women's dormitory, which was designed by Guy Fulton and contracted by J. A. Jones, shows promise of being one of the best dormitories in the South.

The dormitory, towering 82 feet high, will have nine floors and accommodate 245 girls. On the ground floor new and welcome features will be: a hair dressing room with dryers, a laundry room which will have washing machines and ironing equipment, and a large recreation room.

A tea room, library, and elevator room will also be on the first floor. Each floor will have its own lounge, a balcony on the north side, and two baths. The seventh floor will have a sun deck.

The date the construction will be finished has not been announced yet.

Columbia Professor To Speak Thursday On Aptitude Tests

Chairman of the psychology department of Columbia University, Professor Henry E. Garrett, will speak Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Science auditorium. "Aptitudes; their meaning and measurement" is the topic of the evening.

SIGMA XI, departmental science club, is sponsoring the lecture.

Professor Garrett has won recognition for his contributions to the fields of statistics and the testing and measurement of human abilities. Recently his opinions and findings on these subjects were published in Time magazine.

A FORMER president of the American Psychological Association, Professor Garrett has taught at the University of Hawaii, University of New Mexico, University of Florida and the University of Southern California. He is also a member of the National Research Council, and one of the leading scientific men in the country.

His lecture here inaugurates a series of lectures that will be sponsored by Sigma Xi club.

Garnet and Gold Key To Hold Picnic Thurs.

Garnet and Gold Key will hold a picnic Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at the hockey field.

Mac Gautier, Garnet Key member, is in charge of box lunches to be served to members and guests.

Special guests will be Dr. and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell. Dr. and Mrs. D. Lincoln Canfield, Miss Ruth Pyeche, Miss Florence Tryon and Miss Dabney Adams.

Garnet Key members are making plans at present for a Torch Night program to be given Nov. 20.

U R C Sponsors Pause for Power

Howard Butt, Frank Boggs and Jack Hamm will begin their third "Pause for Power" service this morning at 7:30. The services are held in the Music hall auditorium until 7:50 a.m.

The three young Texas laymen arrived in Tallahassee Sunday morning and are here under the sponsorship of the University Religious Council.

WITH HOWARD BUTT as the primary speaker, Boggs, the singer, and Hamm the cartoonist, the three men will be at the First Baptist church each night this week beginning at 7:30 p.m. Climaxing the week's services will be the Youth Rally at Leon high school Saturday night.

Will Pennell, University Government Association president at Florida State University has said their "Pep Religious" services will stir the soul and mind of every student on campus.

HOWARD BUTT, the 24 year old layman and business executive addressed FSU students Monday morning accusingly. He said, "You today, live for merriment. Life is but a dream." His challenged them, "Dare to be different."

In a previous talk, he mentioned that Christians give up something for their Christ. "What do you give up?" he asked.

Butt also emphasized in a sermon before the overly crowded First Church Sunday that too many people today have a "What Cares" attitude. He mentioned that the trouble with today's generation is that they weep more over a hero in a downtown theater than over a lost soul in church. "We need weeping Christians," the 24 year old millionaire emphatically stated. "Not especially on the outside, but on the inside, feeling and caring for others."

ALSO TAKING an active part with the Texas trio this week, is Frank Boggs, also 24 years old and a bass soloist. Boggs has contributed a spiritual song contribution at each service.

Beginning Nov. 11, Boggs will begin as a soloist for the "Baptist Hour" on a coast to coast hookup.

THE THIRD member of the team is Jack Hamm, the "musical" artist who has presented some of his chalk talk already. Hamm supplies an approximate number of 206 newspapers around the world with his religious cartoons, including the Tallahassee Democrat.

Hamm teaches nine commercial art courses at Baylor University, and he has been commuting by air to Houston to run a chalk-talk television program which last week won a prize as the most entertaining TV show in the city.

Election is Held By Phys. Ed. Club

The newly organized Adapted Physical Education club held its first meeting last Thursday, publicity chairman, Ann Biltch, has announced.

Plans for the year were made and the election of officers took place, the publicity chairman said.

Newly elected officers include the president, Shirley Allen; secretary-treasurer, Mary A. Loutham; sports representative, Peggy Dame; publicity chairman, Ann Biltch; and club sponsor, Dr. Florence Cole of the physical education department.

The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 6 at 7:30 in the home of Dr. Cole on 903 West Jefferson. Members will meet in front of the East campus gymnasium where they will receive transportation to Dr. Cole's home.

Seminole Scout

Jim Couch

Florida State drum beaters, who have been clamoring for an FSU-Florida game can call in their insults towards the Gainesville school, for the day is at hand. When the fall semester started, the plans were almost in the final stages for the inauguration of the first Gator Bowl basketball tournament, to be played December 27, 28 and 29.

This will not be the first time the schools have met in interscholastic competition, as our respective football teams clashed back around the turn of the century; but, this may mean the beginning of overall participation between our two schools, a rivalry which would probably develop into the keenest in the state.

A Florida win seems almost assured, or so the Gator disciples in Tallahassee would have us believe. They have apparently skipped FSU practices which have been going on for a full month, and have missed seeing some sterling noopsters in electrifying pre-season drills. Although the basketballers are certainly not at their peak, they often show streaks of pure dead-eye wizardry and seem to be shaping up into another fast playing ball club. The Seminoles will have seven games under their belts before the tournament. They will have played Parris Island Marines, Culver-Stockton, Mississippi State, Mississippi Southern, Spring Hill, and University of the South.

This should give the Seminoles a chance to round into the form for the tourney, which will be a round-robin affair between FSU, University of Florida, Clemson University, and University of Georgia. Clemson has not yet accepted formally, but it is almost certain that the South Carolinians will accept shortly.

While basketball is still around the corner, we still have some mighty good football in store for us before the end of this season. Although the November 24 date is still vacant, officials are still hopeful that it will be filled by a sturdy opponent.

The Seminoles reportedly gave the Navy good cause to want to go to sea Saturday, when they sank them 39-0. Although Dick Turk came out leading the Seminole ground attack in the final statistics, and played a fine game, we hope none of the readers, that read last Friday's "Open Letter to Don Veiler," think that it was responsible in any way for the changes that took place in the Flier game. Other Seminoles, who received implications in the letter also saw commendable action, through no fault of the letter. The letter, here in several parts, was a little late, and although interesting, a bit trifle.

The Seminoles had little resistance in last Saturday's game, but will have to go all out to defeat the Wofford Terriers Saturday, in what will probably turn out to be the best game of the season as the Terriers won over Furman 14-12 to give them a season record of 6 wins and 3 losses, having lost to only Auburn and V.M.I.

Seminoles Sink Navy for 39 to 0 Win

Bobby Fivaish left; and Bob Tully, who saw plenty of action in the Seminole-Flier game, which FSU won 39-0. Fivaish was second to Dick Turk in the rushing department with 46 yards for the game.

Seminole Volleyball Squad Off For Match at Albany YMCA

The FSU volleyball squad left today for Albany, Georgia where they will participate in a clinic and match at the YMCA there. The FSU squad will demonstrate volleyball fundamentals for the members of the Albany Volleyball League at the beginning of their tournament. After the clinic, the Seminoles will meet the Albany YMCA in a best three out of five match.

Last year the Seminoles met the "Y" team here in Tallahassee and barely eked past them in the fifth and final game, 15-13. Albany had won the first game 15-1, but the Seminoles came back and won the next two in a row and finally the match.

THE SEMINOLES will have to stop the power spikes of O'Brien and the versatility of MacArthur if they expect to make a good showing against the more experienced Albany six.

Coach Odeneal has been trying various combinations in an effort to strengthen the defense, especially in blocking. The team has several men that should develop into top players with more experience under fire, a totally lacking aspect during their defeat last week to the strong Pensacola Navy. Odeneal said that he will start the following men and would probably so most of the way with them. They are Ronnie Hammock, Jim Clark, Howard Gould, Harry Bibee, James McFatter, and Bob Albertson.

FRATERNITY LEAGUE

Five games are scheduled in the first league for tonight. Sigma Alpha Epsilon meets Lambda Chi Alpha in the opener.

Phi Delta Theta goes against Phi Kappa Tau to try for their third victory in the 6:45 contest. At 7:30 Delta Tau Delta and Kappa Sigma collide in a fight to get out of the cellar in Section Two of the fist league.

In the 8:15 contest Alpha Tau Omega meets Sigma Phi Epsilon in a game that may prove to be a real thriller. Both teams are tied with four victories each to lead the standings in section one of the fist league.

In the closing game of the night Sigma Nu clashes with Phi Kappa Alpha. Both teams are looking for their second victory and the winner will take over third place in Section One.

Results of Thursday's basketball games in the Dormitory league:

In the first game Magnolia-A won its third game in Section One of the Dorm league to continue their lead. The game was won by forfeit 2-0. It was the third loss for the 396 quintet.

Senior Hall-A drew a forfeit also when the 397 upper five failed to appear on time. It was the second win for Senior Hall. To continue the habit of forfeits Senior Hall-B drew a forfeit from 396 Lower.

The fourth game ended the string of forfeits as R.O.T.C won their second victory by slamming 396 L- 27-12. Fagan led the way for the winners with 6 points.

In the nine o'clock contest Nugman Club lashed Magnolia-B, 32-13 for their second victory in section two. The N.C. attack was spearked by Gaber who threw in 11 points. It was the fourth loss for the Magnolia team.

The Men's F club will meet Thursday at 7:30 in the East Campus Women's gym. All members are asked to attend, President Jim Arnold said.

Turk-Thompson Top Runners Folsom To Campbell For 2 TD's

The FSU Seminoles had too much manpower for the Jacksonville Navy, as they struck through the air and over the ground to hand the Fliers a 39-0 setback before a small, thoroughly chilled crowd in the Gator Bowl Saturday.

The Seminoles scored their first touchdown in the first six minutes of play, pushed across two more in the second quarter, and added three in the final period, while holding the Fliers to three first downs and 120 yards rushing and passing for the day.

The victory was a costly one for the Seminoles as Nelson Italiano, currently offensive leader for the FSU squad, was injured early in the first period. It is believed that he has several cracked ribs and will be out for the remainder of the season.

THE ATTACK was not slowed up much by Italiano's injury as the Seminoles romped for 226 yards overland and 120 through the stratosphere. Dick Turk, Bobby Fivesh, Roy Thompson, and Mike Sellers accounted for most of the running distance, while Gary Folsom was behind early in a majority of the passing gains.

The first score came on a quick drive which covered 62 yards and was climaxed by Mike Sellers 25 yard sprint for paydirt, after Roy Thompson had brought the ball into Flier territory on his 40 yard gallop. Hussett's try was wide and the Seminoles were ahead 6-0 in the first six minutes.

The second score came right after the start of the second quarter when Curt Campbell intercepted a Navy pass and was downed on the Flier 23. Huey Thompson, Navy back moved the ball to the five on six plays, and then Turk drove through the center for the score. Hussett converted and the Seminoles were ahead 13-0.

THE THIRD SCORE came a few minutes later when Thompson, Navy hauled in a Flier pass on the Navy 45. After a five yard penalty against Navy, Turk passed to Campbell for nine, and on the next play Campbell raced into the end zone where Folsom bit him with a perfect strike for the score. Hussett again added and FSU led 20-0. This was the first half score.

After a scoreless third period, the Seminoles took over a bad Navy punt on the Flier 36 and in seven plays, featuring by runs of Fivesh, Sellers, and Turk, Turk dove over from the one-foot line to put the Seminoles out in front 26-0. Hussett's kick was wide.

The fifth score came a few minutes later after Tommy Brown had returned a Navy kick 20-yards to the Flier 45. Folsom passed to Campbell on the first play for the score. Then after the Seminoles held the Navy, Tarrell kicked to Brown on the FSU 43, and the amazing Mr. Brown sailed right back through the Sailor Squad for the final touchdown of the day. Hussett converted and FSU had its fifth victory of the present season.

The victory was highlighted by the play of John Karlowicz, Charley Brown, Jimmy Lee Taylor, Bill Driver, Ernie Navy, Curt Campbell, Roy Thompson, Tommy Brown, Bobby Fivesh, Gary Folsom and Dick Turk.

THIS WEEK the Seminoles face the powerful Wofford Terriers, who have lost only to VMI and Auburn. They have beaten the Tampa and Furman and promise to be a real test for the FSU eleven which has lost only to Miami.

Rain Postpones Intramural Games

The twelfth and thirteenth rounds of the volleyball tournament between sorority and dormitory and finals in horseshoes were postponed last Thursday and Friday, due to rain.

The tennis intramurals, also between sorority and dormitory, will begin this week according to Cynthia Mink, intramural chairman.

Jack Miles, National Ringt champion performing on the flying rings. The coming of Gymkana for the 1951 performance will be remembered by Jack for a very special reason, for while he was performing Wednesday night, his wife was being rushed to the hospital to await the stork's visit. Evidently the stork was watching the Gymkana show and was so dazzled by its brilliance that he quit late and didn't show up at the hospital until eight o'clock Thursday morning, and Jack was at her side. They are now the proud parents of a fine baby boy, and maybe they'll call it Gymkana?

Votes cast for vice president were Lilian Avis, 141; Mimi Patterson, 144 and Dot Cooke, 103.

Traffic Court Will Explain Regulations

An orientation period to familiarize the University student body, faculty and staff with new traffic regulations, effective Monday, November 12, is now in progress on the campus.

The FSU undergraduate students have elected to handle their own violations through a Student Traffic-Safety Court, headed by George Gnann, Jr., chairman.

TRAFFIC VIOLATION cases of FSU graduate students, faculty and staff members will be handled by the Tallahassee Municipal Court at the end of the warning period on Nov. 12. These cases will be handled in the same manner as traffic violations on city streets.

The new FSU traffic regulations require that all students and University employees parking their cars on the campus register the vehicles with Mr. Don Farquhar, University Business Manager, Office 108-A Westcott.

AS A MEANS of identification of the autos, stickers to be placed on car windows will be issued to the undergraduate and graduate students with a sticker of another shape being issued for cars belonging to faculty and staff.

The new traffic regulations provide that no parking will be permitted in the five unmarked walk and building entrances from the street and observance be given to "loading zones", "no parking" and "reserved space" all plainly marked on campus streets.

VEHICLES parked on the campus streets are to be parked parallel to the curb within 18 inches of the curb and within the white lines. The speed limit on all campus streets is 20 miles per hour and all "stop" and "slow" signs are to be observed. Faculty and Clothes modeled in the fashion show sequence include beach, afternoon and evening wear.

Play Try-Outs Set for Nov. 17

Preliminary try-outs for the second annual freshman play are set for Nov. 17 and 18 from 7 to 10 in the East campus women's gymnasium.

The freshman class, under the auspices of the department of speech, will present Stage Door, a comedy by Edner Perber and George S. Kaufman on Jan. 15 and 16.

The freshmen work as a class unit in producing the play. All casting, acting and production is handled by freshmen. The play is presented free of charge to the soldier body.

All freshmen are urged to attend try outs. There are 32 acting roles, 21 women's and 11 men's, and other positions open-working for secretary, costumes, lighting, stage construction, make-up and other crews.

Who's Who Deadline

Who's Who forms must be turned in by 5 p.m. today at the information desk, first floor, Allumni building, June Conyers, Chairman of the Who's Who committee, has announced. All seniors are asked to fill out the blanks.

TRULY A QUEEN is Miss Carolyn Hadden, crowned "Miss Gym-Kana" last Tuesday night by Florida State University Dean of Women Dean Doak S. Ciarke. Attendants are Betty Joanne Christenger, chosen for her beauty, and Fran Ann Richardson, chosen for poise.

Hadden Wins Contest For Gymkana Queen

Miss Carolyn Hadden, 18 year-old freshman sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority, was crowned Miss Gymkana of 1951 at the East campus gymnasium, Tuesday night.

Miss Hadden was costumed as Miss Priorities and her winning costume was a red velvet strapless suit with matching gloves.

The final Gymkana production scheduled for Tuesday night at the Woman's Club Pair was cancelled due to rain.

DR. HARTLEY PRICE, director announced that because of the great demand for student night performance dates have been set for November 13 and 14 at the East gymnasium. In order to schedule the performance, the Gymkana troupe's appearance at Thomasville, Georgia, has been postponed until November 20.

Students will be admitted for half price upon presenting their ID cards, reported Price.

President Doak S. Campbell crowned the new queen and also presented her a gold victory trophy in behalf of the gymnastic team.

RUNNERS-UP in the contest were Miss Polse, Francis Ann Richardson, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi, and Miss Beauty, Jean Chrisenger, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta.

Miss Richardson was costumed as an ice skater while Miss Christenger represented the baseball sport. Men's awards were presented the two attendants by the Florida State University president also.

Members of the honor court were also honored and received certificates for their appearance in the 1951 Gymkana.

THEME of this year's Gymkana show was "Playland, U. S. A." a trip with the Gymkana troupe through "the length and breadth of the nation." Climax of the show was the return to Tallyand Beach and the realization that "there's no place like home."

The pageant scene featured the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots in their production of (Miami Beach.

HIGHLIGHTING the cross-country tour was the Las Vegas, Nevada, number featuring the trampoline team, Dick Gulting, Lawrence Weston, Dick Ireland, and Pat Pierce; Bill Bentzman, and Gene Rabbitt versus Joe Regnone and Pat Bignonville in the horse contest; the calesthenic team with Gladys Tinkler and Connie Hebbler and Jack Mills on the flying rings.

The four performances attracted approximately 5,000 spectators. Due to unsatisfactory weather the show was cancelled Friday and Tuesday.

At the 9 p.m. intermission tonight at the speech congress dance the Gymkana team will present a short performance. Price reported yesterday. They will present trampoline, trampoline tumbling and triple hand balancing acts.

One-Act Play To Be Given

A Phoenix Too Frequent, a one-act comedy, will be presented next Monday and Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Conradi theater with free admission.

This is the first in a series of six experimental productions to be sponsored by the department of speech this year.

A LIMITED NUMBER of tickets are available to students free. All seats are reserved and application for tickets should be made at the theater box office Monday between 10 and 12 a.m. and 2 and 4 p.m. Any student who can't pick up tickets then, may contact Roger Busfield, speech instructor.

Due to the small number of tickets, each student may order no more than two.

THE EXPERIMENTAL series has been set up to bring top notch theater to Tallahassee and Florida State University," said Busfield. "The plays chosen are the best in current and established theatre which do not have the type of audience appeal to warrant a full scale production."

"The plays are chosen from the works of established writers and presenters to the theatre who merit public viewing," Busfield concluded.

THIS PLAY is a long one-act by Christopher Fry, English playwright. He has authored such Broadway successes as "The Lady Not For Burning."

The cast of three actors includes Robert Marsh, Dorothy Silver and Sandra Banks.

Sets for the play, which is laid in a tomb, are designed by Director Carl Zerke under the supervision of Technical Director Wyn Pate. The costumes are under the direction of Costumer Douglas Russell.

Sophomore Class Plans Open Hop

The sophomore class voted to hold an open formal hop for their annual dance at a meeting Wednesday in the Music Amphitheater, Coronado will be banned.

Fifty to seventy-five sophomores attended the meeting. President June Conyers introduced new officers. They are Pat Vines, vice president; Jean Campbell, secretary; Joyce Whildon, treasurer; Marcia Morris, parliamentarian; Jack Mills, senior, social chairman, and Dr. Ralph Dreger, class sponsor.

Joyce Whiddon, treasurer, reported a balance of about $600 on hand.

The president reminded the sophomores that any questions or suggestions that they may have should be directed to their class officers, and urged them to cooperate in helping to make the hop a success.

A hillbilly quartet composed of Elwood Parker, Freddie Griffin, Hewitt Chastain and Carol Green, was the featured entertainment.

'Blood for Korea' Drive Gets 100% Greek Support

Nearly 1,000 Pints Are Pledged as FSUers Respond With Grand Spirit and Cooperation

Nearly the 1000 mark for pints of blood pledged, the Omicron Delta Kappa "Blood For Korea" drive lurched forward at Florida State Wednesday when the entire Greek social population pledged 100 per cent support.

Initiated by the first response of Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternities and Zeta Tau Alpha and Delta Delta Delta social sororities, the number of pints pledged jumped from 350 pints last Tuesday to over 900 today.

IN THE WORDS of blood drive chairmen, Bob Griffin and John Adams, the sororities responded "with amazing spirit and cooperation" after a plea was issued early Monday.

The actual date of procurement will be the first week of December unless plans change at the final moment.

A second blood captain meeting has been called for Tuesday afternoon at 4 on the Longmire auditorium. Every group is to send one person for each eight that have pledged blood. These persons will be responsible to their group and will see that blood donors from their group show up at the proper time.

WAVING TO be the first sorority to vote 100 per cent support, Delta Delta Delta notified co-chairman, John Adams, that their group had voted unanimously to give blood next Tuesday morning.

On the heels of the Tri-Delts were the Chi Omegas. Zeta Tau Alpha had previously taken a vote at an earlier meeting and were partly responsible for launching the massive drive to donate blood.

ROBERT TULLY, vice - president of Inter-fraternity Council, notified blood drive chairman, Bob Griffin, that the Interfraternity council had agreed unanimously that every eligible fraternity member on campus would give one pint of blood.

Sororities to pledge 100 per cent listed in the order they responded. Delta Delta Delta, Zeta Tau Delta, Chi Omega, Sigma Kappa, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Alpha Omicron Pi, Kappa Alpha Theta, Alpha Gamma Delta, Delta Zeta and Florida Blue Key Sweethearts Omega and Alpha Delta Pi.

ONLY THREE sororities that have not notified of their participation are Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Xi Delta and Phi Sigma Sigma. However, all Pi Beta Phi members under 21 have written for parental permission. They did not hold a meeting Monday.

Previously, Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Phi Epsilon grabbed first place among fraternities in the spirited show of service by pledging 100 per cent.

ALL DORMITORIES will be contacted personally for their participation in the campus-wide drive.

All students under 21 years of age must have parental consent. This is in contradiction to previous information that only girls under 21 must have their parental permission.

Seniors Plan Celebration For Pres. Campbell

Senior Class Meeting Is Set for Monday In Alumni Auditorium

The senior class will meet Monday at 5 p. m. in the Alumni auditorium to discuss plans for President Campbell's birthday party.

The party is tentatively planned to include a dinner and a reception or party at his home. The class voted to sponsor the annual celebration at an October meeting.

DICK BRADLEY, senior class president, emphasized the importance of turning all Who's Who application blanks in by 5 p. m. today. He also announced that a local and/or national Who's Who or Hall of Fame will be established on this campus.

The Executive Council is working on ideas for this new conception of Who's Who. The new Who's Who will have higher standards and a more highly restricted membership, concluded Bradley.

Also under discussion will be the ordering of pictures which have been taken at investiture.

ALL SENIORS are requested to order their invitations at once. The deadline for February graduates is Jan. 4. Inserna may order by writing Jerry Wheeler at the University Bookstore.

Members of the senior class are asked to sign up for placement interviews in the Vocational Guidance Department.

Pre-Game Parade Starts at Noon; Features 20 Bands

A pre-football game parade featuring the twenty visiting bands will begin at 12 noon tomorrow at the foot of Adams street.

Highlight of the half-time events of the Florida State University-Wofford game tomorrow afternoon is the mass marching display of 1100 musicians from Florida and Georgia high schools.

THE TWENTY bands led by the Marching Chiefs will march on to the field and form a mammoth FSU while playing Showboy.

The formation will then converge to spell "FSU" and play Military Escort by John Philip Sousa. The display will end with the formation of "USA" and the playing of The Star Spangled Banner.

The twenty visiting bands represent Florida high schools. They are Leon, Niceville, Lake Butler, Cross City, Ponce de Leon, Greensboro, Crestview, Chattahoochee and Apalachicola.

ALSO PRESENT will be bands from Milton, Lake City, Perry, Quincy, Havana, Fort Walton, Wesley, and Bonifay.

The Thomasville and Bainbridge, Georgia, bands will also be represented.

IFC Plans Dance

The Inter-fraternity council is trying to obtain Woody Herman, Jenny Long or Ralph Flanagan for the annual IFC weekend dance, Bob Tully, IFC vice president, announced today.

New Quiz Program Starts Over WFSU; Features Students

"Number, Please," a new quiz program featuring students and guest, either faculty or students, will be inaugurated Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Neil Jacoby, program director of WFSU explained, "The new program resembles the old radio days of quines 'Twenty Questions' to a considerable degree, however it has the new twist of asking the contestants to identify subjects connected with certain numbers."

BILL BASS will emcee the program and Dr. Harold Richards, department of physics, is tentatively scheduled as the first guest participant.

Valuable prizes will be offered to each contestant donated by Tallahassee merchants. Prizes will range from a free meal to a shirt or a pair of shoes.

Students wishing to appear on the program may do so by leaving his name, address, and phone number in the WFSU box in lower Westcott.

"WE ARE looking forward to a lot of fun on this new show and sincerely urge all interested students to join in," concluded Jacoby.

A limited number of guests will be admitted to the studio at this time.

Special Tickets May Go to Profs

Bill for Reduced Seats In Stadium Is Pending

Florida State University faculty will receive special consideration at football games, if a University Senate resolution is approved.

At its regular meeting Tuesday, the group unanimously endorsed a plan presented by Senator Flynn providing for a special reserved section an dlower-priced ticket for the faculty. Chairman Jim Kirk agreed to take the matter to Red E. Sikes, business manager.

AT PRESENT the faculty buys regular tickets for the west stands of the stadium.

Also approved at the meeting was a resolution presented by Pancho Byrd, chairman of the Standing Rules committee, for the standardization of forms of Senate bills, resolutions, and constitutional amendments. The proposed forms were adopted unanimously after two minor changes were made. Each senator received a copy of the resolution.

PHIL SPRINGER, newly-elected freshman senator, introduced a motion that a senate committee be formed to investigate the allocation and use of the recreational funds of the Student activities fee.

Springer's motion was defeated 10-8. Voting in favor of the motion were senators Flynn, Meckstroth, Byrd, Summers, Drake, Saivers, Renick, and Springer.

Opposed to the resolution were senators Bushnell Kissmann, Speed, Curry, Myers, Carothers, Staton, Turano, Rich and Steinmeyer.

Absent was Nancy Smith.

Annual Session Now in Progress

High School Students Hold Forensic Congress

The annual Florida State High School Student Congress is being held at Florida State University this weekend.

Sponsored by the department of speech in cooperation with Leon high school, the Congress is composed of students who are members of the National Forensic League.

EACH SCHOOL will be entitled to seat two senators and varying numbers of representatives who will participate in the Student Congress. Four legislative sessions will be held.

The Congress got under way yesterday afternoon with registration of faculty sponsors and their delegates. Last night the group attended a rehearsal of A Phoenix Too Frequently, in the Conradi theater.

TODAY the groups will continue registering and hold their first three legislative sessions. They will have dinner in a Tallahassee restaurant and be guests at a dance in the West Campus Student union. During the intermission of the dance the FSU Gymkana will entertain.

Saturday the Congress will meet for its final session. There will be a Congress luncheon at noon in the Cafeteria room.

MEMBERS of the convention will be guests at the FSU-Wofford game in the Doak S. Campbell stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. Wayne N. Minnick, department of speech, will preside over the legislative sessions. Dr. C. W. Edney, head of the department of speech, and a member of the Florida Blue Key will welcome the students to the Congress.

Local Establishment Placed Off-Limits For FSU Students

A memorandum was issued to all men and women students by the Dean of Men's office that scholastic standings of students from Florida State Point is sufficient, and offenses committed at College Point have been reflected in court actions and newspaper reports.

It is further warned that the university reserves the right to ask students patronizing such establishments to withdraw from school. All students are being placed on their honor to observe these requests and stay away from College Point.

IT HAS ALSO been announced by Kathaine Warren, Dean of Women, that the Doyal Hotel on North Monroe Street will be open to students for dancing at their weekly dinner dances. The dancing is allowed on Friday nights until the close of the football season, and then on Saturday nights thereafter. Hours for women students will be determined by the University dormitory rules.

Pledging Climaxes 2nd Rush Season

Sorority pledging Thursday November 15, will climax the semi-formal rush season in progress since October 29.

The 16 national sororities have scheduled a series of three rush parties. Bid lists will be filled out early next Monday. Girls receiving bids will be notified by the Panhellenic office sometime Tuesday, November 13, through campus mail.

At this time they are to fill out preferential cards in the Panhellenic office, fourth floor of the Alumni Building.

Dawkins Issues Plea For Missing Wallets

Bill Dawkins has asked the person or persons who took wallets belonging to members of the football team from the field house Saturday to return them to lost and found office in the Alumni building, first floor.

"Many of the wallets contain valuable papers needed by their owners," he said.

Gav't. Committee Meeting November 13

The UCA Organizations Committee will hold its second meeting of the present school year next Tuesday, November 13, at 5 p.m. in room 403 of the Longmire Building. It has been announced by Margaret Earnest and Barbara Henry, co-chairmen.

All members are urged to attend as this will be a very important meeting.

ALL FAVORING THE MOTION say "aye" at a meeting of the Demonstration school student council. The representatives of each class receive practical experience in student government.

'Pause for Power' Services Concluded

The "Pause for Power" trio concluded their services at Florida State University this morning before an estimated number of 400 students.

The team, Howard Butt, Frank Boggs and Jack Hamm, appeared every morning from 7:20 to 7:50 in the Music auditorium and were sponsored by the University Religious Council.

SPEAKER. Howard Butt, built his sermon topics around personal experiences, turning humorous illustrations into sober reflections on Christianity.

Butt makes this comment concerning his college life. "Instead of hurting me, making a decision for Christ seemed to make students like me more."

Mr. Butt is married. His wife, Barbara Dan, who was a Baylor University beauty, met her husband while both were students there, and usually goes with him on long trips. This time she stayed and decorated their new home in Corpus Christi.

'TLL HAVE several 12 to 15 hour days when I get back home," Mr. Butt said. Nobody takes his place as vice-president and personnel supervisor of a large grocery store chain in Texas while he's away.

Jack Hamm, cartoonist, is also married. He left his wife, Doris, and four-year-old daughter in Waco already the artist on one Houston, Texas, television program, he does comic caricaturing. Hamm soon will appear on a second program on the same station doing religious cartooning.

THE ARTIST will return to Baylor University, Waco, to teach some commercial art courses.

Frank Boggs, singer, will sing on a national program, the Baptist Hour, for the next several weeks.

On Tuesday, during their Tallahassee stay, Mr. Butt and his two co-workers appeared on seven programs.

Girl Scout Officials To Come to Campus

Two Girl Scout national staff members will be in Room 202, Westcott, Nov. 19, to interview students and explain the opportunities offered in profession Girl Scout work.

Miss Dorothy E. Kirkpatrick, Dalton, Ga., and Miss Josephine Brayton, New York, will also conduct a vocational guidance forum in the clubroom of Longmire at 3 p. m.

Seniors Plan

has also sent out a request that all expectant graduates for this year, make out an application for a degree as soon as possible.

Senior class officers are Dick Bradley, president; Shirley Creasy, vice president; Eunice Barnes secretary; Bill Cornelius, treasurer; Eleanor Cooper, parliamentarian; and Karolyn Bardin, social chairman.

Traffic Court

reckless driving is strictly forbidden on the campus.

Also specified in the new traffic regulations is that traffic is not to be obstructed by cars stopping in the streets. Also that areas designated for faculty and staff will be strictly to those persons from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday.

THE AREA reserved for faculty and staff parking will be from Copeland Street west through the east side of the street in front of the freshman dormitories, including the parking area between the Longmire building and the Music Hall.

To expedite University essential services, it will be necessary to designate special parking spaces for service trucks and for dining hall administrative personnel.

The inner circle area, directly in front of the Westcott Building, to be reserved for University guests.

HALF TIME FUN—"Marching Chiefs," Florida State band, will lead half-time festivities at the first Band day to which over 1200 high school band students from North Florida will participate. They are shown in one of their unique designs.

First FSCW Dorm Completed in 1907

"Look, they've started building the roof on the new dorm."

"It won't be long now until it'll be finished. I'd like to have that room up there on the corner."

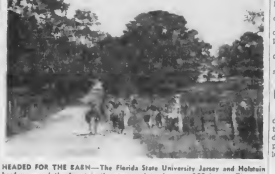
"You two freshmen will be able to live there, but I will have graduated by then. Twenty years from now when I send my daughters to college, they can live there."

THE THREE GIRLS stood with books under their arms, looking up as the half built dormitory visualizing their campus of the future. Their dresses were quite a bit shorter than Christian Dior approves, and their belts seemed to have slipped down around their hips. Their hair was bobbed. It was 1922 and the girls, students of Florida State College for Women, were watching the construction of a dormitory that was to be named Jennie Murphree in honor of the wife of the first president of the college.

As they walked away one of the girls exclaimed, "Do you know, it's going to house 308 girls—that's twice as many as either Bryan or Broward."

BRYAN HALL was the first dormitory built after Florida State College became FSCW in 1905. Completed in 1907, it was dedicated to Sen W. J. Bryan.

Reynolds hall was the next to be built in 1912. It was named for Mrs. William Reynolds, wife of the state comptroller of 1897 to 1901. In 1918 the building was enlarged.



In 1917, despite war worries Florida still looked ahead, and another dormitory was built. It was named in honor of ex-Governor Sidney J. Catts.

The depression came, the girls who had watched the building of Jennie Murphree hall, wondered if the time was "nare the world for democracy," and it seems in congruence with that theme that the college sought to honor a man who, before his term as governor had sailed eight times through Spanish blockades to help Cuba win independence.

Another ex-governor was honored in 1926 when Gilchrist hall was completed. A. W. Gilchrist, the twentieth governor of Florida, served from 1909 to 1913.

THEN CURRENT catalogues described Gilchrist hall in glowing terms: with stately foyer" and "furnished throughout with furniture of the most commodious type."

Today, students take as much pride and interest in their growing University as they did in 1922, and girls with books tucked under their arms exclaim, "Look they've started building the roof on the new dorm."

HEADED FOR THE EARN—The Florida State University Jersey and Mahrain herd is one of the finest in the state and totals some 325 head. The university dairy now milks 130 dairy and will increase that number 45 by mid-winter. Murrell Futch, dairy superintendent, says. Here a portion of the herd head for the milk barn at 2:30 in the afternoon, prior to their 3 p.m. milking engagement. (Democrat Photo).

Service Frat Plans Rushing For Next Week

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will hold rush parties in the downstairs of the Alumni building Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

All former Boy Scouts are eligible to be pledged. The group, now numbering 22, has place for 35 new pledges. Pledge period for APO lasts six weeks, during which time pledges must accumulate 24 service points in connection with the fraternity's activities.

NEW OFFICERS elected at the last meeths will be installed after Thanksgiving. They are: Jim Lohmeyer, president; Tommy Bowen, first vice-president; Jim Short, second vice-president; John Sanford, recording secretary; James Turvaville, corresponding secretary; Bob McKenzie, treasurer and Jimmy Evans, historian.

JIMMY EVANS has served as president of the fraternity for two terms.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA was founded October 12, 1950 and went national April 21, 1951. Among their service projects have been the bike racks at the Demonstration school, Test Service Bureau, Homecoming decorations, and the Used Book Exchange.

At their last meeting, APO voted to appropriate $20 to repair the radio in the infirmary.

Their other project is the reopenins of the Book exchange.

Most Dangerous Time of Year Here

CHICAGO. —The most dangerous time of year for pedestrians is here, said W. Dean Keefer, director of safety engineering for the Kemper Insurance group. He warned drivers to reduce speed at dusk and asked pedestrians to be cautious at intesections.

Pedestrian deaths are usually 40 per cent higher during the last three months of the year than the average of the first nine months, he says.

Reasons for the startlin increase in pedestrian fatalities are:

1—The shift in dark winter clothing makes it hard to see the pedestrian.

2—More traffic in hours of darkness.

3—Increased holiday travel, shopping and drinking.

Eight New Modern Buildings To House Local Fraternities

The often discussed houses for the fraternity men of Florida State University are now a reality. Eight new, airiningly modern buildings now adorn the campus —each one a wood and stone realization of some fraternity's plans. The houses are technically classed by the school as small men's dormitories, but to the fellows they are the homes for their groups, a place where they can live in comfort.

FIVE OF THESE new homes are situated near Campbell Stadium, while the other three are located on Tennessee Street near the new men's dormitory. Although all houses were constructed at the same time, each can boast its own individual characteristics —the result of mixed efforts on the part of three different architects employed on the project.

All houses regardless of differing exterior designs contain a living room, dinnin room, kitchen, lounge, house mother's suite, guest room, and living facilities for approximately 40 men. This spacious living will be a new experience for the fraternities

The homes on Tennessee Street more commonly referred to as the Strip, will be occuoied by the Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities, while the Delta Tau Delta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Pi Kappa Tau and Phi Delta Theta fraternities will inhabit the Campbell Stadium area.

INTERIOR DECORATION was left entirely up to the individual organizations. Each group selected the colors and furniture to be used in its house. Funds for the promotion of all this was provided by the University.

No new or old frat house would be entirely complete without a house mother, so for the first time in Florida State's history all fraternities will have chaperons. Most of the house mothers are on the campus at the present time to aid the boys in the process of moving. These eight new houses for fraternity men are a landmark of progress and an investment in the future of Florida State.

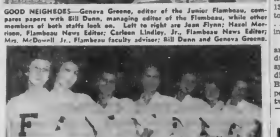
THE SOPHOMORE class plans to present the Broadway success "Junior Miss," in December. They are going to produce it in as nearly professional manner as possible.

Mrs. Margaret Casson, head of the Kindergarten program, has a group of 25 students this year. The children come to school for half a day, leaving at noon. They work in a white frame building which is located back of the women's gymnasium. The primary purpose of this kindergarten is to prepare the children for first grade. They learn to work in groups and to enjoy school contacts.

DR. KIDD, teacher of history is using a unit-system method, in European history, this year. His students, 10th graders, take each nation in turn and study its geography, habits, customs, language, folk-love and music. At present, the class is finishing a unit on Russia.



The "Dem" now offers a program through the 11th grade. The 11th grade was newly added this year. There are also six seniors whom the Dem school hopes to graduate at the end of the year.

THE PRINCIPAL of the "Dem" school, Dr. Boyce, has been in Tallahassee two years working in connection with the school. At a Parent-Teachers Association meeting Tuesday evening, he revealed plans for the new, modernistic school unit, which will be situated on the Quincy Highway. The new school will cost, unequipped, $875,000. It includes facilities for kindergarten, elementary, and junior and senior high school groups.

Dr. Boyce said "With the support we have received so far from the administration and the School of Education of the University, we have an excellent chance of having one of the finest laboratory schools for the training of teachers, in the nation."

FSU's Photo Library Offers 1,168 Film Strips

Photographic services at Florida State are at present among the best in the South. A library of 1,168 filmstrips is available for use on campus, without charge, and throughout the country at a nominal fee. Pictures are taken of all football games for later use by the coaches and players. The band festival this weekend will be photographed from the press box at the stadium. Basketball, track, and golf are sometimes taken in slow motion.

Equipment and operator are provided for on campus services. About 320 movies are shown each month. Public address systems are available at all student activities.

Off-campus services include lending films to high schools, summer camps, and civic organizations, and are available at a low rental fee.

The Audio Visual Service, a division of the School of Library Training and Service, has a full-time staff including Dr. Myles Ritchie director; Mr. William Lane, supervisor; Mr. Robert Kniler, chief technician; Mr. William Vretios, photographer; and Dr. John Mitchell, head of the educational field. Fifteen students are employed to operate the equipment, and to revise and ship the films over the state.

Students to Attend Ala. Debate Meet

Five undergraduate students left Wednesday for a three day discussion at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala. The five accompanied graduate student, Bill Carmack.

Florida State representatives include Katherine Skogstad, Janice Arbogast, Dick Bradley, Bill Davis, and Beverly Lacayo.

Topic of discussion will be on the intercollegiate debate question, "Should the Federal government adopt a permanent program of wage and price control?"

Colleges from all over the South will be represented at the 3-day meeting ending tomorrow!

WFSU Affiliated With Large College Network

Since last May, WFSU has been an affiliate of the largest college network in the United States, The Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.

Boasting almost a hundred college stations, the network was founded at Brown University in 1940 by George Abraham and David Borus.

IN 1946 George and David began exchanging programs over a wire between their rooms. Later, they transmitted a radio signal over wires to reach specific campus reception areas.

Other colleges quickly picked up this idea and by 1949 there were 13 stations in operation, enough to start the first college network . . . the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.

THE NETWORK is non-profit and exists through membership dues. Among the activities of the system which have frequent and direct bearing on the Seminole Broadcasting company's station personnel are: Regional meetings twice a year, the IBS bulletin, handbooks such as the technical data book, program exchange via scripts, transcriptions, procurement of transcribed programs from outside sources, consulting services, and solicitation of national advertising through chosen representatives.

There are many strict rules governing membership in the network, such as choice of advertisers, which doesn't concern FSU since it is non-commercial, and the use of the English language. WFSU giving a rigid announcers' audition test takes the latter into consideration.

SOME OTHER college radio networks are established throughout the U. S. A. They are: The Empire Broadcasting company, the Middle Atlantic Network, the Philadelphia Inquirer Broadcasting System and the Pioneer Broadcasting System.

EXPERIMENTAL RESEARCH for a governmental agency is now active on FSU's campus. Shown above are students watching one of the research projects in the new science building.

Caught in Big-Time Tide FSU Faces a Frankenstein

Cleaning up and de-emphasizing intercollegiate athletics is a current trend in colleges throughout the nation.

Florida State University is interested because it is. at the time, caught in the tide that washes the rocks of big time. This University is growing, and likewise our football team is growing, expanding, improving. It is natural that we will be and perhaps already are faced with this decision: how far into the stormy water shall we sail?

First, how far have we gone? We might affirm in our own minds the truth that our football is not yet racked with the hungry demands of malignant expansion, frantic with efforts to meet more powerful competition, and inured with attempts to satiate a public which seems only satisfied with more and more.

We don't believe our college football has developed into a Frankenstein . . . yet.

An authentic football movie, "Saturday's Hero," now playing at a local theatre, capitalizes on the sports public's insatiable taste for college football and hits the cruel, bighusiness commercialism presently injected in the sport.

It will fill every coach, active alumnus and fanatic with a raging pain.

We realize that good college teams don't just happen. This University alone offers $67,000 in cool scholarships to 75 enterprising athletics each year. The picture will make people ask questions just what we are doing.

We asked, recently, that certain questions be kept in mind as we mull full steam ahead for big caliber football. The vital question is will our high academic standards suffer from the over-emphasis and subsidization.

Recently at an educational conference several concrete plans were suggested. The 12-point program adopted at this annual gathering of the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions seems, however, too idealistic at first glance. It may have possibilities.

Many of the program's useful aspects are already in operation. The impractical ones may remain dormant.

Provisions of the plan:

1. Confinement of practice sessions to recognized seasons of sport.

2. Limiting the number of games in each sport.

3. Re-examining post-season games as possible causes of trouble.

4. Eliminating the big business aspects of the platoon system by limiting free substitution rules.

5. Stressing academic eligibility for athletes.

6. Refusing special entrance requirements for athletes.

7. Limiting subsidization of athletes.

8. Enlistment of help of fans and alumni to reduce "undesirable recruiting activity."

9. Demanding the rules be observed.

10. Elimination of "rushing" prospective athletes.

11. Making athletes ineligible who receive gifts illegally.

12. Ascertaining that athletes are "not diverted from their education objectives" by checking subjects taken.

Point one is debatable. Four is desired by many coaches, or it would be cancelled. Eight is difficult to enforce, since there are no means of governing the activities of exstudents. Nine is vague. Twelve—on what basis?

May its influence—in stirring discussion, in causing local action, in promoting sportsmanship, and in getting special studies underway—be widespread.

As Grantland Rice, football's top authority wrote recently, "the ills of college football have been so callously exploited that conditions can't be as bad as they are, not quite as hopeless as everyone thinks they are . . . football is too fine a game to be wrecked without an effort being made to clean it up."

● AN ISSUE?

With the start of the election fever every move of the President will be watched. One slip and his error will magnify into a nationgripping blunder that will be harped on, splashed on page ones, and run deep into the ground.

However, his actions in the recent issue over the segregation of students in schools located on federal property is an encouraging note in this political symphony of discontent.

Said the president: "We have made rapid progress toward equal treatment and opportunity in the activities in Federal Government where we have a direct responsibility to follow national rather than local interpretations of non-discrimination."

He added, we should not impair our moral position by enacting a law that requires discrimination based on race. Step by step we are discarding old discriminations; we must not adopt new ones."

Truman expressed hope that Congress early in the next session, enact legislation to provide the aid without the provisions to which he objected.

● MORE HONOR

Approval for the extension of the Who's Who application deadline date has been granted by the University Council, FSU's executive-legislative body.

The original deadline date was set at November 2. At this writing, however, only 25 applications have been received. Twenty-eight applications for an "honor" from which the thirty (30) most deserving applicants will be chosen.

The University Council minutes read as follows: "June Conyers, chairman of the Who's Who Committee, submitted a report of the activities of that committee. Application blanks have been made available to students on campus and blanks are being sent to interning students. Notice has been given twice in the Flambeau and the tentative deadline of November 2 for turning in applicatoins was xtended. At the next Council meeting, the committee expects to be able to present its final point-system plan for choosing nominees."

Are only 28 seniors eligible for the very dubious honor? Or is there such a tremendous lack of interest in this controversial organization?

There may even exist the feeling of being cheated . . . a nothing for something deal . . . which was apparently felt and so vehemently voiced following last year's vote.

Could the Flambeau be wrong in suggesting that the 134 students—three percent of the student body—voting for the continuance of Who's Who were not sufficiently representative of a valid University opinion?

It is sincerely hoped that the Council will be unable to present "its final point-system plan for choosing nominees" before the Who's Who publication date.

Then it can be forgotten at FSU.

IRONICAL, THIS RACE FOR DESTRUCTION

By BOB GRIFFIN

It's ironical.

It's ironical that we students are being educated in the most humanitarian sense, yet, in our own minds are being conditioned to total war and scorching destruction.

It's also ironical that we have groups dedicated to the purpose of helping those nations that have less than we and yet we hate those who have the same purpose in mind.

The Flambeau (along with just about every college publication in the country) receives periodically propaganda from countries behind the iron curtain. Note that a letter the Flambeau received yesterday from the Indonesian Student Relief organization in Czechoslovakia.

Dear Friends:

"Please find enclosed copies of a leaflet on our ISR programme for 1951-1952, for use particularly for the relief drive on the occasion of International Student Week.

"Please display them on the notice board of your college or university, insure its reprinting in your student newspaper and duplicate it for distribution among students in your college or university.

"It is signed by the secretary of ISR.

What about the leaflet? Is it a subtle condition that is instilled in the American college editor's mind? Is its title a guise for propaganda? Is it a subtle method of the 'students' behind the iron curtain?

Or is it a sincere drive of students in the Communist capitalistic countries who are our groups, to help the difficult conditions that exist in certain Asian, South American, and African universities?

The fact that brings to mind the fact that in Russia students may not receive information concerning our "relief" projects and they are probably saying: more up capitalistic lies. Maybe to chitter my wastepaper baskes.

It illustrates that trust is dead between the two student forces, working perhaps for the same goal. Because they travel different paths they both trip and fall.

It is said that man who trusts men will make fewer mistakes than he who distrusts them. Which is right?

On the personal subject of communism . . . A communist; A fellow that can't become a journalist.

Hold it down . . . we don't have a co-educational dormitory on this campus (not that I know of, at least). After reading a headline in Tuesday's paper, about Coed Dormitories to hold meetings, men and some women have tried to find out where this wonderful haven is.

Anyway, if we had a coed dorm on campus the Flambeau crew would have first dibs at signing up.

To the moralists we offended . . . you poor souls.

POLITICAL POST

GOVERNOR FULLER ATTRACTING CROWDS

By PAUL E. GARRISON and WILLIAM SCHMIDT

Governor Fuller Warren has been attracting large and attentive audiences all over the state in conjunction with his "report to the people."

The governor believes that a great number of Florida's newspaper's have deliberately suppressed news concerning the positive accomplishments of the ad-ministration and have been generally unfair to him. He has therefore set out on a speaking tour that will eventually carry him to all of Florida's 67 counties where he will review the administration of Florida's government since his term began. Ten thousand people recently packed the Miami Auditorium to hear the Governor give his report which was also broadcast and transmitted over television.

Congressman Bob Sikes of the First District has written numerous letters to individuals and the press all over the Sikes District. This district's delegates next summer to the Democratic National Convention should be men and women of unquestioned integrity who should go to the sessions uninstructed." Sikes says he is opposed to a separate states rights party; however he believes the Democratic Party should be "reformed from within." The Congressman made an appeal for state rights, declaring that "Our candidates will have to run for the White House on and for the rights of other Southern states."

Former U. S. Senator Claude Pepper, speaking in Miami to the Young Democrats Club last week, declared that Dixiecrats were again busy in Florida with "secret meetings" in Tallahassee out. They don't believe in the Democratic Party and they don't get in the Republican Party and stay there?" Senator Pepper emphasized that some Florida Dixiecrats and so-called Democrats are "playing footsie" with Senator Taft. This is not political honesty."

Senator Spessard L. Holland is stumping the state from Pensacola to Key West between now and the December 15th. He is appearing before civic clubs, shaking hands and renewing acquaintances all over the state in anticipation of a tough re-election battle next Spring in which former Senator Pepper is his opponent.

Departing from political opinion, Governor Fuller would like to bring to your attention a bit of social news that has recently been brought to our attention that a new choir director has been added to the Tallahassee Baptist Church. Although there has been no formal announcement it is generally understood that this "choral" group is laboring under the direction of Mr. Ralph Rush, formerly of the Comptroller's office, who is now busily preparing and arranging "music" that will charm all sorts of Florida political factions into perfect "harmony." Our informer, who, by the way, has been practicing reticulously for several weeks, reports that Mr. Straughn has made great progress in learning this diversified "chorus" group to sing the praises of "Alfa."

HEAD LINES

NO RECREATIONAL PROGRAM, NOTHING

By ALLAN HEAD

This campus is either dead or dying. I don't know which. Let's just hope it's dying, then there may be a chance to save it. Last weekend reached the depths of apathy in the recreational line. No football game, no dance, no nothing.

What's the matter with the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women? Don't they care what the student body with sheer boredom? No wonder the new scholastic high is "out of the woods"! A balanced recreational program (by the way, not all events) is as necessary as a balanced educational program. The latter is worthless without a balanced series of social events points up the need for a campus recreational director.

Freshman Senator Phil Springer jumped into this problem with both feet at last Tuesday's senate meeting. He campaigned promising not to look into the matter of recreation and see if the students were getting a dollar's worth of activities for each dollar they gave.

Ably assisted by men's senior Senator Panche Sved in the debate which resulted from his proposal to set up an investigation committee, Springer brought the issue to several points. Out of the $36 each student pays into the student activity fee each year, more than $25 are spent exclusively for what the student body with sheer boredom? IT'S ALL GREEK TO ME

Rush Parties Dominate Scene

By MARCIA MORRIS

This past week has been a busy one at the Alpha Chi Omega house. Monday night at their chapter meeting, the girls had an informal "get together" for their new house mother, Mrs. Palmer. The chapter entertained rushees with a party Tuesday night, and Friday, initiation will be held for six girls: Marilyn Hart, Katherine Morton, Sally Knight, Norma Jean Fraser, Daphne Southard, and Mary Ann Lorrea. Alpha Chi's have also held Gold have made within the past few years have been quite phenomenal." And he is right of course.

But in our FSU-er's opinion, I think that we should meet the University of Florida now in certain respects. Why not? We will be doing. We should, if at all possible, try to get out of the bottom because we are now in.

Then one day very soon, I hope, we will be able to wrestle with the Alligators as complete equals and skin them in true Indian style. I don't believe we should put off a game any longer than two years, though, Mr. Bassine. Win or lose, we are too eager to see what would be in the best game since the legislators set up our ivy walls.

Alpha Omicron Pi news this week is centered about rushing. Wednesday, the A O Pi's entertained rushees with a wiener roast at the house, Sunday, a Dessert buffet will be held, in the "high spot" for the A O Pi's.

New initiates of Delta Zeta are Betty Dale Callicut, Gerry Harrison, Marcia Morris, Marian Martin, Jean Moreau, Jane Reeves, Phyllis Ridgeway and Millie Smith. Activities for the coming week at the Delta Zeta house include a supper party with rushees Monday.

Members of Gamma Phi Beta will celebrate their founders day Friday with a formal banquet and dance. Plans are complete for Ann Murrill will be held Thursday night for Joanne Rue.

Kappa Delta pledges held their annual "Hawaiian" pledge party yesterday afternoon. The chapter will entertain with a coffee Sunday night. K D.'s are honoring rushees with a wiener roast Wednesday afternoon.

Sigma Kappas are celebrating their founders day Tuesday night, a founders day dinner was held at the house for all actives. Sigma Kappas are now being made for Sigma Kappa weenie roast, will be held December 7 and 8. Sigma Kappas were winners of the sorority division in the horseshoe tournament.

Zeta Tau Alphas have voted to back O.D.K. in its campaign for "blood donations." Monday night the Zetas held a rush party at Lafayette Park.

Pledge class officers of Sigma Nu Fraternity are: Bill Barwick, president; Bill Stancik, vice president; Bill Barwick, secretary; Dick Palmer, treasurer; Jack Oakley, house manager; Bill Carraway, social chairman; and Bill Grey, Haines, scholarship chairman.

Sigma Chi pledges held their Delias Lloyd president, to fill the vacancy left by Charlie Dix.

The annual Phi Kappa Tau Carnation ball will be held tomorrow night at the American Legion hall from 9 to 12. Mike Saliba and his orchestra will play for the lush opulence of the occasion. The evening will be the presentation of the Phi Kappa Tau Dream Girl.

Unique Things Liked

Dear Editor,

I want to defend Stan Schmidt's column on the international debate. Evidently some people would take exception to his remarks, but in doing so they are expressing opinions, not facts. (Maybe I am, too.)

Perhaps Stan's "pie-throwing slapstick" rankled some in its honest descriptiveness. He could have said the FSU speakers showed fallacies in logic and lack of immaturity in their judgment. He could have mentioned how often our team aimlessly missed many points in its question, and he could have have spelled out in detail the rudeness and uniformity of FSU's irrelevant remarks on Britain's desperate, war-aggravated financial condition.

But such is not Stan's manner of expression. He has a style which is refreshing and unique on this campus, and like other unique things, it causes horror and disdain in many quarters.

Some people do not like to hear a strong, clear voice above the usual babble. Personally, I liked it.

Sincerely,
Bruce M. Galphin.

Stan, Be Nice!

Dear Editor:

I would like to relate a message to Stan Schmidt through your columns.

Stan, you have excellent talent as a critic and your wit is genius. The just, well-aimed barb you want. When your column first started out it was fine and interesting.

But now I would like to pass on a bit of advice given me by my grandmother. If you can't say something nice about something or somebody, don't say it at all.

VINCE LOCICERO.

Dear Editor:

To recognize that standards and principles, which any student may have clearly explained in various courses, must be observed in order to have a rich life is a fine essential. Freedom is found in this column. But he is wide of the base when he blames the School of Education for the confused ideas among students on this matter.

Our criteria would have been stronger if it had omitted the reference to School of Education majors, and the implication to the entire University. More than that, the fault lies in our society as a whole which the University reflects. Students in general worship the false ideal of athlete victories and "success" living at all costs. Our society expresses the same value; observe the periodical literature, the movies, and the space allotted to athletic matters in our newspapers, and so on.

The fault lies not with the School of Education, nor with the University but in society as a whole. Ultimately each of us is to be blamed individually.

Jansen To Lecture In Science Hall

Dr. Eugene F. Jansen, guest lecturer for the department of chemistry, will speak in the new science building on the subject of the mechanism of action of insecticides.

He will talk on the contributions he and his associates have made in the study of the insecticides as diapozyl fluorophosphate and dicarbamates, the effects on certain key enzyme systems. He will also show how crystalline derivatives of insecticide-emitting compounds are prepared.

SEMINOLE SCENES

GIRLS ARE NO SPORTS EXPERTS, BUT—

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Somehow it always hurts to admit a so-called "rival" has intelligence to be respected, but . . .

Bob Bassine, sports editor on the University of Florida's Alligator, in his November 2 column "In the Stands," wrote about all this squabble for a meeting of the FSU-UF teams.

Now, I am no sports expert. If it were not for the score-board at football games I probably would not know what is going on. But I do have my sacred layman's opinion. As far as this Gator-Seminole-Tally dickering is concerned, I'd give along with the score-keeping Gator to a great degree.

Bassine is not only a darn good writer, but also, it seems to me, the possessor of much appreciated sense.

Says he: "The Seminoles are trying to go from the bottom to the top. Why not try a middle course, FSU? Start visiting teams like Richmond, Chattanooga, Louisville, Citadel, Furman, or any number of the smaller teams playing on the peripheral area of big-time college football. Stay in that competition for a few years. It is closer to your class than Florida, and evidently nearer your own strength than some of the powder-puff aggrevations you have been playing."

Bassine continues by saying that when we have something worth there that we should "come to Florida with our tomahawks in hand and paint the entire reservation on our faces, to claim the scalp we will rightly deserve."

The Gator sports editor stated that there would definitely be no advantage to having three major football powers in the state, not only to themselves, but in the focusing of the "national gridiron spotlight" here in Florida. But he just does not think we are ready to create a Big Three yet. I have a sneaking suspicion, despite my confidence in our team, that he happens to be right.

Bassine does, however, put in a few good words for us. "The Seminoles have a tough, fighting team," he says. "In their own class FSU is powerful—almost unbeatable. Don Veller, State coach, is a real go-getter. The strides Chi's have made Gold have made within the past few years have been phenomenal." And he is right of course.

But in our FSU-er's opinion, I think that we should meet the University of Florida now in certain respects. Why not? We will be doing. We should, if at all possible, try to get out of the bottom because we are now in.

Then one day very soon, I hope, we will be able to wrestle with the Alligators as complete equals and skin them in true Indian style. I don't believe we should put off a game any longer than two years, though, Mr. Bassine. Win or lose, we are too eager to see what would be in the best game since the legislators set up our ivy walls.

FSU-Wofford Contest Rated Tossup

Seminoles Face Severe Test With South Carolina Eleven

What appears to be the game of the year is scheduled for Campbell Stadium tomorrow, when the Wofford Terriers come to do battle with the FSU Seminoles in a revival of their rivalry which had its start i nthe 1950 Cigar Bowl, where FSU upset the favored South Carolinians 19-6.

Coach Don Veller has already sent up the storm warning and when the kickoff takes place at 2:00, local fans will have a chance to see some of the finest backs on a small college team in the nation.

The Wofford backfield composed of Sanders, Campbell, McLellan, and Beeler, will undoubtedly be the equal of anything the Seminoles have faced this year. While McLellan rates as both a runner and passer, Sanders as a runners, Beeler is the real threat.

BEELER CONVERTED for 25 out of 32 passes against the Auburn team that held Vanderbilt's Bill Wade to 3 out of 12. He also led the Terrier running attack last year when Wofford won 14-12 over Furman. Beeler played two year in the University of Tennessee backfield before dropping down to Wofford.

The Seminole defense, which has held opposing teams to 283 yards through the air for a very commendable 47.2 average, will receive its stiffest test in the person of Beeler. The Seminole defense on the ground has been very effective as they have allowed 953 yards, or 127 per game.

THE SEMINOLES OFFENSE has rolled up 1383 yards on the turf and 615 through the passing medium, for a total offense of 1898 and a 316 average.

Sellers is the leading rusher with 395 with Nelson Italiano right behind with 331. Italiano leads in the passing department with 268 yards on 22 completions out of 52 attempts. Gary Folsom is second in this department with 139 on 8 out of 18. Italiano has passed for five touchdowns while Folsom is credited with three passdirs heaven.

Curt Campbell, an ace on defense, leads in the pass receiving area with 212 yards on 13 receptions and three TD's. Bob Whitmer is second to Campbell with 10 snags for 181 yards and two six-pointers.

Sellers is the leading scorer—seven scores for 42 points, with Campbell having 36 points on six touchdowns.

Gym Team Stepping Up Daily Drills

The fun of the "Gymkana" show is over and our gymnastic team is back in the women's gymnasium every afternoon working hard for the coming season.

This spring F.S.U. will play host to the Southern Intercollegiate Championships and the Florida A.A.U. Championships in our women's gym. Last season our team won both of these championship meets. Our varsity team will be well represented and is sure to make a good showing. The team is favored to win and the meets will make fine entertainment to see if our symnasts can keep their individual titles.

Last year our varsity team won the National A.A.U. Championships which was held in Detroit. This year we have more team competition to cope with. In New York four of the country's best gymnasts two of which were on the last Olympic Team's have combined to make a team in an effort to dethrone F.S.U. In Philadelphia all of the gymnasts have been united into a team with the same thought in mind. And right here in Florida the "Gymkana Team," or graduate team, is composed of the greatest gymnasts ever and they will be entered into the team competition.

Dr. Price realized we would have a hard season so he increased the strength of both our varsity and our graduate teams. Both of our teams will be working out hard to keep the "National" titles on our F.S.U. campus. The doctor's prescription: take two sood P.E.U. teams, add plenty of hard work and put them in all the championships. Let's look for the results.

FSU Volleyballers Down Albany "Y"

The Seminole volleyball team came from behind Tuesday night to take the Albany YMCA two games straight to win the match after they had lost the first.

The FSU squad took part in a clinic, or demonstrate fundamentals, for the newly formed city wide volleyball tournament. The few spectators, mostly players and high school students, received the demonstration with enthusiasm and it is believed that it was of great benefit to the lesser skilled league players.

In the first game, Albany came from an early 6-0 deficit to beat the Seminoles 15-9. Then the FSU squad came back and won the next two by scores of 15-13 and 16-14 to cop the match.

Ronald Albertson, 5'955, gave the Georgians something to talk about as he continually brought the Seminole back into the contest time and arain. Hambrock was practically unstoppable as he paced the Seminoles with 13 kills. O'Brien and MacArthur of Albany followed with 9 and 8 respectively.

The volleyballers plan to enter the St. Petersburg Open on December 1. This will give the Seminoles a chance to compete with the best teams in Florida.

REQUIEM FOR A NUN, by William Faulkner

Jefferson, governor's mansion and bull-pen at the jail, near the cell of the condemned and the gallows . . . these are the three scenes in the new novel, or drama, or novel-cum-confession, by the 1950 Nobel prize winner. If it's new form, it is not a new locality: This is Jackson and Jefferson, in Mississippi, and Faulkner's old Yoknapatawpha county. It is not a new cast, either; you will remember Temple, of "Sanctuary," now wife of Gowan Stevens, mother of two children, niece of lawyer Gavin Stevens.

She was the mother of two until Nancy Mannigoe, Negro maid who had as much in her past to be rescued from as Temple herself, smothered one in his cradle. Gavin tries to save Nancy, but in November the judge sentences her to hang in March and the rest of this book falls in the intervening time with ever mounting tension. Gavin is not satisfied with the verdict, or with Temple's attitude, and he follows her home for a talk, though she doesn't want one, nor does Gowan.

She has a lot on her conscience. There are not only the days in Memphis, with Popeye and Popeye's friend Red, but also in the seven or eight intervening years there has been a soul-searching which left, not a woman redeemed and restored to society, but harried, beset and still wretched and alone. In three or four gripping scenes, Gavin sternly confronts her and demands a confession.

In a sense this seems perhaps Faulkner's confession, too, or at least recantation. If he wrote "Sanctuary," as he said, to be spectacular and to sell, here he has softened the theme; this bears the Lord's assurance we learn from Nancy, that He gives us the best He can, including the chance to suffer.

The three parts open with the historian, Faulkner's histories, of places and buildings; for example, "Act One" is entitled "The Courthouse" and subtitled "A Name for A City," which was a short story published within a year or so. These introductions are not good Faulkner, or good anybody. But the passages in straight dialogue form, apparently ready for the stage, are absolutely first-rate. The battle of Temple's formidable guilt against her own conscience races across some of Faulkner's finest pages.

Debate Finals to Be Next Tuesday Night

The final rounds of the annual intramural debate tournament, sponsored by the department of speech, will be held next Tuesday at 7 and 8:30 in the Union building.

The topic to be debated is, Resolved: "That Florida State University should abolish its present education requirements."

More than 40 students have participated in the three rounds of debate already held. They include independents and representatives of sororities and fraternities.

Interested students are invited to attend the closing two rounds tonight. Rounds IV and V will be posted outside the door.

Final Runoffs Held Today In Frosh Elections

Two Each Run For Offices Not Filled In Earlier Ballots

The final runoffs in the freshman elections will be held today to determine who is to fill the offices of vice president, treasurer, secretary and parliamentarian.

There are two contestants for each of the above mentioned offices. Lilian Avis will vie with Jimmi Pallaras for the office of vice president.

POY JOHNSON and Dot Wells are running for secretary, and Don Van Hise and Carolyn Johnson for treasurer. Competing for the office of parliamentarian are Nancy Black and Mary Grace Schmidtke.

The offices already filled in the first two elections were that of president, Oracen Smith, women senators, Charis Collier, Joan Porter and Edie Stroup; men senators, Dave Kennedy, Phil Springer and Don Allen Whitehead. Also elected last week was Jackie Price, socela chairman.

ORACEN SMITH was elected freshman president, in the first non-segregated election in the primary for the office. Smith won over his nearest rival, George Carney by 38 votes. Smith had 243 votes while Carnes had 138.

Three men senators were elected in the first primary. They were Dave Kennedy, Phil Springer and Don Allen Whitehead.

WOMEN SENATORS elected in the first primary run-off were Charis Coulter with 206 votes, Joan Dozier with 218, and Jan Stroupe with 211. Those losing were Ann Adams with 134, Phobe Jackson, 150, and Sara Whitehead with 104.

Van Hise and Carolyn Johnson won over Jimmi Ann Gallaryhorth and Joe Ann Setzer last week. Van Hise had 106 votes against 98; Collingsworth, 78; and Setzer 94.

CANDIDATES for secretary reported a total of 393 votes. Dot Wells and Poy Johnson were the top winners against Carns and Yeager with 101 and 109 respectively. Carns had 96 votes and Yeager 86.

Dorothy Cooke was put out of the running last week with 103 votes. Her opponents, Patterson Ivy, Ann Lewis, had 92 respectively.

Nancy Black in the running for parliamentarian had 127 votes and Mary Grace Shoemaker, 140. Their opponents, Barbara Lynde Grimes lost with 124 votes.

Poster Collection To Be Sponsored By Artist Series

Forty-six recent posters from 14 countries are now on exhibition in the Union Building until Nov. 27. This is the third showing of the season sponsored by the Artist series.

The "Posters 1945-49" now on exhibition are borrowed from the Museum of Modern Art in New York and has its first showing here in the autumn of 1949.

FOSTER DESIGNERS, Carlu, Nervie and Shahn are represented in the show with commanding examples. The bulk of the collection has been selected from work of younger and less well-known artists. It has been reviewed in a report from Edmund Lewandow-ski, professor of art.

Enormous impetus was given during the second World War to the poster calling public attention to the subjects such as health, safety and housing, Lewandowski's report said.

TODAY'S POSTERS sell ideas as well as commities, the art professor said. The group of posters in the present exhibition include how the wartime national propaganda use of the poster medium has continued to the post-war years.

The two previous exhibits of the Art Gallery this semester were "Leading Photographers" in Sept. and "Historic Family Portraits," in Oct.

Interdivisional Forum Planned for Thursday

The First Interdivisional Child Development forum of this year will be held in the Longmire auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Ralph Witherspoon will explain the Interdivisional Child Development program. An informal tea will follow the meeting.

Twenty-One Bands Perform at Game

A display of color and marching routines were presented by 21 bands gathered at Florida State University for the first "Band Day" at the half-time ceremony of the FSU-Wofford game Saturday.

The bands were guests at F. S. U. under the arrangement of Bob Bingaman, band director at Dayton Smith coordinator of "Band Day."

THE MUSICIANS gathering will become an annual event, Bruno said has reported.

The 20 high school guest bands began their day's program with a parade led by the F.S.U. "Marching Chiefs" at 12 noon Saturday.

President Doak S. Campbell launched the afternoon half-time ceremony with an introduction of the 20 visiting bands and 1100 musicians. All bands were from Florida with the exception of two Georgia bands from Thomasville and Bainbridge.

A MAMMOTH "F. L. A." was drawn up by the bands. Time limit prevented the officials scheduled "F. S. U." and "U. S. A." formations.

Majorettes went through their twirling exercises while the band members conscientiously thumbed their horns and various instruments.

THE HIGH SCHOOL bands made a creditable showing before the crowd and a comfort to the hoarse throated fans.

Florida high school bands in the review were Leon, Niceville, Lake Worth, Cross City, Ponce de Leon, Greensboro, Crestview, Chattahoochee and Apalachicola. Also present were bands from Milton, Lake City, Perry, Quincy, Havana, Fort Walton, Chipley, and Bonifay.

The Thomasville and Bainbridge Georgia, bands were the only two out of state representatives.

Sixteen Schools Attend Meet

The Student Congress, last weekend, was a series of mock legislatures at which time delegates from 16 chapters of the high school Forensic league introduced, debated, and passed laws.

The two-day confab included sessions were Dr. Wayne Minnick of the Speech department and Dr. Clarence Edney, department head.

After the final legislative session Saturday morning, they were entertained with a luncheon in the LaSalette room. Later they attended the Florida State-West Point game as guests of the University.

THE CONGRESS activities culminated with a dance at the West Campus Student Union, Friday night. Entertainment was furnished by members of the Gramma Chi Kappa cast who gave excerpts from their 1941 production during intermission.

The Congress was sponsored by the FSU speech department in cooperation with Leon High School and the Florida Secondary National Forensic League sponsor.

Delegates represented high schools throughout Tampa, Coral Gables, Jacksonville, Jacksonville Beach, Orlando, Sarasota, Tallahassee Ponce de Leon, and Winter Park registered for the Congress.

Board Of Control Attempts To Trade Two Vacant Lots

Negotiations to trade two vacant lots on East College Ave. for two lots on West College Ave. are being attempted by Florida State University. The State Board of Control has approved the transaction.

President Doak S. Campbell stated that the next step will be to contact the owner of the College Ave. property to have both properties appraised. Trade negotiations can then be arranged.

The East College Ave. property is eight blocks from campus, and has never been put to any other purpose. The property was given to the University by the late John D. Westcott.

The Copeland St. lots are north of the new Presbyterian student center, and face FSU's campus.

The acquiring of the Copeland St. property would enable the University to protect the entire street against future zoning for commercial property, President Campbell said. It would allow the University control of much of the Copeland St. property.

Student Nights For Gymkana Thurs., Friday

Price Sets Half-Price Admission For Students Who Show ID Cards

Student nights for the "Gymstravaganza" show will be this Thursday and Friday nights in the women's East Campus gymnasium at 7:30.

Dr. Hartley Price, director, has reminded that students will be allowed in for half-price only by the presentation of their identification cards. The idea is being given by popular demand of the students.

THE GYMKANA show, originally scheduled for Friday, November 2 and then again, Tuesday, November 6 were being canceled because of unsatisfactory weather conditions.

This week-end's shows will be cut down because of the lack of space, Price stated. "The great majority of the show will be presented, however, and for those that have not seen it, it is a production well worth seeing," he said.

In order to schedule the shows this week-end, Price had to cancel the "Gymnastic" meet each week until November 30.

THEME of Thursday and Friday production is a trip around the nation. Representative of the area country tour was the Las Vegas, Nevada, number featuring the trampoline team.

In the act were Dick Gutting Lea rence Weston, Dick Ireland, and Phil Payne; Bill Rocchetti, and Gene Rabbit versus Joe Regnano and Pat Signorelli in a sidestanne contest; the drill team with Gladys Tinkler and Jeanne Holder and Jack Miles on the Flying Rings.

Highlighting the show last week, was the crowning of this year's queen, Miss Carolyn Haddon, by President Doak Campbell. Miss Haddon was chosen on the volume originality which was red velvet gymnastics outfit. She was sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi.

THE RUNNERS-UP or attendants selected were Miss Francis Ann Richardson, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Pi, and Miss Jean Christenger, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta. Miss Jean was chosen on a basis of poise and beauty respectively. Merle Lamb were presented the two runners-up by President Campbell.

Vice President Martin To Address Faculty

Dr. A. B. Martin, vice president of Florida State University, will speak to faculty members tonight at 8 p.m. in the Longmire building.

"Faculty Administrative Cooperation" will be the topic of Dr. Martin's first faculty-wide address since he came to the University last August. The meeting is under the sponsorship of the Tallahassee chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Business Staff Meets

The Flambeau business staff will hold a meeting this afternoon at 5 p.m. in the Flambeau office announced Joan Etheridge, business manager. All solicitors are urged to attend.

BAND DAY AT FSU—Nearly 1,300 members of 21 high school bands throughout North and Northwest Florida, led by the "Marching Chiefs" of Florida State University are shown massed at FSU Doak S. Campbell Stadium during "Band Day" half-time exercises of the FSU-Wofford football game. The visiting high school band members and their leaders were welcomed on behalf of the university by FSU President Doak Campbell. The band staged a musical parade through downtown Tallahassee just prior to the football game. FSU Band of Music officials said the 21 bands were the largest number ever gathered in Tallahassee for such a special event. Prof. Robert Breuseg, FSU director of bands, led the mass bands in the playing of patriotic songs during the half-time ceremonies. (FSU Photo).

Third Senior Class Meeting Discusses Senior Banquet

Torch Parade And Bonfire Held For Game

A line of three or four hundred school spirited students were led by Florida State University "Marching Chiefs" in a torch parade climaxing a bonfire rally at the corner of McCall and Copeland streets Friday night.

Sponsored by the Warpath club, the bonfire gathering was another of the club's main projects for the semester.

THE PARADE began at the music building and was led to the main gate of the University down in front of the freshman women dormitories until it came to rest near the parking lots of McCall and Copeland.

Coach Don Veller set the event off with a short talk after the bonfire leaders had cast their torches into the huge bonfire commemorating defeat for the Wofford terriers.

BILL DAWKINS, captain of the Florida State University team also made a pep talk to enliven the spirit of the former torch bearers. The climax of Dawkins' featured remarks was the Seminole captain threw a representative terrier into the bonfire also commemorating defeat for the Wofford terriers.

Cheerleaders, led by head cheerleader Dick Bradley assisted.

"Phoenix" Plays Tonight At 8:15 For Last Time

A Phoenix Too Frequent will play again tonight at 8:15 in the Conrad theater in the second and final performance.

A limited number of tickets are available but all seats are reserved. Reservations may be made by calling the theater box office.

THE EXPERIMENTAL production is the first of a series of six experimental productions by the department of speech.

The cast appearing tonight is by Christopher Fry and is composed of three characters. They are played by Robert Marsh, Dorothy Silver and Bunny Banks.

SETS FOR the play, which is in a tomb, are designed by Director Carl Sorke under the supervision of Technical Director Wm Park.

The costumes are under the direction of costumer, Doudas Russell.

"The experimental plays chosen are the best in current and established theaters which do not have the type of audience appeal to warrant a full scale production" BUSFIELD COMMENTED. "The plays are chosen from the works of established writers and newcomers to the theater who merit public viewing."

Dr. Campbell's Birthday Party To Be Held In Lafayette Room

A senior class meeting was held last night to discuss plans for the senior dinner and reception in honor of President Doak S. Campbell's birthday this coming Friday.

President Dick Bradley announced that the dinner would be held in the LaFayette room, and will be informal. Serving will begin at 5:30 Friday.

AFTER THE DINNER, the traditional reception will be held for the seniors at the President's home. Members of Mortar Board will serve at the reception. The dinner Friday will cost $1.00 per plate.

Faculty sponsor, Miss Olive Ann Morris announced that the senior meeting was attended by only 37 class members. This brought up the same problem that the class faced last year, namely publication of the traditional event.

IT WAS BROUGHT out that last year because of poor publicity, hundreds of seniors who would have liked to attend, did not even know about the president's reception. This is a special privilege reserved just for seniors. It has been carried over from the days of the Florida State.

The parade, which began at 9:15 in front of the Floridan Hotel and went down Monroe to the Band Shell in front of the courthouse, was also in honor of the Wahnetah's class.

The four bands in the parade were the Florida State University ROTC band, the Florida A&M college band, the Leon High School band and the Griffin High School band. Twenty floats, built from both FSU and A&M marched in the parade. Also marching were all the Boy Scout and Cub Scout troops of the vicinity. An estimated crowd of 10,000 lined the streets.

THE PROGRAM after the parade included a commencement address given by Commander Felix F. Bush of Tallahassee, and speeches by Boatner, Mr. Frank Bell, former state department commander, and State Representative Robert L. Floyd.

Representative Floyd, who gave the main speech spoke on "A Living Democracy." "Democracy," said Floyd, "was given and we must fight to hold it. It is a gift which bears a heavy mortgage of payments on which must be everlasting."

Classes Resume After Holiday

Activities Centered In Parade, Vet B'kfast

University students resumed classes yesterday afternoon at 1 p.m. after a morning holiday in honor of Armistice day.

A full program of activities was sponsored by the American Legion yesterday. The breakfast, held at the Legion home in honor of the veterans, was attended by nearly 450.

AT 8:15 Major General Bryant L. Boatner addressed the Wainwright class, composed of all men to be initiated this year into the American Legion.

The parade which began at 9:15 in front of the Floridan Hotel and went down Monroe to the Band Shell in front of the courthouse, was also in honor of the Wahnetah's class.

The four bands in the parade were the Florida State University ROTC band, the Florida A&M college band, the Leon High School band and the Griffin High School band. Twenty floats, built from both FSU and A&M marched in the parade. Also marching were all the Boy Scout and Cub Scout troops of the vicinity. An estimated crowd of 10,000 lined the streets.

THE PROGRAM after the parade included a commencement address given by Commander Felix F. Bush of Tallahassee, and speeches by Boatner, Mr. Frank Bell, former state department commander, and State Representative Robert L. Floyd.

Representative Floyd, who gave the main speech spoke on "A Living Democracy." "Democracy," said Floyd, "was given and we must fight to hold it. It is a gift which bears a heavy mortgage of payments on which must be everlasting."

Traffic Court Puts Rules Into Effect

New traffic regulations went into effect yesterday under the leadership of George Gnann, Jr., traffic court chairman.

He has reminded students that traffic violation cases of Florida State University graduate students, faculty and staff members will be handled by the Tallahassee Municipal Court at the end of the early warning period which was yesterday.

VEHICLES MUST be registered with Mr. Don Farquharson, University business Manager's office, 108-A Westcott.

Stickers identifying undergraduate and graduate students must also be secured to differentiate them from faculty and staff members.

Parking beside fire hydrants will not be permitted. Sidewalk and building entrances will be barred to autos. "Loading zones," "no parking" and "parking only" areas are all indicated by signs over campus.

VEHICLES PARKED on the campus streets are to be parked parallel to the curb within 10 inches of the curb and within the white lines. Speed limit on all campus streets is 20 miles per hour and all "stop" and "slow" signs are to be observed.

Areas designated for faculty and staff will be restricted to those persons from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

RESERVED FOR the faculty will be the area from Copeland and street west through the east side parking of the street in front of the freshman dormitories, including the old Holmes Hall parking area between the Longmire building and the Music Hall.

The inner circle area, directly in front of the Westcott building is to be reserved for University guests.

Reporters Meet Today

A news reporters meeting will be held in the Flambeau office today at 5 p.m. Reporters from both divisions will be expected.

Blood Captains To Hold Meet Today At 4 p.m.

The second Omieron Delta Kappa "Blood for Korea" drive captain meeting will be held today at 4 p.m. in the Longmire auditorium.

The president of each campus organization has been asked to appoint one person for every eight members in his or her group and that plans to donate blood for the drive.

IT WILL be the blood captains responsibility to see that his or her eight people receive blood drive information and that all eight persons are on time for the actual procurement.

The actual date of procurement will be the first week in December.

All students under 21 years of age are urged to write for parental permission immediately.

NEARLY 1,000 pints of blood were pledged during the Blood Drive last week when the entire Greek social population pledged 100 per cent membership.

Initiated by the first response of Sanford Chi Alpha and Gamma Phi Epsilon social fraternities and Zeta Tau Alpha and Delta Delta Delta social sororities, the number of pints pledged jumped from 350 pints last Tuesday to over 900. On the first quarter with 100 per cent was Delta Delta Delta. Immediately following was Tri Delta were the Chi Omegas. Zeta Tau Alpha had previously taken the lead with 100 per cent pledge and were partly responsible for initiating the massive blood donation drive.

ROBERT TULLY, vice-president of Inter-fraternity council, testified blood drive chairman, Bob Orrlton, that the Inter-fraternity council had unanimously agreed that every eligible fraternity member on campus would give one pint of blood.

Sororities to pledge 100 per cent listed in the order they responded are Delta Delta Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Gamma Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Alpha Omicron Pi, Kappa Alpha Theta, Alpha Gamma Delta, Delta Zeta, Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Chi Omega and Alpha Delta Pi.

"Number Please" Begins Tonight

All Florida State University amateur pronunciators will have an opportunity to turn professional when WFSU, the voice of the campus, presents the new program, "Number Please."

A quiz show resembling Twenty Questions, the program, like many future studio audience participation shows, will find a studio audience connected with some object or subject, and the participants will try to determine the object by asking questions.

A guest faculty member will provide the questions. He will also be the mystery voice to the radio audience which will know what the object is before the studio audience guesses it.

Students who wish to participate may leave their name and address in the WFSU box in Lower Westcott.

FSU Debate Team Meets Gainesville

A debate between Florida State University and the University of Florida is slated for Friday before the Florida Speech association at Rollins College, Winter Park.

Representing F.S.U. are Harold Raines, industrial pre-administrial student, and Jerry Thomas, F.S.U. political science student. Debate question scheduled between the two state universities is "Resolved: that all American citizens should be subject to conscription for essential service in time of war." F.S.U. will take the affirmative stand

Raines last year represented F.S.U against Emory University, winning on the affirmative stand, resolved, "That Communist nations of the world form a new international organization."

Shy Auditorium Facilities Cut Artist Series Program

After the Oxford-Florida State University debate recently, the students began to wonder if our university had an "Artist Series" and why our cultural program seemed to be lagging behind.

The students were wondering how their $3.00 each year was being spent.

They were wondering if the school was going to offer some real enjoyment and information for the $11,000 that was going to be spent.

Here are the answers to a few of the questions.

On November 27, Dr. Gerald Wendt, the first American to attempt to disintegrate the atom and a well known book author, columnist and editorial writer, will commence the 1951-52 Artist Series program.

Dr. Wendt, a coast to coast lecturer, will interpret to the layman what is happening in science.

The second event scheduled will be the Italian movie of the life of Michelangelo. It is a classical work in Italian and is being shown to the college audiences through the United States. This will be shown November 29, two days after the first event.

A lecture on antropology hy Dr. Wilton M. Krogman is tentative for December 6.

Lucille Manners, an American soprano, has been described as "the talented soloist of delicate charm," whose singing is intelligent and musicianly. She has been scheduled January 11, 12 and 14. Her program will cost more because of space difficulties.

Musical Portraits is a program hy three musicians who combine operatic, concert and light music. They appeared during the summer and students and faculty received them warmly.

A leading woman actor will be hrought to Florida State to star in the speech department's production "Biography." The outstanding play will run for 14 days and will be open to the students as part of their Artist Series program.

The last event will be a hig name singer from the Metropolitan opera house. The Met won't announce their spring tours until the first part of next year so the exact person cannot be named at this time.

The Artist Series planning committee is composed of two students, and faculty members in the areas of English, political science, speech, music, art and classics.

Their main difficulty is, of course, an auditorium. There is no single place on this campus that can accommodate the usual Artist Series turnout.

"The school of music has been more than cooperative," stated Mrs. Ksy Vernon, secretary to the Artist Series committee. "Many of the events already planned have had to be re-scheduled."

Although the students have had many gripes sbout the entire set-up, they have not bothered to voice their resentment to the two student representatives who are Ted Steinmeyer and Betty Rich. Betty has been to two of the six regular meetings.

Ted Steinmeyer, who represents the entire male population at FSU on the committee, has failed to attend one meeting.

Another reason for the difficult time in scheduling events is that Tallahassee is off the regular circuit. A speaker appearing in Atlanta must travel to Jacksonville then back to Tsllahassee to make his appearance.

Because there are no north or south trains many hig companies must side-track this community while Thomasville, Georgia, a few miles away, can schedule much outstanding entertainment.

● AND FLAGS WAVE

On November 11, 1918, there was much rejoicing throughout the nation. Flags were waved, bells were rung, the people shouted and sang, and cried for joy. The Great War was over.

In fact, or so the people said, this marked the end of all wars. The world had learned its lesson. The art of war had progressed too far to ever be employed again as a means for settling differences between nations. Men and women would forever hereafter, solve the problems of the world while sitting around a big mahogany peace table. It was as simple as that and as necessary as that. Another war would end civilization. Yes, the world had learned its lesson.

Thirty-three years and two days later, and we in America are still celehrating Armistice day, the signing of the treaty, the final end to war. Little children, and hig children stand wide-eyed as the parade marches hy. The trombone blares lustily and the hig base drum boom, boom, booms with majestic finality. Parades, speakers, parties—it's a great day for all.

But where is the peace? In thirty-three years of celebrating peace and the end of all war, we have not known one day of real peace. The world is in a turmoil, and according to many, on the verge of a third world war.

All this shouting and singing sounds a little silly to the mother whose youngest son has just left for some far off army camp, to the tired and dirty soldier lying in the mud and snow of Korea, to the World War II veteran who stands unsteadily on a wooden leg as the parade passes by.

Will the day ever come when—when we can honestly celehrate peace?

● EFFECTIVE!

The Daily Californian at the University of California, decided recently to join the race for survival.

They inserted a short message about what to do in case an atom bomh hlew up in the vicinity of the campus in each issue of the paper.

About mid-day, sirens began ringing. People called the fire department. But there was no fire. They called the police. The police knew nothing. The sirens kept hlowing.

Finally it became known that the sirens were just an air raid practice warning.

City officials wondered if it had been effective.

"Damn effective," students said.

● STRANGE REQUEST?

Bill Dawkins, captain of the Seminole football team, made a strange request last week. He asked the person who had taken some wallets from the gymnasium locker to please return them to the lost and found desk in the Alumni huilding.

Three foothall players trustingly left all their possessions in their clothes while they donned uniforms for practice last Monday. When they returned from the field, they found their wallets missing.

Not only did the missing wallets contain all the money these boys had, but, as do most wallets, many valuahle and irreplaceable papers and documents.

To date, these wallets have not been turned in.

The players ohviously recovered their genial, high spirits in time for the Wofford game, while from the stands the thlef cheered them to victory.

The Flambeau earnestly requests the looter to please, either return the wallets to the lost and found desk, or at least leave them where they may be found and returned by another, more honest, student.

● OBLIVIOUS

The Freshmen elections, which have been in the process of dying into ohlivion for another year, will finally give up the ghost Tuesday.

Not only the Freshmen voters and candidates, hut also the upperclassmen will be glad when all the "Elect So-and-So" posters and speeches can be buried away and forgotten.

Freshmen electlons this year, beset hy the disease of "run-offs" has been in the throes of death a long time. Too long, in fact, to insure continued voter interest. And when the voter loses interest, the class is in danger of losing good government.

If this has been an example of our elections rules, then they are in sad need of revision. Perhaps on the other hand, the fault lies with the Elections Committee for not setting up a concrete and workahle system for conduction of elections. Whichever is the main and faulty block—and we suspicion that it is the latter—It should be remedied soon.

Although the Freshman class is sick and tired of going to the polla, it is hoped that they will make the trip once more. It should be the last time for this election. The Flambeau hopes that the turn-out will be great, so that the Freshman class cannot be accused of apathy or more correct, indifference, resulting from a long and drawn-out mess.

● STIFF TEST

How many students can list the membership of their senate and names of those students now backing each position?

How many students know how vacancies are filled?

How many students know what the Faculty Reviewing Board is? Or what the requirements for holding University Government offices, or the membera of the Women's judiciary and honor court?

These were just a few questions that women senators had to answer st their meeting recently. The senate test was devised to keep the gals sharp on who's who (small letters) and what's what.

The test was stiff. It is doubted if any student could pass 50% of the questions asked. The girls all turned up with cholse scores . . . which helps show the girls are on the ball.

How well would the men senators fare?

EDITOR'S SPOTLIGHT

NATIONAL ELECTION ISSUES LISTED

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

Marquis Childs, who is a noted columnist and authority on Washington politics, enlightened an assembly of college newspaper editors recently with the 'insids' scoop on the presidential race.

He said that the race would be between Truman and Taft . . . unless, Eisenhower decided he could best serve his country by running for president.

The Republicans, stated Childs, will have three issues with which to biast the opposition.

These are: The graft and corruption in the present administration, the loss of China by state department bungling and the questionable and much debated foreign policy of "Europe first."

"The Republicans will present the old dig: get the old timers out, clean house, we need fresh minds," said Childs.

The Democrats will counter with a presentation of the good they have done while in office, of how well the farmers are living, and the recovery of Europe with Marshall Plan aid, Point Four, and how Communism has been baiked with the North Atlantic Pact.

Childs made plea for a clean campaign, not one in which the truth is obliviated by the smear and McCarthyism that usually results in national political races.

Of course the draft Eisenhower campaign is on. The Gallup poll (they've been in error before) shows that a recognizable portion of the American people want Eisenhower as next president . . . republican and democrat alike.

The Flambeau is going to try and present the political issues that will be present on the national and state level.

With the ODK blood for Korea drive in full swing now, here are a few sidelights for your pleasure.

One ambitious frosh senator, Springer, donated the first drop of blood to the drive. In the Flambeau office, no less.

His contribution was collected by letting a cut finger drip into a coke bottle.

He was treated with a band-aid.

The Tri-Delts, first group of sorority gals (The Tarpon club was the first group of girls) to pledge 100% have now increased their contribution to 102%. One Phil Davis is going to give his pint in dedication to the Tri-Delts.

An editorial in the Campus Chat, North Texas State College, Denton, Tex., asked:

"If the Atomic Energy Commission can spend millions, even billions, of dollars to find an easier way to conduct war, why can't the college student take a few peeks over his shoulder to make his examination easier?"

Up at Michigan State University, all automobiles and bicycles have been banned from the campus. In a recent issue of the news one student wrote the editor of the paper trying to warn him of impending dangers.

Among other suggestions he made was outlawing of students wearing heavy shoes to classes. He pointed out that not only would there be the wear and tear on the walks proper, but also the danger threatening those who wished to go without shoes on the crowded walks.

He stood also for a ban of all school books since there would be some students who would be stabbed and cut-up by the sharp corners.

Our beautiful campus looks a bit cheap with the ugly white 'reserved parking' signs plastered all over the campus. They are so huge we can't see the trees for the signs.

HEAD LINES

INFORMAL GET-TOGETHERS NEEDED AT FSU

By ALLAN HEAD

There are a few bright spots in the extra-curricular "cultural" scene here at FSU. But they are few and far between, and as a whole the pictura presented is painted in dull greys or dead blacks.

It is a commonly recognised truism among educators that the extra-curricular activities of students are often of more importance in their educational development than the time spent in class rooms. At many colleges and universities the administration and faculty take an active part in sponsoring informal get-togethers. Why not here?

At Louisiana State University, students and faculty members cooperated in sponsoring weekly "Coffee-orums"—informal forums on various subjects, served up in lively and interesting style with refreshments. They were a big success.

At the teacher's College in Illinois, they had a large and popular "Social Science Club." It brought in speakers from other universities, and sponsored a variety of discussions.

The Oxford Union is known throughout the world for its debates on various topics. Yale, Princeton and Harvard have a number of programs along the same line.

The University of Chicago has a wide and varied extra-curricular program. According to Time many coffee-cup discussions there revolve around subjects of intellectual interest—political, philosophical, social, etc.

At FSU the coffee-cap discussions seem to center around dates, so-and-so's new dress, or the grave crisis our university will face at the next football game.

Last Friday I mentioned that our social program seemed to be practically non-existant. But even more important in the long-run is the fact that for most students here the things they learn in class are completely ignored in their time spent outside class.

But I mentioned a few bright spots. In my opinion the International Debate was one of them. There was a good crowd, and everybody that attended seemed to enjoy the debate; at any rate they were very free with thir applause. The Speech Department plays are also valuable in this line, not only for those students who help produce or act in them, but for the audiences too. Artist Series will help, if it ever comes to life.

This is a problem that can be solved It is the responsibility of both students, faculty and administration to see that it is solved. Maybe student government could take an active part in searching for a solution to the problem of intellectual apathy—it has in other places. Maybe the presideni could set up a presidential committee to investigate what has been done at other colleges and universities. I don't have the final solution, probably no one here has it, but it can be found It has been found at other schools.

BEHIND THE IVY

DOES HONOR CODE MEET ITS STANDARDS?

(Editor's note: This column, behind the Ivy, was first run in the summer issues of the Flambeau. It's aathor, Bob Tippins, is a senior pre-law student. The column will appear in each Tuesday's Flambeau).

By BOB TIPPINS

"Et tu, Brute" . . .

What moral standards are we imposing on the students? What set of values are we teaching?

The Honor Code on this campus imposes a liability on the stodents, without the usual compensating assets.

The general purpose of an Honor Code is to promote trust, confidence, and honesty for the benefit and general welfare of the students.

Does our Honor Code meet the first standard? No, definitely not, when it destroys the very faith and trust it purports to foster.

The one dishonorable part of our honor system demands the adherents inform on their fellow students. . . . Insists that all mistakes and indiscretions of their comrades be reported to a juvenile court of gods and goddesses.

Have our ideals degenerated to the point that treachery is considered honorable . . . that leecherous betrayal of our brothers is deemed praiseworthy?

"Brutus was an honorable man . . ."

How much better it would be, when one noted another's misconduct, to talk to the miscreant, point out his error and explain society's attitude toward his deed, rather than expose him to the ignobie humility of an adolescent judiciary.

Far better to privately criticize than to puolicly condemn.

MacCarthy's smear tactics have not aided in preventing Commnnist activities, but merely aided in arousing antagonism toward him, and sympathy for his opponents.

The threat of public disgrace is far more potent than the actual taint itself. Once a person has been subjected to open condemnation, the fear of such punishment is gone, and the fear no longer exists.

Further, how can we, a majority, dictate to a large minority practices which they may consider corrupt and intolerable?

Do honor, integrity, faith and trust no longer have any real meanings in our American way of life? Are we to fear our neighbors, our confidants? Are we to live in an atmosphere of distrust and apprehension. By upholding the present Honor Code, are we crucifying our own liberties while we crucify our brothers? Has the flag of decency been replaced by the flag of deceit?

"Any fool can make a law, and every fool will follow it."

The question stands . . . Are we to allow a select few, elected by an uninformed majority, to regulate our lives, our thoughts, our ideals?

If so, then go forth, Judas, and betray.

CULTURE IN CROOK OF MY LITTLE FINGER

By FRANCES CAWTHON

I have just discovered that the only culture I have is the crook in my little finger when I hold a tea cup.

The Junior class ploughed through two and a half hours of Math, Science, Fine Arts, History and Social Studies and Literature the other night. If I am correct, one of the prime purposes of the testing was to give the faculty a little insight as to how much our general education program is sinking in. If I were to take seriously what I observed and overheard (and did), they are going to find the Junior class just does not have a high saturation point.

The comments I got from quering the ternal "How'd you like it?" ranged all the way from groans to a beautiful collection of cuss words. But surprisingly enough, and despite bloodshot eyes, the Junior class came out laughing. (In fact, they went in laughing and laughed through the whole thing.)

Everytime the professor would tell us to turn to another section of the examination and start to work, he was greated by a haw-haw and an are-you-kidding attitude. Imagine the chances of knowing the fifth king of Egypt! I guess the humor in the futility of it all was what kept spirits so high.

Everybody, though, must have experienced answering a question here and there in great triumph. One of those questions you thought the rest of the people never heard of, and for some strange reason you remembered from Lit 983.

When I had Math 101, I learned Math 101. (Requirement for passing). But due to long periods of disuse and what psychologists call repression, I would now probably believe someone if he told me a hypotenuse was a four-legged beast of the lower Amazon.

The crushing blow of the whole examination came to me, I think, when I could not even remember the author of the comic strip. Things are getting to a tragic stage, indeed, when a person cannot even answer a question concerning the things about which he knows most.

I do not think the Junior class can be accused of lacking a sense of beauty. When two pretty girls walked across the stage, the male part of our class promptly showed their appreciation by applause, whistles and calls. Bless their souls! They may not know what two plus two equals, but they are cultured in their own realm.

Speaking of culture exams, I can't helping laughing up my sweater sleeve) They expect me to know who wrote Symphony Such-and-Such when I never get a chance to hear it. But I am going to hear the Dallas Symphony play it next Tuesday. Artist Series, you know.

I surely have been enjoying all the educational lectures, plays and operas we have been having this year. I think they are really putting all the students' money to good use. Of course it is all a terrific strain on my imagination.

FBI Agent Warns Against Communism

Matt Cvetic, the former FBI undercover agent who posed as a Communist for nine years, said recently at the University of Miami, "If we lose the fight against Communism now, we lose it forever."

teered for the duty when ap-

The agent whose adventures have been set down in the movie, "I Was a Communist for the FBI," warned that the Communists are constantly striving to gain control of America's youth.

CVETIC WARNED that Soviet agents and their threat cannot be judged by the relatively small number of Moscow-men in the country.

"All are trained to be leaders," the 42-year-old FBI man declared, "and it doesn't take a thousand Alger Hisses to betray a country; it takes only one."

Cvetic, who is now working on his autobiography "Let's Fight Back," stressed that Soviet agents are not cloak and dagger men hiding in wine cellars, but are men engaged in legitimate pursuits.

AS ONE OF the top "Communists" agents in Pittsburgh area, Cvetic helped organize various side-arm parties to the main body of the "Red Threat."

Until he testified before the Houss un-American Activities committee in February, 1950, Cvetic's family believed him to be a Russian agent. He had volun-proached by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1941 and was recruited into the party, ironically enough on Lincoln's birthday, 1943.

THE FORMER employment service official stated his threefold plan for fighting the Communist threat on its own grounds are education, exposure and concentrated work toward a better United States.

Now that his official undercover work is completed, Cvetic continues to appear in court and government investigations as an expert consultant on Communism He combines this with touring the 48 states to speak on the "Communist Threat in the U. S."

He closed with the statement "there isn't a corner in this country where FBI's operatives are not in the heart of what's going on, quietly protecting American democracy."

Dr. Hoffman Is Elected President Of The Florida AATSP Chapter

Dr Dorothy Hoffman, Florida State University professor of Spanish, was elected president of the Florida chapter of American Association of Spanish and Portuguese teachers. The election took place at the close of the two-day meeting at the University of Florida November 9 and 10.

Two other Florida State University representatives also gained offices

MRS. AZURRA GIVENS, instructor in Italian and French, was selected secretary of the state association. Miss Jean Allen Smith, graduate, now teaching in Andrew Jackson High School in Jacksonville, was elected treasurer.

Vice-president chosen was Dr Doris King Arjona of Stetson University, Deland.

Presiding over the teachers' sessions was Dr. Herbert Lacayo, Florida State University associate professor of Spanish. Dr. Lincoln Canfield, of the FSU modern language department, addressed the association in Spanish on Latin America.

DR. HOFFMAN gave an illustrated lecture on Peru Friday evening. She used the pictures which she had taken last summer in Peru.

Included among FSU modern language faculty members present at the sessions were Mrs. Azurra Givens, Mr and Mrs. Roger Farley, Miss Eva Mae Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Boggs, Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, Miss Marjorie Judy Dr Herbert Lacayo and Dr. Lincoln Canfield.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

Reminiscing . . .

It's only about half as big as Florida State. The weather would make a neurotic of a gold slacked Miamian. Has a damn good scholastic rating but after three years all I can remember are the many hours at the G.S.

G.S. is the obvious abbrebiation of the student-bestowed (and descriptive) name of the college hangout, the Greasy Spoon.

It's a moldy little place, built to accommodate perhaps 25 of the more slope-shouldered. There were much glossy, modern places which served only the owner, cortex constantly generating ways and means of luring in the suds-sucking student. But the scroungy little G.S. continued to pack in an impossible number of talking, singing—yeah, and thinking characters.

And so FSU's G.S. is by order of the Dean of Men declared, off limits.

The reason given could easily be a reason for shuttering the Mecca, Sweet Shop, etc.—for there too are students obviously "engaging in activities far removed from study."

College girls have traditionally been "taken care of" by the rules of their alma maters. But male students since Socrates have been allowed to indulge in activities which may be described as typically male—and sometimes even teach a little about life as practiced beyond the Ivy.

There's a good reason why the G.S. sticks with me while many a prof's favorite lecture has slipped away. Because there they talked of what they wanted. There with the stops out came some understanding of many elusive truths.

Officers of the club are Frank Nelson, president; Evelyn Saulerson, vice-president; Eleanor Scott, secretary; Bill Dunn, treasurer; and Dr. Claude Flory of the English department as faculty advisor.

Tryouts Scheduled

Tryouts for the second annual freshman play will be held in the Little gymnasium of the Women's gym tomorrow from 7 to 10 p.m.

All freshmen are urged to try out for pieces on the cast or crew. This production is entirely handled by freshmen.

This year's play will be Stage Door, a comedy by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman and will be produced Jan. 15 and 16.

Requirements For Freshman Honorary Presented To Coeds

Freshmen girls were enlightened on the activities and membership requirements of Alpha Lambda Delta freshman scholastic honorary at a coffee in their honor Thursday.

Alpha Lambda Delta president, Jean Enoch, gave a speech concerning the aims of the honorary. The president said that any freshman girl with a 2.5 average for her first semester would be tapped in the spring.

Scholastic honoraries represented at the Alpha Lambda Delta coffee were Phi Beta Kappa, academic fraternity recognizing high scholarship; Phi Kappa Phi, recognized for superior scholarship in all fields; Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary; Sigma Tau Delta, English honorary; Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary; Sigma Delta Phi, Spanish honorary; Pi Delta Phi, French honorary; Pi Kappa Lambda, music honorary; and Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music honorary.

Honored guests also were Dr. and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell, Dean of Women Katherine Warren and sponsor Mrs. Olivia Deman of the classics department.

Sandspurites Asked To Pick Up Scripts

Producer Bill Backus of Sandspur's 1952 production "This Is the Life," asked all cast members who have not received their scripts to contact him before next week via the bulletin board.

"I want the players to become acquainted with the play, but not to the point where they memorize their parts. There are still a few corrections and additions to be included," commented Geo r g e Cary, director of the musical comedy.

A notice from the costume department asked that those with borrowed costumes return them to the costume room in the Longmire building immediately.

Trained Scientists In Great Demand

Educational counselors for freshman students have been given information concerning the great need in the country today for trained scientific personnel and engineers.

The various experts in the field of personnel think that the students in our colleges may will give serious consideration to the scientific fields, particularly if their interests and abilities point to work of that nature.

FOREMOST AMONG the educators urging that attention be given by students to the immediate need for trained scientists is Dr. Earl McGrath, United States Commissioner of Education, who points out that the Nation is confronted with a serious shortage of scientifically and technically trained personnel. The commissioner stated that the supply of scientific and engineering graduates in 1951 is less than half that needed to fully man our economic and defense programs. Present indications show that there will be a steady decrease in the number prepared for such fields until 1954, while the need for such individuals will continue to increase.

Several specific actions were formulated to offset this shortage one of which very definitely was directed toward college students, mainly that our educational institutions can develop counseling programs which will result in a large number of men and women being trained in these fields. Here is where our counseling department at Florida State comes into action.

DR. MELVENE HARDEE, Coordinator of Counselors at FSU has issued an urgent request for students to read the September issue of Scientific American which includes eight articles devoted to a survey of "The Human Resources of the United States." One of the articles reports that after scouting the nation's graduating classes last spring, employers of scientific personnel were able to find only 36 per cent of the employees they needed.

It is hoped by the office of counselors that all those students at FSU undecided about their major will read and seriously consider the merits of entering a scientific or technical field.

Professor Joins In Museum Opening

Dr. Robert Anderson of the department of anthropology and archaeology recently took part in the formal opening of the Seminole National Monument museum at Macon, Georgia.

Dr. Anderson has recently started research on othnographic studies of the Seminole, Cherokee and other Southeastern aboriginal groups.

While attending the museum opening, he saw a parade presented by Creek Indians from Oklahoma. Before their removal to the Oklahoma federal reservation, the Creek Indians formerly lived in Georgia and North Carolina.

Accompanying Dr. Anderson to Macon was Dr. Miles Ritchie, head of the Audio-visual department. He took a documentary film of the Creek Indians playing La Crosse.

Officer Applications Due November 17

"Slummers" Drive Soda Shop Crowd Elsewhere

By EMORY KING

The Soda Shop in the basement of the Longmire Building has long been noted for its Bohemian and pseudo-intellectual atmosphere.

However, in recent months, many of the characters who made the shop distinctive have left—looking for a less conspicuous place to gather.

THEY ARE complaining that too many students come to the soda shop in a slumming mood—and sit there watching and making fun of the proceedings.

"The same thing happened," ens fellow said, "to Greenwich Village and the Bowery. The uptowners came down slumming all the time. Soon the old guard characters got tired of being on display like an animal in the zoo and they left."

Only a few months ago the Soda Shop was filled with Bohemian-pseudo-intellectuals who spent their days and nights philosophizing, psychoanalyzing, propagandizing their fellow students—or anyone who would listen.

IN A FLAMBEAU article dated August 14, 1950, this writer said:

"It is possible to find persons from all walks of the campus life going through the door at any time that passes the cash register. Professors, students, painters, visitors, carpenters, members of the staff, bus drivers, plumbers, cops, and short workers can be found drinking coffee or discussing a topic of current interest.

"Here, one may find the highest and lowest in intellects, the best and worst in manners and ethics. Some call it FSU's answer to the Paris Latin Quarter; others, a composite of New York's Columbus Circle and London's Hyde Park. One student said that the place was filled with "lovers, crusaders, intellectuals, near geniuses, and would like to be geniuses.

"ANOTHER SAID that it was a meeting ph of the University. Here you will find music majors, psychology majors, art majors, journalism majors, and philosophy majors, with a generous sprinkling of speech majors and education majors—all piping their various tirades on unsuspecting students.

"Here, also, you will find beauty and sordidness, optimists and pessimists, sadists, cynics and bragarts. The theorists of government, religion, economics, dialectics, and sex all have their following.

"Every day sees its hangovers. Its post-mortal social workers beating their 'reform or be damned' drums, and its die-hard radicals, advocating their own particular brand of philosophy of life.

"THESE INTROVERTS and extroverts, dirty jokesters and practical jokesters, who affectionately call themselves Alum Bombs, Soda Shoppers, or Gay Blades might seem peculiar to the average observer, but they are homogeneous in one respect. They like to gather in the Soda Shop and talk . . . and talk . . . and talk . . . and talk . . .

Today, however, the Soda Shop is a quieter place—a place where most students seem to be waiting for something to happen. But outside of a few music students who gather to sing with the juke box, nothing sensational, peculiar, or unique happens.

Thirty Men Attend F Club Meeting

Thirty members, an increase from the eight at the beginning of the school year, attended the regular Thursday night meeting of the Men's F-Club which was held at 7:30 p.m. in the Women's gym.

Kery for all members and a special F-Key to all graduating seniors was part of the discussion that took place.

It was also decided that various athletic teams represented in the F-Club would compete against the others in a drive for new members. Once a member of F-Club, always a member, for membership is given for life.

Tom Robertson, assistant football coach and faculty advisor to the F-Club said, "The F-Club is potentially one of the most constructive and influential organizations on the campus and only the enthusiasm and co-operation of all varsity lettermen is needed to make the club what it should be, a strong, influential organization of athletes which can help the school, athletics and the individual himself."

Two FSU Students Elected To Office

Dot Douglas and Jan Arbogast, two Florida State University students, were elected to major offices at the Florida Home Economics Association's state convention November 2 and 3 at Daytona Beach.

At the election of officers for the Intercollegiate Home Economics Club, Dot Douglas was named president, and Jan Arbogast, secretary.

One of the convention highlights was a Florida home appliance dealer's display, at which time several FSU delegates won prizes. Winners were Jo Gilbert, Shirley Allen, and Jackie Summers.

Public Ad. Lecturer

The first of series of state officials to lecture to a class in public administration will be Homer Graham, state budget director.

Mr. Graham will speak to a class studying "Public Administration Principles," tomorrow morning at eight in the History building.

Dean Campbell Is Subject of Interview In Quill And Scroll

Courses in journalism help all students whether they intend to enter the profession or not, summed up Dr. Laurence R. Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism, in a recent article published in Quill and Scroll.

John Newton Baker, director of FSU's public relation office, in "The Answer Is Yes," has listed the contributions that Journalistic training makes to the student as stated by Dr. Campbell.

According to Dr. Campbell, one of the most important contributions is citizenship training. He says, "Student journalists develop desirable traits of personality and character—accuracy, tact, punctuality, poise and persistence, to mention a few. Students on a staff learn to work together, think together. They learn to value our free press . . . Student writers and reporters are able to gather and present information objectively. They learn to communicate simply and effectively."

Dr. Campbell, one of America's leading authorities on this school press, is co-author of "Exploring Journalism," "Newsmen at Work," "Newsbeat," and "Guide to Radio-TV Writing." He is chairman of the Critical Service of Quill and Scroll, international honorary society for high school journalists.

FSU Defense Shines in Wofford Win

Fiveash And Thompson Star In Seminoles Last Home Tilt

The Florida State University Seminoles powered their way to a 14-0 win over the stubborn Wofford Terriers from Spartanburg, S. C., before a small gathering of 5,667 fans in Campbell Stadium last Saturday.

Playing what Coach Don Veller classified as their "best defensive game of the year," the Seminoles turned in a magnificent performance for their last home appearance of the year.

The win was their sixth of the season against but a single defeat, suffered at the hands of mighty Miami; and was the thirtieth win in thirty-three starts under the direction of Coach Veller.

The fact that FSU was the first team in sixteen games to hold the Terriers from scoring, sneaks for the brilliant defense the Seminoles displayed before the small crowd, which included the twenty high school bands present for FSU's first annual "Band Day."

THE SEMINOLE DEFENSE held the Wofford eleven to one first down in the first half and a total of seven for the entire game. The Terriers were able to gain only 42 yards on the ground and 87 through the air.

The Seminole offense led by the running of halfback Roy Thompson and the passing of Bobby Fiveash, rolled up 15 first downs with 218 yards on the turf and 117 through the aerial route.

THOMPSON CARRIED seventeen times for a total of 133 yards and an average of 7.8, while Fiveash was completing 5 out of nine passes for 78 yards. Sellers was second in the rushing department with 47 yards, while Dick Turk came in third with 26.

Nelson Italiano, who saw very limited action because of injuries sustained in the Jax Navy game, threw only one pass, but it was as shrewd in by Curt Campbell, who danced through half of the Wofford team to score the Seminoles' first touchdown.

This score came early in the second period after Wofford fullback McLellan got off a bad punt that went out of bounds on their own 24 yard line.

The second and last score of the game came in the first five minutes of play in the third quarter when Dick Turk dove over from the three-inch line, after he had sparked the 48-yard drive, which started after Jimmy Lee Taylor blocked a Wofford punt.

COACH VELLER remarked after the game that he did not wish to single out any particular linemen for their good play, because he thought the entire team deserved credit for the victory over the Wofford team, which had gone into the game on even terms with the Seminoles.

The Seminoles end their season next week, when they journey to Tampa to battle the Spartans in the Cigar Bowl.

Dick Turk, Seminole fullback, cracks through the Wofford line to score FSU's second touchdown late in the third period of the Terrier-Florida State battle last Saturday. Other identifiable Seminoles are Steve Kelanics (73), end; and tackle Bob Wodrich (33). Wofford players are tackle Bill Thuston (57), both Bobby Sterner (41), and guard Bill Scrivner (33).

Sr. Class Observes Prexy's Birthday

Festivities Begin With Sr. Dinner Followed by Reception 'On the Hill'

Annual celebration of President Doak S. Campbell's birthday in his tenth year at Florida State University will begin with a senior dinner at 5:30 p. m. today.

The dinner to be held in the Cafeteria room will be followed by a reception at the President's home.

FOUR HUNDRED one dollar tickets for the dinner have been purchased for sale through fraternity and sorority houses the University Book store Men's Senior hall and Landis Senior hall. Tickets will be sold at the door of the Lafayette room tonight, senior class President Dick Bradford said.

"We are asking that the unsold tickets be turned in to the Alumni building information desk by noon today," the senior president emphasized. This is to enable the dining hall management to know how many dinner guests to expect tonight, he said.

THIS IS the first time the dining hall management has ever served in the dining hall for less than a dollar and fifty cents, Bradford commented.

The banquet will be an informal affair.

Outstanding feature of the dinner program will be the presentation of the birthday gift to President Campbell by the senior class president.

The meal is expected to last until 7:30 p.m. after which the seniors will go in a group body out to the President's home for the reception. The group will walk unless weather permitting.

SERVING AT the reception will be Mortar Board members, women's leadership, scholastic group. The Mortar Board president will also be in charge of taking the tickets at the door to the dinner.

Seniors are absolutely not to wear caps and gowns at the dinner.

Bi-Y Will Sponsor Dance Tomorrow

In response to the plea for organized recreation, Bi-Y, student Christian association, is sponsoring a barn dance at the East Florida women's gymnasium, tomorrow night at 8.

The second Bi-Y barn dance will have a Thanksgiving theme, said president Wally Dynes.

Bill Teal, of the recreation department will call the dances. The evening will feature round and square dances with the purpose of offering planned recreation for the men and women of Florida State University, added Dynes.

Enthusiasm continues for Bi-Y barn dances. They will be scheduled hereafter.

UGA Group To Investigate Possible Board

A committee of five, headed by Senator Joe Bunnell, will investigate the possibility of setting up a board of publications. It was decided at the University Senate's regular meeting Tuesday.

The committee, composed of Senators Landry, Tuxano, Whitehead and Bonner, was formed after approval of the resolution introduced by Jim Landry.

PROPOSED constitutional amendments pertaining to the election of the WFSU station manager was given its first reading at the meeting. Bob Bonner, present station manager, spoke in favor of the act, which was introduced by Senators Summers and Carothers.

The Senate unanimously moved to accept the recommendations of Senator Lohmeyer and Alice Davidson be appointed to the two vacancies of Forum chairman and senior women's senator, respectively.

THE SENATE also elected Mary Ruth Summers and Ignacio Sivo as delegates to the Florida State Student Government Association convention, to be held December 7-10 at Florida Southern. Mary Helen Speed and Jere Baizers were elected alternates.

Chairman Jim Kirk, reported that the plan for a special faculty session and ticket price for football games was impractical, since many faculty members have already purchased $20 books for the next five years. The Senate unanimously dropped the matter.

IN FANCHO SVED'S department, Senate approved a motion making a quorum two-thirds. Senator Syed also announced that the Rules Committee is planning to present a bill to amendment to the Senate on the readings required for Senate. The bill provides for standing committees, the length and time of Senate meetings, and the posting of an agenda of business before Senate meetings.

The Senate unanimously passed a resolution by Senator Krasnaman that the standing committees be appointed at the first of each year. The Rules Committee will present a list of committeemistees for approval at the next meeting. Those under consideration are rules, absence, constitutional, student regulations, student service, and finance.

Absent from the meeting were Nancy Smith and Charis Cautler.

Frosh Elections Are Settled By Close Vote

Last of Two Runoffs Ends Frosh Politicing For One More Year

Narrow margins determined the final results in the third and final freshman primary election. Tuesday.

Election results confirmed by chairman Harry Paul were Mimi Patterson, vice president; Dot Wells, secretary; Don Van Hise, treasurer; and Mary Grace Shoemaker, parliamentarian.

MIMI PATTERSON, candidate for vice president of the class, defeated opponent, Lillian Avis, by a 20 vote margin. Final tabulation was Patterson, 175; Avis, 155.

Miss Patterson emphasized her plans for work on the freshman carnival. She thanks her supporters and stated, "I promise you to do my best to uphold the standards you place upon me and serve you to the very best of my ability."

In the race for freshman class secretary, Dot Wells was elected when she received 169 votes to Dorothy Johnson's 138.

SHE WILL assume the office of secretary with a varied amount of experience behind her. Miss Wells served as secretary of her high school class last year, and attended school in 1950. She also expressed her desire to work with other officers of the freshman class in accomplishing the aims of their respective offices.

Don Van Hise was elected treasurer by a margin of three votes. His opponent, Carolyn Johnson, received 167 votes to 164.

Winning by the greatest margin of the election, Mary Grace Shoemaker, candidate for freshman parliamentarian. She defeated her opponent, Alma Black, 187 to 147 votes.

Run-off elections on Tuesday primary culminates the series of run-off elections. Over eighty-five percent of the freshman class turned out for the twelve available offices.

The first primary, October 30, resulted in the election of Gracen Sandy, president; Jane Kennedy, Phil Springer, and Don Allen Whitehead, freshman senators.

November 6 election results were Charis Cautler, 250 votes; and Lois Stroop, women senators; and Jackie Price, social chairman.

Artist Series Ticket Available Nov. 19, 20

Student tickets for the first Artist Series program of the year, a lecture by Dr. Gerald Wendt of UNESCO, may be picked up in the Public Relations office November 19 and 20. There will be posting of an agenda of business before Senate meetings.

The Senate unanimously passed a resolution by Senator Krasnaman that the standing committees be appointed at the first of each year. The Rules Committee will present a list of committeemistees for approval at the next meeting. Those under consideration are rules, absence, constitutional, student regulations, student service, and finance.

Absent from the meeting were Nancy Smith and Charis Cautler.

SPEECH PLAY

'A Phoenix Too Frequent' Provides Entertainment Via Imagination

By JUNE MORGAN

The thespian star of achievement should be awarded to the speech department for their first experimental play, Auden's A Phoenix Too Frequent.

For the imagination evident in the finished product they won the enthusiasm of theater-goers Monday and Tuesday nights.

OUTSTANDING FEATURE of the production was that members of the cast were perfectly suited to the roles they played. Although, not the leading character, Bunny Banks, as the slave-girl Doto claimed the audience's attention and held it throughout the evening with her clever pantomime animation. Her performance gave life to sometimes hazy dialogue that otherwise would have slowed down the whole production. Her facial expression, and gestures added a piquant touch that was the highest of the whole production.

Dramatic and serene in her role as the widowed Dynamene, Dorothy Silver played opposite Robert March, Tyeus-Chromis the handsome young soldier.

CARL ZERKE, the director, also contributed unity of purpose, lightina, costuming, set and plot. His direction of the cast achieved every effect that could be secured for Christopher Fry's play

The basic criticism of the production was the wordy style of the playwright. Several times the audience, like the actors bogged down in superfluous dialogue and the audience attention lagged.

Members of the speech department have the opportunity to use it as an experimental play as A Phoenix Too Frequent offers many varied types of characters to use it. The style of the plot demands the most excellent cast direction, setting, and even then does not appeal to a majority of theater-goers.

THE STORY concerns a widow who is overcome by her husband's death. The curtain opens on a Grecian tomb where Dynamene and her servant, Dotos are preparing for death and the ultimate reunion with the deceased husband in Hell. A soldier stumbles on the scene and is so inspired by the widow's fidelity that he falls in love with her.

While he talks with her somewhere else, one of the six bodies he has been assigned to guard has Although Dynamene and he have fallen in love, when he finds the body he has been assigned to guard is missing, he proposes to substitute for the one he lost.

Special praise is due costumer Douglas Blackwell for his appropriate costume designs. By using similar shades of violet for the graceful Grecian gowns of Dynamene and Tegeus he identifies them in their relationship. In opposition to this is the orange dress of the slave-girl Dotos.

Credit for the tomb setting, that fitted so perfectly with the play was due to director Carl Zerke and technical advisor Wyn Park.

Sharp Student Protest Is Aimed Toward Traffic-Safety Regulation

JERRY THOMAS, public administration major and Harold Raines, psychology major, with student Florida State University in a demonstration debate with the University this afternoon at Rollins College.

F. S. U., of Fla. Debate Tonight

Florida State University and the University of Florida will debate before the annual meeting of the Florida Speech Association at Rollins College, Winter Park, tonight at eight.

Harold Raines and Jerry Thomas, representing FSU, will affirm the resolution "That All American Citizens Should Be Subject to Conscription For Essential Service in Time of War."

THIS WILL BE the first time in recent years that FSU and U. of F have debated before a large audience. They have met during the last three years at various debate tournaments throughout the South, Dr. Gress Pfifer, of the speech department said.

Raines represented FSU last year in a debate at Emory when he affirmed that "Resolved That Non-Communist Nations of the World Form a New International Organization." The affirmative won.

THOMAS is a political science major at FSU and Raines is a Methodist pre-ministerial student and lay preacher in Tallahassee.

Dr. Clarence Edney, speech department head, will serve as consultant for the meeting. Dr. Thomas B. Lewis, speech department, will conduct the business meeting and Dr. Gress Pfifer will be in charge of arranements for the debate.

President Campbell Is Guest Speaker At SRDA Meeting

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, Florida State University president, spoke to the delegates of the Fifth Annual Conference of the Southeastern Resources Development association at the State Capitol yesterday concerning problems of the South and possible solutions.

DR. CAMPBELL said that regional organization and cooperation is the only solution to the problems common to the Southeastern states.

The many common resources, such as water, and climate can be developed to make the Southeast one of the great regions in the nation.

FSU's PRESIDENT said that the Southeastern region's capacity for the production of food and fiber is capable of great expansion, a step that will increase the national defense New and greater markets for southern products are also possible.

In conclusion, President Campbell stated that the region's cooperation of non-governmental agencies and the combined pressures of the entire area will aid in breaking down the barriers that prevent greater development of the Southeastern states.

Registration Closes

Leon County citizens are reminded that registration books will be open tomorrow afternoon for the coming wet-dry election.

Complaints Are Against 'Reserved' Parking; Flambeau Editor Receives Flood of Letters

Sharp student protest echoed across the campus this week in opposition to the traffic safety regulations now being enforced by the student traffic court.

- The force of complaints were against the "reserved faculty and staff" parking areas that left only 40 student parking places in the downtown area.
- In FLOOD of letters, backed by campus-wide verbal disagreement, urged some compromise to the present set-up.
- Will Pennell, University Government Association president, has proposed a two-hour parking time for the busiest areas for both students and faculty, therefore those who wish to park all day could use the off-the-campus parking areas.
- "I feel sure that this experimental parking area will be improved but a tolerant understanding and constructive criticism is needed," stated the UGA president. "Cooperation with the traffic court will help solve the existing parking problem."
- THE NEW TRAFFIC regulations went into effect last Monday under the leadership of Cecelia Gnann, traffic court chairman. However, warning tickets were given out at the first of October 30.
- Several of the early violations were tried in the traffic court Wednesday night.
- Students who protested that faculty members and University staff were parking in the alight zone were told the students in the classroom area.
- A Flambeau reporter counted 32 faculty cars in the alight period that were parked illegally in the student area which had not received tickets from the University policeman.
- UNIVERSITY GRADUATE students, faculty and staff members' areas are to be fixed on the Tallahassee Municipal Court.
- The student traffic court was a creation of Ronald Koons, senior senator last year. UP until October 18, 1951, when Senator Koons' traffic committee was given the go-ahead by the University senate, traffic cases were decided upon by the business office.
- Koons' bill to establish a student traffic court was on its second reading and final passage April 10, 1951.
- DURING THE summer interim, Don Farquharson, directed by chairman Senator Rod H. Shaw, sent a campus parking questionnaire to a selected group of college students in the country.
- Out of 45 replies, 32 colleges allowed student to park on campus, and 28 permitted students to park cars in the classroom area.
- ONLY HALF of the traffic violations are punishable; five violations are punishable by fines. Twenty-eight of the colleges issue university plates or stickers.
- The Florida State University Traffic Safety Code will be used by the student traffic court, a bill concerning the chairmanship of the court, George Gnann, "specifically for the student's benefit and convenience."
- When asked if he had written the code, Gnann replied, "No comment." Two Justices assisting Gnann on the court are Arden Eubanks and Charles Milford.

Tryouts to Be Held For Frosh Comedy Tonight From 7 to 9

Freshmen are invited to attend tryouts for the second annual freshman play. Tryouts will be held in 205 History tonight from 7 to 9 p.m.

The play, Stage Door, by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman, is a comedy built around a group of girls who live in a boarding house.

Freshmen are urged to come to tryouts to read a prepared part or sign up for crew work. Every position excepting that of director will be filled by a student. They may sign for work as assistant director, house manager, stage manager, or work on construction, lighting, properties, costumes, make-up and publicity.

They may also read for the 11 male roles and 21 female roles.

The play will be produced Jan. 15 and 16. Robert Marsh, graduate student, is department of speech, will direct.

Margaret Truman To Sing Monday

The State Symphony of Florida will open the season with guest artist and soprano soloist, Margaret Truman, Monday night at 8:15. Miss Truman will appear at the Leon High School auditorium.

Eighty per cent of the 85 season tickets have been sold. The remaining tickets may be purchased in 208 Music building or Jenkins, Gridley, and Thompson music stores in downtown Tallahassee.

MEMBERSHIP IN the Symphony season ticket plan is restricted to 1,250 because of the limited seating capacity of the auditorium.

The guest artist Monday will be accompanied by the Symphony orchestra under the direction of Karl Kuersteiner, Florida State University professor in the School of Music.

The program will consist of a series of operatic selections and songs by the coloratura soprano. Miss Truman made her professional debut with the Detroit Symphony orchestra in 1947. Her appearance in Tallahassee will be part of her fourth national tour.

MUSIC CRITICS have been unanimous in their praise of her poise, elegant presence, lack of affectation and charming appearance.

Miss Truman's interest in music began at the age of eight when her father gave her a piano and encouraged her in lessons. She studied under Helen Traubel, well-known American artist.

Her estimated income from concert work is approximately $75,000 a year.

MISS SOPRANO soloist received her B. A. degree from George Washington University where she majored in English and Spanish, receiving above average grades. She is an alumna member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

The orchestral portion of Miss Truman's program will also include the Symphony in D Minor, by Cesar Franck; the overture to Oberon by von Weber; the overture to Russian and Ludmilla by Glinka; and Salando Nuhi—A Barn Dance by Robert Sanders.

Sponsored by the Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce, the State Symphony is made up of faculty and students of Florida State University and local townspeople.

Carolyn Hadden Will Reign Tonite

Carolyn Hadden, Miss Gymkana of 1951, will reign over the final student night production of "Playland U. S. A." tonight in the women's gymnasium.

Also reigning will be her two attendants Frances Ann Richardson, and Jean Chrisinger, runners-up to the queen contest.

THE SHOW, which is scheduled for 7:30 tonite, has been rearranged to fit into the time limit allocated by the size of the gymnasium. However, it includes the major acts that highlighted its last week presentation at the North Florida Fair grounds.

Regular admission is adults, 60 cents; children 40. All Florida State University students will be admitted for 25 cents upon presentation of their identification cards.

The show opens with a bronzed Miss Gymkana, symbol of Gymkana.

THE TRIP through the United States with the gym troupe beginning at Tallyann beach featuring the Bathing Beauties. Tallyann is a somersault routine.

The Playland Express moves from Milwaukee, to Chicago, the Dakotas, and New York. Highlights of the show are the human torch act, flying rings, and sidehorse exhibition.

In white satin and sequins, the calisthenic team featuring Don Holder, Connie Hall, Carol Winkler, and Pat Signorelli performs a graceful balancing routine.

Among theatrical highlights of the show is the transformation of a formal attire. Starring in this scene are "Sat Payne and Dick Tracy."

Many of the performers in the Gymkana show are national record holders. Among the national champions are Bill Rotelheim and Gene Rabold, two Pan-American trials.

Bill Rotelheim, will soon be featured in a national magazine article. "Mr. Gym Man" to be published by Friends Magazine, Carroll Segars, Friend's photographer, said. He is now touring to sign up for crew work. Every position excepting that of director will be filled by a student. They may sign for work as assistant director, house manager, stage manager, or work on construction, lighting, properties, costumes, make-up and publicity.

They may also read for the 11 male roles and 21 female roles.

The play will be produced Jan. 15 and 16. Robert Marsh, graduate student, is department of speech, will direct.

Budget of Florida Is Growing Bigger States the Director

Florida's state budget is growing every year according to State Budget Director Fred Graham who spoke before a Public Administration class Wednesday.

Florida's budget in the past 6 years the disbursements of state revenues have shown over a 100 per cent increase. The majority of the funds go into state highway, welfare, health and education, the budget director noted.

IN VIEW of changing conditions and the necessity of preparing budgets several years in advance, Graham said that the budget of some $2,000,000 for the deficiency fund for the present year.

Actually $300,000 a year for the deficiency fund and $300,000 for the emergency fund is used.

MOST FLORIDA departments in the state government, Graham said is called a fair operation basis although some ask for funds for an ideal basis. The speaker said that in some cases, the department of finance and taxation has cut the requests on a basis of bare necessity.

Graham is one of a series of "visiting professors" who will speak to the class during the semester, Dr. James A. Norton, assistant professor of public administration, said.

All Dorms to Remain Open for Holidays

All dorms and one of the dining halls will remain open during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Women students planning to visit at a friend's home instead of spending the holidays at home must file a special letter of permission with their residence counselors.

Thanksgiving holidays begin at 5 p.m. Wednesday, November 21, and last until Monday, November 26, at 8 a.m. Students with unexcused cuts for classes immediately preceding or following the holidays will be assessed double cuts for their absence.

Greetings Are Against Student Rule

Greetings are against the rules of the student handbook, Dean of Women Dorothy Shaw said today.

Dean Shaw was commenting on the practice of sending greetings to students in the Florida Flambeau.

"The practice is against the rules of the student handbook," Dean Shaw said.

Courses Offered In Correspondence

Correspondence courses are offered by the University of Florida, Dr. Ralph Bellamy, director of the University Extension division, announced today.

Courses are offered in agriculture, business administration, education, engineering, journalism, liberal arts, and pharmacy.

Students may enroll at any time and have nine months in which to complete the course.

Council Cuts Delegate No.

University Council Tuesday, considered paring down travel fund expenditures by cutting the number of convention delegates in half as compared to last year.

This new policy was suggested by Sue Saxon, chairman of the Travel Fund committee, in her report. She listed the number of conventions attended last year and outlined a plan for future allocation of funds.

IT WAS DECIDED that Council send one delegate, and two delegates be sent from Senate to the fall Florida Student Government convention. December 5 and 6 at Florida Southern College. The motion was further amended to include that two of the delegates be men and one a woman.

Betty Rich was selected as the delegate to represent Council at the FSGA Lakeland convention next month.

The vacancy left in the Women's Senate by Myra Knight is to be filled by Alice Davidson.

WHO'S WHO chairman, June Conyers, requested Council's assistance in formulating a fair

F. S. U.-Tampa in Cigar Bowl Tomorrow

Will Be Fourth Game of Series; Have Not Beaten Veller Team

The Tampa Spartans will seek their initial win over a Veller coached Florida State team when the teams meet in the Cigar Bowl in Tampa tomorrow night at 8:00.

The Spartans have played Veller's teams three times so far and haven't managed to come close as of yet. They lost the 1948 contest 33-12, the 1949 tilt 34-7, and last year's fray 35-19.

The Spartans, who have a four won, three lost, and one tied record, will probably give the Seminoles more of a battle this year though, as they have been pointing towards this game all season. The Spartans lost to the Stetson Hatters 14-14 and lost to powerful Wofford by a 20-14 score. They have also lost to Appalachian and Bradley, while winning over Le-noir Rhyne, Jacksonville State, Alabama), Livingston State, and South Georgia.

The Seminoles will be without the services of Nelson Italiano and Bill Culver, although Italiano might possibly see some action, should he be needed. Jimmy Arnold, injured early this year, was limited action against Wofford and will be available for spot duty in the Tampa contest.

With their best game only a week old, the Seminoles will be the favorites, as they answered many questions as to their strength and established themselves as one of the most highly regarded small colleges in the nation.

This will be the last game of the season for the Seminoles as they try to get their seventh win as against one loss for the campaign. If they succeed it will be the 31st win in 34 starts under the guidance of Veller.

The Seminoles displayed remarkable defense against the South Carolina team last week as they held them to 34 yards on the ground and 87 through the air.

Scores of the basketball games played November 13:

The first game between A.T.O. and Theta Chi was postponed by mutual agreement of both teams. This game will be made up on Tuesday, November 20, at 7:00 p.m. The S.A.E.-Kappa Sigma contest, that was postponed on Nov. 8 will be played immediately following at 7:45. These are the only games scheduled for the 20th.

Sigma Nu defeated Sigma Chi 17-13 for their third win. The Sigma Nu attack was led by Nowlin with 7 points.

Lambda Chi Alpha trounced winless Kappa Sigma 37-6. Kerban for L.C.A. was hot, dumping in 4 field goals and 3 charity tosses for a total of 18 points.

K. A. kept in pace with L. C. A. by also running their fifth game. They outscored Delta Tau Delta 23-19 with Bryan leading the way for them with his 9 points.

Phi Kappa Tau slipped past S.A.E. 25-23 with Vincent scoring 9 points for the winners. This eliminated all possibility of S.A.E. getting into the playoffs.

A.T.O. and S.P.E will represent section one of the frat teams in the double elimination playoffs and Kappa Alpha and Lambda Alpha will represent section two.

The playoffs will start in both leagues on Monday, November 26.

BOWLING

both dormitory and fraternity bowling will start Monday November 28. Dormitory entries have been sent to all managers that entered basketball teams in intramural competition. These are due back in the Intramural Office no later than 5:00 p.m., Nov. 21. Any dormitory or independent group wishing to enter that has not received an entry blank should contact the intramural office.

Schedules will be sent out to the fraternities within the next few days.

Dormitory League

Monday's Results:

The K. O. T. C. five won their game by out flying the Newman Club team 33-21. The win put the Meteorology students in second place of Section II. The winners were paced by Vernado and Roebuck with 11 points each.

In the second game 396 upper won their second game when they drew a forfeit from 397 Upper.

Senior Hall (A) drew a forfeit from 394 Upper for their third victory which put them in a tie for second place in Section One.

In a real tight game Cockrell handed Magnolia (A) their first loss by stunning them 27-25. The win tied Cockrell with Senior Hall for second place. The Cockrell win over Magnolia was led by Wood who tallied 10 points.

Magnolia (B) finished the activities by drawing a forfeit from Smiles 396 Lower. It was the first win for the Magnolia (B) quintet.

Monday's Schedule:

The schedule shows—390 Lower against the Newman Club five at six. The 6:45 contest has wilders 396 Lower meeting ROTC, and the last game shows 394 Lower facing Magnolia (B).

FSU's 4-H Club Is Now Co-Ed

The University 4-H Club voted recently to become co-educational. Men who are former 4-H Club members are invited to join.

The club met last Tuesday night to discuss plans for the year. A current project is exchange of letters between the United States and Communist-influenced nations.

The Florida State University 4-H Club and the Agriculture and 4-H clubs in Gainesville are planning their second annual youth conference. A delegation of nine from Gainesville and women from FSU will meet on December 14 here to discuss plans for this conference.

The second large service the 4-H Club is responsible for is the annual state 4-H short course.

Garnet Key Gives Pageant at Convo

The Pageant of the Three Torches, a dramatic presentation for all freshmen, will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 8:00 p.m. in the music outdoor building theatre.

Sponsored and enacted entirely by members of Garnet Key, the presentation will climax the series of freshman convocations. Included in the program will be an explanation of the symbolism of the three torches. This will be enacted by four people to be introduced by Al Jackson, president of Garnet Key. Freshmen class officers will be spotlighted during the program, and several special school songs will be featured.

The entire script of the pageant was written by Patty Mims and Nancy Smith. Assisting in the public address system and special lighting effects will be members of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity.

Odd-Even Soccer Tourney Starts

The Odd soccer team battled the Even's to a scoreless tie to end the first tournament game Tuesday November 13, on the soccer field in a very close, hard fighting game.

During the first half the girls were tense and Anna Athanason made two beautiful kicks which just missed the goal.

The second half was played very hard by both teams but a goal could not be scored because of the close team work.

The second game will be played on Saturday on the soccer field with each team making a entrance.

FSU Student Traffic Court Regulations Are Not Legal

There seems to be two "little minor discrepancies" concerning one of our courts on the campus. The court referred to is the one just going into action, the Traffic-Safety court.

First, the court is operating under regulations which as yet haven't been passed by the University Senate. Therefore, the Traffic Safety Regulations are not legal.

Second, if these regulations HAD been passed by the University Senate, several of the court's cases would not have been heard as yet anyway. The regulation sheet states that the rules become effective as of Monday morning, Nov. 12, 1951. The case which was brought against one student, concerned violation which occurred Oct. 31, twelve days before these regulations went into effect. IF these regulations had been legal. Let's have a look at these new "regulations" and try to understand some of the problems involved.

One day this week, fourteen faculty cars were found parked in the student parking area on campus. These faculty members do not receive tickets. Graduate students, faculty and staff are under the jurisdiction of the Tallahassee police, not the University police. Yet, if student park in the faculty area, they are given tickets, because they are under the jurisdiction of the university police.

Faculty and staff are allowed to park in faculty area in back of the music building. Students are allowed to park in the lot directly across from the Baptist Student Center. These faculty members, and also some students are free on campus all day and never use their car during the day. Why couldn't they park in the lot across from the Baptist Student Center, and leave the area in back of the Music building for those members of the faculty and students who have to use their cars during the day to go home or to West campus.

There are only forty parking spaces around the classroom area for student cars, yet there are approximately seven hundred students registered with the university business office.

There are two reasons why the lot beside Jennie Murphree cannot be used as a parking area. Social activities prevent parking under bedroom windows, and besides that, the lot is a future building site.

It is rumored that another parking area will be built which will accomodate forty cars. However, no one seems to know where this area is.

It's time someone began to consider the parking situation, or the lack of it, on this campus. Fifty years from now more students will be attending this university, and more cars will be on campus. Even a bicycle campus will have cars on it sometimes, because let's face it—cars are here to stay.

Three of the campus policemen, and most of the students, liked the parking situation as it was—first come, first served, or so to speak. Early driver got the best parking space, which seems to be the good old American way.

Just why should we change horses in mid-stream?

● WHERE GOES IT?

Would we be too bold if we asked exactly how our allotment of $1.30 from student activity monies is being spent by the University Recreation?

Because the Artist Series has not yet started and other functions are about nil, students are complaining that Florida State does not have the well-rounded social and recreational program.

The URA has an overall operating budget of $12,449 for this fiscal year.

The money is doled out to such campus functions as the Women's "F" club and the Ole Club. The remainder of the money is set for operating (?) expenses and printing costs. There are several items for social programs.

The weeping reality is that much of the money goes to a section in which few students will benefit returns. For example, the Ole club gets $226 of your money this year. Is it worth it?

Then, may, we ask, can't some of this money be spent to benefit the greatest number of students. Free Friday night movies, though they may be somewhat old, would provide entertainment for a large number of students.

Movies such as these would not only be entertaining, but would be a relief to the for male pocketbook.

Dear Editor

Selfish

Dear Editor,

The faculty and staff have lost their heads. Without consulting the students on the University Senate, they have, with an high hand, imposed the most unfair, selfish, and undemocratic rules concerning parking. The only place left for students at P.E.P. Dorm park is by the fire plugs, and you're liable to arrest.

Running a close second is the dad gum campus police have gone ape on me. They are handing out tickets for free passes for a palm reading by Madame Zolta. And where is our traffic court hard boiled? Only Senate, they have, with an high hand, imposed the most unfair, selfish, and undemocratic rules concerning parking. The only place left for students at P.E.P. dorm park is by the fire plugs, and you're liable to arrest.

Running a close second is the dad gum campus police have gone ape on me. They are handing out tickets for free passes for a palm reading by Madame Zolta. And where is our traffic court hard boiled? Only since 2 till 5 in the afternoon, but they've been trying to see him for twenty minutes now in order to register for a prize along with about 89% of the rest of the students at our one alma mater, who operate cars.

The student when parked in fully reserved spaces is liable to warrant and summons from the court. The faculty (it says here) is liable to arrest by the police if they park in areas marked off for students—if they can find such areas. They left over their lovely generous allotment of spaces are not even marked off. The trouble is that the students are getting arrested and are in the dog house! It should say not!

Fun for the record, I personally took off about 15 minutes yesterday and took down the tag number along with faculty sticker numbers of automobiles belonging to members of our glorious faculty and staff which were parked in the 28 parking spaces left for student utilization. There were 14 such cars parked illegally in student reserved spaces—half of our spaces taken by selfish faculty members with nary a ticket in sight on their windshields. Only the little yellow slips abound and Florida's student council cries class. Attached, Mr. Editor. You will find the description of those faculty and staff together with their tag numbers and faculty sticker numbers. Some of them are not. They are just for your benefit as evidence on this matter.

Instead of a possible "student court for the student—municipal court for the faculty" in the We have university police on campus to apprehend the student offender (which by the way they revel in doing) but, and here's the snag, there are no municipal police to handle faculty violations. Neat set-up, don't you think?

Peppin' mad, I remain very truly yours.

Alfred Bartles.

Invalid

Dear Editor:

Do you know that:

1. The new parking rules and faculty reserved places are not legal?

2. Will Pennell told the traffic court and faculty that any such violations would have to be taken through proper channels, namely the university senate.

3. That the new rules in accordance with the new reserved parking is not worth the paper and to it nearest the library and his printer's ink incorporated in it's tory bldg. following on around manufacture.

4. Students receiving such tickets can tear them up on the spot and laugh in the policeman's face.

5. That the majority of the students are sick and tired of the new rules and regulations and wish to "pull the wool over our eyes"

6. That the students of FSU think the Florida Flambeau is doing a wonderful job at presenting the facts of faculty ills and is backing on our publication to expose the parking mess.

7. I'm disgusted.

Yours truly,

JAMIE WADE.

Absurd

Dear Editor:

This parking situation is absolutely absurd! The students are subjected to rules and regulations and administration officials have lost their heads once more in their attempt to be selfish and dictatorial. The students no longer are allowed parking facilities which are convenients to the classroom area.

Instead we find reserved parking signs barring our use of the parking spaces. Is there any rule in order that the faculty and staff of this university may be assured of parking and not have to "grub" for their parking room along with the rest of us pleons. Oh, no—they're too good for that; much much too good.

When they get off taking all the parking facilities for themselves, may I-be so bold as to suggest:

The whole ada opposite the freshman dorm area is labled "reserved" along with the side running up and down perpendicularly to it nearest the library and his-

Following the street on around, we find that we are also banned from parking on the street running in front of the education building and—what is more—one will suppose for the moment that it is the administration's idea and not our own traffic court. If it turns out that our traffic traffic court headed by Mr. George Onnan has been "hoodwinked and railroaded as an instrument by the university administration and staff, used as a means of raining their own ends, then let's be quick in abolishing it.

As a final comment, I should like to say that this

MARGARET WHITE

Some Audacity

Dear Editor,

Are we the students at Florida State going to take this new parking regulation lying down?

The faculty and staff have the right to park where the parking areas set aside for themselves alone. The student is referred to the student council as an institution that has the university ear and which faces the new Quiney highway and which is in the cobwebs of the past.

Some members of the faculty and staff even have the audacity to ask why students don't just use the buses provided for them by the university to get around. As a counter question, I should like to know why the faculty and staff don't "practice what they preach" and use the darned busses themselves. Perhaps, then something in the parking problem considerably.

Besides all this, there are the buses, where will they park their cars in the interim? You know, the "cars just do not automobile up and put them in our pockets" style that is. Say 9 p.m. (Time during which the faculty has the parking area roped off for their exclusive use by the by, why don't we make the students' cars disappear at this time when the faculty parking lot — they parked so shiftily.

Where is your student traffic court and senate while this new parking business is being railroaded through? What ever happened to the parking lot they were going to make beside Jennie Murphree hall? That area is the most central to all and would make an ideal Faculty parking lot. Students, let's get this bloody parking situation straightened out. If our newly formed traffic court can't look out for our better interests, let's impeach it and get another!

Bobby Couch

No Beer

Dear Editor.

"To Beer or not to Beer."

I have just finished reading Dean McBride's memorandum to the men students as of the date November 8 To be truthful I am slightly confused. Dean McBride says "It is therefore clear that it would be best for men students to cease to patronize the College Point Drive In and they are requested to do their honor not to go there."

Two of the reasons for placing college point off limits are: "The effect upon the academic standing of students who spend their evenings drinking beer and engaging in activities far removed from student. And, offenses committed at College Point as reflected in court actions and newspaper reports."

My mind boggles at the memorandum. Can you answer them for me?

Some questions have arisen in 1. Will the request to the men students to stay away from College Point Drive In be based upon the academic standings of students.

2. Or will this request, if observed, only lead the students to patronize other imporium?

3 If the men students do patronize another place, will this create everybody placed off limits.

4. Will this policy of "off limits" be strictly enforcit the men only from every bar room.

5 If the men students are eventually placed off limits of all places that sell beer, what do you believe will be their reactions.

6. Will the students be placed "off limits" solves the problem, or Dean McBride might obtain better results if he would meet with the men students and both parties could discuss the problem, instead of just issuing a statement requesting them to stay away from College Point?

I will be waiting patiently for an answer . . . in the meantime I'll be found at the nearest private phrase. "Cun's not to question why, cun's but to thirst and cry."

Sincerely,

(Name withheld by request).

Forum Conducted On Girl Scouting

Two national Girl Scout recruitments advisers will conduct a vocational guidance forum on professional Girl Scouting at 5 p.m. Monday. They will be in the clubroom of the Leaning Tower of Learning.

The two advisers are Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Hamlin, of Washington, Georgia and Miss Josephine Brayton, of New York.

The two recruitment advisers are holding a series of interviews with students through arrangement with the Vocational Guidance and Placement office.

The purpose of the forum is to acquaint students the opportunities offered in professional Girl Scout work.

MUCH WORK OFFERED ON HONOR COURT

By ALLAN HEAD

Irresponsible trick of the week: Dick Bradley, (senior class president, ODK and Gold Key member, student government leader extraordinary) found a novel way of shooting down several nominees proposed to fill a vacancy in men's senate. He flipped a coin.

Result of this new method for investigating the qualifications of nominees for Student Council then decided not to consider Crumbie until such time as he had received a written request. Crumbie, and tabled the matter until next week.

You may wonder why Crumbie's name was brought up in the first place. According to Jim Kirk, chairman of Senate. Crumbie thought there wasn't enough for him to do on Student Council, wanted to get into Senate where he could see some action.

One of the disadvantages of flipping a coin, Dick, is that it doesn't tell you many facts about the persons under consideration. Otherwise you might have found out that Crumbie has missed two of the four Honor Court meetings held since the election of Chief Justice Alex Jackson.

You might have found out that those meetings average a length of two hours. Crumbie refused to the one hour per meeting of Senate and University Council.

You might have found out that there is more than enough work to be done by each and every member of Student Council to keep them all busy for two years, if they are anxious to put in more time and effort. Honor Court has more to do than just try cases.

Perhaps the work we can do about, seeing we have the right kind of interest in that, that's the responsibility of the student body, why elects them. But since no organization is better than the men in it, it stands to reason that members of University Council and Senate should check carefully into the qualifications of those they select to fill vacancies.

Flipping a coin isn't a very responsible way of doing this.

More encouraging is the marked improvement in University Senate. Using newly standardized bill forms, their Standing Rules Committee has turned in the problem of special Senate Rules of Order. From the preliminary reports last week, the committee is doing a good job on that, too.

Senate will soon start work on Traffic Regulations. Will Pennell stated in University Council Tuesday that the Student Traffic Court has jurisdiction only over regulations passed by the Student Senate. This means that the new regulations will soon come up for Senate debate. Better see your senators if you don't like them.

POLITICAL POST

FEARFUL MEN TEAR DOWN MUCH PROGRESS

By PAUL E. GARRISON
And VERNON PEEPLES

There are many fearful men in the United States today who would, if given the opportunity, destroy and tear down much of the progress our government has made in the fields of housing, health and social security.

It has become the responsible for critics to assail these activities by our government as "creeping steps toward Communism" the alarmist cries.

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Democrat - N. Y.) commenting upon this state of affairs recently said "The cry of state Control has been raised during the last half century whenever those, unable to fairly compete with those who have the right to be free, attempt to force forests, exploit little children, operate unsafe and unsanitary food, industries, or religious discrimination, and pursue other policies endangering the health, safety and welfare of our community."

Aristotle said over 2000 years ago "Democracy arose from men's thinking that if they are equal in any respect, they are equal absolutely." The concept of welfare as we know it was translated into law by basic law of land by the founders of the Republic ever one hundred and seventy years ago. The preamble of the American Constitution states that the object of the Federal Union is to establish justice, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity."

Certainly the federal government should not seek to assume functions which properly belong to the individual, community or state. But the government should step in to make decisions which, in this complex and interdependent world, are beyond the ability of community or the state cannot practically perform for themselves.

The forces of special privileges provide the chief opposition and raise the cry of crisis or alarm against economic security for all. They spend their time looking for communists in and out of government and at the same time attacking those measures which would deprive communists of their environment.

of the officers in charge of "giving with the Left hand and taking with greedy faculty and staff, having eaten an in the right" and so on and set aside the whole music building parking area for themselves. Even the architectural plans for the music building parking area in entirety. I know that certain areas are reserved for band and staff members.

Please note this as I feel that it is a fair representation of the average car owning students' opinion.

The situation as it now stands is deplorable and does not seem to be going from bad to worse.

Thank You.

Carol Smith.

Royal Pair

Dear Editor:—

We, as a group of car owning students, feel that it is time for the students to wake up and live, time for the Flambeau our student paper to rise and champion our cause, time for our University senate to take time off from sleeping under the rose bushes and appoint our current faculty attempts to further hamper us in our studies, although they seem to be enjoying every minute of it) and giving the traffic court, a chance to show us we feel lenient at the moment.

Let's rally and end this nonsense.

JOE KNOX
TINY CALVIN.
ANN HARRIS

Indignation

Dear Editor,

The students of Florida State University are not to be used as a time for you, as our voice and outlet, to come to our aid in voicing our rightful indignation at the open affront to one intelligence and dignity.

The matter of which I speak is the NEW RESERVED PARKING for our cars and similarly faculty and staff. The student of Florida State is confronted with an additional financial drain of his pocket book.

The running back and forth from West to East campus should have been enough of an inconvenience but now in addition we have to be subjected to the majority of available parking space by administration officials — we

These men of little vision would do well to remember the advice of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who said in 1944—"When any political candidate stands up and says, solemnly that he is against the plan of the Government of the United States—your government—could be sold out to the communists—then I say that person reveals a shocking lack of faith in America. He reveals a shocking lack of faith in democracy, in the spiritual strength of our people. He reveals a shocking lack of faith in himself. He is not the kind of person we can follow."

There was a time in which the nation stood strong when Europe was put to a test, that time was in the terrible days of 1939-45 when they have again proved in this war—that there is no chink in the armor of democracy. Let's ask the subject—and on all subjects—I say to you, my friends . . . We have nothing to fear but fear itself."

Bitter Rice Is Sexy Saga Of Crime and Violence

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

No doubt, if "sex" is as strong a lure as claimed, the current movie "Bitter Rice" playing today and tomorrow at the State Theatre will draw long lines.

Bulging with violence and raging passions, the film is about as sensual and earthy a picture as you will ever see.

THERE IS everything in this picture of turmoil and elemental sex but the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

One critic has said that Silvana Mangano, the star of the picture, is nearly in contact with the realms of fertility it dwells with considerable candor upon this essential.

It also involves much lurid violence of a criminal and physical sort, so that it makes quite a package of racy activity.

Said James O'Neill, movie critic on the Washington Daily News, "Being no dance expert, I wouldn't know if her jitterbugging would be more "Bitter Rice" playing today and tomorrow at the State Theatre will draw long lines.

SHE IS definitely a graduate of the Cecere Dramatic School of bumps, grinds and shakes, Summa cum laude."

"Bitter Rice" tells a fateful story of a lusty young woman who works among the peasants in the Po Valley rice fields at the annual harvest time, and since it is nearly in contact with the realms of fertility it dwells with considerable candor upon this essential.

It also involves much lurid violence of a criminal and physical sort, so that it makes quite a package of racy activity.

Dr. Lafleur, Philosophy Prof., Studies Reactions of Ants

Dr. L. J. Lafleur, philosophy professor, has successfully combined the study of both human and ant behavior. He has maintained an interest in this unique combination since his high school days. Now recognized as an outstanding authority on the formation patterns of ants, Dr. Lafleur finds them of immense value in the study of behavior.

HE BECAME interested through the general question of whether humans and ants act on the same patterns. After many years of scientific study, he has concluded that "ants and humans act on the same basic physiological principles . . . that there are differences there but not differences in kind."

Dr. Lafleur's special studies of ants are classified into 3 main families. Dr. Lafleur confined his studies to two of these families. He abandoned the study in 1943.

However, because it was leaving too little time for the study of philosophy.

ALSO OUTSTANDING in the philosophy field. Dr. Lafleur's Descartes translations are used in many colleges and universities including Florida State University.

He has written numerous articles for scientific & philosophy field, also. In addition, he edited a recent reprinting of Jeremy Bentham's work and has others that will be published.

Dr. Lafleur specializes in the teaching of the philosophy of science and aesthetics.

IT'S ALL GREEK TO ME

Greek Scene Filled With Parties

By MARCIA MORRIS and JUDY SIMKINS

The Alpha Gamma Delias and guests were entertained with a spaghetti supper Sunday night by the pledges. Monday night during chapter meeting the pledges surprised the members with a serenade.

Sunday afternoon the Alpha Chi's entertained at a Rush Tea from 4:00 to 5:00. The chapter flower, the red carnation, was used in the various flower arrangements throughout the house. Monday night the girls honored the new initiates and the new pledges with a formal banquet at the Seven Seas. Highlighting the evening was the presentation of the scholarship cup to Marilyn Hart and the activities cup to Mary Ann Lurree.

Tuesday afternoon the pledges gave the annual pledge party honoring all the pledges of the other sororities. The decorations and entertainment centered around the theme of a night club, "The Five O'Clock Club." This theme is a traditional one with Alpha Chi pledges. Later in the evening the pledges presented their pledge party again for the benefit of the actives of Alpha Chi.

Thursday night the Alpha Chi's were guests at a party given in their honor by the Lambda Chi's.

reception," Bradley noted. "It has been done in past years, but this year we are not."

During President Campbell's 10 years at FSU, he has become recognized for efforts toward the tremendous building program and enrollment increases. When the President came to FSU in 1941, the Florida State College for Women had an enrollment of 1,800 students with less than 200 faculty members. Today the University has an enrollment of approximately 4,500 students and more than 400 faculty members.

THE DEVELOPMENT from four major academic divisions in 1947 to eleven in 1951 has also been through the commendable efforts of the President.

Previous to Campbell's presidency here, he was associated with George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee. He was there for 13 years under the Division of Surveys and Plied studies and then as Dean of the Graduates school and Senior college.

In 1937, the FSU president was consultant to President Roosevelt's Advisory committee on education.

He has been president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

OPEN LETTER TO STUDENTS and FACULTY

Dear Patrons:

We at your LARITZ CAFETERIA are happy to know to many of you continue to pay return visits. It is just that which tells us that we have accomplished the thing we most wanted—to serve the best food and at a price to fit every budget!

Many of you are away from home and we want you to make LARITZ your "Home away from home." Our service is intended to be friendly and intimate to the point that you will feel as free to voice your opinion as you would in your own home. Our dining room is the most modern in Tallahassee yet is not stuffy, instead, we believe it to be the most cozy.

Some of you voiced a desire for a "fixed meal" so we are now featuring special lunches and dinners each week day. If the variety or combination is not to your liking please let us know for after all we can only give you your most desired when you tell us your wants. Your comments are the rules by which LARITZ will operate.

It has come to our attention that some of you have been hesitant in coming in when you aren't in the mood for a meal—do not let your lack of a big appetite keep you away. LARITZ SERVICE is yours whether it is a cup of coffee or a meal. We don't care how long you linger, either, we know you often have things to talk over with your classmates and over a cup of coffee is about the best way we know.

In closing let us add that our waiters are paid a salary and tipping is not mandatory. They are here to add to our service and are to give the highest type service at all times. No deviation from their instructions and training will be tolerated.

Yours Truly,

Cruel Brutality Seen In FSU-Tampa Tilt Sports Page

Soph Hop Queen Selections Open

Nominations for Sophomore hop queen and royalty should be made today by all sophomores at one of the two election polls, Betty Sue Fryer, social chairman, announced.

"All sophomores are asked to cooperate in this election that is pertinent to all class members and they should feel it their duty to go to the polls today," Betty Sue commented.

THE FOLLOW-UP election held after the Thanksgiving holidays will decide the names of the queen and king to reign over the annual formal dance to be held Saturday, December 8.

Sophomores will open their traditional dance to all other University students.

Polls open today are in the Seminole dormitory hall lobby and Westcott hall. In charge of the voting polls are Sophomore Council members.

PLANS FOR the dance were made at the sophomore club meeting on Wednesday, November 7.

President June Conyers reported that the Florida Union board has not had decided to outlaw corsages.

The class president said that this year's class would not be a benefit dance, but that the proceeds from the dance will be used to help finance other activities.

CLASS OFFICERS were presented at the first sophomore meeting. They were introduced at the end of last year. It is difficult advisable to reacquaint the class with the officers.

Class officers include June Conyers, president; Pat Vines, vice-president; Shirley Whitehead, secretary; Joyce Whiddon, treasurer; Marcia Morris, parliamentarian; Betsy Blair, historian; Mary Campbell Rennick, Pat Covey and Sonny Meyer, student council; and Miltzen Carothers, Roy Staton, and Gene Turano, men's senators.

Dem. School Plans Are Now Underway

Plans for the new Demonstration School building are underway and bids will be asked for soon, Dr. Eugene Boyce told the Parent-Teachers' association meeting here last Tuesday night.

Dr. Boyce, principal of the Florida State University demonstration school, said that the new building, which is to be financed jointly by the state legislature and the county Board of Education, will be located on a university property near Doak Campbell stadium. It will accommodate 720 students from the primary grades through Senior high school.

Boyce praised the work of President Doak S. Campbell and other university and local officials for the time and study they have given to the needs of the new building. He also praised Senator Leroy Collins for his work in the legislature in helping obtain $750,000 for construction for the school.

Miss Sadie Alexander, PTA president, welcomed new members and introduced Dr. Boyce.

Suwannee Hall Sets Holiday Dining Hours

Dining Hall hours over the Thanksgiving holidays will be as recorded below.

Breakfast will be served every day from ♯ until 10 a.m.

Dinner will be served from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

No supper will be served any night except Sunday.

A special Thanksgiving dinner will be offered Thursday for one dollar in the Suwannee room. The Seminole club will be closed during the holidays.

Sr. Annual Pictures Are Now Being Taken

Senior pictures are now being made on the fourth floor Alumni building. Pictures will be made next week and the week following until the 30th of November. This is the deadline for pictures to be made.

Those who missed picture appointments should come to the Tally Ho office and have them made immediately.

There will be no individual pictures made after November the 30th. Organizations should sign up as soon as possible for having their group pictures made. The deadline for the pictures is Dec. 5th.

'All My Sons' To Run Soon

Community Series to be Next Speech Play

All My Sons, the second community series play, will be produced Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 3 and 4 in the Conradi theater.

The play was written by Arthur Miller who also authored the prize winning Death of a Salesman. All My Sons was produced in New York in 1947 with Margaret Sullivan in the leading role and won the Drama Critics' Award for that season. It became a movie featuring Katherine Hepburn.

THE PLAY has been described by the Dramatics Play service as a "tremendously impressive drama. The play should be a must for all groups interested in theatre."

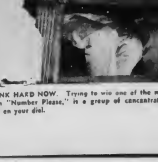
It is built around two families who were together in a business which made defective airplane parts during the last war. One partner is sent to jail but the other goes free and makes a lot of money. The reaction of their children and the fact that the Keller son was reported missing during the war dominate the play

THE FLORIDA STATE University production will be directed by Dr. George McCalman, head of the theater area within the department of speech.

Featured as Joe Keller is Reuban Silver, a graduate student who in the past has been directing bees playing Kate Keller, Joe Von Chris Keller. Alice Myers as Ann Deever, George Cary as George Deever, and Loren Reschert as Dr. John Barlow.

Others in the cast are Shirley Drake as Lydia Lubey, Sara Martin Deavis as Sue Bayliss John Howard as Frank Lubey and Jerry Brubaker as Bert.

MARILYN NELSON is assistant director with Fred Myers as stage manager and Bob Tebo as house manager. Bert Hollander and Franklin Ames are in charge of construction.



The lighting crew consists of Polly Doe and John Wyckoff, heads, and Blair Hennessey, Carolyn Billue, Bill Doss, Gordon Props are handled by Martha Camps, head; Kay Bardin, and Rose Biancarosa.

Costume head is Marjorie McLemore with Martha Camp and Carol Brannon on crew. Barbara Shuler is in charge of make-up with Joan Bunny Bates and George Cary.

Publicity is handled by Lillian Preston, head; Vivian Law, Lee Hitdman, Dorothy Womble, Lubby Mauch and John Howard.

Camp Scheduled

Miss Mary Alexander, director of Camp Flastacowa, has announced that the camp will be open daily at 1 p.m. during the holidays. Buses will run to the camp and will leave the women's gymnasium at 3 p.m., returning at 5:30 p.m.

THINK HARD NOW. Trying to win one of the many prizes offered on the WFSU, student radio station, quiz program "Number Please," is a group of concentrating students. The program will broadcast from 8:30 until 9:00, 660 on your dial.

POLITICAL QUESTIONS PARRIED

Margaret Truman Displays Poise, Wit, Charm, at Press Conference

BY BARS HENRY ,
Associate Editor

Margaret Truman proved to be her father's own best press agent as she captured the respect and admiration of the news men and women present at her press conference Saturday afternoon at Wakulla Lodge

Perched on a footstool in the middle of the room, Miss Truman was in command all the way She gently parried the politically colored questions directed toward her, leaving those present smiling and slightly amazed at the quick minded wit displayed by Harry's daughter.

MISS TRUMAN arrived in Tallahassee Saturday as part of her nationwide concert tour. She said last night at the Leon High School auditorium where she was accompanied by the State Symphony orchestra under the direction of Dr. Karl Kurrzahn, dean of the Florida State University School of Music.

When asked at the press conference whether she would like for her father to run for re-election, Margaret answered "I'm only a singer, not a politician."

When pressed for her opinion as to the possibility of a woman successfully filling the presidency of the United States, she replied, "I really don't know. She might run into some trouble at the Gridiron dinner." 'The Gridiron dinner is an annual affair reserved for men only to which the U. S. President is traditionally invited.

MISS TRUMAN assured the reporters that the number one item in her life is still her career But she left the door wide open when she shyly added, "Of course it's a woman's right to change her mind you know" As to the presence of a special man in her life she said, "No, no one special."

The soprano soloist said that she would like to combine singing and dramatics into a career She said that she had been doing a lot of television and is very interested in that as a medium for her talents. She remarked that she is not especially interested in opera as it has often been remarked, but that she does, however, know six complete operatic roles.

At the age of eight, Margaret was given a piano by her father. It was very disappointed." she said, "because I had my heart set on an electric train. It's too bad Dad had to be different from most fathers. He wanted a piano."

ASKED WHETHER her father ever accompanied her on the piano, Miss Truman replied, "He's not a good accompanist. He's a soloist."

Blood Cards Due For Today's Meet

The third blood captain meeting will be held today at 4:00 in the Lonzmire auditorium.

A tentative schedule for county pools will be arranged at that time.

THE UNIVERSITY "Blood for Korea" drive, under the sponsorship of the Omicron Delta Kappa leadership society for men, is being paralleled by a drive raising momentum in Tallahassee.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross has received contributions from local townspeople through radio and newspaper coverage.

ALL CAPTAINS are requested to return alotted blood donor cards at today's meeting. Groups that were not represented at last Tuesday's meeting are urged to send their delegates to this meeting.

Friday Night Show Is Best Yet—Price

Dr. Hartley Price, director of Gymkana, has stated that Friday night's performance was the best he has seen the team perform.

Price especially commended gymnasts, Jack Bishop and Scotsgars of "Friends" magazine which will publish an article, "Mr. Gym-Bill Roetzheim "Southern Coach and Athlete" also sent a representative and will feature Carlyn Hadden as co-ed of the month in a future issue.

WITH MISS HADDEN were two attendants, Lila Lee Blair, and Frances Ann Cox.

The show was condensed to fit into the smaller space of the Tallahassee auditorium. It included the major acts that blahlhisted the week's performance at the North Florida fairgrounds. It opened with a bronzed figure tableau, symbol of Gymkana.

A trip through the United States began on Tallahassee Beach with the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots in a somersault routine. The Pied-land Express landed on the Milwaukee, Chicago, the Dakotas and New York. The program closed with firms rings and side horse exhibition were all highlights of the show.

DON HOLDER, Connie Holder, Linder Tinkler and Pat Shiverelli perform a graceful balancing act, dressed in white satin and sequins.

Pat Payne and Dick Gutting, in black and white, did a trampoline act which was another high spot.

Many of Gymkana performers are national record holders, among them Bill Roetzheim and Gene Rabbitt, both graduate students.

Pres. Calls Meeting

At the direction of President Doak S Campbell all instructors of the University are asked to attend a meeting Wednesday, November 28, at 9:00 p.m. in the Conradi Theatre.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect representatives from the instructor group to the University Faculty senate.

Final Convocation To Be Held Today

Pres. Campbell Feted at His Birthday Dinner

A birthday dinner followed by a reception was held in honor of President Doak S. Campbell last night with president of the senior class, Dick Bradley, presenting the birthday present.

An academic affair, the dinner was held in the Lafayette room and got under way at 5:30 p.m. with approximately 100 seniors present.

FOLLOWING the dinner in the Lafayette room the seniors went out in a group as guests of the President.

"This is the first time the dining hall management has ever served in the dining hall for less than one dollar and fifty cents," Dick Bradley said. Seniors only had to pay one dollar for their tickets. They were sold through the University book store. Mrs. Senior hall, and Landis senior hall.

ALL UNSOLD tickets were supposed to have been turned in to the Alumni information desk on the first floor, Bradley commented.

Members of the Mortar Board, the women's leadership, scholastic group, were in charge of selling the tickets and the off-the-campus parking areas.

The color and banquet Friday were both informal affairs.

Serving at the reception were the Mortar Board members.

Seniors did not wear caps and gowns as in formals.

THIS WAS President Campbell's tenth year at Florida State during which he has become recognized for his efforts toward a tremendous building program and for his enrollment increases. When the President came to FSU in 1941, the Florida State College for Women had an enrollment of 1,800 students with less than 200 faculty members.

Now the University has an enrollment of approximately 6,500 students and more than 400 faculty members.

THE DEVELOPMENT from four main academic divisions in 1947 to eleven in 1951 has also been through the commendable efforts of the President.

Previous to Campbell's presidency here he was associated with George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee He was there for 23 years when the Division of Surveys and Fields studies and then as Dean of the Graduates school and Senior college.

In 1937, the FSU president was consultant to President Roosevelt's Advisory committee on education.

He has been president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Sands Is Appointed

Tommy Sands, assistant sports editor, has been appointed to the position of sports editor following the resignation of Jim Couch.

Jim Couch's resignation will become effective November 1st.

First Artist Series Program To Feature Science Lecturer

Tickets for the first artist series production to be presented this year may be picked up today an tomorrow in the Public relations office on the first floor of the Alumni building There will be no charge but students will show their identification cards.

The presentation will be a lecture by Dr. Gerald Wendt of UNESCO on November 27 in the Music hall auditorium.

THE PUBLIC RELATIONS office requests that students planning to attend the lecture pick up their tickets so that any tickets not used may be made available to townspeople.

He is the director of the division "What Science Is Doing to Us"

Dr. Wendt will speak on of the popularization of Science for UNESCO and was formerly science editor of Time magazine, Life and Fortune and editorial director of Science Illustrated

WENDT WAS also director of Science of the New York World's Fair and author of several textbooks.

Parking Protest Draws A Blank

Despite a constant and continued storm of campus-wide student protest, the "Reserved for Faculty and Staff" parking signs remain.

Sample comments collected from students expressed enthusiastic discontent over the cramped student parking facilities during class room hours.

STATEMENTS issued by students ranged from humorous to boldly threatening.

George Gnann, traffic court chairman, has not released any change in the present set up, but he was in discussion with FSU administration at publication deadline.

President of the University Government Association, Will Pennell, offered a plan for compromise of the traffic court system.

WILL HAS proposed a two-hour parking time for the business area for both students and faculty, therefore those who wish to park all day can use the off-the-campus parking areas.

An error has been pointed out by George Gnann, traffic court chairman, in which the Flambeau in the traffic code illegal.

The student traffic code, setting up certain regulations by which students drive and parking must observe was passed by the University senate and Executive council.

However, the resolutions passed by the FSU traffic committee, an administrative committee, designated the parking areas for faculty and staff, and have not been approved by the student senate.

THE TRAFFIC court meets every Wednesday night at 9:30 in the University senate chambers. Money collected from students violating the code as passed by the student senate will go towards a scholarship fund.

No student can be tried by the traffic court for parking in the faculty parking area because the student traffic court does not have jurisdiction over this violation.

A symposium of University opinion, whose names must be held because of job liability, expressed regret over the new system. Many questioned were satisfied with the previous arrangement of "first come, first served."

Graduate Club to Hold Party During Holiday

The Graduate club will sponsor an open house Thanksgiving Day for students and faculty. The open house will be held in Landis hall recreation room at 8:30 p.m.

Although sponsored by the Graduate club, President Edward Black said, this party is for all students who are spending the holidays on campus.

Dr. Gerald Wendt

Wendt's book, The Atomic Age Opens, is the first on the subject and 500,000 copies were sold when it appeared ten days after publication of the first atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

As a professor of chemistry Wendt authored numerous chemistry text books.

'Pageant of Three Torches' To be in Music Auditorium

A "Pageant of Three Torches" will be presented this afternoon at five as the final meeting of the freshmen in the music auditorium.

The pageant is a new revision of the traditional ceremony once an annual feature of the ceremonies of Florida State College for Women. Sponsoring the event is Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary.

AUTHOR OF the pageant script is Nancy Smith. Nancy is a senior member of Garnet Key. Her script has been described as a dramatic interpretation of the tri-torch symbol. The pageant will be directed by Nancy and Patty Mims, Mortar Board and Garnet Key member.

Introduction to the pageant will be given by Alice Jackson, Garnet Key president.

THE PAGEANTRY and songs will be the only other memories of the men and women's honorary. Lighting effects and wiring will be by Alpha Phi Omega.

In the skit are Margie Mackarrah and Peggy Moore, Garnet Key members, and Stan Goad, Sigma Nu member.

One of the outstanding events of the evening will be the introduction of the newly elected class officers and senators who will take over their duties of office during the torch ceremony.

NEW FRESHMAN class officers are president, Jerry Brubaker; vice-president, Mimi Patterson; secretary, Dot Wells; treasurer, Don Ray; Georgy Gnann, sergeant-at-arms, Mary Grace Shoemaker, Freshmen men senators are Dave Kennedy, Phil Springer and Don Alan Hollingsworth. Freshmen women are Lois Stroup, Joan Custer, and Charla Coulter.

Heralding the presentation of the convocation today was the installation of the members of Monticello, senior women's honorary, through the freshman dormitories which is publicizing today's program.

Garnet Key officers are Alice Jackson president; Mary Ruth Summers, vice president; Ellen Davis, secretary and Eleanor Graves, treasurer.

Library Warns About Tardy Books

Stage Crew Workers Needed for Sandspur

Bill Barkis, Sandspur director, said today that the production staff urgently needs stage crew workers.

All in the production are requested to pick up their script sometime this week.

The sorosities and fraternities who borrowed costumes from Sandspur are asked to return them to the Alumni building immediately.

FSU Student Wins Magazine Contest

June Morgan, Florida State University student, has been chosen to be a member of Mademoiselle magazine's national College Board.

She will represent her campus and report to Mademoiselle on college life. She will compete for 20 guest editorships to be awarded next year.

The guest editors will go to New York for four weeks in the summer to help write edit and illustrate Mademoiselle's August 1952 issue.

Bold Arkansas Experiment May Strike FSU Educators

A bold experiment in public education is taking place in Arkansas.

The immediate aim of this project is to change the methods of teacher training which now exists in the United States. Many educators have declared this to be the most important development in education to have emerged from the present generation. If the Arkansas experiment is a success, the entire American educational system will stand on the brink of revolution.

The following is an editorial that appeared in the Arkansas Gazette explaining this experiment. The students at FSU are urged to acquaint themselves with this issue. The Flambeau will comment on it at length in the near future.

* * * *

It would be difficult to overestimate the potential significance of the "bold experiment" in teacher training in Arkansas proposed by the Ford Foundation.

The project is aimed at a condition in the public schools that has caused increasing concern to educators and laymen alike. The steady expansion of the schools over the last two generations has brought with t e great numerical expansion in the teaching profession. Most colleges have added schools or departments of education to train teachers, and institutions devoted solely to that purpose have been created in every state. Out of this has come a steadily increasing emphasis on teaching methods—a type of highly specialized training that is important, but which has begun to seriously encroach upon the general education of those undergraduates who plan a teaching career.

We have reached a point where some undergraduates spend more time on the techniques of teaching than the subject they will be called upon to teach. And these education courses have been built into the whole system of teacher accreditation, with certificates and ultimately, compensation based on s certain number of hours of classroom work in education.

This is the system that prevails throughout the nation, and it is the system the ranking educators who advise the Ford Foundation want to change. They have selected Arkansas as the pilot state in which a new system of teacher training and accreditation will be worked out—and they are willing to pay the multi-million dollar cost of the 10 to 15 year transition period.

What they propose is that Arkansas drop its present education course requirements for accreditation, and instead require that each applicant for a teaching certificate must have completed four years of general education and one year of internship—practical training under the supervision of "master teachers"—in special centers to be created in connection with school districts scattered over the state. Ultimately, courses in education would be dropped in all our colleges, public and private, and their liberal arts and general science courses would be expanded.

The point is made that it should cost no more to train teachers by this method than it does under the system now in affect. The gain would be threefold: First, teachers would receive a better and broader basic education in their undergraduate days. Second, they would receive better practical training during the internship period when they would actually work under classroom conditions. Third, the fact that the decision to teach could be delayed until graduation, and the fact that basic preparation would not be different from that required of college instructors, would attract students to teaching who now never consider it.

It is the Ford Foundation's idea that if the "bold experiment" succeeds in Arkansas it will become the pattern for all the states, thus changing the whole course and direction of public education in America.

It is difficult to see how they could hold out of a progressive movement in education in Arkansas—and in the nation at large—the greatest angle boost it has ever had.

● TRAFFIC COURT

Fellow students!

Don't get the wrong idea about the student traffic court. Basically it is an excellent idea. The student violators are tried by their own students and all fines are used to benefit the student cause because money is directed towards a scholarship fund.

The only illegal part of this present set-up is the FSU traffic committee, which is composed of the administration, edict on who can park where.

This is not a part of the student code. The FSU traffic committee selected parts of the student code and then inserted their own portion while the students got the royal bunn.

Don't scrap the traffic court. Just separate the cream of the fine work that went into the untampered student traffic code from the muddy water of FSU administration traffic committee regulations.

Chairman George Gnann and his committee are doing a commendable job. He has withstood criticism while diligently trying to work a suitable solution out of the disconteot.

After the Thanksgiving holidays, the student newspaper hopes to print the workable solution.

● A PRIVILEGE?

The Flambeau editor received a letter presumably from a faculty member (though the letter was signed only 'professor') that read, in part:

"The flood of student protests about campus parking is another proof of what many faculty members seriously believe: that FSU students confuse privileges with rights."

It continued further:

"It would be entirely within the jurisdiction of the faculty to decree that no student at FSU may have a car. Amherst College, University of Michigan, to name but two, have such decrees. Plan where, students may own cars but may not use them on campus. Having a car at college is a privilege, not a right as the protesting letters all seem to assume; and there are excellent reasons why such a privilege should be withheld. If students are unwilling or unable to obey the parking problem in cooperation with the faculty, a logical next step is to deny all students their present car privileges. Even the right to share in drawing up parking rules is a privilege; do not abuse it!"

A hand-written card enclosed within the letter said the 'professor' could not sign the letter because there was two tradition of faculty participation in the Flambeau letters.

"Such tradition would make the Flambeau a 'university' newspaper instead of a student paper," the note continued.

Most humbis students on campus are overwhelmed by the honor and privilege the faculty have bestowed upon them by letting them have a car.

To balance the cite of Amherst and U. of Michigan, the Flambeau can quote 40 colleges that do let students run and park cars on the campus, in the classroom areas.

And speaking of a university paper . . . the students pay $2.20 out of their student activity fee for the Flambeau, but we have yet to see a faculty or staff member hesitate to pick up from one to ten free copies of the Flambeau Tuesday and Friday.

If this 'professor" wants a university paper, the staff would be overjoyed to collect a percentage of the copies from "esteemed objectors" and add two more pages each issue.

As far as the parking being "reserved" for faculty, we must certainly agree that students have the right to disagree with the present set-up. In the letter's logic, the ideal solution would be to kick all cars off campus and peddle to and fro on bicyles.

A final note concerning 'letters to the editor.' If a person wants his name withheld, the Flambeau will oblige. However, it is Flambeau policy net to print letters unless they are signed.

● NASTY TASTE

Must a student apply for an honor?

Students have had to apply for this "Who's Who in American and Zula Zula Colleges, Reform Schools and Old Maid's Home."

Some persons feel that they will be thought conceited, vainglorious, self-centered and egotistical if they walk up and ask, "Is this where I sign up for this honor?"

Certain persons must honestly know that Who's Who applications are not measures of outstanding personalities on campus but only those people trying to add one more "job getting honor" to their list before graduation.

Tha whole set-up has e nesty taste!

HEAD LINES

ARE ALL CARS CREATED EQUAL AT FSU?

By ALLAN HEAD

University Honor Court meets tonight in the Student Union cosel. John Adams vs. Traffic Court Office on a constitutional case. Is open to the entire student body Everybody welcome.

Student apathy is hopping mad about these new traffic regulations. Everybody wants to all reporis se far, they are going to have a rough time in Senate. The cause of all the student Traffic Court is good; most students would a lit rather have a student court fines a token fine on them than have their money grabbed by the Police Court aptown.

The main bone of contention is the Traffic Court's discrimination by the part setting up reserved parking. Not one car in a hundred is eligible about having to park inside the white lines, or not be able to find a place to park anyplace.

The problem this reserved parking was designated to correct was that many times faculty members could not find parking quickly when trying to get to a class. It was felt that they deserved a special privilege in this respect. After all, it hardly fits our sense of propriety to see dignified professors sprinting wildly through the campus, hold plates dilivering in the sun, breathing their brief-cases with the ferocity of an Olympic runner carrying a torch.

Unfortunately, reserved parking does not solve the problem. It only creates a new problem. It doesn't make any distinction between those cars that park all day long, and those who need a place to park for a few minutes. Some rightly feel that they are being discriminated against when they see even one car using their parking space.

And since sitting in the stands cheering for the football team has become the new athletic routine, there seems to be an astounding number of students who are adverse to the idea of running to class after the finale of campus. Or even walking for that matter. One has to be in shape for that sort of thing, you know.

Probably the best answer would be to set one or two hour parking limits on the space around the class buildings. That would take care out those who are just dashing in for a class or two, and prevent any extra walking. Our co-ordinations between running students and fascinal professors in the infirmary has enough to do as it is

Then let the rest of the spaces be "first come first serve" (with the exception of Westcott Circle, which should be reserved for visitors) and let the chips fall where they may. Everybody would get a special permit to park in the visitor's section, but I think seeing even one would take their chances along with the rest of us.

Our forefathers fought and died for the principle that 'All men are created equal.' We would be mean and spineless worms did we not in our turn be ready to defend those same heritage from the past. It makes one proud to know that the fallen students will rise from their apathy to fight for a just and noble cause

In The Eye

Dear Editor,

Bravo! Three cheers! Hip, Hip, Hooray!! And all that sort of rot.

I say, Ole Chap, you know you rather did take the court in the eye, eh what? And a jolly good ere doin' in they were, too. Aye, and it did my heart good to read it too, what with these blasted restrictions and all.

The bloomin blighters 'ave gone off the nut, 'ain't what they've done. A bit balmy in the crumpet I'd say. A restien bunch of guttersnipes who want the parking area all to themselves.

The devil take the faculty and staff along with their own George Gnann for less than chipper ways.

I shall be going—and soon, you know.

Tally-Ho and thanks again, old boy.

Manty McGee

Too Serious!

Dear Editor,

Well, Four columnists, a certain Allen Head, is suffering from a bad case of being too serious. It seems that my somewhat distorted sense of humor was seized by four columnist in a desperate grab for material in an otherwise bare column. In a feeble attempt to make for informal discussion in an otherwise boring executive council meeting I received a low blow.

I would like to give two reasons for voting the way I did. One was that Tom Cumbie appears to be very sincere in his work as a cast serious doubt on any council member's having had Tom had missed two of the four Honor Council meetings and that these meetings last lonser than Senate or Council meetings. The second reason is that Bill Hayes, the other nominee, has already made his name on campus. He has worked his way through school almost without outside aid and has dropped many activities of late in order to continue. Besides Bill was the first true friend that I ever had at FSU, and I don't usually vote against sidekicks.

So I'm responsible, so you're too serious. So I say that there is real room in student government; so you say there is. Yet we are still friends . . . amazing this world we live in.

Yours far rational political behavior,

Dick Bradley

Fine Gesture

Dear Editor,

Those seniors who attended President Campbell's birthday supper and reception at his home participated in a fine gesture.

The affair was a success in quality, if not in quantity. Those of you who missed our little get-together last Friday simply missed the boat on another of the fine things that are being held on this campus. I could probably blast away at your lack of enthusiasm but I shall be content to hear you moan about how much and how many things you have missed in the years that follow.

For sometime to come, these should be remembered as the easiest and happiest years. How many worthwhile memories do you have now? It isn't too late to major on the major things, and then the insignificant trash we seemingly hold so dear.

Senior Class President
Dick Bradley

Monster

Dear Editor:

Congratulations and thanks for your very timely and well primed blast of the evils of FSU's baby monster—social traffic court.

Every car owning and car operating student joins me, I am sure, in thanking you for championing our cause. The resentment runs high I feel, and when the faculty and staff can hope to gain in their folly is more than I can see.

I have heard talk of soaking the men posts (reserved) with gasoline and blow them up some night and hurling lighted fagots at them, thereby ending the situation. This will not be carried out, I think, as someone has suggested that one of the trigger-happy campus policemen might be induced to shoot at someone one day.

Keep up the good work, Flambeau.

Indebtedly yours,
Sandy Williams

Easy On Cops

Dear Editor,

I don't want to fuss about the parking problem, but there are some of the things that were said about our campus policemen.

I personally have a number of personal friends and many of them are very understanding fellows. Someone has said that the campus policemen are taking advantage of the students and are trying to make it hard for them.

Our policemen only carry out the laws, rules, and orders from the administration.

Well Done

Dear Editor

Thanks are in order for your fine stand on the parking issue. Good job Well done!!!

NAGY, THE HUNGARIAN BABY ELEPHANT

By TOM KEISER

Since, after starting down from Indiana it has taken me, like a delayed en route for about two and a half months, I have missed all of that early autumnal talk about what-we-did-last-summer. Catching up, then, I fell into conversation last week with Stanley Roy Schmidt, of column fame, who glibly told me his summer story. I listened patiently until he had finished, and when he had, I was sure I could tell a bigger one, which, however, would be true and I have done so below.

Ernest J. Nagy, the Hungarian baby elephant, and I were employed by a pulverizery in the Polish outpost of South Bend, Indiana. Prior, our nearest plumbing achievement had been digging starting holes for the racers of the Riley High School Track Team, but our employer, a Republican short on scrab labor, trustingly hired us.

Our assignment was to build a sewage disposal 'underground, of course: from the end of a new manufacturing plant to a creek 75 yards away. We were to use about an acres of tile, each weighing nearly 200 pounds. Should anyone ask you, before we die, that's a beautiful licorice stick.

At first things went well—reasonably well. One day when we were playing catch with one of the tiles (we often did that; I told the elephant, who then held the tile, to wait while I checked to see where the Old Republican was. For some reason he didn't wait, instead threw the damn thing. It crashing into 83 different angular pieces, which we immediately sent cuties (in the crest) without the GOP's ever knowing.

Soon, after we had dug the channel, laid the tile, and covered it up again, the Old Republican, who always had patmned in the corner of his square a black crude root, suggested that we have a test to see if any water would actually come out of the creek end. Sure none would the elephant and I tried to dissuade him, but that was like trying to discuse civil rights with a crazed boa constrictor.

So, came water day. We bossed down that supposedly bakproof system of ours not less than 1000 pounds of water—and not one drop came out of the other end. The Old Republican, paying more attention to fact than to grammar, said as much: "They ain't a drop come out the other end yit"—and a 1000 pounds shot through!

We knew that he must be kidding so I went down to check. He had never been more right. The inside of that disposal system was as dry as the inside of an unused Arabian headcoverer. The water was gone, vanished!

The Republican ordered the elephant to squeeze through the pipe and not come back until he had discovered water. He feared that the water would get stuck and drown. The old man turned to me I said I knew nothing I would rather do more than crawl through that damn dark hole but that such a thing was highly unreasonable due to my severe claustrophobia

"That like earner?" he asked. "No," I said, "not exactly. It's more like measles in the first stage," and commandeering a pulling my head, he gave me the rest of the day off.

SECRETS OF LOST TIME AND PLUMBERS

By FRANCES CAWTHON

I was really worried for a while, but now I am feeling better.

My roommate and I were beginning to think that we were not very popular as Junior Counselors with our Freshmen girls. So we said we have hated that the popularity of a J. C. was measured by the amount of tricks their Fresh played on them. But nobody bothered to short-sheet our beds or put water on our animals from the ceiling. We were feeling pretty low.

But finally, to report, we cannot find a pair of shoes that our sisters or cirps have on an overhead watch there for three a.m.

Some inspiration made us think of a little trap door which leads to the plumbing behind all the showers. So, at twenty a.m., on hands and knees and crawling among all the pipes, we found a safe place for some hot alarms. But as all this took a matter of miles and men an estrary, they went astray for a couple of girls, too.

a time bomb. (Back in the days of '49 we knew how to space our alarms so the blokings would not be heard.)

Then came the big clock hunt. Oh, those sweet kids! Nothing I had rather do than go about unplugging all the clocks and then one o'clock in the morning. After finding a nice collection of alarm clocks we'd all meet in the one morning, we had to find a clock for that meet. One has to be in shape for that sort of thing, you know.

The plumbers came to fix the showers a day or two later and discovered all the clocks, and we were fined. We were questioning that we were not supposed to go carrying among the water pipes after dark, but the clock-stealing charges were dropped. However, we've shifted the loot to a new place.

The absence of all the hall's alarm clocks has caused absolutely most importing sts o'clock rooters so they could make it up in the morning. Of course we never knew nothing of the whereabouts of the clocks, we—o, not us. !Of course now we are renting reliable alarm clocks for ten cents a night.)

So, as I said before, we are feeling fine now. We no longer feel slighted and lacking the affections of our charges. We are happy. We are gay . . . and we are hoping like mad that they realize they don't need to pull out more tricks to make us feel needed!

Cotillion Club Taps Twenty-Two Girls For Membership

Cotillion club, women's dance society, has tapped 20 new members. Selection was based on dancing ability, personality, character and appearance on the dance floor.

At the recent tapping, new members chosen were Sylvia Strange, Ann Rosidoux, Nancy Mayer, Angel Pinder, Jackie Wenger, Janet Wells, Fay Morris, Joan Wilson, Katherine Mason, Sara Hollingsworth and Isabelle Arflin.

Also chosen were Iris Stokes, Nancy Conroy, Dolores Bates, Shirley Bradshaw, Carolyn Cola, Mari Ann Falligant, Mary Dougherty, Patty Angel and Martha Sue Bleckly.

The society is planning its annual Christmas dance for Dec. 14. They also plan to help with university dances this year and sponsor dance lessons in the spring.

Officers of Cotillion are Jean Ohlotte, president; Darlene Mixon, vice president; Jo Nell Proctor, secretary; Donan Case, treasurer and Carolyn Nord, dance chairman.

Lewandowski Gets Art Juror Position

Edmund D. Lewandowski, acting head of the art department, recently accepted the position of juror on the Jury of Award for the Florida International Art Exhibition.

The exhibition will be on the Florida Southern Campus from February 18 to March 16, 1952.

Over $4500 in prizes will be awarded and special awards will be made to artists from every state in the union as well as Hawaii, Alaska and Canada. This exhibition promises to be one of the most extensive ever held in Florida, according to Chairman Donna M. Stoddard, head of the art department at FSC.

When interviewed, Professor Lewandowski said, "There can be little doubt that 1952 will tend to put Florida on the map in the art world as no other single year has done. This is a year of large opportunity for artists and I certainly urge all Florida artists to take advantage of the availability of such an exhibition as this."

Crews for Play, 'All My Sons', Are Announced

Crews for the second community series play, All My Sons, have been announced by the department of speech.

The play will be presented Nov. 30, Dec. 1, 3 and 4 in the Conrad theater under the direction of Dr. George Mellinger.

MARYLYN NELSON will be assistant director with Fred Myers as stage manager and Bill Tybo as house manager.

Scenery is being constructed by Bert Hollander and Franklin Adams. Polly Doe and John Wycoff are co-heads of the lighting crew which includes Blair Hennesay, Carolyn Brites, and Dora Godwin.

PROPERTIES ARE being handled by Martha Camp, head, Kay Bardin, and Rose Biancarosa. Costume crew managers are Jorie McDaniels, head, Martha Camp, Joe Yon and Carol Brannon.

Serving on the make-up crew are Barbara Shuler, head, Bunny Banks, and George Cary. Publicity is being handled by Lillian Preston, head; Vivian Law, Lee Hildman, Dorothy Womble, Libby Mauch, and John W. Howard.

Cast for the play was announced last week and includes Reuben Silver, Beatrice Lambert, Joe Yon, Julie Storm, George Cary, Loren Reichert, Shirley Wicks, Sara Margaret Davis and John Howard.

Postmaster May Has Many Headaches With Student Mail

"Postmasters should be equipped with mental telepathy" is the conclusion William H. May, Florida State University postmaster, has reached from his unique problems.

The headache of head postmaster May, his four full-time employees, and three student assistants, is incorrectly, or incompletely addressed mail. "For two weeks a package simply addressed to Miss Josephine, FSU, Tallahassee, Florida, has been waiting to be claimed," an assistant reported. There is no clue as to where Miss Josephina may be reached.

Earlier this week a letter was received which inserted a handdrawn kitten as a co-ed's first name. A post-card was addressed to "the prettiest girl at Florida State University." For reasons of diplomacy, Mr. May has not chosen the owner. Last year a fan letter with an attached photograph as the only address, reached the owner, a circus queen.

Many letters arrive which do not give the students box number. Service is slowed since the box address must be looked up in the school catalogue.

Margaret Truman Is Visitor at Ruge Hall

Ruge hall will be closed from Wednesday night until Sunday night for the holidays.

Thanksgiving services were held last Sunday, with Miss Margaret Truman joining members of the Canterbury Club for worship. She was president of the club while at George Washington University.

Morrison Elected Nursing President

Florida State University junior in the School of Nursing, Miss Marinell Morrison, is the newly elected president of the Florida Association of Student Nurses.

FASN was organized at a convention of the Florida State Nurses Association held in St. Petersburg, November 14 through 17.

Fourteen Schools of Nursing were represented from the state with 96 students present.

Professor in charge of the graduate program in the FSU School of Nursing was chairman of a committee from FSNA which assisted in organizing the student nurses association.

Miss Joan Powell, an FSU junior in the School of Nursing, was elected corresponding secretary of the association.

Les Jongleurs Has New Attendance Bill

Cast for La Parisienne, the second experimental speech department production, has been tentatively announced.

The cast includes Carlisle Floyd as Lafont, Kenneth Martin as Du Mesnil, Kay Bardin as Adele and Douglas Russell as Simpson with the role of Coulide to be filled. All roles are subject to change.

The play will be produced January 8, 9 and 10 with Roger Busfield directing. It is one of the first naturalistic comedies and was written by Henri Becton.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 27...THE LYNX

This sporty student really teed off on a long tirade when he found himself stymied on the "single puff" and "one sniff" cigarette tests. "They're strictly for the birdies!" said he. He realized that cigarette mildness requires more deliberation than a cursory inhale or exhale. Millions of smokers concur — there's only one true test of mildness and flavor in a cigarette.

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

FSU Loses 14-6 in Hot Cigar Bowl Battle

THE SEMINOLE SCOOP

By Jim Couch

"MURDER INCORPORATED" is the only appropriate description of the Tampa victory over our Seminoles. From the opening kickoff until the final whistle blew, the Spartans made it completely clear that they were going to win by whatever methods possible.

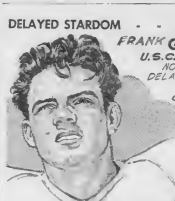
This was doubly amazing, for they made no attempt to conceal their slugging and eye-gouging from the record home crowd. Fans were beginning to wonder when the Lions were going to be brought into the arena to add further to the mock-football game.

The Seminoles took it as long as they could and then started giving it back in the second half. Several times, ballcarriers were allowed to pick up extra yardage because the tacklers were more intent upon annihilating, rather than merely stopping, the ballcarrier.

Several Tampa players found themselves draped over the bleachers when FSU players threw them out of bounds. The fact that the bleachers are a good ten yards from the sidelines clearly illustrates the intensity of the hard football with intent of injury.

Never before have I ever witnessed football players so determined on self destruction. It makes one stop and think if football is really necessary when opposing teams bring utter chaos into the game as a secret weapon in an effort to win at any cost. And to think that Tampa is coached by a former All-American. Could be that he will be an all-American fight promoter next.

Let there be no doubt that the Spartans also added good football into their win over the Seminoles. The Spartans played good ball between rounds. But the fact remains that they literally turned the game into a battlefield.



Two of the next breaks, the Seminoles have had all year, further aided the Spartan cause. Twice Bob Whitmer caught passes which ended up as fumbles. Some fans might think that these were only the normal breaks of the game, but to those who were watching closely, they were just another farce on football. The Tampa players were definitely out for the ball instead of the carrier, for all three of the fumbles which the Seminoles lost were deliberately knocked from the runners' arms.

When you finish adding all this up, you don't have to wonder why they almost ran up football at Tampa last year in favor of other sports . . . boxing and wrestling maybe.

In any event it was nice to see so many FSU fans at the Tampa game. It looks like more students went to the Tampa tussle than witnessed the Wofford game last week.

Speaking of fans, I would like to congratulate the cheerleaders for their great work during the last eight games. Whenever spirit was low, they were always yelling their heads off, which shows that at least some students appreciate the hard work of a fine football team. Keep up the good work girls. It might rub off on some of the deadbeats we have around campus.

Penalties Mark Rough Contest As Seminoles Close Season

The Florida State University Seminoles closed out their 1951 season Saturday when they dropped a close 14-6 battle to the Tampa Spartans in the Cigar Bowl in Tampa.

The win was the first for the Spartans over the Seminoles, who had won three straight previous to the upset Tampa victory.

The Spartans wasted little time getting out in front, as they scored on a punt return early in the first period. Tommy Brown punted in the Tampa 25, where King took the ball and handed off to Chicko who went the entire length of the field for the first touchdown. Holland Aplin added the point and Tampa was out in front to stay.

Neither team was able to score durin gthe second period, although the Seminoles drove deep into Spartan territory on two occasions. The Spartan defense held the Seminoles on the seven yard stripe on the deepest penetration of the period. The half ended with FSU driving on the Tampa 34.

The third period started with both teams fumbling several times, until the Seminoles made a soal line drive that started on their own 30-yard stripe. From here, the Seminoles went to the Tampa 46, where Italiano hit Whitmer with a pass on the 25, where he laterated to Kalenich, who drove to the 25 before fumbling. Tampa recovered the loose ball on their six to end the threat.

The Seminoles held and took the Tampa punt on the mid-field stripe. Turk went to the 35 on a center buck. Then Nelson Italiano turned on the steam and drove through the entire Tampa secondary to score the lone FSU touchdown. Hugett's kick was wide.

Late in the game period, Tampa started their final touchdown drive, when Chicko took Hugett's kickoff on the 12 and raced to the FSU 46 where he was knocked out of bounds.

A fifteen yard penalty against the Seminoles put the ball on the 31, where Lahoky passed six yards to Chicko. Lahosky couldn't find a receiver and ran to the 18 for a first down. Jim Blaine ran the remaining distance on the first play of the fourth quarter. Aplin again added the scoring for the night was over.

The game was one of the roughest Tampa fans had ever witnessed, as the Spartans received a total of 144 yards in penalties, while the Seminoles were having 95 called against them.

The Seminole defeat gives the FSU team a season record of six wins and two defeats.

Odd's Over Even's In Soccer Game

In the second Odd-Even tournament game played Saturday, November 16, on the soccer field, the Odds defeated the Evens by a close score of 4-2 in a well played game.

Both teams played heads up ball, and during the first half the Evens took the lead by a score of 2-0 when Lucy Harvey, wing, kicked the goal.

At the half, Odd coach, Miss Sanborn, gave the team a pep talk that paid off as the Odds went down and scored two goals at the expense of the Evens. Jo-Anne Young and Sadie Powell each added two points to put the Odds out in front 4-2 where they stayed until the end of the game.

The Even lineup was: wings, Herndon and Hargraves; inner, Templeton and Gertz; center, Mink; halfbacks, Folson, Kirk and Crum; fullbacks, Rigell and Alexander; goalie, Moody. Jo Powell went in for Carol Gertz at the half.

The Odds were: wings, Carter and Athanason; inner, Presnell and Haynes; center, Young; halfbacks, Guard, Cooper and Von Wetner, who played a great defensive game; goalie, McWilliams, and substitutes were Hinton, Austin and Cullinsworth.

The third game will be played Tuesday at five on the soccer field. The Odds will be trying for the championship, as they are one game ahead of the Evens. The Evens will have to win to stay in the tournament. Two games have been played but the first ended in a tie of 0-0.

November Starts 2nd Sports Season

Jane Kirk, president of Women's Recreation Association, announced that the second sport season will get under way on November 26, and urges that every women student participate in the sport of her choice.

The Odd-Even sports and their leaders are: Sally Ellis and Jane Kirk, volleyball; Frankie Brown-lee and Eunice Thompson, bowling; Mary Browder and Nancy Smith, dance.

The intramural sports will include ping pong, archery and basketball.

Nancy Smith, president of Theater Dance Group, stated that those girls making the Odd-Even dance team will be eligible to be voted upon by the Theater group without having to wait for the next regularly scheduled tryouts next semester. The dance group will participate in the forthcoming musical, "Roberta," plus having several productions of their own.

The Tarpon show which is the big event of the second sport season will be presented on Dec-ember 12-15.

Odd Hockey Wins Championship Tilt

The Odd hockey team took second straight game from Even team Saturday, November by a score of 2-1 for the championship for 1951

The Evens led the Odds circle margin of 1-0 up to the Both teams played very well the Odds went ahead in the se half when Del Peters, Jeanne Cullum and June Cles scored three consecutive goals Nancy Albury made the only Even The Even lineup: goalie Wa fullbacks, Thompson and Ander halfbacks were Blackler, Alb and Brown; forwards, Bailey Hubert; inners, Race and Mo center Lane and Lorna Shoe

David C. Yang Speaks to Bi-Y On His China-USA Impressions

David C. Yang, a graduate student in the school of education, came to America only four and a half years ago from Pochow, in North China.

Speaking recently at the Thanksgiving meeting of Bi-Y David stressed that in this country we are often not thankful for the abundant opportunities that are open to us. "In China few can even go to school, or have enough to protect them from the cold winter." It is his desire that students in this country remember to share their wealth with those across the seas.

Mr. Yang will remember his first night in the states at a San Francisco hotel. "The bed was so soft that I couldn't sleep until I put the sheets on the floor and they will be played tonight at 7:00 p.m. The S.A.E.-Kappa Sigma contest that was postponed on November 8 will be played immediately following at 7:45 p.m.

BOWLING

Both Fraternity and Dormitory bowling will get under way next Monday, the 26th. Entries have been sent to the frat and dorm managers that entered basketball teams in intramural competition. These are due back in the Intramural Office no later than 5:00 p.m. November 21. Any dormitory or independent group wishing to enter that has not received an entry blank should contact the Intramural office.

Board Approves Spend-Night Bill

Women Students Allowed to Spend Night in Town Starting at Midnight

The Faculty Reviewing board in their November meeting passed the "spend-the-night-in-town" bill as presented by the Women's senate, it was announced by senate chairman Betty Rich.

Betty reported at Wednesday's meeting that the bill will go into effect next semester.

THE NEW BILL reads that women students will be allowed to stay overnight in town if their permission states then, and if they have filed a written invitation from the hostess in the dormitory office 24 hours prior to leaving campus.

At the Wednesday Senate meeting Chairman Betty Rich, also announced that the faculty reviewing board passed a bill allowing freshmen women students no limit on dates. This bill will also go into effect next semester when the "spend-the-night" bill does.

Senator Alice Davison was asked to investigate the registrar's progress on the matter concerning student registering for the second semester before they leave for their vacations.

SENATOR MARJORIE Meckstroth was appointed as a committee of one to find a new name for the Pow Wow test. Suggestions from the Senators are to be submitted to Marjorie.

A report by Senator Mary Ann Rowell was given on a synopsis of her talk with Dean of Women Katherine Warren, about a poll on drinking, also discussed among the Senators Senator Marjorie Meckstroth reported that the drinking rule could never be changed by student vote. They are of the opinion that the rule is exclusively an administrative affair.

Parents have three choices as to week-end permissions in the future, the first one being as a result of her talk with Dean of Women Katherine Warren, about a poll on drinking. All three choices require a blanket permission for the semester, secondly, a specific permission for each time, and finally no permission.

STUDENTS ARE restricted to leaving in the homes of students now in college or faculty members. The hostess is defined as a mature person which the Senate has reported as 30 years of age or more, faculty members by their recent meeting com-

Culpepper Elected President Of SCPA at Annual Meeting

Dean J. Broward Culpepper

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare at Florida State University, was elected president of the Southern College Personnel Association at its annual meeting held at the University of Kentucky.

Other officers selected were Dr. Robert Williams, Emory University, dean of students, vice president; and Miss Ava Belles Vandervilt, placement counselor, secretary; L. L. Love, dean of students, Louisiana State University of Mississippi, treasurer.

DEAN CULPEPPER has been FSU student welfare director since 1947, having served in this previous year as director of the Division of research and service. He has held the position of administrative coordinator of Leon County schools from 1945 to 1946 and has also served as principal of the P. K. Yonge Laboratory School and assistant professor of education at the University of Florida.

Culpepper was an officer of the Navy during 1944 and 1945 while on leave of absence from his school duties. He won his bachelor of arts degree at the University of Florida and holds master's and doctor's degrees from Columbia University.

OUTSTANDING speakers who took part in the SCPA meeting were Dr. Leo M. Cholden, vice-president of the University of Kentucky; Dr. Robert Carlisle, assistant dean of students, Indiana University; and new president of the Personnel and Guidance Association; Dr. George Davis, director of student affairs, Purdue University; and Dr. Carrol L. Shartle, executive secretary of the Personnel Research board, Ohio State University.

Next year's meeting has been tentatively scheduled for November 10 through 11 at North Carolina State College, Raleigh, Culpepper announced.

UGA Amendment Goes to Faculty

The election of the WPBU station manager is the subject of the year's first amendment to the UGA constitution. The proposed amendment, which passed Student University Senate unanimously two weeks ago, is expected to go before the faculty for review sometime next month.

The bill was introduced by Senators Mary Ruth Summers and Milton Carothers, will make the station manager a regular UGA officer, to be elected by the student body at the UGA March general election. The nominations, however, are to be made by the Seminole Broadcasting association, student radio organization.

WPBU station manager is now elected directly by members of the Seminole Broadcasting association. Present manager is Stan Gould.

COMMUNITY SERIES PLAY

'All My Sons' Opens Tonight for 4-Day Run

Tonight will begin the four-day run of the second community series play, All My Sons, in the Autuna Conradi theater.

Students will be allowed the reduction price of 44 cents at the presentation of their identification cards as at the first series production.

Featured in tonight's show is Reubin Silver, graduate student, as the lead portraying Joe Keller.

ALSO IN THE CAST are Beatrice Lambert playing Kate Keller, Joe Tom as Chris Keller, Julie Strom as Ann Deever, George Cary as George Deever and Loren Reichert as Dr. Jim Bayliss.

Others in the cast are Shirley Drake as Lydia Lubey, Sara Marcaret Davis as Sue Barlow, John Howard as Frank Lubey, and Jerry Bradshaw as Bert.

The play is built around two families who were together in a business which produced defective airplane parts during the last war. One partner is sent to jail but the other goes free and makes a lot of money.

THE REACTION of their children and the fact that the Keller son was reported missing during the war, ruinate the play.

The Florida State production is being directed by Dr. George McCalmon, head of the theater area within the speech department.

All My Sons, written by Arthur Miller, was produced in New York in 1947 with Margaret Sullivan in the leading role. It won the Drama Critics' award for that season and later became a movie featuring Katherine Hepburn.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR of the production is Marilyn Nelson and Fred Myers is stage manager. Bill Fox is house manager, Ruth Hollander and Franklin Adams are in charge of construction.

Props are handled by Martha Camp, head. Costume head is Marjorie McDaniels. Publicity is handled by Lillian Preston, head

Honor Week Set Jan. 13-18

Tentative Plans Are Made By Committee

Final plans are under way for the annual Honor Emphasis week program dated for Jan. 13 through 18.

Zoe Rentz, committee chairman, said that the committee is contacting Dan Duckworth of Virginia for a guest speaker for Emphasis week.

A TENTATIVE schedule for the week has been drawn up for Jan. 13 through 18. On Sunday the 13th, the churches will again cooperate with the honor committee in presenting sermons emphasizing honor. On Monday, a movie called "Honesty Is the Best Policy" is expected to be featured.

Sororities and fraternities will bring out displays during the week and will theme in their regular Monday night chapter meetings.

ZOE SAID that between now and Jan. 13, a talk similar to this will also be going out to the dormitories, sororities, and fraternities telling what Honor Emphasis week and the honor system.

The chairman of the committee said a meeting would also be held on Dec. 6 for all freshman men in the orientation system in the West Campus Student Union. The meeting is set for 7:30.

CONTINUING her Honor Emphasis week schedule, Zoe noted that all committees would study and size the honor system and its purpose at their Monday meeting. Also the honor system will be discussed and suggestions as to what can be done.

Parking Compromise Submitted By Gnann

A compromise proposal for student-faculty parking was submitted by George Gnann, chairman of the Student Traffic court, to Rod K. Shaw, Florida State University business manager, last Tuesday.

"The proposal is an afterpayment on the one suggested by University Government Association president, Will Pennell, shortly after the outbursts of student criticism precipitated by the parking restrictions last week went into effect November 12.

SPECIALLY, the compromise suggests that the street around Westcott be reserved for faculty and staff and that the street from Jennie Murphree to Bryan hall be operated on a two-hour parking basis, with the University police making three daily checks.

It also proposes that the Music building be open to students, faculty and staff on a first come, first serve basis. It suggests a proposed parking lot at Call and Copeland streets be operated similar to the Music building lot.

SHAW PROMISED to take the matter up with the Administration traffic committee and said he hoped to reply within a couple of days.

The proposal, which was handed by Gnann to Shaw in the form of a letter, opened as stated below.

"AT A MEETING with Will Pennell and Mary Ruth Summers it was suggested that the following plan be submitted to the Faculty Traffic committee for its consideration . . ." Then followed the four proposals. Referring to the adverse reaction of students to the parking restrictions and thus to the Student Traffic court itself, Gnann concluded, "We feel that this will alleviate the criti-

Council Makes Christmas List

A Christmas tree and a new bus are possible items on the University Council shopping list.

At the regular meeting of the council Tuesday, Will Pennell, University Government Association president, suggested the purchases.

THE PROPOSED $18,000 bus, which cannot be bought out of state funds, would be for the use of various campus organizations, probably on a self-liquidating basis. Senators Jim Mason and Jo Nell Procter were appointed to find out whether the council should invest the $10,000 surplus from the student activity fund.

The matter of a new Christmas tree was also referred to Pennell. Pennell appointed Vernon Peeples to fill the senior Men's senate vacancy caused by the resignation of Bill Cutler, last week.

Dick Bradley reported that the newly-formed Men's Way committee will go over the names of all the members of the senior class

FSU Blood Drive to Focus On Independent Students

Mobile Units from Jax Bank Accept Donations Dec. 10-13

For students who have not participated in the Omicron Delta Kappa "Blood for Korea" drive, this week will be an "Independent Week" on the Florida State University campus.

- Independent solicitation will be secured through house president, junior counselors, and floor managers for the women, and counselors and monitors for the men students.

DEFINITE DATES have been set for the actual procurement of the blood. Students will contribute during the nation-wide program December 10, 11, 12 and 13. "If student enthusiasm and turnout is high enough, the blood procurement set-up will extend to the 14th," Bob Griffin, chairman said.

Donorship will take place on the fourth floor of the FSU infirmary between the hours of 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. during the five days. Mobile units will be sent from the Jacksonville Blood bank, which has the contract from the Armed forces for procurement in this North Florida Area.

ONLY STUDENTS and faculty members are eligible in this program. Townspeople will have a later date in which to donate blood.

Doctors, nurses and technicians will be supplied jointly by the Jacksonville and FSU Community Blood banks, the FSU infirmary medical school of nursing, the Leon County Medical society, the Leon County Health department and the Tallahassee Memorial hospital.

A CHALLENGE has been issued by the Associated students of the University of Idaho, a state university which is smaller than FSU. On the U. of f campus, 1014 students contributed blood with a ten percent minimum, and 1258 out of a student body of 2040. One-hundred and sixty-seven Vandenia

Musical Play Opens Dec. 6 For 3-Nite Run

Jerome Kern's musical comedy, Roberta, will be produced in the Music Hall on Dec. 6, 7, and 8 with over 120 students and faculty members involved.

The plot of the comedy centers around the Parisian dress shop of Aunt Minnie, whose professional name is Roberta. At the death of she leaves her shop to her nephew, John Kent, all-American fullback. John's business and romantic problems form the core of the plot.

THE LOCALE of the story is Paris, but the action and the dress are American. There is a love story which is properly complicated and ever more properly solved. One of the highlights of the production is the style show sequence featuring the latest creations of Madame Roberta.

Some of Kern's best known tunes were written for the Broadway and Hollywood productions of Roberta. Among them are Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, You're Devastating, and Lovely To Look At.

The musical show was a long way over a year and was made into a movie in 1935. Currently it is being filmed by MGM under the title "Lovely To Look At."

THE PRODUCER of the show is Dr. Robert L. Briggs, assistant professor of music education. Professor Nellie-Bond Dickinson is in charge of stage direction and Professor Charles Reimer, lighting and sets.

Heading a cast of 15 principal singing and speaking roles will be Joan Daye James and J. Dayton Smith as the romantic leads. Virginia French is in the role of Madame Roberta. Adrienne Worton Love as Clementine - a night club entertainer, and Jim Harris as Huckleberry Haines a crooner.

THE MUSICAL will feature the Theater Dance group an orchestra of 25 pieces, a dance group of 5, and 14 models.

Tickets for the FSU production are on sale at the School of Music FSU bookstore, and from members of Mu Alpha and Sinfonia. Both Iota, music honorary sororities which are sponsoring the show Ticket price is 75 cents.

'Camel Caravan' Broadcasts Here Second Semester

The Artist Series committee, in cooperation with Sandspur, will present the appearance of Ben Grauer and Monroe on campus Saturday, February 23, 1952, for a production of the CBS radio show known as the "Camel Caravan" and as the orchestra for the Sandspur Dance.

The radio show "Camel Caravan" will be staged in Music Hall. The 600 seat auditorium will be pro-rated among the various classes and the general public. There will be no admission charge for this show.

The caravan will be carried over loudspeakers into the Music amphitheater for the benefit of students who cannot be accommodated in the Music auditorium.

The Sandspur dance will be in the Suwanee Room. The cost of the dance is set at $2.75 per couple.

The Artist Series Committee members said they were very glad to have the opportunity to cooperate with the students in bringing a nationally famous "name band" to the campus for both a special concert in the Music Hall and for the Sandspur Dance. They pointed out that the extremely limited auditorium facilities made it impractical to bring large and expensive groups such as ballets or symphony orchestras here.

Compulsory Meeting

There will be a compulsory meeting of all house presidents and dorm counselors Monday at 5 in Nork Cawthon.

Joint Meeting Is in Lakeland

FSGA, FIPA Unite To Exchange Ideas

The joint convention of the Florida Student Government Association and the Florida Intercollegiate Press Association will be held at Florida Southern College in Lakeland next Wednesday.

The convention will begin with a joint meeting of FSGA and FIPA on Wednesday afternoon. On Thursday FSGA will have round table discussions on the goals values, and rights of student government. These will be followed by group discussions.

THE PURPOSE of the convention is to exchange ideas and information on the problems of student government and devise ways to promote better student government.

Problems such as the control of student activity funds and the division of authority, which arise in the relationship between student government and the administration will be studied. Internal problems of student government such as the operation of the programs and political parties will be discussed. Faculty-student government relations will also be discussed.

REPRESENTING Florida State University Government Association will be William Pennell, president, Senators Mary Ruth Summers, Betty Rich, Ignacio "Pancho" Sevi, and Allan Head, president of FSGA

Representing FSU student publications will be Bill Dunn, managing editor, and Hazel Morrison, news editor of the Flambeau, and Ed Pipkin, managing editor of Smoke Signals.

Smoke Signals Holds Contest

A cover girl contest is being sponsored by Smoke Signals magazine for its second issue to come out the third of January.

Joel Smith, editor of the campus magazine, announced that any dormitory, sorority, or fraternity and any campus organization is eligible to enter a girl in the contest to be held Thursday, Dec. 6. The winner of the contest will be announced in the next issue of the Flambeau

ALL ORGANIZATIONS should have their representatives' names turned in by Dec. 3 to Nancy Minish at the Zeta Tau Alpha house, phone 3-1739, or Joel Smith at the Sigma Nu house, phone 2-1091.

Sororities and fraternities are asked to elect their representatives at their next Monday night's chapter meeting.

Co-eds will pose in shorts and bathing suits and there will be an optional choice of posing in a street dress or a formal. Photographer for the contest is Bill Hinish.

THE FIRST SERIES will be selected by the five editors and two faculty members. One of the issues will be for the Miss Co-ed Years of 1952 and will be the cover girl of the Flambeau issue. The remaining twelve will be chosen to represent a calendar girl. The girls will not know for what month they have been chosen however, until the publication of the issue comes out.

The staff judges will be finally able to vote for a representative of their own organization, Smith said.

DEADLINE FOR this issue was originally announced for Nov. 29, the editor said, but due to the delay of the first issue, the deadline has been extended.

Smoke Signals will be out before the Christmas holidays. The delay of the issue was because of printing difficulties. The editor said the printer was in the process of putting in a new press and could not get the magazine set up.

Smith also announced that the Smoke Signals representative to the Florida Student Press association meeting in Florida Southern next week will be managing editor, Ed Pipkin.

TIME ARTICLE PROVOKES DISCUSSION

Small Still Flame of Youth Is Only A Reflection of the Troubled Times

BY BETTY HENKEL

(Note: this article is being run in its entirety because of its interest and emphasis on college students. The Flambeau did not feel warranted to cut the continuity or organization.)

The most startling fact about the younger generation is its silence . . . by comparison with the Flaming Youth of their parents and predecessors, the generation is a small, still flame . . . Youth wants a good, secure job . . . ambitions have shrunk . . . Intelectually today's young people already seem a bit stodgy."

The professor finished reading the Time magazine article and looked up expecting to find every student eager to deny the accusations. The future young journalists were silent. But it was not a thoughtful silence. They seemed to be in tacit agreement with the article on "a lackluster generation," and unconcerned over what was being said about them. "I can't conclude," he said, "that this is correct in what it says about youth."

FROM THE behavior of the class it did seem that the article was right. However, it began to wonder how the older generation saw today's young people, and the experiences that make them who have been working with and teaching students, would agree with Time's findings?

I went first to Dr. Paul Finney, retired head of the Psychology department who for almost thirty years has counseled students here on their personal problems. Dr. Finney criticized Time for failing to show youth as the product of its environment. "The younger generation is the same as [illegible] any generation in any age. It is a reflection of the time in which it lives. A generation cannot be removed from the social fabric and examined as a thing apart as Time seeks to do. Its silence is the silence of all society."

DR. FINNER believes that youth like the age, has lost it's moorings. Today's young people and parents are too often lukewarm and satisfied with mediocrity. They have no great dreams and ambitions for security.

He continued, "students today reflect the trend of security seeking. They are sent to college by parents who look upon a college education as a means of economic advancement. where they are instructed by professors who are seeking security themselves, through tenure, compensations and teachers unions. This 'practical' trend in education, which dominates today destroys liberal education.

TIME POINTS to the moral confusion of young people. Dr. Finney agrees. "They are confused morally as there is a confusion about ultimates all through society. For example, they want love and affection and seek it through promiscuity without realizing that one of the basic conditions on which love grows must be mutual respect. This confusion is that love must be centered on one mate. The capacity for love is traded for a mess of husks. 'Unfortunately their parents have failed to give them a good foundation of morals, one that cannot be learned in a textbook on sexology."

Time indicates a trend toward rebellion. "As far as criticism is concerned," Professor Finner noted,

Sororities Have Made Big Plans For Annual Panhellenic Weekend

By MARCIA MORRIS

ALPHA CHI OMEGA'S are looking forward to visits from alumni for Pan Hellenic weekend. Friday night the Alpha Chis have scheduled a buffet supper and weiner roast to begin the weekend's functions.

Tuesday night the members of Alpha Delta Pi entertained the Suma Chis with a "Kid Party." Pledging was held Thursday for Mary Boynton, Tallahassee; Jeanne Lee Heiver, Miami; and Betty Sawell, Quincy.

Alpha Gamma Delta's are sending presents of toys and clothing to Korean children for Christmas. A surprise party was given the pledges by their pledge mothers on Friday night. A supper party at Lafayette Park will be the big function for the Alpha Gam's and their dates this weekend in addition to the dance Saturday night.

Just before the Thanksgiving holiday, Alpha Xi Delta pledges entertained the actives with a "rush" party. A "television show" was the theme and entertainment was in the form of original songs presented by the pledges.

Plans are being made now for a huge Christmas party to be given for some of Tallahassee's underprivileged children by the Alpha Xis and the Delta Tau Delta's.

Members of Chi Omega surprised their pledges Monday night with a roadside party. Dr. Hudson Rogers was guest at a coffee for members and pledges at the Hellenic piano for the Chi O's include a western party Friday night, and a dance next Saturday afternoon. Ara Andrews is chairman of decorations; Carolyn Cahoun, akit chairman; and Lucy Williams is in charge of food.

Monday, November 19, pledges of Delta Zeta entertained pledges of other sororities with a party featuring "Fashions of all Eras."

New pledges of Delta Zeta are Dot Pace, Jacksonville; June Taylor, Pensacola; Lou Rine Hoare, Orlando; Ray Jenkins and Alice Jones, Miami; Pat Grey, Havana; and Ann Phillips, Panama City. A banquet honoring the new pledges was held at the Duval Hotel Thursday, Nov. 15.

Gamma Phi Beta's gave an informal party Wednesday night for the Delta Tau Deltas. The pledges provided entertainment with an original skit.

Kappa Delta plans this weekend for the members and pledges to include a weiner roast with weiners cheese for Friday night. K D's will go thir week to the children's ward in the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital to read books, play games, and otherwise entertain the children there.

Recently elected officers of Pi Beta Phi are Jean Livingston, president, and Evelyn Gray, vice president. Pi Phi's and their dates are having a weiner roast at Camp Flastacowo Friday night, and an open house during intermission of the dance Saturday.

Kappa Alpha Thetas were hostesses to the S.A.E's with a weiner roast, last Wednesday. The party was in the yard, and was followed afterwards by dancing inside. Ordy Taprell was overall chairman for the project. Toasted Marshmallows holding a "Sadie Hawkins" party at the house in keeping with Pan Hellenic weekend. Ardis Bourland is serving as chairman for this affair.

On Sunday the pledges of Phi Delta Theta played the actives in a touch football game, and won 6-0. Phi Delta were given a party by the Phi Mu's last week. Plans are underway now for the annual Christmas party for Tallahasee's underprivileged children held jointly with the A D. P.'s and this year scheduled for December 16. Recently pledged to Phi Delta was John Baruch.

New officers of Theta Chi are Bob Schmeltz, president; Lew Fischer, chaplain; and Ira Sulton, historian. Pledge class officers are Art Stephens, president; Henry Hudson, vice president; Ralph Johnson, secretary; Fred Herold, treasurer; and Ken Cruger, chaplain.

Speakers Needed For ODK Bureau

Students with a "tiff of talk" and a "love for Florida State University" are requested to contact Wallace Dunn, speaker chairman for the Omicron Delta Kappa speakers' bureau.

Preparations are being made to have students attend high school class days over this date during the first part of next year.

Chairman of the ODK Speakers Bureau is Dick Bradley.

Screening will be done in cooperation with the speech department.

Poll Is Scheduled

The Florida Flambeau will take part in an Associated Collegiate Press national poll of student opinion that will commence in the near future.

Students who have had experience in taking polls of opinion are asked to contact the Flambeau office.

Honor Week

On Thursday, a radio program will be presented.

A mass meeting of faculty and students will be held on Friday.

AFTER HONOR Emphasis week is over, plans for students to present the honor system set-up to high schools will be brought up. Interns may possibly be contacted before they leave for their internship period to assist in this project.

A faculty committee appointed by President Doak S. Campbell held their first meeting yesterday afternoon on definite classroom procedures based on the honor system.

Small Still Flame

"there seems to be a return to an institution but not to the basic things for which religion stands. A community wants churches as a coordinating influence, and young people are attending churches because they believe them a stadying influence, and because in places them in an accepted class.

"RELIGION TODAY is a Sunday religion. There is no emphasis on the fundamentals of a great life too often falls on deafened ears. Like their elders, they have found modern ways of stoning the prophets."

Dr. M. R. Hinson, professor of education, agreed with Dr. Finner, in that youth is a product of the age. "They are more realistic than idealistic, as compared to former generations, but so is the philosophy; of the world today."

Time calls the young women "emotional D.P.'s . . . There is every evidence that they have not been made happy by their ascent to power."

DR. HINSON agreed and added an explanation to Time's statement, "The girl wants both a career and a home, yes, but this is almost forced upon her, as few husbands can now earn enough to meet the modern high standards of living in this "gadget minded" society."

In the opinion of several residence counselors, youth today is more sober minded. They point out these are children of the depression and the war years, the end product of an increased divorce rate, and that such childhood insecurity is leading them to seek a security of their own. They seem to feel the need to establish their home on our Dr. Hinson, a sound family life. This is further Time fear stated by the realistic indicate that they marry in greater numbers and at earlier ages than did their forebears."

Miss Katharine Warren, who in her counselor capacity as Dean of Women, has had the opportunity to observe the innerworkings of the youthful generation, disagreed with the article. "My experience with today's youth has been with a select group—the college student, and is therefore limited, from my point of view, the conclusions of the author about youth seem to be too pessimistic. He portrays youth as too commonplace, etolid, passive, unambitious preoccupied with self-interest, and satisfied with mediocrity and with material goods. Even though based on wide investigation the conclusions do not seem convincing nor realistic. The conclusions do seem too broad and over reaching . . . I believe youth to be as moral fundamentally as was youth thirty years ago. Of ten their lack of convention gives the impression that they are unconcerned with morals, while actually they are as concerned as people have ever been."

HOWEVER ALL the professors interviewed agree that youth mirrors the security mindedness, moral confusion, and complacency conventionalism of the world today. The younger generation, then, cannot be expected to be any better or worse than the conditions of its environment. Considering that the older generation, who as Time indicates, has "given the younger generation few standards, few ideals, and an education increasingly specialized, i.e., without culture — these youths' morals have turned out far better than anyone had a right to hope. . . ."

"Educators across the U. S. complain that young people seem to have not millitant beliefs. They do not speak out for anything. Professors who used to enjoy baiting students . . . now find they cannot get a rise out of the dormitory-takers in their classes." Professor John Parker of geography and recently Sociology, believes the lack of interest on the part of the students is the fault of educators. "It takes a higher grade teacher to stimulate classes in this day when students are apt to know as much as their professors. A teacher must have more to offer than stereotyped ideas, and disembodied facts."

THE SILENCE of this generation might then, be interpretated as the silence of knowing only that with its studies but with a world which advocates one set of values and practices another. In the new higher educational system where they might expect to find a resolution of society's conflicting values, these conflicts are regarded in the supposing light of controversy and avoided by instructors.

In the face of social confusion youth seems to have adopted an attitude of grave fatalism. To quote finally from Time, "Young people do not feel cheated. And they do not blame anyone. This generation puts the blame on life as a whole, not on parents, politicians, cartels, etc. The fact of this world is war, uncertainly, the need for work, constant sacrifice. Nobody likes that fact. But youth does not blame the fact on its parents dropping the ball, of In real life, youth seems to know, people always drop the ball. Perhaps today has little cynicism, because it never hoped for much."

Annual Panhell Dance Is Tomorrow, 8-12 P.M.

The annual Panhellenic dance will be held in the Suwannee room dining hall tomorrow night from 8 until 12 midnight. The dance is open to Greeks and their guests.

Paying for the formal dance will be Mike Salibs and his 10 piece band. Salibs, Florida State University student intern and Kappa Alpha fraternity member, is directing the forma: Bob Cox band.

THE BAND, now named "The Regents," boasts itself the "new sound in dance music." Ann Gee, freshman day student, is the band vocalist.

Wraps will be checked at the Reynolds arcade for the Greek members and their guests tomorrow night. Approximately 120 guest invitations have been sent out. Panhellenic secretary and dance chairman, Joanne McCartney, has noted. There is no restriction concerning corsages, she said.

A CHRISTMAS SETTING of bells, boughs, and Christmas will portray the holiday spirit. A backdrop with the traditional red-suited Santa clause and his reindeer and sled will be included in tomorrow night's scene.

Various sorority and fraternity emblems will also be decorating the Suwannee room.

Co-chairman of the decorations are Joan Powell, Sigma Kappa, and Karolyn Bardin, Alpha Xi Delta. Decorating for the event will be tomorrow afternoon with each Greek chapter cooperating in half-hour relays.

REFRESHMENT chairmen are Ann Hendon, Alpha Omicron Pi, and Beverly Branum, Alpha Gamma Delta. In charge of arrangements in general are Evia Carter, Delta Zeta; and Norma Mc-Intosh, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Helen Claire Wnat, Alpha Delta Pi; and Kay Upsom, Pi Beta Phi are co-chairmen of the music and entertainment. Ann Hawkins, Kappa Delta, and Elisabeth Dorr, Delta Gamma are in charge of invitations while Mary Ann Lucree, Alpha Chi Omega; and Harriet Knight, Delta Zeta, are in charge of the clean-up committee which begins operation at 7 a.m. Sunday morning. General dance chairman is Joanne McCartney.

OFFICERS OF Panhellenic this year are Mildred Hall, Alpha Delta Pi, as president; Joanne McCartney, Delta Delta Delta, as secretary; and Gwendle Lindsey, Phi Mu, as treasurer.

Panhellenic is made up of representatives from 16 national women's fraternities on this campus. Many of the organizations are planning additional parties on Friday and Saturday for Panhellenic week-end.

University of Fla. Hikes Student Fees $25 Per Semester

The State Board of Control has given the University of Florida permission to increase student fees $25 a semester, a 50 percent increase over the present fee.

The $25 hike is broken down into $2.50 for the student activity fee, $2.50 for the infirmary fee and $20 to the contingent fee.

This raises the present student activity fee at the University of Florida from $12 to $14.50. Passage of this portion of the fee approves the assessment owned by the student body over there to one in a campus-wide election last month.

Commenting on the reasons for the increase, Dr. J. Hillis Miller, president of the university, said, "In view of the economic situation of the country, particularly of the uncertainty of enrollment of 1952; in view of the fact that the state universities have raised their fees an average of 50 percent in the last decade, and the university has had no raise during that same period, and in view of the increased cost of operation which students pay relatively a small percentage, it was considered the interests of the student and Administration that the student fees should be revised upward."

The new fee will become effective at the next fall term.

mented that there shouldn't be an age discussion.

Students may stay in town on Friday and Saturday nights only if they are limited to three overnight absences each semester. Consecutive Friday and Saturday nights spent in town will count as two absences.

It was revealed that each night spent in town counts as a week-end.

STUDENTS ARE under the same University policies as students in residence.

The "spend - the - night" bill states that a student may not spend the night with after she has attended a university dance unless it is with her parents. She cannot sign out in the afternoon to spend the night in town and cannot sign out for a date on campus.

The bill notes that students may never spend the night in a hotel or tourist court unless with parents.

If a student leaves town during her dormitory stay, it will be at the discretion of the hostess, provided that the student call her dormitory also and notify a staff member where she intends to go.

Women students are on their honor to uphold the social standards of good university women the bill concludes.

had given blood previously to an off-campus drive.

At a blood captain meeting yesterday afternoon an outline of the blood-donor schedule was presented by Robert Griffin, chairman of the ODK sponsored project. Fraternities and sororities will be assigned a certain time during the four days to give blood. Blood captains will be responsible to see that his or her group make a appointments.

STUDENTS UNDER 21 years of age must have written parents permission in order to give blood. Students will not be accepted if under 18 or if their weight is less than 110 pounds.

The procedure for giving blood will be presented in future issues of the Flambeau.

Any student under 21 that wants blanks on which they may secure their parents permission may pick them up in the Flambeau office.

MARKING THE beginning of the Christmas season, the program included carols and folk-songs relating the story of "the King of Bethlehem," and featured one of the great religious masterpieces of all time, the "Pope Marcellus Mass" by Palestrina.

The drama inherent in the text of the mass has inspired composers in all many lands and creeds to attempt a musical setting of its words from Bach, the pillar of Lutheranism, to the skeptical and agnostic Verdi," a report from the Music School stated. "Many such works have found a permanent place in the choral repertoire even though they are seldom if ever performed in the church environment for which they were written," the report also read.

THE TEXT, which is drawn from several sources, includes the account of an angel on the first Christmas morning, Glory to God in the Highest, the Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty from Isaiah 6:3 and the visitation of John the Baptist Behold the Lamb of God from the Gospel of John.

The entire program was sung without instrumental accompaniment, according to Dr. Howe-wright. This was following a practice inaugurated by Dr. Sinora last December when they presented the first "a cappella" concert given on the campus.

Michelangelo Movie Shown

"The Titan," a movie based on the life of Michelangelo, historically famous painter and sculptor, was shown in the Music building auditorium yesterday under the auspices of the Artist Series.

The movie was shown free of charge to Florida State University students at the presentation of identification cards. The same movie played last year in a New York theater for $1.65.

IT HAS BEEN announced by a member of the Artist Series committee that if sufficient interest is shown in "The Titan," it will be brought back for a showing later.

University organizations over the country are bringing this film to vast student audiences.

Delegates attending the Florida Federation of Art convention being held here through tomorrow were guests at the University movie.

ACCORDING TO a recent release, the Michelangelo movie has earned unanimous approval from outstanding critics of this country. Of all the movies in the better theaters of New York, "The Sutton," "The Fifth Avenue Playhouse," and "The Little Carnegie," only "Mon-Tai" has won such a similar high acclaim. The movie "Kon-Tiki" was also a draft voyage from Peru to the South Sea Islands.

The movie of the life of Michelangelo, interprets in a new art form, one of the oldest arts, sculpture.

FLIGHT OF A REFUGEE

Wagner Relates Life Story of Escape From Conquering European Armies

BY HILDEGARDE WAGNER

(Ed. Note—This is quoted excerpts from a personal autobiography written especially for this feature).

Hearing an awful noise on the street as we were eating dinner one evening, my father stepped to the window and said sadly, "They are here," meaning the Russians, I shall never forget that moment. Fear of being separated and taken to Siberia struck my parents. Although I was only ten, I understood the danger. Tank after tank, and truck after truck rolled into the city. As we stood tearfully at the window, we saw the flag, red, white and green. It was the Hungarian flag. We had liberated Budapest. We were still German allies who were trying to capture the Rumanians and throw back the Russians.

THERE SEEMS to be quite a bit of doubt as to where I was born. Three troubled times make me uncertain of the name of that country. During my grandfather's time the country of my birth was part of Austro-Hungarian monarchy. When my mother was born it was called Hungary; at my birth it happened to belong to Rumania; whereas as the present it is behind the Iron Curtain—directly or indirectly, a part of Russia.

Regardless of the name of my native country, I was born in the "Banat," which is almost a German province on the border of Hungary and Rumania. The language is German.

UNTIL 1944 we led a peaceful, comfortable life. My parents both taught at a German school, but in 1944 when the Rumanians, allies of the Germans capitulated, all the Germans living in Rumania seemed hari. Houses were looted by Rumanians who did not hesitate to take radios, cars, telephones and bicycles.

When the Hungarians took over the town, we felt free again to walk the streets for now the Rumanians were prisoners. But the front fighting line came closer to us. All day long we could hear shooting. Now we spent much time in the cellar as enemy planes hovered above. The Hungarians were still more bad to retreat until our city became the battle front.

WOULD WE leave home or stay? My father could not bear to leave, but my mother, fearing falling into Russian hands, decided we should flee. I shall always remember the tenth of September, 1944, when my family left home with four suitcases. We fled in a retreating military truck into Hungary. Our city was burning on the other side as we left.

Other families fled too in trucks, bicycles, tractors and horses. Only our brave priest remained standing calmly by the old church.

We started to a city about a hundred miles north of Banat. Here my grandmother lived. Walking most of the way, it took us a week to reach this city. On the way a priest and an actor joined us making our trip much more enjoyable. The actor's sense of humor was greatly appreciated. The priest constantly reminded us that prayer was the only help for such a disaster.

AT LAST we reached my grandmother's town which by this time was running over with soldiers, tanks and trucks. Russian prisoners were brought in every day. Regardless of all this we were thankful for a meal and a bed. If the Russians crossed the Hungarian border we knew we were lost. There could be no returning home. The Russians were advancing. Again the question: What shall we do? Our answer was to escape the Red Army. All my relatives, except my old grandmother joined us we fled, the women and children by train, and the men by wagons and bicycles.

Finally we landed in Vienna. The air raids here were awful; I cannot describe the feeling one has while sitting in the cellar waiting every moment to be killed. For five months we heard no word of my father. On New Year's Day, 1945 came a message. He shortly joined us. We lived in Passau, Bavaria until 1948. Though afraid when the Americans took over, we were glad it was not the Russians. Propoganda had described Americans as cruel and barbaric. I had never grieved that we fled.

Religious Groups Plan Big Activities

Religious events have resumed over campus with plans for futura activities featuring guest speakers, Newman Club initiation, Episcopal communion, and a Baptist training union study course.

Catholic

Newman club will hold initiation of transfer students and freshmen Sunday, Dec. 2, at the Newman house.

Details for a forthcoming Christmas party are being completed.

Methodist

Wesley Foundation will have two guest speakers Sunday. Dr. Joe Tolle, Methodist district superintendent, will speak at the Sunday School service, telling of his summer trip to Europe and to the Ecumenical conference.

The evening fellowship program will be led by Dr. Marion Irish, professor of political science at Florida State University, who will discuss present national problems.

Lutheran

Gamma Delta, Lutheran student organization, held a special "Nation's Night" program recently. Student members took the roles of representatives of eight foreign countries.

Christian

Disciples Student fellowship is sponsoring a partial scholarship for a Negro ministerial student at Florida A. & M. College. Scholarship funds are taken from student pledges.

Episcopal

The annual Corporate communion for men held throughout the Episcopal church on the first Sunday in each December will be participated in by Episcopal FSU students at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in connection with the regular service. The communion will be held in the chapel at Rupe hall. Mr. Hugh Ellingsworth, Ralph Maier, and James Pelham are in charge of arrangements. A coffee will follow the service.

Baptist

Maines Rawls, Southwide Baptist young people's secretary, from Nashville, Tenn., will be at the First Baptist church to lead a training union study course beginning Sunday night after the regular supper hour. The Sunday night course will take the place of the regular training union program.

Monday night, Rawls will speak at a mass associational training union meeting at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist church.

Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, the regular study course program will resume and is scheduled from 7 until 9:15 p.m. in the Dural street wing.

Demonstration Slated Of Civil Air Facilities

A demonstration depicting the use of Civil Aeronautics Administration facilities will be made in the Auguste Comedit theater Thursday, December 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The depiction will be presented through arrangements with the CAA. Navigational, communication, and air traffic control facilities will be included in the demonstration.

The December 6 demonstration will take the place of the Air Force ROTC drill scheduled, never seen beings with dark skin, and was frightened at seeing Negro soldiers.

In 1946, my mother and I, with two younger children, arrived in Tallahassee. Here our home is with my uncle who has a local business. Though I like it here, I will never forget Banat, the kindersarten of my life, and I fervently hope that some day my country will be free again. Friends still there report that they would rather be dead. I am fortunate in having the privilege of coming to America, and have never grieved that we fled.

Coveliers to Sponsor Tea Dance Tuesday

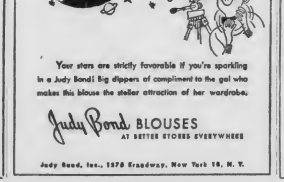
Cavaliers, men's dancing club has announced a tea dance for next Tuesday from 7 until 8 p.m. at the West campus Student Union.

Cosmo de Cardone, president of the dance club, said "The new sound in dance music." The Regents, will play for the event. The band with the sax appeal will furnish a 10-piece band. The band is the former Bon Cole band with new arrangements. Cordone said.

Vocalist will be Ann Gee, he also noted.

Fall Tarpon Show Opens December 12

1951 fall Tarpon show is set for a four day run to begin Dec. 12 in the East Campus gymnasium portraying "The Arabian Nights."



The annual underwater performance will begin with the mystery of the "Night With a Thousand Eyes" as the pool is transformed into a maze of lights and patterns.

Starring in a swimming duet will be Jean Rigell and Peta Dunn-Rankin. Tarpon club this year voted to have a girl and boy swim the duet. Peta was chosen under the same conditions that members try out.

Kuder Test Offered

Students wishing to take the Kuder Preference test are asked to sign the bulletin board in 203 Westcott immediately. The vocational guidance test will be given on December 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Foreign Visitors' Opinions Of FSU Could Shake World

The 31,000 foreign students attending our American colleges and universities this year offer a challenge to every student, every teacher and every citizen of our nation.

The opinions and impressions which these young visitors carry back to their homes with them can be of incalculable importance to the future of our country. Emphasizing this fact is the case of one bright young Japanese who attended Oregon University some years ago, graduating with honors at the age of 20. This student carried a bad taste back with him to Japan, the taste of a strong prejudice against Orientals which was prevalent on the West Coast at that time. This young man became violently anti-America and it was he, Yosuke Matsuoka, who was Japan's Foreign Minister in 1940, as Japan made plans for attacking Pearl Harbor.

Today the average American citizen is not as oblivious of the feelings and opinions of foreigners as he was 50 years ago. Many people realize that these visitors have much to offer us and are busy formulating ways of making them feel more at home. Organizations have been formed whose purpose it is to extend a welcome and a helping hand to these foreign students and to give them opportunities to see how we in America live.

In Michigan, a dynamic plan known as "Adventures in World Understanding" is in full swing. Arrangements are made for foreign students to visit farms, public schools, and churches. They attend barn dances, ball games, bridal showers and county auctions. Local residents invite them to their homes for meals or to spend a few days seeing how an average American family lives.

In Seattle, a young ex-Navy chaplain, now foreign-student adviser at the University of Washington, has organized the Foundation for International Understanding Through Students. Through memberships sold to the Seattle business community the foundation supports the work of showing the University's 500 foreign students the Northwest.

This same group of students conducts a weekly radio program, "Guests of America," and also an International Round Table, where foundation members gather to hear them report on what they have learned in America.

Today, 115 fraternities and 38 sororities give room and board to at least one foreign student. In this way, close friendships are formed and both the American and the foreign student have an affordable and invaluable experience in learning from each other's ways of thinking and feeling.

We at FSU have an especially golden opportunity to act as hosts and ambassadors here at home, without ever going abroad. Working independently without the benefit of an organization, there is still much that we can do. We have only to imagine how we would feel if allowed to remain alone and friendless in a foreign country.

● A CHALLENGE

A challenge has been issued by the Associated Students of the University of Idaho.

They claim title to the "Bloodiest Campus In the United States," because 38.8 per cent of their student body have contributed a pint of blood to the Armed Forces Blood Drive, which is reaching the peak of momentum on this campus.

The challenge is as follows:

"We, the Associated Students of the University of Idaho, at present the undisputed claimants of the title 'The Bloodiest Campus In the United States,' do hereby challenge all campuses to better our present record of 1,014 pints of blood given in three days at our campus drive after 167 students had donated at an earlier city drive.

"In an effort to alleviate the serious shortage of blood and plasma which now exists in Korea, we further challenge any college or university to better, on a percentage basis, our high mark of 38.8 per cent in actual donations by our student body of 3,040."

Will this record be broken at Florida State University?

It's up to you, the student.

● AN EXAMPLE

Students are better versed in the wicked facts of inflation at the University of Florida than at this university we believe.

After a general election the student body at the U. of F. voted over three to one to increase student fees. The increase was passed by the state Board of Control so next year student government, publications, music groups, the building program, the student infirmary, et al, can operate with a little more freedom.

On this campus there is no financial freedom except in a few areas that spend very little money. The student government has cut in half the number of students that can attend worth-while conventions and conferences. The Flambeau is quivering its financial neck to stay in the black. Four pages must be printed because of this shortage of funds.

Multiply this by the many other departments in this university and it is easily realized that the entire university, especially the area under student activities, is suffering considerably because there just isn't enough money.

We have suggested before that action be taken. None has been taken as yet.

And now, finally wake up, students will be flocking to Gainesville because they offer a better recreational program, or they have a better Artist Series or their annual is bigger and better.

Best we wake up and study this problem. Action is needed and time is growing short.

The University of Florida, especially student government, is to be commended for their foresight into this age old problem of inflation. They have set an example for Florida State University, in this respect. Let us follow it.

● HAVE FUN

After much work on the part of your student government officers permission to check out athletic equipment has been granted men students on East campus.

Everything offered in the way of sports equipment will be offered the men in this new arrangement. You're paying for it—have fun!

● NATIONAL LEVEL

Among other pertinent items in its long comprehensive report on the status of the American educational system, the current issue of the New Republic has a section devoted to the National Student Association. Since the NSA's news headquarters will soon be at Florida State University, in Atlanta, Florida State University students will have a especial interest in the values and policies of that student group.

The article points out that the NSA is one of the strongest attempts to date to organize college students throughout the country. Previously, the problems facing students had been dealt with on a local or regional basis.

It should be obvious that with the emergence of such national issues as universal military service and the draft that these problems can no longer be handled effectively on the local level. A strong national organization is needed and if NSA is the answer, Florida State University will be in a desirable position to provide some of the leadership requisite to any group desirous of shaping national policies.

The point will no doubt be raised as to the desirability and practicability of a nation-wide student organization.

That such an organization is practicable there can be little question; modern means of communication and transportation have eliminated many of the objections that once could be raised on this point. Besides, the mechanics of interstate administration have long since been solved by such college groups as national fraternities.

As for the desirability of this program, one need only point to the benefits achieved through the national organization of other groups with similar interests: for example, doctors, farmers, musicians and lady garment workers. Surely university students have as much in common as those groups, if not more; why shouldn't they too unite to gain the advantages of fighting as a team?

Students, whether in the United States or Europe, have long been sold for their progressive attitudes on current public issues. There is no reason why they should not make their influence felt. It might do the country good.

● FAINT GLIMMER

Perhaps there is going to be a light in the wilderness about the parking situation here on campus.

Tuesday, George Gnann, along with Will Pennell, Mary Ruth Summers and Alice Jackson, presented a proposal to the FSU Traffic Committee, which is composed of members of the administration. The results of the Committee's consideration of the proposal, which was given to Rod Shaw, will be known in about "four days."

It provides for (1) faculty and staff parking in front of Westcott; (2) two hour parking periods between Longmire and Jennie Murphree, with the University police making daily checks; (3) parking in the Music lot to be first come, first serve, for both faculty, staff and students, and (4) the Call and Copeland lot to be operated on the same basis.

Wednesday night Chief Prater, of the Tallahassee city police, came to Florida State, to discuss the problem and submit suggestions. What was said in this meeting is not known as this goes to press.

Though the glimmer be faint, maybe it is an indication that something will be done. We can always keep our fingers crossed.

GAINESVILLE BITTER AT FSU GROWTH

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

After talking to several homebound Thanksgiving guys and gals from the University of Florida I am convinced that there is a growing animosity and bitterness in our brother college.

Before I enlarge, I may say the following suggestions and observations will be ripped, smeared, laughed at, and generally berated, as seems to be the procedure at Gainesville now. It's difficult to shake through their bitterness with an honest and sincere suggestion. However, here is my neck Gators . . . snap it off!

Recently the Flambeau ran a humorous (so we thought) editorial on the parking problem (this was before the dissent over the reserved parking areas). We hardly had finished chuckling at the writer's suggestions for bicycles and pedal-pushers, than the U. of F. Alligator was digging in with wicked rebuttal spades. We were the "nouveau college" and we might as well "go back to the woods" because that is where we were anyway.

We tasted a note of resentment in the air.

Then when we lost our hard fought battle to Miami the Alligator sports editor slammed the Flambeau with mile-remarks about how surprised they were that we made it down to Miami' and how our squad looked 'like a high school team'. Other small digs poured line into our cuts at every chance.

We now taste their defeat in their sarcasm.

The entire campus, from what I've heard, seems to think that Florida State is still the girls' school on the hill. Or do they suddenly realize we are an ambitious university on the way up and resent the prestige, influence, and attraction we are stealing from them? Are they afraid we will catch up, not only in sports, but in attraction of new students and in time FSU may well be THE university with U. of F. taking the smaller spotlight?

Brothers at Gainesville, this university IS unique. We have the best already with many things and bigger and better things on the schedule. Ever see our Circus? Ever hear of our Gymnastic team? Ever been to a Sandspur production? Ever entire our school of Music or examine our list of outstanding educators? Glance at our fifty year plan?

I had written their editor requesting that we exchange columns once each week. I had appointed someone to relate first hand the problems, ideas, and happenings that were top news on this campus. I hoped for a similar reply from Gainesville. The request has been sent three times. It has been turned down three times flatly . . . no reason.

It is not the feeling of the university to leer or condemn our brother university. Honest rivalry and yes, but this degrading bitter contempt is not the feeling we want. It is growing at Gainesville. It should be stopped.

I am sending this column to the president of the student body, the editor of the newspaper, and the president of Blue Key, men's leadership honorary. Perhaps, because they are influential members of the student body they can nip this cancer of bitter thought before it becomes incurable.

The manner in which you receive this 'open letter' might well be indicative your future intentions. I should be stopped.

WHAT TYPE OF COMPROMISING IS THIS?

By ALLAN HEAD

"Compromise" is the name given the counter-proposal on the traffic problem given to Rod Shaw by Will Pennell, George Gnann, and Mary Ruth Summers. All they propose is to have reserved parking around Westcott and two-hour parking from the Alum to the library. Everything else is to go to where gets there first, with no time limit.

In this case "compromise" seems to mean:

"You stole my money. Give half of it back and we'll call it even."

If the need for reserved parking could be demonstrated, why hasn't it been publicized? The truth is, it is not so much the need for parking from reserved areas as it is the staff. And since they are not here the earliest in the morning, they have the best chances at parking spaces. There is NO REAL NEED FOR RESERVED PARKING AREAS.

In last week's column I suggested that a two-hour parking zone be created. This would take care of the problem where there now is in regard to getting parking space when you're in a hurry —whether you are a student or a member of the faculty and staff.

A compromise giving an unneeded luxury to an exclusive segment of the university population is believed of the student body by their leaders. It is hoped the students will continue to make their wishes known on this issue.

Senate has waited to see what would come out of the conferences between Senate and the administrative Traffic Committee. If it appears the latter will still maintain provisions for Reserved areas, it is hoped Senate will reject it.

If this be class warfare, make the most of it! ▪ ▪ ▪

First Artist Series program, Ted Gerald Quartet, called by some "FSU's own little Talmadge" has introduced into Senate some publication "libel laws." Thrilled by the thought that he has a chance to abuse the freedom of the press, Springer has thrown overboard his campaign promise to improve the campus recreational funds and their expenditure. Why?

But by liberal count, there weren't more than 10 or 15 students there to listen to him. Others heard him over WFSU, of course, but he could be considered a stroke of luck, as none of the advance publicity said it would be broadcasted.

It seems to me that the Artist Series Committee has a responsibility to see that adequate publicity is given to these events. $200 in student money was paid to bring Wendt here.

A little more time, effort and money would have been well spent if it had let the student body know more about the program, and let them know in an effective way. ▪ ▪ ▪

NO MORE MEN WHO ARE NAMBIE-PAMBIES

By FRANCES CAWTHON

The amazing Mr. Schmidt, the writer who points what he thinks and believes, is at it again.

I am so disgusted with the status quo of the writer Miss and Mrs. Female lead their bubbles, boy friends and other males around by the nose. He claims about ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent of the opposite sex (opposite to him, that is) likes to assume the role of staff sergeant while the man plays a boot camp rookie. Let us have no more nambie-pambies, says Stan, Let us return to the days when "men were men" and let the ladies in on their superiority.

As a member of that race called females, I suppose I should sharpen my fingernails, lock Colonel Schmidt square in the face, and say. "Nuts to you. You've got us wimmen all wrong."

I am not exactly going to do this. For one reason it would be rather difficult to face Mr. Campus Characters square in the face unless I stood on a chair, (He's taller than I am.) Another reason is that he is partly right. But . . .

If Jane leads Joe about like a pet poodle, Joe, not Jane, is at fault. If Joe really is of the superior sex, then Joe ought to have enough sense to shake the leash Jane has about his neck, (whew.)

Here Number Two: No gal drop down in the recesses of her seal really and truly likes to crack a whip. Even more distasteful to her is to will let her. There are cases when a woman says, "Tan are absolutely going to that baseball game with the boys tonight," and means it, needs, "Yes, dear," and stays home with his knitting. Even though the wife at the time might be living on the latest styles in victory lasting, you can't tell me her opinion of Henry did not drop a few degrees. Few things are more sickening than a spineless male.

But the fact that the asin just don't go for Obedient Abe does not, Mr. C.C., mean that we advocate a flashback to the days when

DEBATABLE

Editor's Note: This plan being put into operation in Arkansas will be headed by various faculty members in the school of education through the Flambeau in the near future.]

Dear Sir:

The Flambeau has performed a real service in describing a new plan for teacher education. Anyone who is interested in the improvement of the public school system should be interested in the Arkansas plan.

One striking feature of this plan is that it provides for a five year period of training rather than the current four year requirement. This is probably desirable, but it's practicality is another thing. A recommendation requisite to raising certification requirements is a salary increase; the Florida legislature refused even a $300 raise, and with increases in Federal taxes, a living boost in state taxes is doubtful.

The value of a full year's internship will have to be evaluated. At FSU there is one semester devoted to internship and student teaching. Regardless of the length of the internship program, a beginning teacher will necessarily be "green" and will learn a lot on the job.

The advisability of abolishing schools of education is, of course, debatable. However, it is clear that there is more to teaching than knowledge of subjects matter. Many college teachers have had numerous despised "methods" courses; but every college student can cite examples of instructors who "know it but can't teach it." Is it presumptuous to suggest that such courses would not hurt them?

There are those that claim that if one knows his subject he can teach it (my reply to that is "ain't necessarily so!") For that any requirement in education courses will seem excuse. Actually, however, such requirements are modest.

To obtain a certificate (Rank III, or Grades 8-12) to teach in Florida high school, exactly 24 education courses are required in addition to the internship semester. General and educational psychology courses required of these are not education courses.

Surely, one should be equally sincere in his desire to remain in approximately 100 semester hours of firm grasp of subject matter in a broad general education. There are doubtless teachers in high school who are poorly trained in subject matter, but it is a bit silly to blame it on requirements in education courses.

Sincerely,
James R. Fleet

Second of Seminars Held for Counselors

Freshman educational counselors met recently for their second seminar of the year, arranged by Dr. Melvene Hardee, coordinator of counseling.

The group discussed a recent study of a typical freshmen from the points of high school and make wise decisions about a major, assisting student's achievements in their academic courses and working with students to improve better social adjustment.

Miss Janet Ress, educational counselor and instructor in English; and William Earle, resident counselor for freshmen, arranged the program.

Poetically Yours....

THE RADICAL

He came and was told
He was told and he listened.
But in listening, he questioned
And by questioning, uncovered.
The unopened, he saw
And in seeing thought;
Then in thinking he knew
And in knowing believed.
Thus believing, he spoke
But his speech was condemned.
Condemned, he was free.
Yea, new and untried;
Untried by men, yet condemned by all.
Such is the life of a radical.

A great play by some miracle comes out of the Hollywood cliche factory almost intact. The producer by-passes his mistress and brother-in-law, actually employing the people who played this Pulitzer prize winner on Broadway.

Also by some miracle the director loses none of the play's realism, symbolism and emotional impact, amid the kidney-shaped pools of country clubs.

Said great picture comes to Tallahassee with appropriate fanfare (plus price hike) and its movie fans respond characteristically by praising their mother-lugged offspring and an unshakable conviction that Hollywood wouldn't stoop so low as to make movies, think:

They were stabbed.

They got their money's worth though. Laughing at Marlon Brando's screams portrayal of the earthy, passionate polack. They were so used to Peter Lawford-like British accents, phony sophistication and glamour pumped plots that they missed points, laughing at what was anything but funny.

The psychological motivation of the unbalanced stater was lost in the shuffle. ("She was sexy," was Tom Tallahassean's keen observation.)

The solution . . . easy. . . . Bring Lash LaRue back to the Florida Theater where he belongs. . . .

Seminoles Cagers Idle Until Dec. 8

The Florida State University basketball team who dropped a 77-46 decision to the strong Parris Island Marines in their season opener last Monday are idle until Dec. 8, when they meet Culver Stockton here in the home opener.

The Maroon five, who is making a tour through the Southeast and who ranks as one of the Nations finer small college teams, will also play Miami and Stetson.

Veteran center Tom McLaughlin paced the Seminole attack against the Marines with 13 points, while forward Ivy Quinn added six markers.

The Leathernecks who were last year's National Marine Champions and who won 55 of 60 games, held a 45-18 lead at halftime and were in command all the way

Commenting on the game, Coach Bud Kennedy said, "We played a very fine team but we simply didn't play the brand of ball we were capable of playing."

up prospects for 52. Veller has already made several talks in nearby towns and assistant coaches Bill Armstrong and Tom Robinson have already left on scouting tours.

The first two gridders who have agreed to enter here next Fall are Jerry High Billy Kelly and Ted Williams. The two local boys were bright spots in an otherwise drab Leon aggregation.

Kelly, a back, is a threat every time he gets the ball. The six-foot 155 pounder whose built along the lines of Tommy Brown plus a few pounds, runs, passes, and is a stalwart on defense. Billy throws like Veller likes 'em; hard, and on the run.

Williams, (no relation to Boston's Ted) is a rugged 190 pounder who likes it rough. Both boys are three year varsity performers with the Lions and should be a welcome addition to the Florida State squad.

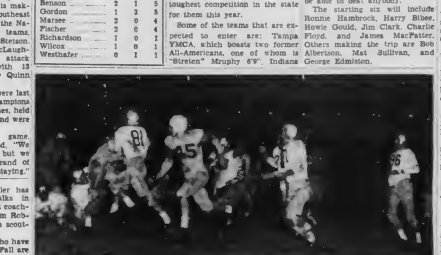
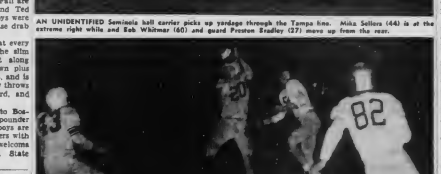
Volleyballers Play in St. Pete



The Florida State volleyball squad will leave for St. Petersburg this afternoon to participate in the annual St. Petersburg YMCA Invitational Open tomorrow being held in the St. Pete YMCA gym.

This will be the Seminoles first appearance in this particular tournament and it will afford the toughest competition in the state for them this year.



Some of the teams that are expected to enter are: Tampa YMCA, which boasts two former All-Americans, one of whom is "Sireten" Murphy 6'9". Indiana basketball standout: St. Pete Y; Palm Beach Y; Miami Y; and defending champions Jacksonville Navy.

Coach Bill Odenetal said "Our chances of winning all the games are very slim. Our practices have been awfully slow this week, and unless we can get a spark and improve our passing, we won't be able to beat anybody."

The starting six will include Ronnie Hambrock, Harry Bibee, Howie Gould, Jim Clark, Charlie Floyd, and James MacPatter. Others making the trip are Bob Albertson, Mat Sullivan, and George Edmiston.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Seminole ball carrier picks up yardage through the Tampa line. Mika Sellers (44) is at the extreme right while and Bob Whitmer (40) and guard Preston Bradley (27) move up from the rear.

TOMMY BROWN, ace Indian safetyman, leaps high into the air to haul down a Tampa pass in the FSU-Tampa game which the Spartans won, 14-6. Defensive back Wayne Bonnar (43), is at the far left.

Baby Seminoles To Open 1951-52 Slate Saturday

The Florida State "B" squad will open their 1951-52 cage season in Jacksonville Saturday night against the Jacksonville Junior College five.

Graduate Assistant coach Bill Weigel announced an all Freshman lineup that includes Jerry Ellenwood and Tom Burst at forwards, Jim Hardsty and Bo Averlit at guards, and Rick Benson at center.

Other players making the trip are Ken Smith, Bill Wisner, Ralph Blinn, Brook Bishop, and Dick Metz.

Head coach Bud Kennedy announced that the reserves' regular schedule of games would be posted at a later date.

Kiwanis Are Host To Football Team

The Tallahassee Kiwanis Club will again be host to the Florida State football team at their annual banquet which gets underway at the Tallahassee Legion Home Tuesday evening at 6:45.

Highlighing the affair will be the announcement of the 1952 captain, the most valuable player and this year's lettermen.

Members of the Seminole squad invited to the banquet include: Sorgen, Thompson, Bryant, Carnes, Garrett, Shehadas, Overby, Sebring, Booth, E. Brown, T. Brown, Folsom, Smith, Arnold, Huey, Robinson, Graham, Bradley, Fivush, Muggett, Szczepanik, Tayler, Driver, Woelrich, Turk, Kalenich, Loekard, Woodham, Tully and Dawkins.

Also invited are Medlnow, Freese, Italiano, Benner, Sellers, Campbell, Bridges, Whaley, King, Bringer, Polak, Kirby, Balsamo, C. Brown, Linton, Davis, Merritt, O'Neal, Karlewics, Schaum, Whitney, Nagy, Ellenwood, Morrill, Swine, David, Stinson, Eady, Hudson, Sheppard, Clark, Nadrich, Auvell, Murchek and Sanders.

Football Players To Meet Monday

Teher will be an important meeting of all FSU football players Monday afternoon at 4:30 in the West Campus Little Theater, Assistant coach Bob Harbison reminded all players, varsity and "B" squad to be present.

All transfer players who were ineligible this year are also requested to be present.

Coach Don. Veller's Seminoles set 21 individual and 9 team records during the 1951 football season. Nelson Italiano is credited with eight of the new records while safetyman Tommy Brown accounted for four. Bob Whitmer end, and Ernie Huggett extra point specialist set three new marks.

Slingia game records set by Italiano include most passes attempted 20 against Miami, and most passes completed, 7 against Miami and Delta State. Halfback Italiano's seasonal records are: Most pass attempts, 61; most pass completions, 26; and most yards passing; 466. Italiano also set three new career marks for most pass attempts, 100; most passes completed 42, and most yards, total offense—700 rushing and 924 passing 1624.

Brown, punting ace and safety man, had the best punting average for a season with 30 kicks which averaged 36.1 yards and had 54 punts without one being blocked. Brown other two records came on punt returns. Ha returned the most in a season 19, and had the best average for a season with 15.7 yards per return.

Against Tampa, Whitmer set a single game pass receiving mark with 6 receptions. Whitmer set two new seasonal records—19 passes caught and most yards gained on passes received 330. Huggett kicked the most extra points in a season, 30, and in a career 38. Huggett also had the best kickoff average, 48.3.

Halfback Roy Thompson was responsible for the longest run from scrimmage—a 76 yarder against Stetson, and End Curt Campbell intercepted most opponents passes, 5. Thompson had the best kickoff return mark, 37.8 yards for 5 returns.

The new team marks are: playing before the largest crowd away from home, 38,278 at Miami; at home, 13,701 vs. Stetson; number pass attempts one game, 25, against Troy; completions one game, 11, vs. Troy; yards gained passing one game, 196, against Delta State; passes attempted, season, 142; passes completed, season, 57; passes had intercepted season, 13; and opponents puns blocked, season, four.

BASKETBALL—

By VIC RUSGAITER

Four games, two in the dorm and two in the frat league, were played in the first round games of the double elimination playoffs Tuesday. The second round was played last night with the winners meeting winners and losers meeting losers.

The results of Tuesday's playoffs:

In the first game Alpha Tau Omega humbled Kappa Alpha 32-16. Italiano led the victors with 10 points as did Lester for K. A.

Lambda Chi Alpha shaded Sigma Phi Epsilon 21-20 in a very exciting game which saw the lead change hands several times. Bertan led the Lambda Chi attack.

In the dorm playoffs, ROTC edged Magnolia (A) 32-30 in the first contest which proved to be another shuffler. Magnolia led all the way until the last few seconds when the Meteorology students put on a sprint to win Varnado was high scorer as he led the winners to victory with his 15 points.

Cockrell slashed 39-4 Lower 27-20 in the final game. Helms helped his teammates run over the 394 five with 11 tallies.

BOWLING—

The Bowling League got into full swing Tuesday as both the dorm and frat teams played several games. Tuesday's results:

FRATERNITY LEAGUE—

ATO over Lambda Chi Alpha.

Delta Tau Delta over Kappa Alpha.

Phi Delta Theta over Sigma Chi.

Theta Chi vs Sigma Nu (to be played over).

Pi Kappa Alpha over Phi Kappa Tau.

Kappa Sigma over Pi Kappa Phi.

The schedule for this week in the frat league:

Alley 1, December 4 PKP-PKT; December 5, KS-SN; December 6, PKT-SAE.

Alley 2, December 4, PKA-SN; December 5, PKP-SAE; December 6, KS-TS.

Alley 3, December 4, TC-SAE. December 5, PKA-TC; December 6, PKP-PKA.

Alley 4, December 4 SC-KA. December 5, PDT-SAE; December 6, KA-SPE.

Alley 5, December 4, DTD-ATO; December 5, SC-SPE; December 6, PDT-LCA.

Alley 6, December 4, LCA-SPE; December 5, DTD-LCA; December 6, SC-DTD.

DORMITORY BOWLING

Only two games were played Tuesday—the others were postponed as the teams were playing in the basketball playoffs. In the only games played Senior Hall (A) won over 396 Upper and 397 Upper won over 390 Upper.

Tonight's schedule shows six matches being played at 7:30:

Alley 1, Mag. (A)-NC.

Alley 2, Mag. (A)-390U.

Alley 3, 397U-SH (A).

Alley 4, 394L-MAG (B).

Alley 5, ROTC-390U.

Alley 6, Cockrell-SH (B).

TRACK—

Entry forms for intramural track have been sent out to both dorm and frat sport managers. The track meet will be conducted December 12th and 13th. Entries are due in the Intramural Office no later than December 10 Teams wishing to enter who did not receive entry blanks should contact the Intramural Office.

Adams Club Forming

Students interested in joining the Alto Adams for Governor club are invited to a special meeting Tuesday at 7:30 in the Alumni Auditorium.

Seminole Tankmen Lacking in Depth

Florida State University's swimming team will have to make up for what it lacks in depth this year by being top physical condition by Christmas, Coach "Bim" Stults stated this week.

The swimming team which stages its annual Garnett and Gold intra-squad meet December 7, has been working at a terrific pace since the start of the semester so that the loss of key men from last year's team will not be felt so badly.

This year's team will have to go some to improve upon the record of the 1950-51 season which won seven dual meets and lost none, won the Florida AAU indoor title, tied for the Southern Regional AAU championship and was regarded as the best swim team in the deep south. The loss of All American diver Rogers Slater, 1950's captain, Buddy Browning, breast stroker Ed Archer and backstroker John Buettner have hit the team hard.

Stults will have to build this years team around Co-Captains Dick "fish" Wells and Pete Dunn-Rankin, last year's Co-Captain Walter Jardine and freestylers Mitch Sutherland, Owen Boone and Jack Burnett, Tom Conway and Pat Ferrell will try to fill the shoes left by Rogert Slater while breaststrokers Wilan Jardine and backstrokers Jack Holmes and Scotty Ramsey finish out the nucleus of this year's team.

The team will be aided considerably by the addition of ten freshman and three transfer students but still the squad is too small. Coach Stults urges that men who have any swimming experience at all come out for the squad.

Past Grand Master of the Royal Order of Gourmets and Raconteurs—our outspoken friend knows how to find the proof of the pudding. Especially such a thing as cigarette mildness! A "quick puff" and a "single sniff" left him hungry for facts. Smokers everywhere have tried the same tests and discovered the one true test of cigarette mildness!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke, on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

After all the Mildness Tests . . .

Camel leads all other brands by billions

Foreign Students Have Unique Program

By JULIE HAWES

Twenty-four students from the countries of Iceland, Egypt, Iran, Turkey, China, Holland, Hungary, Puerto Rico, Canada and Panama attend Florida State University, and are members of the Foreign Students club.

Last year the organization was officially recognized, the organization bringing together those of different countries to social situations, and acquainting the campus with them.

THE TALLAHASSEE Women's club, under the leadership of Mrs. Dosk B. Campbell, entertained about 15 members at a recent luncheon. Their panel discussion included bits of personal interests as to why they had come to America, what they liked best, a tragic or funny incident.

Confusion in ordering meals seemed a common problem with several. One boy told of sitting in a snack bar, not knowing the words on the menu, he finally decided to order by repeating the order of another person several minutes away. To the dismay of the newcomer, the order in this civilized United States was hot dog. He could never manage to devour a dog, so did not get anything.

ANOTHER BOY, an Egyptian customer, thought he could get a good meal in the form of five different places on the menu. He decided agreement, not knowing what the waitress was saying. With a "not-too-understanding" look, she served five dishes of ice cream. A boy from China spent his first night in America on the hotel floor because the bed was too soft.

The club was the recent co-sponsor with Mrs. Fuller Warren, for a public school art exhibit in the Senate Building, and the weekend guests of the Home Economics club at Panama Beach. Last Sunday the Lutheran club invited them to be special guests at their social hour and Communion service.

Miss Lucilla Carmen Rivera, Spanish instructor, was elected to sponsor the group. From Hungary, Elizabeth Szoor was president; Elin Heraldsdottir, last Atomic fuel. With our present fuel sources directed from military to commercial use, travel will be almost exclusively by plane."

Dr. Wendt continued, "Medical science, attacking old age illnesses such as arthritis and the decay and fatigue of organs, is constantly increasing life expectancy. Scientists are now able to keep isolated organs alive over long periods of time for observation and experimentation. By this method we are beginning to learn something about the nervous system and the effects and creation of hormones."

IN HIS LECTURE Dr. Wendt emphasized the need for a new culture and a new science. In illustration he pointed out that the World War I was a chemists war, World War II was a physicists war, and World War III will be a biologists war.

In connection with this he stated, "I do not think we need to fear an Atomic War with Russia. The Russians undoubtedly have the knowledge and some atomic bombs, but we have many more, and quantity is what counts. However, in the knowledge of how drugs and hormones effect the mind and body, the Russians are ahead of us. This is evident in the Mindszenty trial. It seems obvious that some quick must have been given to make Mindszenty and others tried by the Russians,

NO ATOMIC WARFARE FEARS says Dr. Gerald Wendt, first Artist Series lecturer this year. Here, above, shown in informal discussion with Tallahassee reporters after his talk, "What Science Is Doing to Us," last Tuesday night.

Dr. Gerald Wendt Gives FSU Lecture

Today's youth is faced with concepts of time and space, life and death, which will revolutionize the world. This was the theme of Dr. Gerald Wendt's lecture given at the first of the artist series Tuesday night.

Calling his topic "What Science Is Doing To Us", Dr. Wendt told of some of the recent scientific discoveries which suggest that the next few years will bring many rapid changes.

"ATOMIC ENERGY", he stated, "so far regarded as a destructive force, may be converted to a fuel so light that two tenths of an ounce would provide the same energy as 30 tons of gasoline. At present the government is carrying on experiments to make atomic fuel for use in submarines. The next step will be to equip bombers and fighters from gasoline to atomic fuel. With our present fuel sources directed from military to commercial use, travel will be almost exclusively by plane."

Alpharetta Leeper Directs Wesleyites

By THEO SOMMERKAMP

A woman whose teen-age ambition was to do religious work among mountaineers, today is director of the largest student religious house on the Florida State University campus.

Miss Alpharetta Leeper, better known as "Al" to students at Wesley Foundation House, left her Muskogee, Okla., home in 1930 with that in mind. She had just finished junior college and was bound for Scarritt College, a small Methodist school in Nashville, Tenn.

THERE THE popular brown-haired girl's thoughts turned to Methodist settlement work.

She finished her undergraduate work at Scarritt, and after being ordained a deaconness in the church, was sent to Wolf Settlement in the Ybor City section of Tampa.

There she changed her plans again. Her attachment for young people at the Settlement influenced her decision. "I was interested in their work," she says. "The college students would come to me with their problems."

SHE WENT BACK to Scarritt and earned a master's degree in religious education in the spring of 1941. Her first assignment was at Florida State College for Women.

"Al" stuck in Tallahassee. She began work with 600 girls until her task was nearly doubled when F.S.C.W. became co-educational Florida State University. Now she has 1164 students to minister to.

What "Al" lacks in height she makes up in personality and energy. She's about five feet. A typical day at Wesley Foundation House finds "Al" turning in 14 to 16 hours.

THE STUDENT DIRECTOR rises at 7 in the morning for Main services, follows through the activities of the day, and closes the building for the night at 11 or 11:30. Her duties also includes frequent conferences with student committees and often personal conferences over a student's problems.

Until then Miss Leeper worked alone. However, Bet'y Barnes, now assistant director,

Miss Alpharetta Leeper

joined the staff in September. "Al", with more "leisure" time, sums up this welcome change, "I don't feel like the same person."

"AL" WON'T ADMIT her age. "Use your own judgment," is her stock answer. She wants to be a young and fresh in ideas as to students with whom she works.

What's she proudest of? The new student house that was dedicated about six weeks ago. It cost the Women's Society of Christian Service who built it about $75,000 furnished.

Yet sometimes the student center is almost-too small for the wide scope of programs that go on every day in the one-story house building just west of the Beer Shop on Jefferson Ave.

MOVIE REVIEW

'Streetcar' Is Vivid, Robust and Exciting

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

"A Streetcar Named Desire," currently showing at the Florida Theater, is the kind of picture that thrills you when you see it, then capitalizes your conversation for several weeks afterwards.

This down to earth, vivid, robust, and exciting tragedy of a southern "gentlewoman" whose life takes a downward direction as the family estate falls off to nothing, is worth every cent of the admission.

This is the play that has won the coveted Pulitzer Prize and the Critics Award and stands as one of the great dramatic achievements of our time.

The motion picture has been made under the guiding hand of Elia Kazan who staged the original Broadway production. The movie has been called more powerful than the stage production. In the words of the author, Tennessee Williams, "This is the first time I have seen a stage play actually increase in stature when transferred to the screen."

The movie will no doubt run off with the 1951's Academy Awards, leading critics say.

Marlon Brando, the sensational Broadway actor who shot to fame in the Broadway production is seen in the same role. Vivien Leigh turns one of the finest performances ever seen on the screen.

It is the year's top movie for those who like art, action, and powerful drama.

For the musical side try "An American in Paris." A light colorful movie that stars Gene Kelly and Miss Leslie Caron, star of the Ballet des Champs Elynses in Paris.

Now showing at the State Theatre, the song-and-dance musical presents such Gershwin favorites as "Nice Work If You Can Get It," "Embraceable You," "I Got Rhythm," "S Wonderful," and "Our Love is Here to Stay."

Lavish ballets, the talented piano playing of Oscar Levant, and an exhausting tempo of Paris add to two hours of fun and enjoyment. The picture ends tomorrow.

Dr. Minnick Is Author Of Published Article

Dr. Wayne C. Minnick of the speech department, is author of an article entitled, "Mathew Arnold on Emerson", which was published in a recent issue of the Quarterly Journal of Speech.

The article is an alaysis of audience reaction to Arnold's lectures on Emerson delivered in the United States in 1883.

This is the second article published by Dr. Minnick this year. His "The Froude-Burke Controversy" appeared in Speech Monographs last Morch.

Evens Edge Odds In Soccer Play

The Evens defeated the Odd soccer team by a close score of 4-1 in the first intramural game which was played on Tuesday on the soccer field.

During the game Odd fullback, Joan Hinson, received a broken nose when she collided with a member of her own team.

The members of the Odd team are Young, Fresnell, Carter, Haynes, Alhanason Guard, Cooper, McKeily, Hinton, Annin, Cobb, Von Weiner, McWilliams, Collinsworth.

The Even team is made up of Herdon, Folson, Kirk, Harravaes, Crum, Rizell, Powell, Alexander, Moody, Gertz, Templeton, Mink.

The Evens took early possession of the ball and carried it down the field for two points scored by Lacy Hargrave. The Odd kicked a penalty kick which added one point to the score. At four minutes till the end of the game Mink kicked the ball through the Odd goal to make the score 4-1. However, the Soccer tournament ended in a tie as each team won a game and tied the first game by a score of 0-0.

ARCHERY

The Odd archery team defeated the Even in the annual clash. Even archery tournament on the archery field Nov. 18.

Nancy True was the high Even man with 237; Marie Smith was high Odd man with 321 and all all high.

The Even team shot 1156 with Doris Parks, 125, Elly Mercer, 187; Delores Bates, 194; Avery Lembeck, 230; Nancy Wilson, 193; Nancy True, 237.

The Odds shot 1448 with Elizabeth Palmer, 149; Betty Gilbert, 177; Martha Garrett, 243; Joann Arvil, 256; Barbara Edgrin, 213 and Marie Smith, 321.

'First Christmas' Will Be the Theme Of Club Meeting

"The First Christmas" will be the theme of the third classical club meeting of the year, Tuesday, December 11.

THE MEETING, to be held at Ruze hall, will center around a program given by graduate and undergraduate students of the classics department. Dr. C. C. Kirk, classics department professor, will speak on the "Roman World When Christ Was Born."

Classics department graduate student instructor, Mr. Wilbur Hatton, has arranged Latin songs for the occasion. Henry A. Kmen, mathematics instructor, will tell about the "Hebrew World When Christ Was Born." Discussing and leading some early church songs will be Charles Binnicker. One student from the Terril class will conclude the program with "The Prophet Verril, a Link Between the Paran and the Christian World."

A ROMAN Saturnalia will then be held in the lounge of Ruze, followed by a short business meeting.

Classical club officers this year include Joanne McCartney, president; Caroline Everett, vice-president and program chairman; Alberta Lares, secretary and publicity chairman; Bill Bloom, treasurer; and Ann Hendon, social chairman. Miss Olivia Dorman, head of the classics department, is club advisor.

VOL. XXVIII, No. 19 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — Tuesday, December 4, 1951

Blood Donations To Begin Monday

Machinery for the Florida State University blood-donation campaign is humming with activity and workers are concluding the last-minute details for the drive to begin next Monday.

This is "independents' week" in the campaign and Inter-Greek contributions will be handled through dormitory organizations. Blood captains for women independents, house presidents and floor managers met yesterday evening in North Cawthon for briefing on procedure. In the men's dormitories, captains will be monitors and councilors.

THE BLOOD DRIVE, sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa, is for students and faculty of the university only. The date for townspeople will be announced at a later date.

Doctors, nurses and technicians from the Jacksonville and Leon County blood banks, the FSU infirmary and school of nursing, the Leon County Medical society, the Leon County Health department and Tallahassee Memorial hospital will be here December 10 through 13 to handle contributions. Hours have been set for 8 a.m. through 12 noon and 2 p.m. through 5 p.m. Persons scheduled for during those periods will be excused from those classes.

DONORS' ID cards will be shipped by National Airlines to the Sharp and Dohme laboratories in Philadelphia and Newark for processing into plasma and other blood derivatives to be labeled "Korex."

Donors must be between 18 and 60 years of age and must weigh at least 110 pounds. Students under 21 must get permission slips from their parents on special blanks, which they can obtain from their blood captains.

ODK drive chairman, Bob Griffin, announced that a large "blood bonus" awaits the dorm selected by the Westcott bus stop to show the fairy godmother the way. He also revealed that soft drinks will be supplied by the Coca-Cola company, doughnuts by the Lovett grocery chain, sandwiches by Hardee's and APO members will serve.

RADIO STATION WFSU has received orders for over 60 pints of blood in exchange for record requests.

A number of misconceptions about blood-giving are widespread, and the following should help clear up perhaps clear up any confusion the student may have on the subject.

Giving blood does not hurt; at most, the donor's arm may feel temporarily "asleep."

It is not dangerous; a doctor is in attendance at all times to be sure the donor is physically fit to give blood.

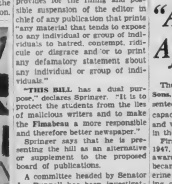
It is not lengthy: the whole process, including registration, lasts only the 15 minutes. The actual time for the donation itself is around seven minutes.

Eight Students To Go To FSGA And FIPA Meet

Allan Head, president of the Florida Student Government Association, and seven other Florida State University student representatives will attend the combined conventions of the FSGA and the Florida Intercollegiate Press Association opening at Florida Southern College in Lakeland tomorrow.

Other representatives include University Government Association vice president, Will Pennell; vice president in charge of women's affairs, Betty Rich; Senator Mary Ruth Summers, and Senator Ignacio "Pancho" Sved.

THE PUBLICATION representatives will be Florida Flambeau managing editor, Bill Dunn; news editor, Hazel Morrison, and managing editor of Smoke Signals, Ed Pipkin.



"We have great hopes that the discussions and resolutions which come out of the FSGA conference will lead to better student government and to the betterment of universities of Florida," said Head. The program as he outlined it will deal with the goals and values of student government on the first day and the problems facing student government on the second. On the third day parliamentary meetings will be held to debate and pass resolutions on the results of the two previous days discussions.

PROBLEMS UNDER consideration include control of student activity funds, building better relationships between student government, administration, people of student government and fraternal groups, the role of student government in athletic, social and cultural activities; traffic problems, honor systems, National Student Association and Who's Who.

The groups will hear an address by Dr. Ellwood C. Nash, president of the University of Tampa, on the subject "Political Responsibility in Government Today" at a banquet on the final evening.

OFFICERS OF the FIPA this year are Howard Greenwald, University of Miami, president; Gail Allerton, FSU, vice president; Walter Lang, Florida A. & M. secretary-treasurer.

Florida Student Government Association officers are Allen Head, FSU, president; Henry Healy, Florida A. & M., vice-president; Carol Cowdens, University of Tampa, secretary-treasurer; Vernon King, Edward Waters College, parliamentarian.

Three members of the "Roberta" cast was dramatic as they add final touches to the soon to open musical comedy. The play will begin Thursday and run until Saturday.

Cover Girl Contest To End Thursday

Co-eds for the cover and calendar pictorial feature of the second edition of Smoke Signals will be selected Thursday night. Place and time of the contest is yet to be announced by editor Joel Smith.

The contest to find a Florida State cover girl, sponsored by the campus magazine, will choose 13 girls by a board of five editors and two faculty members. One of the girls will be Miss New Year's of 1952 and will be the cover girl of the next issue of the magazine. The remaining twelve will be chosen as representatives to render month.

All organizations entering representatives in the contest should have candidate names in by Wednesday to Nancy McGrath at the Zeta Tau Alpha house

Co-eds entering the contest will "toe in sheets and T-shirts and then will be given an optional choice of bathing in a wool dress or formal. Photographer for the cover girl edition is Bill Frank.

Flambeau Reporters Have Meeting Today

A compulsory reporters meeting will be held in the Florida Flambeau offices at 5 p.m. today. Reporters from each staff will be expected.

Deadline for Friday edition copy is Wed. noon and Tues. edition deadline is Sat. noon.

Reporters unable to attend today's meeting are asked to contact the office.

FOUR TIMES A QUEEN

F.S.U. Ruthie Is Orange Bowl Queen

Ruthie Garst, Florida State University junior from Bradenton, was selected from a group of 24 finalists last Saturday to reign over the 1952 Miami Orange Bowl.

Appearing before a panel of 10 judges"in the Biscayne Room of the Columbus Hotel in Miami, Ruthie was interviewed about her circus activities and her ambitions for the future.

MISS GARST realized that she had been chosen queen only 30 seconds before C. Gordon Anderson, chairman of the judging committee, announced the winner. "From where I was standing on the platform," Ruthie explained, "I could look down on Mr. Anderson and see the paper in his hand. I saw 'queen' written by my name."

"I got a funny kind of a feeling. Things started whirling around in my head and when Mr. Anderson made it official, I thought it was all a dream. I became all excited and almost cried."

MR. ANDERSON also praised lovesied crown on Ruthie's head, while photographers flash bulbs popped all around her.

As the Orange Bowl queen, Ruthie will be in Miami from Dec. 26 to Jan. 2 to attend luncheons, preside over the Orange Bowl festival parties, appear in fashion shows, and go to various parties. A special gown will be designed by Mr. Wyatt of Paris for her to wear to these functions.

Ruthie, a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, also holds the title of "Miss Tallahassee" and "Pinellas Cutie" of FSU, "Miss Southern Belle" and was runner up in the "Miss Dixie" pageant in 1950.

FACTS AND figures concerning Ruthie are: height, 5 feet 6½ inches; weight, 128 pounds; bust measurements, the perfect 34-24-34.

A major in secretarial science, Miss Garst would like to go into Foreign Service, or become a professional dancer.

For recreation she is in the circus, participating in a trick tap routine, and active in sports such as swimming, volleyball, horseback riding, and softball. In the latter, she has a record of 74 strikes out of 75 times at bat, or a phenomenal batting average of .987. She has also been a majorette and played the flute in the school band.

Runners up in the Orange Bowl contest who will appear in the queens court are Roberta Monnier of Kentucky, Lisa Ericson of north of Coral Gables, Nancy Whitley of Miami Beach and Barbara Ann Nelson of Miami.

Council Members Correctly Identified

In correction of misformed identifications of four University council members, in the last Flambeau edition the following retraction is being stated.

AT ANY RATE, the second redline will be given the amendment to the Traffic-Safety Court act proposed by Gnann and Senator Mary Ruth Summers, which was introduced last week, states that appeals from the Student Traffic Court must be directed to the Tallahassee Traffic Court, rather than the University Court.

Also due for a second reading will be the libel bill of freshman Phil Spritzer, which received its first reading last week. The bill provides for the fining and possible suspension of the editor in chief of any publication that prints "any material that tends to expose to any individual or group of individuals to hatred, contempt, ridicule or disgrace and/or to print any defamatory statement about any individual or group of individuals."

"THIS BILL has a dual purpose," declares Spritzer. "It is to protect the students from the lies of malicious writers and to make the Flambeau a more responsible and therefore better newspaper."

Spritzer says that he is presenting the bill as an alternative or supplement to the proposed board of publications.

A committee headed by Senator Joe Bunnell has been investigating the possibility of setting up a student board of publications and is expected to submit a report at someime soon, perhaps this afternoon.

LAST WEEK'S meeting consisted mainly of the presentation by Pancho Sved, head of the Standing Rules Committee, of a resolution "to provide for standing rules for quorum, meetings, passage of bills, resolutions and constitutional amendments, motions, filling vacancies, standing and special committees, and suspension of rules."

A FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY QUEEN will reign at the annual Orange Bowl game and festivities on New Year's day in Miami. Chosen for the honor is Miss Ruthie Garst. Ruthie was selected from over 100 candidates from all parts of Florida.

Musical "Roberta" To Begin Thursday

Over 120 students and faculty members will take part in the musical comedy, Roberta, to be presented Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights at 8:15. The Jerome Kern musical will be given in the Music Hall auditorium.

Tickets for each of the three performances are available at the School of Music office and the Florida State University Bookstore for 75 cents. Tickets may also be secured from members of Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota.

PRODUCER OF the show is Dr. Robert L. Briggs, assistant professor of music education. Professor Nelle-Bond Dickinson is in charge of stage direction. Professor Charles Reimer is lighting and seta.

Starring a cast of 15 principals singing and speaking roles will be Joan Daye James and J. Dayton Smith as romantic leads. Virginia French is the role of Madame Roberta, Adrienne Norton Lowe as Clementine, a night club entertainer, and Jim Harris as Ruckleberry Haines, a crooner.

THE MUSICAL will feature the Theater Dance group, an orchestra of 26, a special dance chorus of five and 14 models.

The story takes place in Paris and the comedy centers around the Parisian dress shop of Aunt Minnie or Madame Roberta.

The Longmire auditorium is now the site of the University Senate's Tuesday meetings. "We've reserved the auditorium for the rest of this semester, in order to seat students who wish to attend," reports Senator Sved.

Students who attended this afternoon's meeting at 5:15 may be treated to a debate on the compromise traffic proposal submitted at last Tuesday's session by Georges Gnann, chairman of the Traffic-Safety court.

AT ANY RATE, the second reading will be given the amendment to the Traffic-Safety Court act proposed by Gnann and Senator Mary Ruth Summers, which was introduced last week, states that appeals from the Student Traffic Court must be directed to the Tallahassee Traffic Court, rather than the University Court.

Also due for a second reading will be the libel bill of freshman Phil Spritzer, which received its first reading last week. Dr. Drogman, Anthropologist To Talk at FSU

Dr. Wilton Marion Drogman, experienced anthropologist, will address Florida State University students on "The Role of the Human Skeleton in Crime Detection" at 8:15 tomorrow night in the Augusta Conradi theater.

Drogman has served as law enforcement consultant in numerous murder cases and has extensive knowledge in physical anthropology.

ONLY ADMISSION required for tomorrow's lecture a student identification cards.

Sponsored by the Florida State University Artist Series tomorrow night's talk will be the second lecture sponsored by Le Sertes.

Recognized as an international authority in the field of physical anthropology and winner of the Viking Metal award for outstanding achievement is Robert Ervin. In 1950, Dr. Drogman is now a professor of physical anthropology and medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

HE HAS WORKED with the FBI and other law enforcement agencies in solving murders and in assisting them with baffling crime cases where skeleton remains of human being have been found. Dr. Drogman has been able to tell the investigating officers the age, sex, race, and cause of death and duration of interment in many of these cases through his analysis of the remains.

He holds many high academic honors and membership in a number of professional organizations. He served with the National Research Council in Anthropology of the British Royal College of Surgeons and has taught physical anthropology at the University of Chicago, Western Reserve University and the University of Pennsylvania. He is also serving as director of the Philadelphia Center for research in child growth.

HIS LECTURE in the FSU series is for the general enjoyment of the general public. It also carries high interest for those majoring and in the social science crime cases.

The first Artist Series presentation this year was D. Gerald Wendt, of UNESCO, America's foremost speaker for Science.

CAA Demonstration To Be Held Thursday

Thursday at 7:30 p. m., Civil Aeronautics Administration will sponsor a demonstration in the Augusta Conradi theater. The demonstration will present the use of Civil Aeronautics Administration facilities.

The demonstration will be presented through arrangements with the CAA. The CAA showing will take place of the Air Force ROTC drill scheduled for Thursday.

Polls Open at 9A.M. For Court Elections

Revote to be for Five Finalists; Run-Off Voting to be Thursday

Polls will open today at 9 a. m. for the revoting of the five finalists in the Sophomore king and queen election with the final run-off Thursday. The Seminole club and Westcott stations will open at 9 a. m. and close at 5 p. m. today.

The Suwannee room opening hours are from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. Sophomore council members will be assisting in the elections.

THE SAME POLLS in the finals will be used that are open today, Betty Sue Pryer, social chairman stated.

Only sophomores are eligible to vote in the election of the king and queen but all students are invited to attend the revealing of the winners at the annual Sophomore Hop on Saturday night.

Displaying the theme of a "Winter Wonderland", the hop is scheduled from 9 p.m. until 12 midnight at the West campus Student union.

CORSAGES ARE banned, the social chairman said. She also noted that a photographer will be on the dance to take photographs of the individual couples.

No corsages will be allowed on the dance floor. This because of fire hazards. Smoking will be allowed in the lounge, however, Betty Sue reported.

In the primary election today, the queen finalists will be chosen from the following girls listed. They are Pat Vines, Jane Cooper, Dolores Gillman, June Midyette, Carolyn Calhoun, Jean Wetherell, Betty Shaw, Rita Edwards, Anita Bouriand, Jean Northrup, Polly Cannon, Carol Cowdens, Frances Merritt, Pat Walters, Kathleen Toole, and Nellie Lawrence.

'The Messiah' To Be Dec 9, 10

Choral Union to Present Oration at Leon High

Choral Union, largest singing group at Florida State University, will present the oratorio The Messiah, on December 9 and 10 in Leon High School auditorium. Both performances will begin at 8:15 p. m.

Directing the performance will be Herman Gunter Jr., assistant professor of voice at FSU. The Choral Union will be accompanied by the University Symphony, conducted by Robert Bryan, FSU instructor of violin and orchestra.

SOLOISTS in the coming performance include Norma Jean Kearney and Claire Bergman, soprano; William Dalrymple, tenor; altos, Virginia French and Betty Jo Armstrong; and bass soloist, Edgar Evans.

Personal accompanist is Nancy Hill. Solo trumpeter is Jack Scarborough.

Choral Union, two years old, is an outgrowth of the University Chorus. The University Chorus was formed when the university became co-educational. They began the tradition of singing the Messiah five years ago, during their first year of existence.

THE MESSIAH, written by George Frederic Handel in 1741, was first performed in Dublin, Ireland, on April 13, 1742, under the composer's direction. In 1789, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart added accompaniments.

When King George of England heard the oratorio he rose to his feet as the choir began the Hallelujah chorus, to show his respect for it. The rest of the audience followed suit, and thus became the custom.

The text of the oratorio begins with the prophecy, a recitative section. The tenor soloist begins: "Comfort ye my people, saith your God; speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem." The chorus follows singing, "And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed and all flesh shall see it together." Then the mouth of the Lord has spoken it."

AN ALTO VOICE takes up the strain with: "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name, Emmanuel, God with us."

The chorus joins in, singing, "O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion, arise!"

Second section of The Messiah begins with a choral selection, "For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given." Soprano

"All My Sons" Has Final Run Tonight After Successful Opening in Conradi

By JULIE HAWES

The speech production, All My Sons, by Arthur Miller, was presented to an enthusiastic, near capacity house Friday night and will have its final run tonight in the Augusta Conradi Theater.

First produced in New York in 1947, it won the Drama Critics' award for that season and later the Pulitzer prize for playwriting. Katherine Hepburn, Miller's fast-moving, overly-dramatic, and involved plot leaves exhaustion in its wake as it follows the characters' reaction to each of the three scenes.

THE REALISTIC SETTING is the back yard of the Kellers' Ohio home. Brother Silver aptly takes the role of father, Joe Keller, 60-year-old factory owner who during the war, with his partner, was charged with producing defective airplane parts. The partner is still behind bars, but Keller was freed. Silver gives a professional interpretation as he presents himself for family approval, and trys to hide his guilt from especially Joe, his son.

The idealistic Joe Keller slowly displays conflict as he is made aware that his father is the cause of many airplane crashes and various deaths. Lucky Yon, as this son, gives crisp action as he momentarily loses control of his usual self, and tortures his father by his accusations. He developed to, and finally physically beats his father, but with rather unconvincing shoulder blows.

ROMANTIC INTEREST is supplied by Ann Deever, played by Deever who is the former sweetheart of Joe's brother who was killed in the war. To all, except Joe's mother who refused to accept her son's death, Ann is Joe's girl.

Beatrice Lambert, as the near-crazed, neurotic mother who refused to believe her son is dead, satisfies the nervous, unnatural role with ease. Her portrayal of the cult role was originally done by Katherine Hepburn in movie version.

NEIGHBORS, Dr. and Mrs. Baylis, are interestingly played by Loren Reichert and Sara Margaret Davis. One is made to squirm by the demanding Mrs. Baylis who makes her power felt over her husband, and beyond to the neighbor's back yard. Relief is felt as the hard outer crust is sometimes broken and a less expecting woman emerges.

As Bert, the neighborhood kid, Jerry Brubaker makes his first part alive and active by quick jumps on father Keller's back. He gets in playing an intent game of cops with the elder Keller.

Other neighbors, the likable, common, but sometimes irritating, Lobey's, are well done by Shirley Drake and John Howard.

The community series production will be open at 8:15 tonight. Students with identification cards will be admitted at 44 cents instead of the regular admission price of 75 cents.

Panhell Dance Is Scene Of VV And L'Apache Tapping

Chosen for their charm, poise and beauty, 24 coeds girls were tapped with the black heart of the Village Vamps Saturday night at the annual Panhellenic dance.

L'Apache, an honorary of fraternity men, also pinned their red dagger of recognition on 24 new members during the evening.

IN AN IMPRESSIVE ceremony L'Apache and Village Vamp members formed a circle, and then, formed a circle on the dance floor, initiates of the two groups, Marianne Gillen and Richard Meade, then faced a six-foot black heart symbolizing the VV members; with a red dagger symbolizing L'Apache.

"Chief heartbreaker" Gillen then announced the names of the new members as each new member to wear a new member.

Freshmen girls were not the only ones honored however. The VV organization tapped its sponsor Dr. Frederick Hollebush, assistant professor of zoology, and Mr. Stephen Winters, assistant professor of geology, also during the ceremony

THE NEW VV TAPS will serve as hostesses and ushers for campus events

New taps of VV are Ann Adams, Stephanie Ambrose, Judy Blitch, Joan Brown, Joan Christsinger, Jane Cornell, Charis Cousins, Calhoun Ann Collins, Joan Edwards, Lynwood Evans, Betty Hatch, Maryann Fields, Linda Helms, Shirley Hogan, Jo Ann Hutto Dot Johnson, Ann McKay, Lyn McNeil Betty Jo Miller, Maria Merritt Ann Munroe, Nancy Mc Jo Ann Owens, Virginia Gh Janet Stark, Nancy Swearingen Pat Turner, Jan Yates, Kathleen Veal

OFFICERS FOR the society are Marrianne Gillen, president; Judy Ellis, vice-president; Lucille Rogers, secretary; and Anne Spencer, treasurer.

Everyone Can Spare a Pint For the Nonforgotten Hero

Spare a pint for Korea, buddy?

This week in the independent's week to shine on Florida State University's campus.

As the Omicron Delta Kappa "Blood for Korea" drive gains its final momentum, Individual soliciting in the dormitories and men's residence area will take place.

The fraternities and sorrorities have been called upon to give over 600 pints of blood. Remembering the disasters outnumber the Greeks almost two-to-one, they will be expected to better this mark.

The campus is more or less conditioned to the fact that there is an acute shortage of plasma in Japan and Korea. A recent letter from Captain Samuel Neel, a former professor in the department of Social Welfare, will illustrate the fact more clearly. Wrote Chaplain Neel from the front lines in Korea:

"It was a thrill for me to learn that Florida State University students are sending nearly 1000 pints of blood to Korea. Many times in the past few months I have seen the color return to a soldier's cheek as he gains a new lease on life because of a transfusion of blood which has been donated by the folks back home.

"It has been reported that the blood supply is running low over here, and it is very gratifying to learn of the success of your 'Blood for Korea' drive. If any of the enlisted men and officers over here feel that they are forgotten men, but the response such as ODK has obtained in this recent drive helps me to reassure our soldiers that the folks back home are deeply concerned for them."

Now you have it, first hand, from a friend of Florida State University who has it "first hand."

Will you play your part when the floor manager or monitor asks you "Spare a pint for Korea"?

EDITOR'S SPOTLIGHT

SENATORS NEED A POSITIVE MOTIVATION

By ROBERT GRIFFIN, JR.

There seems to be much activity in the student senate for the establishment of a student publications board, the passage of a bill and the discussion of the campus publications.

I am particularly interested because I have heard senate representatives stand up to speak they always mention the Flambeau as the motivation for their discussion.

The debate goes on, but as yet I have heard no approaches personally on my views on any phase of proposed action.

Let me offer this bit of advice to some of the more ambitious members who are concerned that something is dreadfully wrong and rampant in our ideas and presentation of news.

I believe that the Flambeau is a public property and a public trust and the members of the staff have accepted the full measure of responsibility entailed as trustees of the student body.

From the comments I've heard this year the Flambeau is fulfilling its obligations as a student newspaper. There have been mistakes, which are only human, but for a while it encouraged the Flambeau staff members to see that the student senate especially, had some faith in the personnel which is handling them. We were becoming convinced that our publications could be put back on a respected and personality trusted basis.

I am becoming disillusioned now at the negative interest in trying to further curb freedom of the press.

The vainglorious Senator who lamed that "Blind Leap Law" for the student publications brought several chuckles from fellow senators. The Libel laws have been copped verbatim from the statutes of the state of Florida, which the Flambeau is under already. It proposed fining procedure for any "libel" as interpreted by the student Judicial court, is also nothing.

The editor of the Flambeau can be impeached under the new constitutional amendment. What else is needed?

What the senate needs is a positive motivation. The Flambeau is in dire need of more money due to the inflation and increase in printing and news print costs in the last two years. What has the senate done along this line? It has raised the activity fee but can only tear down.

What good does a student board of publications do anyway? If the administration wants an out cries don't I go. What happened last year?

No senators, you are wasting time and money. What else can be done to increase student activity fees as the strategic situation that must do a dollars worth on a nickel can do their job.

The costs of bitterness that were sparked last year have been extinguished by the Flambeau staff members. Why should we light them again? Sometimes this status quo isn't so bad, you know. This is the decision you must make this afternoon.

HEAD LINES

STANDING RULES OF PROCEDURE ADOPTED

By ALLAN HEAD

Twice last Tuesday, Senator's kept mum while important business, of interest to the whole student body, slipped through their fingers. Most important was the report about the proposed compromise on reserved parking areas. The senators didn't even try to make up their number or not they approved it; and seemed determined to remain in a quiet stupor until the matter of the administration had decided what was to be done. The color report, by the Publications committee is progressing admirably.

Senate Standing Rules Committee (SRC) reported back their suggested Senate rules of procedure last week and they were adopted. They are certain rules well thought out and should help set business done effectively.

One change in the rules adopted the proposed bill that may have far-reaching consequences. SRC proposed a standing Recreation Committee and a standing Education Committee (to consider any problems) but might come up in connection with either their formal educational process or extracurricular cultural activities). Both of these were entered and tossed with the other committees in a single Student Welfare committee.

The two most basic student problems this year, ones that students themselves could help, are a hand in solving, have been connected with organized recreation and extra-curricular cultural activities.

Several weeks ago I mentioned that the new cry seemed to be "Show me!" Since that time more social affairs have appeared and encouraging to those who have taken their time to help organize dances, etc. Can you remember one up? Qua pass? With student living areas of the social program, why don't they show up at functions? A number of answers have been suggested; not enough publicity, wrong kind of functions, bad timing, conflicts, etc., etc.

The only Senator who has shown a willingness to help in all seem seems to have diverted his efforts to more "pressing" matters. It is hoped that Senator will help him in attacking the recreational problem when (and if) he gets back to it. If there had been a Recreation Committee, it would have helped considerably—not only this year but in years to come.

The sad state of affairs on the recreational front in the social scene has also been mentioned in this column. And in last Tuesday's Senate meeting (and you could hear a pin drop "poor, he!"—HORRIBLE!) student attendance at the first of series of artist courses was cited while reason. I suggested poor publicity. But on the other scene, the problem is much bigger and less easy to solve. It includes such intangibles as the propensity of professors to share a cup of coffee with students, and the interest of students in clubs with more worthwhile things to occupation than membership and the next party.

This problem a one that repeatedly crops up in casual conversation, but as yet has received no organized attention, in its broader aspects. Senator who is responsible for the possibility fair action by Senate Committee, the time is ripe when they refused to set up the proposed standing Education Committee.

BEHIND THE IVY

WHERE IS STRESS IN FSU HONOR SYSTEM?

By BOB TIPPINS

An honor system, any honor system, to be effective, must be recognized and lived by by all of everyone. Whole hog or none. There can be half-way measures. Any gradual attempt toward such a desired end must necessarily fail, for it lacks momentum.

Here, some students conscientiously uphold the pseudo code, some faculty members religiously adhere to it. Many "Now and then" has shown faith in the students' honor to the point of giving the entire student body, entire faculty, and entire administration do not lip service.

It cannot be worshipped, however, if it is only observing in respect. And how can anyone respect a moral code which is often hypocritically observed and enforced one set of values, and producing quite another. Honor, it seems to me, is the most important quality a man can own. He has that when all else fails. He has that material goods are denied. Honor should definitely not be merely a matter of convenience. It's there, or it isn't. One deviation from the strict line imposed by noble moral tradition is dishonorable. A man who has stolen a car can't honestly say he is pure. And one, just one, example of a lack of faith in our Honor code makes the whole code a hollow mockery. We have seen this, many examples of such distrust.

Let us stop deceiving ourselves, and others. We want honor as we haven't. We have not the right to demand what we haven't. Report infractions of accepted standards not as a tattle tale gesture, but honestly, admitted method of self-preservation, and the preservation of those arbitrarily (or carefully) set standards.

We can test our honor system very easily, by merely asking the question, "Does it work?" It cannot, as long as it at Florida State, are becoming to know it, is fails to work. It is destroyed by within as much as possible without a appreciation or atonement.

ATHLETES DEMORALIZED

OBSCENE PROFANITY DEFEATS A TEAM

By TOM KEISER

Four-letter words, and all other types — that type which numbs the subject the filial relative of a feminine cur; that which refuses to take the whole responsibility for an unfortunate child; and that which lowers the full dignity of womanment by adjectivizing and attaching it onto a man's surname — are the vehicles of the profane, perhaps in the military where unfortunately it is necessary to alter a man's mind, and perhaps in literature for humor's or a jaundiced point of view, but when employed in crude, ignorant and obscene profanity by the lower types of profanity tend to defeat, demoralize, dishearten and discourage —and they have (the score was Parris Island Marines 77, FSU 46).

Now, my mouth is not lined with the twentieth chapter of Exodus; I have used and will continue to use a certain share of profanity. And I am not naive; I know the marginally-minded talk of men morally perverted to the military, and I know that of the beat generation. I have never supposed that I can be impeached under the

I have no quarrel with the principles involved. Honor systems in general are predicated. I esteem it a noble thing to attempt to establish one's self as to dishonesty — intellectual or otherwise, But let's look at the Florida State honor system.

The fact is, two things, and only these two things, are supremely worthwhile here on the campus of them and product degrees. If these two things, are not to be achieved above all else, if they are emphasized to the detriment behaviour, if a student is judged by his possession of them, rather than his grammar and his ability to "education," then attaining them, for whatever reason, is not only justifiable but admirable.

Every case in which true understanding, wisdom, and the search for truth are substituted for memorization of facts or grades, every case in which a student or faculty member fails to encourage and maximize the power of honor, marks a failure af the system at FSU.

A TEAM

to the mothers of FSU basketball players.

I was sick. After listening for a while, I was sick. After thinking I had heard most of it, this I was hearing made me sick. I revolted. I wanted to leave the gymnasium, but I was sick.

Foul-mouthed opprobrium and warped-minded scurrility do not injure innocent children at play. To see this one need not look far. In my own backyard one observes the austerity of Mr. Don Veller who upholds a high standard of behavior on his football field. Mr. Veller, Florida State has a four-year record of 30 games won, 9 lost.

The record of the FSU basketball team is not quite that good in one severe defeat. There may be more—not as attributable to mediocre talent (this year there is no player as uncommonly good as Bob Hartman) as to harangue - oppressed defeatism. Garbage-can invective and mouth mouthing heaped upon the players do not inspire him. Nor will vulgar allusion to a man's mother.

I have an opinion that the dance is now as much a part of the week long festivities as the show itself. Many students look forward to Sandspur for the dance alone since several other Florida colleges have three and four "name bands" each year while Florida State students can only look forward to two—Sandspur and Homecoming. Many dumb-fern schools have weekly name dance bands plus Sunday afternoon tea dances entirely free to the students as it comes from the student activity fee.

Not FSU—they limit it to two "names" a year and now the in faculty is trying to reduce it to only one a year with the argument that Sandspur dance is the "education." them attaining them. Or whatever it is, it is not only justifiable but admirable.

Sandspur started its name band policy in 1950 with Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra, then came up with one of America's best—the

Plank Fulfilled

Dear Editor:

In his column on Friday Allan Head said that I have thrown overboard my campaign promise of looking into the campus recreational funds and their expenditure. Allan is slightly mistaken. At my first Senate meeting I introduced a resolution to provide for a committee to investigate the distribution and use of these funds. This proposal was defeated by a slight margin. During this time I have been looking into this problem by myself and I shall take definite action in the near future. In the next few weeks so that I can completely fulfill this plank of my platform.

I would like to thank the Freshman Class for the support they have given me so far this year and I hope for and expect their continued support.

Sincerely yours,
Phil Sprinner,
Senator of the Freshman Class

A NAME BAND

Dear Editor:

I was both surprised and disappointed when I learned the possibility of the May of this year of not having a "name band" for the Sandspur dance.

Having a "name band" for the dance is now as much a part of the week long festivities as the show itself. Many students look forward to Sandspur for the dance alone since several other Florida colleges have three and four "name bands" each year while Florida State students can only look forward to two—Sandspur and Homecoming. Many dumb-fern schools have weekly name dance bands plus Sunday afternoon tea dances entirely free to the students as it comes from the student activity fee.

Not FSU—they limit it to two "names" a year and now the in faculty is trying to reduce it to only one a year with the argument that Sandspur dance is the "education." them attaining them. Or whatever it is, it is not only justifiable but admirable.

Sandspur started its name band policy in 1950 with Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra, then came up with one of America's best—the music of Elliott Lawrence, and for only fifteen hundred dollars, and still a financial failure while the Homecoming crew "dishes" out between two and the ee thousand dollars each for a band and, excuse the ling, but "makes a hatfull"! Or I could say "they rake in"!

May I offer one suggestion to the Sandspur faculty advisor! Give name bands just one more try for the Sandspur Dance and "be sure" there is some "responsible" person at each one of these dining hall as was the case of this year's Homecoming dance. Have no advance sale of tickets but "be positive each person pays cash" as he enters and I believe you should come up with a financial success.

Sincerely,
Herb Reinhardt
(Editor's Note: Herb was chairman of the Sandspur production in 1950 and 1951).

Lake Bradford Camp Closes During Week

Camp Flastacowo will not be in session the week of Christmas to March 1. This announcement came from Miss M. V. Alexander, camp director.

The camp will be open during the regular hours on the week end. The reservations are left for this semester that organized camping may reserve.

New hostess at the camp now is Mrs. Ruth De Kalb from Clearwater.

Article Is Published In 'College English'

Dr. Hazel A. Stevenson, Florida State University instructor in English, had an article published in the current issue of College English.

Letters from the University of Tennessee, Princeton University and other institutions are coming in about the article and the English department at FSU.

College English is the official publication of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Since Frances Cawthon has me on the conversational griddle for my views as the longest war in history, I might as well gather my thoughts and make a few Shakespeare more concise.

This is written on the deck of a United Fruit boat which touches several shores visited only by Eleanor Roosevelt and Humphrey Bogart. . . .

It had to happen.

The evolution of the female of the species from lily to Ben has borne the inevitable fruit. Time screams it, ben parties gloat over it and the faces of all the attendant gentlemen dazedly replace by piece by piece he is stripped of his rights and natural heritage of masculinity.

Horrible screechy voices, attached to minds too small for command have snatched the reins while the simpering Twentieth century simpleton wets his ear lobe tenderly with Tweedy Toilet Water. Specially designed for men.

The willingness of the sweet little things to stiletto the arm they hold has its basis in insecurity—or maybe just in plain pique at the male's unwillingness.

There are those women (bless 'em) who aspire to plain old-fashioned womanhood. They amount to about the number of people who know their own limitations to the extent that they know a little more than the guy next door."

In other words damn few women can resist the opportunity to play top-sergeant . . . if given half a chance . . . and for a little thing like that my mother withdraws her invitation to come home at Christmas. Goodbye cruel world. . . .

I have discovered why the United States is facing a critical steel shortage. My dentist has it all.

To insure continued chewing power, I took my courage out of the closet the other day and paid said dentist a little visit. (Of course I really had made an appointment two and a half years in advance. which is almost necessary these days to see a reliable tooth doctor.)

My supply of the enamel is quite a good one. Instead of having all the magazine issues from 1944, he has the current editions, sticking out of your mouth at odd angles. He also has a "Now and then" by You have Arthur Godfrey and Hugh Downs in accompaniment to the drill.

But, after knocking about the ivory, that man, I know, can bring out more pieces of metal, tubes, and everything else with which to "fix" your teeth. With about 10 pounds of steel, aluminum, iron and other alloy which is new to me, he can drill wider . . . and throws everything in. It never ceases to amaze me how much the human head can actually hold.

MARGARET THANKS FSU

Campus Leader, Kraseman, Tells Of Horror and Destruction in Hamburg

By MARGARET KRASEMAN

FOR OUTSTANDING BEAUTY, poise and personality a new member is tapped into Village Vamps at the annual PanHellenic dance last Saturday night. L'Apache also tapped during the evening.

I grew up in Hamburg, Germany, as the daughter of a business man. My father, a German, my mother an American, and my two sisters and I stayed in Germany during the whole war.

We children spent several winters in Bavaria because of the heavy bombardments in Hamburg. We experienced 1,946 air raids in Hamburg, a city about the size of Chicago. Sitting in the basement for hours and hours with a helmet on my head, a gas mask beside me, and a first aid kit in near reach, waiting any minute to be killed is a hard experience to describe.

Our family, as we went our several different ways each morning, the children to school and my father on a business trip or to the office, never knew whether we would see each other at night.

IN SPITE OF the danger which hung above us all the time, we still went to operas and concerts, never being sure we would make it home before another air attack. Usually the air raids were at one of three periods in 24 hours.

Often we spent more than 10 hours a day in our basement at home with all windows and doors closed. Those in the neighborhood who did not have safe basements went to a nearby bunker. We took our chances on staying at home. Our house was hardly damaged, though there were five exploded bombs in our street. We lost no one in the city nor did we have to flee from the Russians. Realizing this, we are very thankful for we can forget the loss of our hunting lodge and the building in which my father's firm was located.

HAMBURG'S WORST bombardment in history was in 1943. The city burned for almost two weeks and thousands of people lost their homes, or relatives. It was at that time that all children and women who did not work in the city had to go to less dangerous places to live. My oldest sister went to our hunting place; here she helped make a home for "bombed-out" friends. My other sister and I stayed on my uncle's farm in Pomerania.

Conditions in Hamburg became every day more serious and critical. The population had no light, gas, water, electricity, nor clothing, homes or food. All destroyed, the city was left in flames. My parents remained in the city and went with gas masks into burning houses trying to save people and their belongings. My father, who had lived all his life in the town, could not find his way around any more.

STREETS WERE blocked by ruins of houses. Where once a house had stood, now were notices written to relatives. The misery is indescribable and the worst experience of my life. The uncertainty in wondering if the family was still living was nerve racking. My sisters and I returned to Hamburg after July, 1943. We went to school in homes, for school buildings had become hospitals for wounded soldiers. In 1945 the war ended. We lost our hunting lodge, which is now in the Russian zone, but were able to keep our home. Just 17 miles from the Russian area.

When I was in Germany this past summer, I was surprised by the progress made in my native country since I left in 1948. The inner city was completely rebuilt and the ruins were cleared up. Today they can buy everything provided they have the money, which is very scarce due mainly to high taxes.

I CAME TO the United States in 1948 when I was given a chance to study in an American high school, and college. My mother had to leave Germany in 1946 if she wanted to keep her American citizenship. She and my little sister returned in 1949 to my father and older sister in Hamburg.

I went one year to Leon High school, in Tallahassee, and entered Florida State University in 1946. I enjoy my studies at FSU, and the extra activities which are offered to me. This college is a leading example of democracy. Never in my life had I dreamed of being elected to the University Government Association senate for three successive years, or a member of Sophomore council, or Sophomore Hop queen, nor a member of Garnet Key, or to be a junior counselor.

When I entered this university, I could not believe my eyes or heart when everybody took me into all organizations and others such as Student Christian Association, and Westminster Fellowship. It was as if I was one of the American, not a foreign student from a defeated country. All expectations were surpassed. I am thankful for the opportunity of learning about the customs, traditions and people of America who are doing so much for Europe since the war. I can't think each FSU student, faculty member, and staff member enough for helping me are thus stimulated to discuss the problem in small groups and to fire questions at each other.

"THIS TYPE of group research, with one person assembling the material and writing the final draft, is one of the reasons for the outstanding success of Time, News-Week and similar publications, the instructor asserted.

"Last year I had each student do a complete background job on a problem in the news. As I have an experimental approach in this course, seeking to find better methods for presenting it, I substituted the group-method this year and found it worked to better advantage."

"Time" Method of Journalism Featured By Fsu Instructor

The Time magazine method of group or team journalism is being applied in one of the courses at the School of Journalism with considerable success, Dr. Sidney Kobre, instructor said.

In a course called "Interpreting the News," designed for general education, the students are to background important current news events which appear on the front page. Instead of having each student tackle one big event, the class is broken into five research teams, with five students on a team.

"EACH team has a group leader," explained Dr. Kobre, associate professor in charge of the course. "The entire team is responsible for the assignment, but each person has only a fraction of the whole problem to investigate. The group leader has the job of co-ordinating the material and presenting his team's report to the class."

Class time is allowed for the group to discuss its findings with the leader before his final assembly of the material. The students

Ruge Hall to Exhibit Student Art Work During This Week

Arrangements made by Ruge hall Episcopal student center will inaugurate a plan this year to present outstanding student talent in academic specialties.

The first project was in art through arrangements made with the art department to exhibit a painting by an F.S.U. art student every three months.

SUNDAY AT 6:30 p.m., Mrs. Sarah Payne Cawthon spoke before the Canterbury club on the circumstances of the paintings and the method used by her in a study of her daughter, Sarah. Mrs. Cawthon is now doing graduate work in the department of art at F.S.U.

The oil painting entitled "Sarah" will be placed above the fireplace at Ruge hall and remain on exhibit until next semester.

THIS WEL be the second such exhibit at Ruge hall this year, the first being "Escape" by Guy Johnson, F.S.U. student.

soloist continues: "There were shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And lo! the angel of the Lord came upon them." The chorus sings, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men." Following this, both alto and soprano solo voices sing the air: "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd. Come unto Him all ye that labour."

THE NEXT PART tells of the passion and resurrection. The chorus begins with the refrain: "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows," and "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lifted up ye everlasting doors." The recitative and air, sung by the bass soloist, sings: "Behold, I tell you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed in a moment."

Beginning the last section, the chorus sings both the famous "Hallelujah" and "Amen" selections.

The audience is requested to refrain from applause. Admission to both performances is free. As Westcott auditorium is not available this year, The Messiah will be sung in the auditorium of Leon High School.

F.S.U. Gridders To Be Honored Tonight

SPORTLIGHT . . .

BY Tommy Sands

By TOMMY SANDS

The Tallahassee Kiwanis club's custom of giving a banquet for the FSU football team is one of the finest gestures we've ever heard of.

The annual affair which began back in 1947 with the Indians' first modern grid squad has grown bigger and better each time.

Banquet program chairman Tom Brown who has served as ringmaster for the event each year has really hit the jackpot this time. The former Clemson lineman and Leon High School coach is bringing in "Humorous Harry" Mehre the ex-Ole Miss and University of Georgia Mentor as guest speaker.

Mehre now writes a humorous football column in newspapers throughout the South and can be expected to leave the Legion Home gathering with a sizable belly laff.

Freshmen which weren't supposed to raise much of a fuss during the college ranks this season really made the second guessers swallow hard last Saturday. At the outset of the year it was generally conceded that the Frosh would be lucky to even make any of the larger schools' varsity squads, much less play.

Here's what a few of those "lucky" Freshmen did last Saturday:

Buddy Leake, who stepped into the injured Billy Vessels shoes out at Oklahoma ran for four touchdowns to pace the Sooners to their one-sided decision over Oklahoma A. & M.

Georgia Tech's sensational linebacker, Larry Morris, returned an intercepted pass 55 yards to score against Georgia. Morris, incidentally, was named to the all-S.E.C. second defensive team.

An 18-year-old named Jimmy Kane heaved a 52-yard game winning pass in Boston College's 19-14 win over Holy Cross.

A Navy defensive back hauled in an Army pass in his own end zone and raced 101 yards to score. Ralph Guglielmi, Notre Dame quarterback, applied the spark with his accurate passes to pace Notre Dame's 19-12 victory over Southern California.

Those purr ple shkuckey Frosh.

Those Parris Island Marines keep right on winning. Last Saturday the Leatherneck gridders bounced their San Diego brothers from the West Coast 30-13 to capture the National Marine Championship.

Last year the Marine cagers won the All Marine basketball title and are given an excellent chance to repeat.

With the results of last week end's football games the Bowl picture is finally settled. The New Years Day picture now looks like this:

ROSE BOWL: Illinois vs. Stanford.

SUGAR BOWL: Tennessee vs. Maryland.

COTTON BOWL: Kentucky vs. Texas Christian.

ORANGE BOWL: Georgia Tech vs. Baylor

GATOR BOWL: Clemson vs. Miami.

Second Women's Sport Slate Opens

The second Gurl's sport season opened Monday, November 26, in the gymnasium, with a large number of girls attending.

The Odd-Even competition will include volleyball, bowling, and modern dance. The leaders for these sports are Sally Ellis and Jane Kirk, volleyball; Frankie Brown, and Eunice Thompson, bowling, Mary Browder and Nancy Smith, dance

The intramural competition between sorority and dorm-tory will feature ping pong, archery and basketball.

The Odds practice on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5-6, the Evens practice on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday also from 5-6.

Regna Twins Are Talented Gymnasts

If you've seen one, you've seen the other. The two in question are the Regna twins, Carmine and Joe, who are terrific gymnasts on our varsity team.

To speak of their past is a reminder of years of hard practice. Carmine and Joe have been competing in gymnastics for the past eight years and practice at least four afternoons a week.

THEY STARTED on in the Jersey City Swiss Turnverein in Jersey City, New Jersey. The Turnverein is a gymnastic organization with a Swiss background. The twins have worked side by side with many an Olympic and National champion and you can see they profited by it. They stand out because of their upright form, grace and agility in the most difficult of tricks.

Joe, sometimes called "Ukulele" is a star in and all around gymnast. His main concentration is on being a "Joe of all trades" or in other words good on every piece of apparatus. All-around gymnasts are the only eligible competitors who can compete in the Olympics.

He ranks tenth in the country and the Olympic team only takes the five eight rounded so you can understand why he will be working hard the coming season

Carmine "Spider" Regna is one of the best Gym specialists in the nation. He concentrates on the both bars and parallel bars. Carmine could be classed as an all-around gymnast also, but is at his best when "specializing"

LAST YEAR, Joe won the Southern Conference Side Horse championship and tied for third place in the National Flying Rings championship. Carmine won the Florida AAU Rings Championship and the Southern high bar, rings and All-Around championship.

Even though they are the Regna twins, they employ completely different rountines and styles. You can truthfully say that both are two of the most valuable assets to our Varsity gym team.

P. Ed. Majors Hear Maynard

Mr. Zollie Maynard, State Consultant for Health, Physical Education and Recreation spoke to the Men's Major Club.

He stressed the important part which the current physical education majors will play in determining the future of high school physical education in Florida.

MAYNARD ALSO urged that his listeners take pride in their chosen profession and pointed out that 72% of the principals in our Florida high schools today were former physical education teachers or coaches.

Approximately twenty majors were on hand as well as Mr. Talt, Mr. Williamson, and Dr. Price of the Department of Physical Education for Men. Richard Kurras, Chairman of the nominating committee, presented a slate of officers for approval.

IN THE RUN-OFF of the contest for the presidency, Bob Schmeltz defeated Bill Dawkins. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Dick Kurras; secretary, John Jurras; treasurer, Joe Long; and progra mchairman, Hal Ledcy.

The next meeting of the Major Club will be shortly before the Christmas holidays.

Fashions Exhibited In Special Show, "Autumn Plumage"

A fashion show entitled "Autumn Plumage" was presented by Miss Ollie Berry, nationally recognized college fashion advisor, in the Lonsmire auditorium last Thursday.

Colors of the outfits were presented in the plumage of American birds, commemorating this year's observance of the Centennial anniversary of John James Audubon, artist and naturalist.

EACH COSTUME had a name associated with birds

Florida State University co-eds were featured as models. The show was given under the sponsorship of the department of clothing and textiles along with the home economics club.

"The colors in the show were exciting and the texture story full of news, Mrs. Joe Fielding, FSU instructor in clothing and textiles and chairman of the show said.

"SHORT OR LONG" is the answer for 1951 and 1952 evening dress.

Miss Berry, college fashion advisor for Simplicity Pattern Company, styles a wardrobe for on and off campus with the thought toward suitable clothes for careers after graduation. She is a graduate of Teachers College, Columbia University, and recently received a masters decree in home economics from New York University.

Job Opportunities Discussed by Club

"Job Opportunities in Social Work" was discussed by members of the Social Work club at a meeting recently.

Dr. Joseph Golden, social work faculty member, discussed current opportunities in the field and answered student questions.

Members held a brief business meeting before the discussion and decided to designate the second and fourth Wednesday of each month as a regular meeting time. Committee and chairmanship appointments were announced with Opal Falkner and Pam Pope, co programs; Will Pennell and Julia Hayes, co-social chairmen; Eunice Barnes, publicity, and Nadene Smale, membership chairman.

The Social Work club is a campus organization for social work majors and those who combine majors in social work and related fields. Students interested in joining are asked to contact Mary Godwin, treasurer, Landis hall.

Fifth Annual Kiwanis Banquet To Feature Football Humorist

By TOM SANDS

Plenty of food and fun will be on the menu tonight when the Tallahassee Kiwanians play host to the Florida State University football team at the fifth annual Kiwanis football banquet which starts at 6:45 in the local American Legion Home.

THE ANNUAL affair, which started back in 1947 with the first modern FSU grid squad, will feature as guest speaker, Harry Mehre, a former Southeastern Conference coach and player who now writes a humorous football column for Southern newspapers.

The announcement of the 1952 Seminole captain, selection of the most valuable player and the awarding of letters and numerals, will highlight the FSU part of the banquet.

PROGRAM CHAIRMAN, Tom Brown, who was responsible for Mehre's acceptance to speak, has lined up a full program of talent that includes Methodist District Dr. Joe Tolle as toastmaster; A B. Martin, Florida State University vice-president; Paisy Gilliam in a novelty dance number and C. Asbury Gridley who will provide dinner music.

The menu will consist of barbecued pork, oyster dressing, cole slaw, lima beans, orange juice, sweet potato souffle, apple pie, milk and coffee.

FSU Bees Score Over Dolphin Five

The FSU "B" squad opened its 1951-52 season with a 65-54 victory over Jacksonville Junior College in Jacksonville last Saturday night.

The Baby Seminoles had to stave a brilliant last half rally to do it though. Coach Bill Weisel's charges trailed 29-24 at halftime but were out in front 46-43 by the end of the third period.

The Jacksonville quintet led 16-14 at the end of the first quarter due mainly to the efforts of their fine forward, Bill Barker, who rebounded beautifully all night.

Towering center, Rick Benson, a freshman from Maitland, Florida, took scoring honors for the contest with 17 markers. Jim Hardesty and Bo Averitt also turned in stellar performances for the Bees.

BASKETBALL

Kappa Alpha Thursday night, subduing them by a score of 25-16 to earn the right to play Lambda Chi Alpha who were nosed out by Alpha Tau Omega, 24-20. The A. T. O. five will play the winners of the S.P.E.-Lambda Chi tilt tonight to decide the championship of the fraternity league.

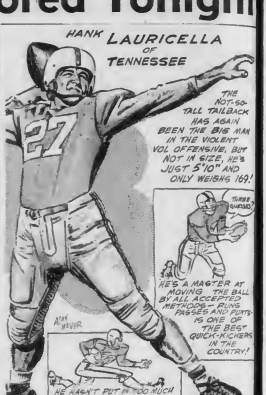
R.O.T.C. remained undefeated in the playoffs by outscoring Cockrell 25-20. Lower 304 defeated Magnolia (A) 21-22 which gave them the right to meet Cockrell last night.

The winners of last night's contest will play R.O.T.C. tonight for the championship of the dormitory league.

The university championship will be decided Thursday night when the winner of the two leagues meet.

TRACK

Entry forms for intramural track have been sent out to both dorm and frat sports managers. The track meet will be conducted December 12th and 13th. Entries are due in the Intramural office no later than December 10.

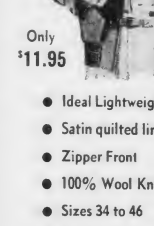


Teams wishing to enter who did not receive entry blanks should contact the Intramural office.

Students Are Invited To Honor Meeting

Thursday, at 7:30 p.m., all interested students are invited to a special meeting of the Honor Committee.

At that time suggestions will be taken in order to work out a definite plan for classroom procedures during examinations. If students have any suggestions, "please come and help us to help you," said Zoe Rents, chairman.



The meeting will be in the UGA room, second floor Longmire.

Senate Debates Parking Rules

Administration proposals for student parking sparked sharp debate in the University Senate last Tuesday.

University Government Association parking president Bill Pennell, who read the measures, which he described as "an agreement, not a compromise," asked immediate action on the bill. Its implied that the Student Traffic Council could not function properly without the new rules, George Chanin, chairman of the court, raised him in requesting a vote of confidence from the Senate.

SENATOR IGNACIO Sved warned the Senate that the matter under consideration was controversial and that the Student Senate will be judged "on its action on it. We have asked it in fair to the students to act without giving them a chance to vote their opinions and addes he will take the law to court if it is passed without time for consideration.

Freshman Senator Phil Springer added that in his opinion the Senate could not be asked to act so soon.

A MOTION by Senator Mary Ruth Summers to suspend rules and act on the parking regulations immediately failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote. Without suspension of the rules the time required to pass a bill is at least two weeks.

Senior Senator Vern Peeples proposed that a five-man committee be appointed to study the administration proposal in order upon passage of the motion. was passed to head the committee. Serving with him are Senators Springer, Milton Carothers, Joan Dolmer and Sonny Mears.

THE ADMINISTRATION plan consists of 11 points agreed upon by Pennell, Vice President Martin, business manager Rod R. Shaw, Donald Richardson, Shaw's assistant; J. Broward Culpepper, dean of Students Welfare and Ole McBride, dean of men. It reads:

1. That present regulations concerning parking on the campus of the University are to be enforced.
2. With the enforcement of the above regulations, that all

FREE SPEECH AND PRESS

Today's Threats to Our Freedoms Subject of Address by Prof. Vance

It is just as important today as in the time of John Stuart Mill to avail ourselves of ideas and information which may be highly unpopular, Professor Earl L. Vance of the school of Journalism told the Tallahassee Lion's Club yesterday.

Speaking on the subject "Today's Threats to our Basic Freedoms," Dr. Vance said: "Everybody gives lip service to freedom —free speech and a free press. But that does not mean that everybody understands the implications of free speech and free press as Mill presented them. He said we must defend the right of free speech even when the speaker says what none of us like."

THE MAIN REASON we should defend those who tell us unpopular things, Professor Vance said, is that we need all the ideas and information we can get as a basis for making wise decisions. It is widely believed, he said, that a fear to speak out has come over the American people and he quoted Time magazine as saying the most startling thing about the present generation today is its silence.

"The old, too, share this timid conformity," Dr. Casalina, editor of The Saturday Review of Literature recently said. "America's greatest shortage today is a shortage of ideas. An appalling fear seems to have come over us. We are afraid to speak out lest someone charge us with disloyalty."

"THIS APPALLING curb on our national freedom," said Professor Vance, "has been due largely to our fear of Communism. That fear has dominated our national life and largely directed our national policy now for some years. Politicians have made careers out of it. It would take a brave man today to say this fear has not been somewhat oversold. But perhaps I may safely record two or three facts that have been lost sight of.

"One fact is that no major country on earth has so few Communists as we do. I think this is correct even if we accept Senator McCarthy's Communist census—which some think a little inflated. Another fact is that the country is so strong economically—the one sure bulwark against Communism. A closely united and prosperous country enjoys such loyalty from its people in all walks of life.

"THIS DOES NOT mean that all of us in this country likes everybody else or everything we hear. It means only that the traditions and ideals of this country as they have been formed and interpreted by the men who have made this nation great. It means they like freedom—the freedom to say what they think — even that having it cleared by a brass hat. It means they like the tradition that public business is everybody's business and that they do not like officials who act as if their public office is their private property to be run according to their personal whims and their mistakes concealed from the public by refusing the people access to the records.

"The most American thing is a strong faith that you can trust the people with the facts that the people don't like to have their ideas pre-tailed or pre-tested by anyone—bureaucrat, power-grabber or thought-control committee."

Kern's Roberta' Has Large Cast

Jerome Kern's "Roberta" opens again tonight for the second time. The musical comedy, which has over 120 faculty members and students involved, will run until the eighth. The production is being staged in the Music hall auditorium.

Fifteen principal singers and speaking roles are in the show, the romantic leads of which are played by J. Dayton Smith and Joan Daye James. The production also contains an orchestra of 26, a special dance chorus of forty and 14 models.

Musical direction is by Dr. Robert L. Briggs assistant professor of music education and chairman of the Kern Key meeting Wednesday night.

Omicron Delta Kappa is the national leadership-service fraternity.

FIRST SERIES of screening speeches for prospective speakers began Tuesday afternoon. Sessions will continue every Tuesday and Thursday from 4 p. m. until 5 p. m. until student speakers are screened. Those passing their first screening will be informed of the next sessions.

Tentative plans for the annual foreign students party sponsored by the women's honorary are also being made. Earl Hall is the scene of the meeting Wednesday night.

Garnet Key members were presented bulletins issued by Wallace Dynes, chairman of screening, with informational data concerning the better speakers bureau.

TIME LIMIT on speeches is a five minute minimum and an eight minute maximum.

The bulletin stated that the primary aim for the speaker is to secure good will. For the benefit of the audience, the speech must be primarily informative. "Thus the purpose of the speech," the article continues, "is to present information about the speaker's field, profession or the organization he represents in order unobtrusively to secure support for it."

INCLUDED IN the manner of speaking terms are modesty, tolerance, and good humor.

Garnet Key Joins In With ODK For Speakers Bureau

Garnet Key, women's honorary, will participate in the Omicron Delta Kappa speakers bureau this year, Allen Jackson, president, announced at the Garnet Key election by Nellie-Bond Dickinson, of the women's physical education department, Secretary and Jetherlin has been executed by Charles Reimer.

VIRGINIA French is in the role of Madame Roberta, Adrienne Norton, Lowe is Clementine, a night club entertainer, and Jim Harris is Huckleberry Raines, a crooner.

The Jerome Kern musical concerns the Parisian dress shop of Madame Roberta, who is known to her family simply as Aunt Minnie. At her death she left the shop to her nephew, All-American fullback John Kern, who is beset by business and romantic problems. is the center of attention.

The show contains not only music and acting, but a style show also, which supposedly features the creations of Madame Roberta and her staff of designers. Gowns for the style parade are being furnished by Meyers-man's and Bertha Cooke's dress shops of Tallahassee.

THE ORIGINAL "Roberta" was produced on Broadway in 1933, and filmed in Hollywood in 1935, starring Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire and Irene Dunne. Some of the songs from the movie were written for the two productions held on Broadway and in Hollywood. They include "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," "I Won't Dance," "The Touch of Your Hand," and "You're Devastating."

Tarpon Show, 'Arabian Nites' Opens Dec. 12

Tarpon's fall performance, which opens Dec. 12 in the Women's Gymnasium, is geared to the mood of flying carpets and mysterious genies. The show will run through the fifteenth, and is entitled "Arabian Nights." Admission will be free.

The setting for the eight-act production will be an Arabian city and market place. A genie will dominate the scene as he reigns over his harem and city

SPECIAL EFFECTS in the show this time will be a water ballet and the use of smoke. Swimmers will appear from behind a curtain of water, and puffs of smoke will introduce the swimmers at the finale.Available from the genie's magic lamp.

A huge eya made of lights to form patterns will be used for the first act, "Nig't Has a Thousand Eyes." "The City of Brass" is a very fast, eye-ravishing number, while "Ladies of Bagdad" will be performed by the mimnows.

Tarpon members are:

THE GIRLS will be escorted from the side of the pool by members of the men's swimming team in "Sinbad the Sailor," and "Prince Ali," Jim Harris will play Jean Ripell, also vice-president of the organization. Dale Ann Bass and Forty Thieves will be the comedy number, and the finale will be "Grand Festival of Bagdad."

The club plans to give two performances, Dec. 12, the first is for 300 high school seniors from several surrounding counties, who will be visiting Florida State University.

LAST YEAR the club gave their show, "The Golden West" in Dec.

Blood Donations to Begin Monday in FSU Infirmary

Committee Heads Will Meet Sunday for Final Directions

The Florida State University blood drive will open officially next Monday at 9 a. m. when ten students comprising the first shift meet on the fourth floor of the FSU infirmary to donate blood. Thus far over 1,000 pints have been pledged, and not all returns are yet in.

A special meeting of all committee heads and student workers connected with the actual procurement will be held Sunday at 7:15 p.m on the first floor of the infirmary.

BOOD PLEDGES from fraternities and sororities have been assigned definite times for donation. Independents are to be contacted through dormitory organizations. Junior counselors for women and monitors for men. All groups must return their time schedules to Sonny Griffin, chairman of the ODK drive, before 5:00 this afternoon.

All blood donators who have not received their assignments should notify the chairman immediately.

"I urge all students to keep their appointments strictly," said Griffin yesterday, "If a student is not sure he is able to donate blood I hope he will try anyway." "A doctor will be on hand at all times to pass on the eligibility of prospective donors.'

DONORS ARE advised to eat lightly before contributing blood. They should eat no fatty foods. Students are again reminded that they must be between the ages of 18 and 60 and weigh at least 110 pounds. All those under 21 must have the written permission of parents.

The drive will operate under the co-operation of doctors, nurses and technicians from the Jacksonville and Leon county blood banks, the FSU infirmary and school of nursing, the Leon County Medical society, the Leon County Health department and Tallahassee Memorial hospital.

THE PROCEDURE for donation is as follows:

First, FSU nurses will help students fill out questionaires; then the donors' blood will be typed. The actual donation will take the next seven minutes. Afterwards, donors must rest for thirty minutes. The refreshment committee will members will serve free Cokes, T-Ups and cookies.

The University of Florida has just concluded its drive for blood, and the Florida Flambeau will carry a report of their totals.

Students Show "Bone" Interest

Dr. Wilton Krogman Speaks for Series

The famous "bone detective" and noted physical anthropologist Dr. Wilton Marion Krogman, held a Florida State University audience spell-bound Wednesday night as he told how analyses of the human skeleton lead to the solution of a number of baffling murder and missing person cases.

Dr. Krogman stated that he could establish age, sex, body build, cause of death, and length of interment from skeleton remains.

MANY OF HIS cases have involved persons burned to death in fires till only charred bits are left for identification. In connection with this, Dr. Krogman has established that when a person is 2,000 degree Fahrenheit will not destroy bone structure of a human body to the extent he can be able not determine she sex, age and race of the victim. To destroy bones beyond identification would require a heat of 3,500 degrees Fahrenheit.

THE LECTURER, who is on the faculty of the graduate school at the University of Pennsylvania explained how various changes in the bone structure indicate the age. Because of these changes "bone detectives" are able to determine age, height and general physical appearance of persons.

A CASE in which Dr. Krogman was called upon to put this knowledge to use was that of a man who was charged with murder of his own brother and claimed self-defense. Through careful examination of the bones of the victim and a series of tests, he was able to prove the self defense plea.

Dr. Krogman began his career as a "bone detective" at Western Reserve College where he was able to study the famous Hyrtl collection of skeletons which includes 2,000 remains of white persons and 1,200 remains of Negroes.

Choral Vesian Smoke Session Over Weekend

The Messiah will be presented by the Choral Union, Florida State University's largest singing group, in Leon high school auditorium Dec. 9 and 10 at 8:15 p. m.

Dr. Herman Gunter, director of the Choral Union, said that busses will be available to transport students to the concert on both evenings. They will leave from in front of Bryan Hall between 7:15 and 8 p.m

DR. GUNTER, assistant professor of voice, will direct the performances. Robert Sedore, instructor of violin and orchestra, will lead the University Symphony which will accompany the Union.

Student soloists include Norma Jean Kearney and Claire Kenyon, sopranos; William Dalrymple, tenor; Virginia French and Betty Ann Armstrong, alto, and Roger Evans, bass

JACK SCARBROUGH will play solo trumpet. Nancy Hill is rehearsal accompanist.

The Choral Union was formed two years ago as an outgrowth of the University Chorus. They began the traditional singing of the Messiah five years ago.

The Messiah was written by George Frederic Handel in 1741 and first performed in Dublin, Ireland, in April of 1742. Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart added accompaniments in 1789.

Coeds Are Entered In Smoke Signals Cover Contention

Approximately thirty-two contestants have been entered in the Smoke Signals cover girl contest which was held this week. Judging by a board of five editors and two faculty members was held last night.

Thirteen girls were selected by the board which judged from two photographs made of each of the contestants, one in T-shirt and bobby sox and one in a formal or street dress. Members of the board forfeited their vote when any girls with which they were affiliated, was to be considered.

Of the thirteen girls chosen, one will be the cover girl of the forthcoming issue Sirnia's lassie. She will hold the title of Miss New Years of 1952. The other twelve will represent calendar months. Photographs of the finalists will be made Sunday.

The first issue of the campus magazine will be out this week or a delay of several days. It came out late due to printing difficulties.

'Collegians' Plan Concert

The Men's Glee Club, under the direction of J. Dayton Smith, will present their first concert this fall December 12 at 8:15 in the music auditorium.

A wide variety of music, ranging from two religious numbers by Bach to a rhythmic presentation of Shadrack will be included in the program.

"THE COLLEGIANS," as the group is popularly called, will perform Samuel Barber's A Stopwatch and An Ordnance Map,' a seldom presented contemporary piece. Written in the modern idiom, it will feature a background accompaniment of three kettledrums performed by Dr. Robert Briggs.

Traditional Christmas songs, such as The Gloucestershire Wassail, and The Christmas Song in addition to a spicy arrangement of Jingle Bells and My Two Front Teeth are part of the evenings music.

THE SECOND PART of the concert will include an old Welsh song, All Through the Night, Over the Rainbow, She Is More To Be Pitied Than Censured, O Joe, If I Love You, from the music play Carousel, Daddy's Little Girl, I'll Never Smile Again, and Shadrack.

Accompanist for the concert will be Nancy Hill. George Bunn, student director, will conduct one number on the program.

New officers in the Men's Glee Club are: Wendell Carpenter, president; Bill Head, vice-president; Pat Johnson, secretary-treasurer; and Jim Bidwell and Blair Hennessey, librarians.

Bi-Y Invites All Students to Enter Program

BI-Y', campus YMCA and YWCA organization, has extended for students of all religions to join its members in the Bi-Y' program here.

Wallace Dynes, president, said this week, that the Bi-Y' is in the midst of a membership drive. "I WISH THAT I could invite each of you individually to the meeting," he said.

"The next Bi-Y' meeting will be held Thursday, December 13 at 7 p. m. in the Social Work building, and I want to urge every interested student to join us there."

MEMBERSHIP IN Bi-Y' entitles students to the use of YMCA and YWCA facilities in any town. On campus it provides a chance for students of all religions to meet and express their attitudes and beliefs.

This year the organization served lamoulde after registration and has sponsored two barn dances and a barbide. It also made the Stetson float for the Homecoming parade.

THE GROUP sponsors educational programs such as the discussions of Phi Beta Kappa versus the Big Man on Campus and how Foreign Students Look at Thanksgiving which were held this fall.

Dr. Cooley Speaks To Florida State Hospital Association

Dr. Henry B Cooley, acting head of the department of management in the School of Business, recently spoke to the Florida State Hospital Association at their annual meeting.

The Florida State University associate professor explained the cost manner of hospital operations patterns.

Dr. Cooley said that hospital operations costs patterns are true whether attention is focused upon total costs, or whether it refers to unit costs.

The speaker said that as more service is performed the total costs of operations will increase and the patterns will show increasing cost relations as greater service is rendered. Both work performer and increased expenses incurred.

present regulations, as modifications appear necessary, the rules will be modified

3. In the present regulations, provision is made for a student court to deal with students violating traffic regulations. It is assumed that the student court will continue to enforce the regulations. However, if the court does not assume this responsibility then it will be necessary for the University to carry out the regulations.

4. THE MEMBERS of the faculty and staff are to be circularized and advised to set identification stickers to be put on the windshields of their automobiles. They are also to be advised to park their automobiles in the reserved parking area around Westcott and to the rear of the Music Building.

5. Parking on both sides of the street running in front of the Alumni Building is to be set aside for student parking.

6. Explanations concerning the parking regulations and the permits agreements are to be given to the student Senate and the schedule will be asked by the president of the student body to support the Student Traffic Court.

7. All individuals of the faculty, staff, and student body who park their cars for the entire day are asked to park them off campus or in areas not set aside as reserved parking.

8. IF, AFTER a time it appears that too much parking space has been allocated to the faculty and staff, other allocations will be made to students for parking.

9. Students who receive traffic tickets and who fail to appear before the Student Traffic Court are to be referred to the City Court for the Violation of traffic rules.

10. The student court will be asked to work out arrangements for dealing with students who having been fined fail to pay their fines. These proposals are to be submitted to the vice-president of the University for review and approval.

11. The Student Traffic Court will deal only with minor traffic offenses. Those traffic offenses of students which endanger life and limb are to be referred directly to the City Court for action.

Some Few Will Hiss, Howl, Comment on Scholarships

The cartoon "One of Education's Greatest Boners" wil bring comment from two factions in the university.

Those who feel strongly in favor of the growing de-emphasis of college football, will praise, commend, and generally applaud the stand expressed.

A minority will howl, hiss and generally berate any approach to the problem. How can these two opposite views be observed?

Most educators, most athletes, most students and almost all coaches will agree that the ideal situation is to have either no scholarship program at all, or to give individuals participating in each sport the same scholarship privileges. Perhaps someday ships at all because certainly equal scholarships at al because certainly equal scholarships would be too expensive for any school.

But the interest is in Florida State and the distribution of scholarship money here.

It has been explained this way: "The football team will meet in EVERY ONE of its games teams that are highly subsidized. As Florida State adds more Southeastern and Southern conference teams to its schedule each year it will become even more important to be able to offer (our) athletes the same scholarship they do in order to be able to get our share of the better high school prospects . . . this holds true to a smaller degree in basketball."

"It does hold true in any other sport . . . By that, (we) mean that in the other sports Florida State is offering its athletes as much, or more, than 90 per cent of its opponents. In other words, if (we) offered full scholarships in gymnastics or tennis, for example, (we) would be taking an advantage in those sports over 90 per cent of (our) opponents."

"Therefore, in order to meet the competition that the students, administration and general public wants, it is necessary to give the bulk of the scholarship money to football so it can compete against that competition on an equal footing." End of honorable quote.

That is the reason, but it isn't right.

Harry Mehre, who spoke at the Kiwanis football banquet, stated that the responsibility rests squarely on college presidents to keep college athletics on an even keel and away from dangers that at times have threatened to engulf parts of the sports world.

What would be more important: Having four national titles in Gymnastic, Tennis, Golf, and Track, or a mediocre football team with 90 percent of the football scholarships?

President J. Ollie Edmunds of Stetson said some weeks ago, "Stetson is the only college in Florida playing bona fide student."

This has not been reputed by our university officials.

If scholarships it must be, we urge a redistribution of the present set-up to amend "one of education's greatest boners."

We would much rather beat Gainesville in seven sports and loose in one (football) than divide the honor fifty-fifty.

One of Education's Biggest "Boners!"

EDITOR'S SPOTLIGHT

PLANKS ON EDUCATION WILL DRAW COMMENT

By ROBERT GRIFFIN JR.

Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin has found nothing in the state's election laws to keep a newspaper editor from writing editorials praising particular candidates.

After the new year when the race for governor in this state warms up, each and every editor, including student editors of college publications, will be pressed upon to make release of news and propaganda as the different candidates.

It will be almost impossible for your college editor to remain aloof and observe the rise as "an interested onlooker."

The campus is already buzzing with the "Alto Adams La Governor" club which has been formed recently. More clubs will form backing the other candidates.

The paper will discuss the gubernatorial race. When issues and candidates are involved it is the paper's duty to comment.

Florida is solving its racial problems without federal laws or the FEPC and without bombings or riots, as educator said last week.

Jesse Walter Dees, professor in the Department of Education at Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, speaks before the Florida Academy of Sciences.

Informed Dees: "A silent bloodless revolution in racial relations is taking place rapidly in Florida. The impossible in this field takes place every day."

"The old Solid South with its traditional emphasis on cheap labor, rigid discrimination and segregation of its Negro citizens is (thawing out and) becoming the Liquid South," Dees said.

Many things are happening in Florida, he went on, that the "typical white Southerners" said could never happen as recently as five to 10 years ago.

He listed those among "famous firsts," produced "not by federal laws of FEPC's or outside forces, but have been brought about by the white and Negro Southerners themselves:"

A Negro lawyer, L. F. Thomas, was named judge of Miami's all Negro municipal court.

Jacksonville and Ocala recently admit Negroes.

Twa Negroes ran for the city council in Jacksonville and a Negro woman became the first Negro to qualify for public office in Palm Beach County

Miami opened its new million-dollar municipal library on a completely non-discriminating basis.

Changes in the by-laws of the Florida Medical Association permitted Negro members for the first time in its history.

The University Council at the University of Miami "objected to the establishment of a fraternity because of that group's limitation of membership to "Gentile Caucasians." Another fraternity on the campus voted unanimously to admit Negroes.

Florida's new election law makes it illegal to reunite Negroes and whites to use separate entrances and exits at polling places.

employed their first Negro policemen. There are more than 90 Negro plain clothes policemen and uniformed officers in 16 Florida cities.

Jane Wyman Stars In Human Drama

BY GERRY ROFF

Showing at the Florida Theater is "The Blue Veil", one of the most stirring stories of human drama that Tallahasseans have had the opportunity to see this year.

The plot concerns a young World War I widow, who, bereaved of her child and suddenly forced to earn her own living, takes the position of nursemaid to a motherless child. Much to her surprise, she finds happiness and contentment.

TURNING DOWN offers of marriage and neglecting her personal life, she goes from place to place serving as second mother to otherwise forgotten children. How her lifelong career of self-sacrifice comes to a culminating and wistful dramatic climax is developed in the appealing film.

Jane Wyman gives the stellar role of the widow a sensative, symbolic interpretation. Charles Laughton, Joan Blondell, Agnes Moorhead, and Audrey Totter play the parts of her employers. In the role of a tutor who falls in love with her is Richard Carlson. Don Taylor is seen as one of her charges who has become a prominent doctor.

COMING to the Florida on Sunday is "Little Egypt" starring Rhonda Fleming as the fabulous hootchy kootchy dancer of first Chicago World's Fair fame. In the days of the Florida Intercollegiate Press Convention in Lakeland.

vert you, entertain you, and literally set you dancing.

"Little Egypt" tells the story of boxcloe record's all the Streets of Cairo exhibit during the Chicago Columbian Exposition of 1893 and also art politics on her heels for what morelists termed an indecent performance.

FSU Faculty Lead High School Bands

Three Florida State University faculty members are featured in the "Who's Who in American Art" in the Art Digest for November.

Miss Florence Kate, William Boughton and Professor Edmund Lindqwall are honored in the listing which includes outstanding American artists who have regular gallery representation in the United States and exhibit in national and international exhibitions.

Issue Editors Told

Barbara Henry will assume the duties of managing editor and Frances Cawthon will serve as news editor this issue of the Flambeau. This is because of the absence of Bill Dunn and Hazel Morrison, who are attending the Florida Intercollegiate Press Convention in Lakeland.

Magazine Reviewed—Pro, Con

PRO

Let's take a look at the first issue of Florida State University's student magazine, Smoke Signals.

The issue was distributed to the student body Monday. Since then students have had an opportunity to peruse it thoroughly. And what was found? Is it an improvement over last year's issues?

To begin with, this year's staff has had quite a few problems. The magazine was late in reaching this campus due to the fault of the printers. Much criticism has been voiced against its staff size. Money is needed to produce a larger magazine, however, but perhaps the staff can concentrate on more advertisers or a little bending of the knee to obtain more funds from the student activity fee.

As to the contents, feelings have been quite varied. Some think that this issue is more representative of just what the students have been crying for for years. It's a humorous, newsy, pictorially good, and yet does show a serious note now and then. In the future, though, will SMOKE SIGNALS be a sufficient means through which certain students can see their critics! and poetic works in print? Certainly it is necessary on a campus the size of this one, that students have some publication to which they can submit serious works for just criticism and the ultimate printing of same.

As to the overall picture, a magazine with more contents would be interesting. If the theme is Homecoming, let it be Homecoming, and connect the stories to the general theme. Is it necessary to have news sections throughout the magazine when a student newspaper comes out bi-weekly? Why not put something else in the place of these items?

The staff worked hard, and as a result brought an interesting magazine before the student body. What about the next issue?

CON

The "average" students have their "average" magazine and the Flambeau has received no flood of letters protesting the first issue of Smoke Signals now under the leadership of Joel Smith.

The magazine has completely sunk to the "average" level and it is doubted if one thing can be found a "bit better" than what the students expect.

The paper lies not in the appearance or content of the magazine, but in the level to which the student mind has sunk at Florida State.

Some Americans think it best to be above average; to strive to improve. No doubt the average magazine at Florida State will get an average rating by the judges next spring.

However, this is supposed to be the 'con' on the issue. First, the distribution was poor. Some were so disgusted when they finally got the magazine their opinion can't be of value. Secondly, the magazine had too much "trend" news. Someone said they counted the Greek letters "Sigma Nu" sixteen times in 20 pages of magazine.

Puffin' Away, by the editor, says there will be no puffin' by reading material.

Because there will be no medium of expression of the "high brow" works on campus, the Flambeau editor was overheard to say that the Flambeau will print a monthly supplment, comparable to the New York Times magazine section, which will contain book reviews, student poetry, long features and articles by the students. This will satisfy the "high brow" on campus, as the Smoke Signals now satisfies the "average."

While Joel Smith, editor of an average" magazine, prints his folio book, the new medium of "high brow" will take the place of Talaria, the critical literary quarterly.

SEMINOLE SCENES

REMBRANDT U GAME TOLD BY AUTHORITY

By FRANCES CAWTHON

All right. All right! My best white cherchief waves in surrender madly in the breeze.

Some time ago I wrote a column about football. Although it seems a lot of people agreed with me (five plus for this three-column col), I have yet to tire down the fact that I lay-loed into "a man's world." Grantland Nice Cawthon, they call me now in some quarters.

After a bombardment of "What do you think about this sport situation?" et cetera, both seriously and tongue - in - cheek, I have picked up my skirts and tipy-toed right back out of the man's world. You can have sports; all I want is a rest.

There is just one reason why I won't expound on the subject of sports anymore—me. The only thing I know about basketball is that the baskets have holes in the bottom of them. A football referee is just a guy in his last year's band uniform who stands around and sends the team I'm rooting for back fifteen yards. Yep, I would make a hum-dinger of a sports writer.

I can see it all now. Sitting in the pressbox (a thing which they tell me I'll get stuck up on) of some bowl, stadium, that I am broadcasting a play-by-play of the great game with Phipocomaskie U. and Rembrandt College for Prospective Paintbrush Cleaners.

"Ah, folks, it is going to be a wonderful game. Phipocomaskie U. has the ball. That cute, curly headed fellow, Joe Reid, is running toward the goal post like mad. By the way, he is a Phi Gam, you know. Like a streak of lightning, he is cutting away the yards between himself and that place where all good footballs love to go.

"Oh-oh. He was just downed by some hard-hitting player on the other team. Is he hurt? No-o-o. He must be all right. He's getting up. Well, glad of that.

"By the way, folks, RC for PPU made a touchdown a second ago. The ball was carried over by C. Makerich, who was about five men ahead of Joe Reid. What's the score? Justa minute till I look on the scoreboard. Forty-seven to six in favor of Rembrandt College for Prospective Paintbrush Cleaners!"

Ya sada. That's enough, but you get the general, nauseating idea. From now on I will try to stick to some nice topics like cake making and embroidering.

Now, you take cake making. First you get some eggs, lard, sugar, flour and mix it all together. Then you put it in a pan and stick it in the oven. You leave it there and as about your business. To-le-do-em. Time passes and you enjoy yourself. Then you go back and look at your cake. It is a lovely chocolate color. Only trouble is, it was supposed to be coconut. . . .

Ah, nuts. Never mind. On second thirt and reverse, maybe I do know more about football.

● CONDITIONED?

Let us be aware!

Today and yesterday and tomorrow, as easy thoughts and light ideas capture the mind, memory strikes a sharp note.

Today is not necessarily a two-minute day, of day your students newspaper comes out. of day you rstudents newspaper comes out. It was the day, a decade ago, when the Nippon navy released a flight of 200 torpedo planes and dive bombers in a flight of destruction to include the United States in the bitterest slaughter of human life in history.

Conditions in the US and in the world were quite different this decade ago. There was no atomic bomb. We were at peace; soldiers still sometimes took names: the names of Lindberg, Wheeler, Willkie were in the headlines; you could buy lamp chops for 21 cents a pound, coffee for 23 cents, and a fine, new six room house for $6,000.

Then came the scream of bombs into a drowsy naval base and the "big" war was on. Then came a peace, followed by a "small" war.

They speak in Physchology class of such things as conditioned response. Is mankind conditioned to this "political" war in Korea? Let us be aware!

● ABOUT RED CROSS

Concerning the Red Cross and its connection with the current "Blood for Korea" drive on campus this information is available.

The Armed Forces contacted the Red Cross to assist with the blood procurement across the nation. In some areas the Red Cross handles all the facilities including the actual procurement. However on this campus the procurement is handled by the Jacksonville blood bank working in cooperation with the Leon County Blood bank.

Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership society for men, has been in charge of the procurement program on this campus.

Many students have heard a rumor that Red Cross is selling the blood. This is entirely false. The Armed Forces will send the blood, free, direct to Kores. The only money that enters the whole set-up is the payment of the Jacksonville Blood bank doctors and technicians (and similarly the Red Cross doctors in other areas of the country) for taking the blood.

All arrangments, solicitation, committee work, and contacts have been handled on this campus through members of ODK and their assistants.

Poetically Yours . . .

UNSUNG HERO
By Gerard Ayerig

The crack of a rifle, a scream of pain,
Then a burning sensation at the base of his brain,
His eyes filled with tears, and his mouth with blood,
He lay face down in a road of mud.

Many men glanced at him as they passed by,
Most took him for dead, so still did he lie,
He tried and tried their attension to gain,
As he lay there in that drinking rain.

He could not cry, he could not speak,
He could not move, for he was too weak,
But, his time finally came as it must to all,
For his trip beyond that golden wall.

We cannot know how he suffered them,
We only ask God for these wars to end.

Campus Characters

Because of necessary financial backing by Artist Series of the Sandspur dance, it looks as though Vaughn Monroe gets the family jewels for playing the dance (at two bucks per) and broadcasting his Camel Caravan from the auditorium of the Music Hall. Would it be overly cynical to wonder whether the fine hand of public relations is at the controls?

Since the program will be on national hookup and Vaughn even condescends to sing your Alma Mater, this could just be a factor. Especially since a group like Ray Anthony is available for $1650 and would probably do the usual afternoon concert for a few bucks more.

Undaunted the great Claude Thornhill quoted a price for concert and dance well below the four grand demanded by the fadin Monroe.

Of course neither Thornhill nor Anthony have radio programs. . . .

A local character swears that for 4000 bucks he can import a real camel caravan—complete with Moslem drivers. . . .

Looks as though State has a Lunt-Fontaine combo in the serrif Silvers—Reuben Reuben, I presume.

After seeing the amazing femme half of the duo walk off with "Phoenix" honors some of us uninitiated were sure she was the "big talent."

With Reuben's performance in All My Sons, the issue is once again fouled up. Wonder what chances are of putting this talented team on the same stage at the same time?

Ex-Vols Glenn Anthony and Don Love (with typical Tennessean enthusiasm for the "Old Stater") hitchhiked to U. of T.'s Homecoming Weekend.

They swear they didn't see a dinner jacket or evening gown broken out the whole weekend. Are they benighted up there? Bet they don't even have a Chamber of Commerce or Rotary Club. . . .

Seminole Cagers To Open Home Slate

THE SEMINOLE SPORTLIGHT

BY Tommy Sands

BETTER THAN EVER—The FSU football banquet was just what it had been cracked up to be. It was bigger and better than ever.

Besides the excellent speaking and fine food however, we learned two important things.

First, we were given an insight into just how far the Seminoles planned to step into big time football when A. B. Martin paid his respects to the nearly 300 guests present.

Dr. Martin said, "We have no intention of climbing into big time football. We feel that the first job of a college man is learning. We can't expect to be big time but we do wish to increase our potentiality. FSU is not bent on winning National championships or playing in the $50,000 class."

After Dr. Martin had elaborated on these points he then came out with the announcement that the Seminoles would play Y.M.I. here next fall, the addition of the Virginia school, a member of the Southern Conference brings to eight the number of games on the Indian grid card for 1952.

Harry Mehre, the much traveled Ole Miss and University of Georgia coach, lived up to his reputation as a half maker but also hit the bullseye on the serious side of the fence.

Mehre recalled his bygone days in the coaching profession and several incidents revolving around his days at the University of Georgia.

"Commenting on Florida State, Mehre said, "I'm glad to see that you here at FSU are getting ambitious; but don't get too ambitious, and do it right."

On football in general Mehre added, "Football must not and should never be first or even close to the first interest of a school," bringing applause from the large gathering. "We must be on guard against the evils that engulfed basketball."

He also emphasized that every boy who enters school on an athletic scholarship should have the same credits and background requirements that other students are required to have.

Mehre had plenty of competition though in Dr. Joe Tolle, toastmaster for the occasion. Dr. Tolle, District Methodist Superintendent and registered football official kept the clan chuckling all night with his "Southern drawled dry humor. Dr. Tolle, a former player himself down at Florida Southern, invented a new tax for Don Veller as he kept referring to the Seminole Chief as "Sorrowful Don" during the evening.

"Sorrowful Don" however was right up to par. After expressing his thanks to the Kiwanians Veller said, "We are going to need a banquet to cheer us up with the schedule we play next year."

Meet Wildcats Here Saturday

The Florida State University Seminole smake their initial home appearance of the season tomorrow night when they meet Culver-Stockton of Canton, Missouri, in the West Campus gym at 8:00 p. m.

Coach Bud Kennedy's cagers, who dropped their season opener to strong Puerto Rican two weeks ago by a 77-46 margin, will be facing the Wildcats for the first time.

CULVER-STOCKTON which annually ranks as one of the nation's top small college outfits will also play Miami and Tampa on their tour of the Southeast.

Kennedy, who has indicated he will make several changes in the Seminole lineup, announced a tentative starting five includes Capt. Bob Whitmer and Tom McLaughlin at forwards, Bud Mercer and Ken Smith at guards, and either Freshman Rick Benson or Bob Peirce at center.

WHITMER, who missed the opener because of an ankle injury, McLaughlin and Mercer were all regulars on last year's District 28 NAIB championship team.

Other Indian cagers slated to see action include Freshmen Jim Hardesty and Tom Burst, Sophomores Jerry Weishafer and Jimmy Richardson, and lettermen Lou Fischer and Irving Quinn.

THE MISSOURI TEAM coached by W. A. "Bill" Herrington, NAIB president, is paced by Ken Mauch, 6 foot-6 inch center, a former Chicago All-City selection; Al Gilbert, ex All-City performer in Los Angeles and guard Jack Walz who at 5 feet 10 inches is rated the team's best defensive player and ball handler.

CURT CAMPBELL, Mike Sellers, and Vic Szczepanik were awarded the top honors at the annual FSU football banquet Tuesday night. Campbell (left) and Szczepanik (right) were named Co-captains for 1952 while Sellers (center) was named the most valuable player. Sellers is the first back to receive the honor and Campbell and Szczepanik are the first co-captains in modern FSU history.

Gridders Name Co-Captains And MVP at Annual Banquet

Vic Szczepanik, Curtis Campbell and Mike Sellers came away with the top awards at the fifth annual Kiwanis football banquet last Tuesday night.

Szczepanik, a tackle and Campbell and end, were named as co-captains for 1952 while fullback Mike Sellers was voted the most valuable player award by his teammates.

The selection of Szczepanik and Campbell as Co-Captains marked the fourth straight time that linemen have led the Seminoles.

Capt. Bill Dawkins was named to the Associated Press Little All-American football team this week and four other Seminoles were accorded honorable mention.

Tommy Brown, Curtis Campbell, Mike Sellers and Nelson Italiano were given honorable mention.

Dawkins, selected as one of the five outstanding players on the AP eleven, is the first Florida State player to receive the honor while Campbell, Brown, Sellers and Italiano are the first Seminoles to gain honorable mention.

Hugh Adams, Duke Maltby and the outgoing captain Bill Dawkins were the others.

SELLERS, who led the Indians in rushing this year, is the first back to receive the most valuable award. Mike succeeds Jackie W. A. "Dub" Kendrick who copped the honor last year.

Coach Don Veller praised all three players and said that the squad had made a fine choice in each case.

Veller also announced 27 letterwinners and 15 numeral awards. The letternen, Jim Arnold, Wayne Benner, Charley Brown, Tommy Brown, Campbell, Bill Dawkins, Bill Driver, Bobby Fyvush, Mac Hoey, Ernie Hoggatt, Nelson Italiano, John Karlowicz, Steve Kalenich, Earl O'Neal, Bob Schmeis, Sellers, Szczepanik, Jimmy Lee Taylor, Roy Thompson, Bobby Tully, Dick Turk, Bob Whitmer, Bob Wodrich, and Mgr. Joe Long.

NUMERALS were awarded to Earl Brown, George Carnes, Jerry Eisenwood, Vernon Freeze, Al Garret, George Kirby, Ted Morrill, Manuel Moshonas, Joe Robinson, Chuck Sanders, Roger Slabaugh, Gerald Smith, Russ Sorgen, Bill Whaley and manager Hal Leddy.

Harry Mehre the former Ole Miss and Georgia University coach kept the nearly 300 guests rolling all night with his humorous stants but also scored on the serious side of the picture. Mehre paid high tribute to Veller and his staff and the job they were doing at FSU.

DR. JOE TOLLE, District Methodist Superintendent, served as toastmaster for the occasion and also proved adept with his humor. A. B. Martin spoke briefly and commented on the Seminole's plans for the future.

Palay and Archie Gillian presented a novelty dance number "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" and C. Asbury Gridley furnished the dinner music during the evening.

Swim Meet Is Set for Tonight

The first public preview of FSU's swimming team is on tap tonight when the tankmen stage their annual garnet and gold intersquad meet in the East campus pool at 8:00.

The success of the coming season will in a large measure hinge upon the showing made here tonight as new men get a chance to prove themselves in varsity competition.

Switching Jack Burnett from freestyle to backstroke has made the gold team, which has won three years in a row, favored to repeat its winning ways. Coach "Bim" Stults disclosed however, that the meet could go either way as the individual medley the medley relay and the 200-yard breaststroke races will be very close.

The garnet and gold squad teams will be captained by Pete Dunn-Rankin and Dick Wells, the co-captains of this year's swimming team.

Students To Rotate At Basketball Tilts

Florida State University students will be admitted to the Seminole basketball games on a alternating plan this year, due to the West Campus gyms limited seating capacity.

Students whose ID card numbers falls below 23854 will be admitted in tonight's game with Culver Stockton, and those with Georgia Teachers, Parris Island, Miami and Stetson.

Those whose number is above 23854 will be admitted to the tilts with Mississippi Southern, Florida Southern, Rollins and Tampa.

If at 7:55 on the night of each game the eligible students do not fill the gym to capacity any student holding an ID card will be admitted.

CAMPBELL SCORES

New co-captain elect Curt Campbell scored one of the biggest hits of the night when called on to say a few words, said "Words come about as slow to me as a winning team does to the University of Florida."

You Were Going to Give Blood?

TELL IT TO THIS MARINE!

What are the chances of a wounded GI coming through?

That depends—on blood. Without blood, a hailstone would go up sharply. With blood, we save 97 out of every 100 who reach even the most forward hospitals.

So blood will tell. Your blood.

Of course you intend to give blood. The butcher, the banker, the milkman, the mayor . . . all Americans are "rolling up their sleeves" these days.

But wounds won't wait . . . and right now, your Armed Forces are short 300,000 pints of blood a month. That means we're dipping into precious reserves . . . scraping the bottom of a barrel that should be overflowing if our men are to live for democracy.

Make that date today, won't you? And keep it. Don't wait till it's too late. There's no percentage in one American giving his blood the hard way . . . when you can now it the easy way.

IT'S ALL GREEK TO ME

Parties From 'Hobo' To 'Buffet' Have Been Featured by the Greeks

By MARCIA MORRIS

The ALPHA DELTA PI's entertained the Sigma Nu's with a "Hobo Party" at the house Tuesday night. The chapter is being entertained at a tea by Dean Warren Thursday at 5 p.m. The A D Pi's were high bidders for the tea at the Faculty Auction.

The pledes of ALPHA GAMMA DELTA entertained the actives and guests last Sunday night with a buffet style dinner. This coming Saturday there will be a hayride and party for Alpha Gam's and their dates.

Saturday afternoon the ALPHA XI DELTA'S and the Delta Tau Delta's are giving a Christmas party for sons of the underprivileged children of Tallahassee. Alpha Xi's are now planning their annual Christmas party. Chuck Bendis, as Santa Claus, will distribute the gifts which will later be turned over to the Florida Orphans' Home.

A party for the Pike's was held at the DELTA GAMMA house last Thursday night. Sunday A.M. the members and pledges are going in a group to the Presbyterian Church. Breakfast will be served at the house earlier.

Last Thursday evening the DELTA ZETA'S had as their guest speaker Mrs. Anne-Fay Ward. This year they have adopted as their annual project the furnishing of various kinds of reading materials for the infirmary. Thursday a party is being held for the Phi Delta. For the second time this year there will be a wedding in the Delta Zeta house. Doc Frierson and J. B. Backman are to be married there the 19th of this month. Delta Zeta colors, pink and green will be carried out in the decorations and dresses of the bridesmaids.

The GAMMA PHI BETA'S have been busy this last week entertaining their province director, Mrs. Russell Pace. Thursday afternoon they had a reception in her honor. Wednesday night they had the Kappa Sig's over for a party.

Last Monday night the KAPPA DELTA'S had as their guest Zoe Rentz, who spoke on the Honor Code on our campus. The Sigma Chi's gave them a party Tuesday night.

This week-end PI BETA PHI Sorority will have as their guest, Mrs. Lucile Douglas Carson, national secretary. Sunday afternoon a reception will be held in her honor. Pi Phi night is scheduled the following Monday with Dr. Bisnger from the sociology department as guest speaker.

A hobo-sock party was held last Friday night for PHI MU's and their dates. Tuesday afternoon the chapter enjoyed a supper given by the pledges. The football team was entertained Thursday with a party centered around a Christmas theme. New pledge officers are Mary Grace Shoemaker, president; May Yonge, vice-president; Barbara White, secretary; Anna Tucker, social chairman.

The SIGMA KAPPA house was the setting for a party for the Sigma Nu's this week. The Sigma Kappa's are busy making plans for their week-end which will include a hayride and a hamburger fry at Silver Lake this Friday. Their annual Winter Wonderland Formal is to take place at Wakulla Lodge Saturday night with Mike Saliba and his orchestra.

The ZETA TAU ALPHA sorority beain Pan-Hellenic week-end with an informal party at Silver Lake last Friday. There was a grand march, dancing, and marshmallow roasting. The evening was climaxed as Zeta's and their dates sang around the fire. Plans are now being made for a Christmas tree decorating party Sunday night.

The PI KAPPA PHI's are having a shipwreck party for members and pledges and their dates. A treasure hunt will be held and prizes awarded for the best costumes. The interior of the house has been decorated to resemble a desert island. Monday night there will be a banquet in honor of the anniversary of Founder's Day. The alumni in this section of the state will be the guests of honor. Sunday the actives will play the pledges in the traditional football game for supremacy of the fraternity and subsequent foaming refreshment will be served by the losers.

Bob Hudson was recently pledged to Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Initiation ceremonies were held for Don Bookmeyer last Sunday. The S. A. E. actives won against their pledges last week-end in football.

The SIGMA CHI'S held an informal party for the K. D.'s Wednesday evening.

The THETA CHI's held initiation last Monday night for Ken Berger, Joe Long, and Jim McCauley. Ray McClellan was recently pledged. The Theta Chi's are playing the Lambda Chi's in football December 15, for charity. Let's all be there.

Education Honorary Taps Twenty-four

Kappa Delta Pi national education honorary, pledged 24 new members recently.

New pledges include Alfred Adams, James Faulhaber, James Fleek, Jane Guinnane, Joe Hall, H. W. Hunter, Mills Lord, Margaret Sizemore, Mrs. Eula Mae Holley and Mrs. Mildred McCarty graduate students.

ALSO PLEDGED were George Batty, Jean Ermeti, Andrew Fernice, Joanne Hempstead, Jean Martin, Nancy Mueller, Lorraine Noiage, Betty Ann Pierce, Jacqueline Rice, Phyllis Ridgeway, Frances Sauls, Fae Watts, Susan White and Jane Shephard.

Eight additional students have accepted the invitation to become members but were not present for pledging. They are Barbara Carruthers, John Eddins, Mildred Grotewold, Gloria Harper, Adrian Ketcham, Dot Sisson, Sally Skipper and M. Carolyn Whitmire.

DR. MILDRED Swearingen, president, was assisted by Miss Juanita de Vette, Mrs. H. C. Mesdor, Dr. Ernest Cason and Mr. Jim Dickinson in presenting the evening's program.

Alpha Kappa Delta, Sociology Honorary, Initiates 13 Students

Nine persons were initiated recently into Alpha Kappa Delta, national honorary sociological fraternity, during an initiation ceremony and banquet.

The new members are Sarah Frances Anders, Earle J. Gerson, Mrs. Shirley W. Graham (in absentia), Bradford L. MacGowan, Arnold W. Monlitch, (in absentia) now in the U.S. Army; Ruth Lucille Rogers, Laurence A. Wallace, W. Richard Wynn and Mrs. Beryl Bowden, alumni member (in absentia). Officiating at the initiation were Dr. Meyer F. Nimkoff, department head, and Dr. F. R. Allen, faculty advisor for the local chapter.

DEAN VIVIAN M Duxbury of the School of Nursing was the main speaker at the banquet, which was held in the Lafayette room. She spoke on the sociological aspects of the job of nursing. She was introduced by Dr. Nimkoff, who served as toastmaster at the banquet.

Banquet guests were Dr. John Crist, former AKD member at the University of Missouri and now on the staff of the FSU School of Social Welfare; Mrs. Crist; Mr. Wallace T. White, former member at the University of Illinois and now on the administrative staff of FSU; and Mrs. White; and Dr. Clarence Edney, speech department head and Mrs. Edney.

Applications Ready

Applications for pre-doctoral and post-doctoral graduate fellowships in science may now be made by securing application forms from the office of the Dean of the Graduate School or office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

The fellowships, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, are awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, including interdisciplinary fields and excluding study in clinical medicine.

Students Attend Fla. Cabinet Meet

Thirteen Florida State University students, majoring in public administration, accompanied by their instructors, Eugene Price and Miss Juanita Gibson, attended a state cabinet meeting last Tuesday.

The students, who went to see how the state's official business was transacted were greeted by Governor Fuller Warren and other members of the state cabinet.

Governor Warren said that the FSU public administration under Dr. Wilson K. Doyle, dean, was doing an excellent job of training students for careers in public life. R. A. Gray commended the group of students for their interest in their state affairs.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 29...THE HYENA

Hysteria reigned from the moment he heard the details of those quick-trick cigarette mildness tests. First he giggled . . . then he guffawed . . . wound-up rolling in the aisle. He knew that the "single sniff" test or the "one puff" test didn't prove anything! Millions of smokers have reached the same conclusion — there's just one test that really proves cigarette flavor and mildness!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try, Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

Debate Results Show Negative Side Wins

Results of the third annual Intramural Debate Tournament disclose a few more debates were won by the negative teams, supporting general education requirements than by the affirmative teams who contended that such requirements should be abolished.

The most impressive records in the tournament were made by "The Thespians," a negative team composed of Sara Margaret Davis and Vivian Law, and the "General Eds," a negative team made up of Marie Sims and Joanne LeRoy. Both teams won all five of their debates.

EUNICE THOMPSON and Helen Lawler, representing Landis hall, ran a very close second with four victories and only one loss.

The best affirmative debating was done by Barbara Luff and Bess Enge, who represented Kappa Alpha Theta, with four wins and one loss. Janice Eichinger and John Harcecpos, known as J-Square, and William Stanick and Jean Landrum won three decisions while suffering only two defeats.

The outstanding sorority team, composed of Luff and Enge, was from Kappa Alpha Theta, while the fraternity honors go to Robert Serros and Shorty Stokesbury, debating for Phi Delta Theta.

OTHER TEAMS debating the affirmative side of the proposition were Valerie Haynes and Peggy Bray, "Val and Peg"; Gene Lu Armstrong and Nan Daniel, Delta Delta Delta; Barbara Wells and Peggy Pelot, "Well-Pelt," Shirley Puckett and Shirley Frazier, Phi Mu; Phil Davis and Sally Burton, "P.S.," George Cary and Nell Jacoby, "Seniors," and Jack Hopkins and Will Pennell, Lambda Chi.

Other negative teams were Fran Sherman and Charles Bogdahn, Newman club; Mary Knilfin and Marilyn Falls, "Les Miserables"; Jim Kirk and Jere Shivers, "Rebel Snakes"; Jimmie Dye and Katherine Morrow, "Dye-to-Morrow"; and Jenny Carper and Harriette Bassemore, "Jennielles."

The speech department has also announced that four representative debaters from FSU will take part on a national debate topic at the University of Florida December 14 through 16 Topic to be debated by the four so far unnamed will be "Resolved, that the Federal government should adopt a permanent program of wagting price controls."

Chesterfields Hold Contest

Florida Flambeau

FSU to Edit FIPA Bulletin
See Page 1

VOL. XXXVIII, No. 21 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — Tuesday, December 11, 1951

Flambeau Will Edit New FIPA Bulletin

Dunn Named Head of Monthly Bulletin Of News Items from Florida Universities

The Florida Flambeau staff was appointed to edit a monthly intercollegiate Press Bulletin at the fall FIPA convention last week-end at Florida Southern College.

Official designate and Flambeau's managing editor, Bill Dunn, was appointed to be in charge of the paper.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY will be the clearing house for news from Florida colleges, universities and junior colleges. News items from these college newspapers is to be compiled, mimeographed and mailed to each institution of higher learning in the state.

In one of the earlier sessions, Howard Greenwald, FIPA president, proposed a plan to adopt the judging of high school annual publications as a regular convention activity which was of prime importance to all delegates. He explained that such a project would have the two-fold purpose of adding prestige to FIPA and improving high school journalism.

The Thursday afternoon session was devoted to discussion and organization of an outline for points on which to judge the papers and categories into which they would be divided.

DELEGATES VOTED to devote an entire day of the spring FIPA convention to evaluating the papers received.

Notification of the individual high schools will be handled by the staff of University of Tampa's Minaret.

One of the chief problems of the convention was the selection of a city for the next session scheduled for the end of April or beginning of May.

FSU was formerly selected but had to be withdrawn because of segregation laws governing a state university.

IN AN ATTEMPT to select a mutually satisfactory date delegates unanimously recommended Miami Collegiate for the spring session. University of Miami was elected as alternate site.

The remainder of sessions were devoted to panel discussions concerning problems pertinent to school journalism.

A discussion on editorial policies revealed that the majority of the newspapers represented dedicate their own policy but are responsible for their editorial under the administration or the student body.

OTHER PANELS were held on the business end of publications, making ends meet, how to keep a working staff, photography, journalism honoraries and exchange of newspapers.

Speakers at the three day session from the Lakeland Ledger were Ben Agger, city political reporter; Bob Swift, makeup and headlines; and Ed Hose, reporter on police beat.

Forty-two delegates attended the convention from 14 schools. Representing FSU, along with official delegate Bill Dunn, were Hazel Bowden, literary news editor; June Morgan, assistant news editor; and Rhoda Haynie, managing editor of Smoke Signals.

300 Students To Visit FSU For Career Day

A "Career Day" program to be held on the Florida State University campus tomorrow will be attended by some 300 high school seniors from five Florida counties and one Georgia county.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, will welcome the students on behalf of the University at a general assembly period shortly after their arrival tomorrow morning. The Florida high school students will come from Dade, Taylor, Jefferson, Madison and LaFayette counties.

After an FSC demonstration of choosing proper careers, students will then divide into nine groups for the purpose of evaluating the schools and departmenus as guests of the deans and department heads.

Men students will have an opportunity to visit the Army Air and Army Ordnance ROTC units of officers, and the women students will be shown the home economics and nursing departments.

DR. J. BROWARD CULPEPPER, dean of student welfare will talk to the assembly in the Union Ballroom after lunch. They will also hear Dr. Howard Danford, FSU athletic director, talk on the duties of the University's sports participation program and the value of intramural competitions of various counties will be given by students of women's physical education department. Some of the acts in the annual Gymkana show "Flatland, U. S. A." will be given under the direction of Dr. Hatley Price.

FSU Students Get State Scholarships In Competitive Exam

The State Board of Education announced last week that 467 Florida State University students were awarded state scholarships in recent competitive examinations.

Winners of the House of Representatives scholarships worth $200 a year for prospective teachers are Elizabeth Dunsmuir, Janet L. Lewis, Mary Duck, James Whildon Jr., Dorothy Peddit, Henry Ferrell, Lewis H. Thomas.

Betty Lou Olds, Harris Harvey, Nancy Wilson, Lloyd Jones, John Smith, William Cutler and Lester Deese.

Lewis scholarships worth $400 a year have been awarded to the following students: Mrs. Dorothy Reid Rose, Robert McIntyre, William Wilder, Barbara Willis, Martha Crenshaw, Bernadine Price, professor of physical education for men at Florida State University and director of the Gymkana show announced that the Tots will appear in an article entitled "World of Children Column."

The $700 a year Senatorial scholarship for prospective teachers or government workers was awarded to Hugh Kinsey, Margaret Barr, Nelda Whittle, Martha Wilkins, Phillip Johnson, Nancy Dunn-Rankin, William A. Seller and Lucille Meebold.

Tumbling Tots To Be In Good Housekeeping

The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots, the youngsters who appeared in the recent 1951 Gymkana production, "Flatland, U. S. A.," will be featured in the April issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

Dr. Hatley Price, professor of physical education for men at Florida State University and director of the Gymkana show announced that the Tots will appear in an article entitled "World of Children Column."

Holiday Attendance Rule Mandatory

All undergraduate students must attend all classes at Florida State University on Dec. 19 and Jan. 3, the committee on Attendance has announced.

Any student who misses a class on these days shall lose one-sixth of the credit value of the entire or courses in which the absences occur unless his excuse is accepted by the Committee on Attendance.

CAST MEMBERS of Tarpon Club's aquacade "Arabian Nights" receive last minute coaching from Del Peters, Tarpon director. The newcomer will exhibit their synchronized underwater routines when the fall show opens tomorrow night at the Women's Gymnasium on East campus.

Florida State Students Attend FSGA Meeting at Lakeland

The Florida Student Government Association held its semi-annual meeting at Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Florida, la st week with Allan Head, president, of Florida State University, presiding.

Concert Set By Collegians

The first Men's Glee club concert this year will be presented Thursday at 8:15 in the Music hall auditorium.

Leading the group in a variety of music will be Director J. Dayton Smith, instructor in voice.

TRADITIONAL numbers songs such as the Gloucestershire Wassail, and the Christmas Song in addition to a spec ial arrangement of Jingle Bells and My Love Front Teeth are a part of the evening's music.

Samuel Barber's A Stopwatch and the Ordnance Map is also on the program. It will be featured in a backgroun d of three trombones played by Dr. Robert Briggs, associate professor of music.

THE SECOND PART of the concert will include an old Welsh song, All Through The Night, Over the Rainbow, She Is More To Be Pitied Than Censured, Oh Joe, If I Loved You, from the musical play Carousel, Daddy's Little Girl, I'll Never Smile Again, and Sinbad.

Concert accompanist Thursday will be Nancy Hill, George Bunn, student director will conduct one number on the program.

Men's Glee club officers are Wetzell Carpenter, president; Bill Head, vice-president; Pat Johnson, secretary-treasurer, and Jim Bidwell and Blair Hennessey, librarians.

The association, made up of delegates from universities, colleges and junior colleges in the state, discussed student government and approved a list of resolutions.

PART OF THE constitution of the National Student Congress was adopted. It read, "We, the students of the United States, desire to maintain academic freedom and student rights, to stimulate and improve democratic student governments, to develop better educational standards, facilities, and teaching methods, and to improve student culture, social and physical welfare."

Among the most important resolutions was an article added to the constitution, which states that "No school shall be committed to any actions, adoptions or resolutions when they are in conflict or contrary to the member institution's policy."

THE GROUP ALSO PASSED a resolution which states that "Student government grants cause in the eyes of school administrations. Such administrations have the stability of the government to assume responsibility and carry out its functions in an efficient and competent manner and because pressure is also gained by individual student government officers demonstrating ability in leadership."

The association passed resolutions by a committee which states that students should have voting power over student initiated budgets through their student government, and that colleges and universities should reexamine their student governments in the institution's constitution.

THE GROUP VPHELD the principle of faculty evaluation by students and said that there should be close cooperation between student press and government, but no domination of either one by the other.

Among other resolutions passed were scholastic requirements for holding student government office, the institution of leadership training programs for these offices, and a resolution stating that student governments should set a time limit on meetings and a discussion policy.

THE ASSOCIATION AGREED

Egan Conyers Reign Over Hop

Jack Egan and June Conyers reigned over the Sophomore Hop as king and queen last Friday night in the West Campus Student Union.

The dance, directed by sophomore class social chairman, Betsy Sue Fryer, was built around the theme of "Winter Wonderland." Jerry Kohler and his orchestra provided the music from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Finalists in the elections were Ardis Bourland, Carolyn Calhoun, Carole Conyers, Jo Fleury and Pat Vines for queen, John Adams, Milton Carothers, Jack Egan, Buddy Leynes, Roy Staten and Buddy White.

Unable to compete were Nellie Lawrence, Gail Tomlinson and Shirley Kinlich, who were out of town the night of the dance.

The committees which helped the dance function smoothly were Sunny Aaronson, court; Ann Leibbach, publicity; Pat Slater, decorations; Eleanor Scott, refreshments; Jean Egott, invitations and George Story, floor committee.

Dr. Clark Speaks To FSU Scientists

Dr. Marion Clark visited Florida State University recently to explain the program by which participating universities may send their research scientists to the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies for research.

He was entertained by FSU scientists at a fish dinner in his honor. He also visited the Marine Biological Laboratories at Apalachicola and had a conference with President Doak S. Campbell.

Dr. Clark is assistant director of the University Relations Division of the Institute which is accepting applications for the research program until Dec. 17.

Tarpon Show Opens At 8 Wed Night

University of Florida's Fin Club To Visit FSU for '51 Production

Florida State University "first nighters" will be on hand for the opening of the Tarpon club's underwater production "Arabian Nights" tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Women's East campus gymnasium.

Admission is free to FSU students and the show will run for four consecutive nights.

FEATURED ATTRACTION will be "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" scene using under lighting effects and flutter-boards painted with giant eyes.

A regular tradition of the Tarpon show is the comedy routine. This year it is entitled "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" and is being carefully confided to those involving five of Tarpon's best swimmers.

Other featured events are the "Prince and Princess" duet by Jean Rigell and Dee Dunn-Rankin, four men swimmers doing "Sinbad the Sailor," and the mimic dance, "The Lady of Bagdad" number.

FINALE of the Tarpon swim show is a composite of all the acts. Each of the featuredCaptains will be on center stage to the music of his number.

Friday night the Tarpon "Arabian Nights" will be viewed by honor guests from the Fin Club. His counterpart is placed on a two-hour basis; that the band chairman of the Fin Club will be reserved for President Campbell and such officials and visitors as may attend. Space for this and other official parking places be placed on a first come, first serve basis.

The proposed law would not set aside any specific area for faculty, staff or students. Senior Senator Vernon Peeples, chairman of the special committee, explained that it was the opinion of the committee the time limit would automatically get at the heart of the problem, more parking space.

MEETING LAST THURSDAY afternoon, the committee, consisting of Peeples and Senators Sonny Mercer, Jose Dozier and Phil Springer, decided not to act on all the administrative proposals.

"We were appointed only to consider the problem of restricted parking," said Peeples. He added that the law proposed by the committee merely synopsized several other administrative points, which utilized the specific for the varied, and completely change some.

The committee concluded that the basic problem was to create the parking space and that it was off what was presently available.

SINCE PAST NEWS of the administration proposals requests that all members of the faculty, staff and student body to plan to be on campus all day park in incorporated areas, the committee felt definite leniation that effect. would actually "create" more space those who use the classroom area now would thus have just to walk a little farther lot or in the little-used Call street lot.

Presumably, though not stated, the law would be enforced by security police making regular checks.

New Bill May Solve Problem

Bill Is Students' Answer To Administration 11

A bill that may solve the weeks-old parking problem on campus will be introduced in the University Senate this afternoon.

The product of a specially appointed committee, the bill will represent the students' answer to the 11-point program proposed by the administration and read in last week's Senate meeting by University Governmental Association President Will Pennell.

THE THREE PROPOSALS are that the street around Westcott and the street from the library to the Administration Building be on a two-hour basis; that the band chairman of the Fin Club be reserved for President Campbell and such officials and visitors as may attend; and that all other official parking places be placed on a first come, first serve basis.

The proposed law would not set aside any specific area for faculty, staff or students. Senior Senator Vernon Peeples, chairman of the special committee, explained that it was the opinion of the committee the time limit would automatically get at the heart of the problem, more parking space.

Miss Manners Sings Tonight In Music Hall

Artist Series Sponsors Noted Star of Radio, Opera and Concerts

Lucille Manners, soprano, will appear here tonight, Wednesday and Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Music hall sponsored by the Artist Series.

Miss Manners is a star of radio, opera and concerts. She has appeared in major cities throughout the United States and sung leading role in opera and operettas.

THE SINGER received her first radio exclaim as the star of the Cities Service program and remained with the program for eight years. Previous to that she had appeared on radio stations in New Jersey and New York while studying voice.

As a child Miss Manners desired to become a singer and began lessons before she started school. During her teens she worked as a stenographer to pay for lessons and appeared on a local station without pay to gain experience.

Since her success on radio, the petite singer has appeared in such operas as La Boheme, Faust, The Barber of Seville and Manon. She has also sung in such operettas as The Desert Song, Three Musketeers, The Fair Lady, New Moon, The Last Waltz and The Vagabond King. Miss Manners will also be featured in some of the country's smartest supper clubs.

FOR HER PROGRAM here the soprano will sing Vaghissima sembianza from Spirato per, spirate by Donaudy, Un Moto di Gioja and Al desio di chi t'adora from Le Nozze di Figaro by Mozart and Woman," an American folk song, by G Minor, opus 25 No. 1 by Rachmaninoff.

'Roberta' Is Successful Says Flambeau Reviewer

By GERRY HOFF

The Light Opera Guild's presentation of Jerome Kern's "Roberta" delighted Florida State University audiences for three successive nights beginning last Thursday night.

Produced with the cooperation of the speech department this comedy, which began rather slowly, ended with the enthusiastic applause of a capacity house.

THE PLOT of the play centered around the Parisian dress of Madame Roberta, who was known to her family simply as Aunt Minnie, and the romance that went with her nephew, John Kent, an American football star. The romantic and business problems of John formed the action of the play.

The cast, which included J. Ross Smith as Prince Ouspenskaya; Mae Hiscock as Sophie Teal, a fashion model; Jean Andrews as Mrs. Teale, Virginia French as Madame Roberta, Donn Teal as Lalibois, a prince in disguise, Jack Hamrick, and Joan Daye James as Stephanie, Roberta's assistant, made up for what they lacked in acting by their excellent singing.

CHARLES HAINES took the part of Huckleberry Haines, carrying the show and occasionally stole the scene.

Wyn Park is to be commended on his handling of scenery. Because of the eight dances and ten scene changes, the scenery had to be kept to a minimum. This was done without sacrificing the effect.

The 27 piece orchestra under the direction of Robert L. Briggs, provided background music and accompaniment to singers. A four piece jazz combo gave a good contrast to the predominant mood of the Roberta music in the last scene.

Icelanders Come To Florida State

Two young men from Iceland received a warm welcome on their arrival at Florida State University recently for a four year course of study.

Birgir Karlsson, 20, and Thorsteinn Bjarnason, 21, have come here to study restaurant and hotel management. They were greeted by Dr. Donald E. Lundberg, head of the department of restaurant and hotel management at Florida State's school.

Karlsson said his father, who is a native of Reykjavik, Iceland. Karlsson said his father, who is in the restaurant business in Iceland, encouraged him to come to this country for study. The two men will combine study and work in the restaurant field while here.

Both youths said they have found America much as they imagined it from seeing American movies and reading newspapers and magazines in high school.

They both speak fluent English and said they are eager to begin their college work.

Vice-President Chosen

Dr. Chester S. Nielson associate professor of botany, was elected vice-president of the Florida Academy of Science at the academy's annual meeting in Tampa recently.

PAINLESS 15 MINUTES

FSU Students Participate in Blood Drive

"It was easy," all an attractive co-ed, after she had given her pint of blood at the Red Cross unit at University-Armed Forces Blood Drive.

She was handed a pan full of cookies and a glass of milk. "I'm disappointed," she replied, "I thought it would hurt."

The RECORD was just one of 126 Florida State University students that made a 15 minute contribution o, time and a pint of life saving blood to help correct the acute shortage in Korea.

"The Blood for Korea" drive, being sponsored qy Omicron Delta Kappa, fell short of its Monday quota by 24 pints due to misinformation and a stoc beginning.

Chairman Bob Griffin, announced that the quota for this university is 586 pints. Of this number only 146 pints must be collected every day. The quota per day may not exceed this amount because of transportation reservations on National airlines.

FIRST STUDENT to donate was Chuck Mayo, a freshman day student from Jacksonville. Mayo, a veteran of the Korean conflict, donated the doors at 9 yesterday to commence FSU's part in the nation-wide program.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Chairman of the Jacksonville blood bank, that is procuring the blood for the Armed Forces, said that many students had been turned down early in the morning because they had eaten foods containing fats. Cream cheese and avocado were two foods would be an example of food that must not be eaten four hours before donorship.

THE HAS BEEN requested that students drink only fruit juices, black coffee or tea before time to give blood. A refreshment stand being operated by APO and Sophomore council, will free donors with free milk, cokes, and cookies after the blood is taken.

All students under 21 must have written permission from their parents. A letter is sufficient if the special blanks have not been filled out.

Any dormitory, fraternity, or sorority that is having schedule trouble is ukrg to contact Bob Griffin immediately for appointment adjustment.

Day students may so at any time during the remaining three days. Time listed each day is 9-12 and 2-4:45.

THE UNIVERSITY of Florida students donated 552 pints in their drive this last week. The drive at Gainesville collected only 76 pints during the first day but made up part of the loss the last during their remaining three days.

Blood donorship is painless and takes from 15 to 20 minutes. The actual bleeding takes only 5 to 7 minutes.

The campus has pledged over 1000 pints of blood to the drive. "We have the promise, we want the pint," said the chairman of the drive Griffin. "Please, if you haven't donated be sure and keep your appointment."

The 700 civilians turned out to donate Monday.

Cotillion to Hold Christmas Formal

The Cotillion Club will hold its annual Christmas formal Friday at the Women's Club from 8:30 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Tickets are now on sale in lower Westcott. Admission is 75 cents.

Music for the dance will be presented by Mike Baliles and his 12 piece band. Baliles, Florida State University student intern and Kappa Alpha member, is directing the former Bob Cole band. The band is now called "The Regents" and features Ann Coe, freshman day student, as vocalist.

Cotillion is an honorary on the dance floor and good character. It fosters more and better social dances on campus and helps with University dances.

Clothing Drive To End

The Methodist Student House Clothes for Korea drive will end tomorrow.

Students are urged to turn their contributions in by then. Clothes may be placed in boxes marked "Korea" in the women's dormitories. Men should take their contributions to the chairman of their dormitory.

● ISSUE CONFUSED

On December 15, the citizens of Leon county will be called upon to decide whether the sale of alcoholic beverages shall or shall not be legalized within their county.

Few people can deny that alcoholism is one of the worst problems of our society today. However, the question raised toward the drys is, "Does prohibition limit the consumption of alcohol with a community?"

As yet no one has been able to prove an answer to this question either one way or the other. Despite this fact, some anti-wets are the dry camp, which consist mainly of church leaders, continue to hammer on one line of logic and one line only, that is, that: (1) alcohol is evil, (2) prohibition will successfully squelch the consumption of alcohol, and :3) therefore, we should have prohibition.

It is generally recognized that another of the strongest dry supporters are the bootleggers. If alcohol is legalized, they will be subject to numerous laws and regulations regarding the sale of their products, and even more important will have to pour a good per cent of their profits into the state revenue fund.

The Leon Dry Crusade has labelled the wet faction as "organized evil." To us, this seems to be an inaccurate, unfair, unintelligent and emotional term. It simply is not a vote on whether liquor is good or bad, but whether the county should receive the tax revenue for liquor sold in the county. Who is the organized evil in this campaigning for a wet county? It isn't the bootlegger for he will profit more by a dry vote. It isn't the farmer since it is a known fact that anyone can buy liquor in Leon if he wants it.

This issue has been clouded and confused. It is important that we think this problem through carefully and with great wisdom. There is no room for emotionalism in our decision.

● GRACIAS

The student directories have just come out, much to the appreciation of staff, faculty and students.

Last year, the directory which lists student, faculty and staff, their addresses, both home and campus, their telephone numbers, and their year and school, came out in time for the Easter card mailing list. This year, they are out in time for the Christmas card mailing list, a relief to the address scribblers who in '50 had to take trips around the campus with address book and pencil in hand.

Thanks for the rush job.

● BLIND MICE

This state must be running an institution for the deaf and the blind in Tallahassee.

A memorandum, dated December 6, was sent to members of the faculty and staff warning them parking and traffic regulations. It said, "The new system has been a success and has been well supported through the cooperation of members of the faculty and staff, as well as members of the student body."

Is this the student body at the University of Alaska you are talking about?

Come, come, let us not be absurd!

● TRY ONE

The spirit of charity will rule the hearts of a social fraternity on this campus over the Christmas holidays.

The fraternity is giving a party for four underprivileged children of Leon County. The children have been recommended by the Leon County Associated Charities agency.

As far as this publication can determine this is the first type of event to be sponsored by a local fraternity.

Some other groups on campus will no doubt take the hint—the suggestion; try one of these parties—you will love it.

The University of Florida's long-awaited political shake-up has finally materialized with the announcement of a new student party. So far, the Liberal Party of Florida. The Flambeau will exchange columns with the Alligator.)

The new party claims enough fraternity support to make it a definite threat to the previously all-powerful Florida Party which has dominated student politics for the last year.

The new split puts Florida's politics back on the two-party basis that it enjoyed a year ago. The Liberal Party is quite similar to the old Varsity Party, and the remnants of the Florida Party resemble the old Gator Party.

Those two old parties had battled on fairly even terms for three years after their formation in 1947.

WILL BRIEF SEMINOLES

U. of F. students donated 552 pints of blood in a recent four-day Armed Forces Blood Drive. The pints a day, but it was raised to 600 points for the last two days to handle some of the overflow.

The drive was sponsored by the Student Red Cross Blood Service Agency. This group will conduct another blood drive here next spring.

All of the fires have been extinguished by the dorms' sprinkling systems. The fires have caused little damage, however, but the water from the sprinkling systems have damaged

PRIVATE EYE CRAZE IS GOING ON

By FRANCES CAWTHON

I wandered into a room the other night, opened my mouth to impart some information, fidgeted, awoke, and promptly got it closed again. Everybody was clustered around the radio, some bent over, fiddling up the dial glass and others ears straining for every sound.

Aha! The famed private detective program (or some such creature) was relating a baffling murder case. Baffling, that is, to another baffling thing about the whole deal was the commercial on why you should ever buy his "Carmel Caravan" to FSC for the dastred weekend.

I am sadly behind myself all this Sam Spade, Private Eye craze that is going on. I can just see that Sam Spade should have on the American public. Mona, is going to be the bad red because of some dame on last Friday night's program who knocked Pulse Nash cold. Junior is going to want to brush his teeth for a change because the announcer said every his fluoride crime-buster used Mumbo Jumbo Tooth Paste. Papa will probably quit the plumbing business, buy a new sapone, and adopt the name of John Public.

Sister will be the one who will be the one for which the writer gets paid. They can both catch their breath at the end. Well, I never saw any defenders of chamber-of-commerce-ism. I often he had a bay window (and NOT in his penthouse apartment) and I'd write that a one vine-covered cottage with a white picket fence and behind one more, his secretary did not look like Betty Grable.

Oh, well I suppose the air waves will always be infested with creeping mystery ladies, men with five o'clock shadows, handsome Sam Spades and behind them all, writers trying to think up exciting new (?) ways to eliminate people Think I'll get a book on ballistics and join the gravy train.

TON SPEAKS OF WAR DAYS

Dutch Student Reminisces

By ANTOINE SIZOO

I would like to go back to Holland just for a visit if I could tell all my friends of the wonderful experiences I've had in the United States and visit with my old Florida State University. Thus I would like to become a citizen of the U. S. A.

Born in a Dutch East Indies, I moved to Holland when I was four.

1940 BEGAN five years of German occupation. Almost immediately, an underground resistance movement was organized. The objectives were to help allies fliers, shot down, get down above Holland, and to hinder the Germans in all possible ways. Because I was too young I could only help the underground by delivering messages.

Once I was caught tearing down a German propaganda poster, and brought before the Gestapo. Because they did not know I worked for the underground, I was luckily given a light sentence of spending one day in jail. A month however, was no joke to me. Luckily, the caught participating in an underground movement and sent to a concentration camp. He managed later to escape.

THE LAST YEAR of the war was by far the worst. We received hope of liberation when the allies landed in Normandy, but the Germans flooded Holland. Food became scarce. Now, in addition to air raid casualties, there were hundreds who starved.

Rail lines were destroyed necessary for our city. The Hague, because it is the seat of the Queen, was bombed by the Germans launched V-2 rocket-fire, hitting London and allied harbors. One of these failed just after being launched and hit our house. Our family had evacuated only the day before.

FINALLY CAME German surrender in May of 1945. There were mass celebrations and endless street dances. My family celebrated the homecoming of a brother who was a pilot in the Dutch East Indies squadron that had been away five years. He had been in England, then to America, the Pacific and back to the States. In Florida had been stationed at Tyndall Field. He was back to England for "D" Day.

This brother, having married in the U. S., had settled in Panama City, Florida. I applied for immigration to America, since my parents had died, and I wanted very much to live with my brother. I was put on the waiting list, waiting two years for my number to get on the quota list, I was finally accepted.

At first it was hard not knowing English well. I was advised to take one year of high school English before entering college. It probably did not help much with Junior Hi lab at F. S. U. I was continually embarrassed when I did not know the difference in curse and slang words.

Grant-in-Aids

Dear Editor:

In defense of football in regard to the distribution of athletic scholarships, it would be good to note that football gives a long way toward providing the funds necessary to operate the athletic program for all sports.

Not only that, but what other sport, including our National Championship Gymnastics team, draws as many spectators and as much publicity to FSU as football?

To give FSU a better name and to obtain the largest number of people should be the aim of those in charge of allocating the scholarships. Color does not enter into one conclusion if looking at this subject from all sides—more and better football—rank-in-aids.

Sincerely,
RALPH HAGER.

A New Friend

(Editor's Note: The following letter is from a student in Turkey who is interested in several pen-pals at Florida State University. His address is at the end of the letter.)

Dear Editor and Friends:

I am a graduate of Ayvalik Technical Art College and 19 years of age. I have a great desire to make friends by correspondence.

I am interested in: Films, reading, and all the sports. I like to collect photographs of my friends.

I don't know much about the United States except the films I have seen and what I have read about it. I hope I'll know the philosophy and the meanin of the Florida State University.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Puffin', Which Way?

Dear Editor:

To quote from Smoke Signals column, Puffin' Away" . . . you want to find anyone in the city of or 'high-brow' reading material in this town . . . Florida State is a fine educational university needs a magazine which reflects the lighter side of campus life . . .

I readily agree that no "high-brow" material was used, and that "the lighter side of campus life" might be enjoyed by any those with a rather perverted sense of humor.

The editors are following the footsteps of the late unlamented William Randolph Hearst and his yellow tabloids.

From the low-brow jokes used I guess that the "Cover Girl" calendar will be published by photography as is used so effectively in the dentistry magazine and pocketbook editions. I say this is no insult to the photography staff of this magazine, and has found from experience that "high-brow" humor appeals to no one well, and it is trying to reflect campus life. I would suggest that the editors take a good look at their students and find out where they have missed out in teaching a high level of appreciation.

I also suggest that the students look at their professors, and community life and try to discover what is high and what is low.

A VET'S WIFE.

Nash Addresses Faculty Members

Th Rev. Doctor Arnold Nash, head of the Department of Religion at the University of North Carolina, will address members of the faculty at a luncheon to be held in the Lafayette room tomorrow at 12:30 p.m.

Dr. Nash was educated at the University of Liverpool, Ripon Hall, Oxford, and the London School of Economics. He holds graduate degrees in chemistry, philosophy and theology. Now executive secretary of the Department of College Work for the province of Sewanee for the Episcopal church, in addition to his other duties, Dr. Nash is noted as a capable and experienced speaker in the field. He comes here after a speech at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

For two years I've been hearing talk about how the FSU Infirmary treats people with bleeding ulcers for poison ivy and how often they operate on them with Summer colds. I was led to believe their death score was higher than that of Hitler's ovens.

Alas, another legend bites the dust. Another choice conversational tidbit is gone. All that self-treatment of leprosy, hacking coughs and assorted exotic diseases—those operations with my rusty Old-Timer—all unnecessary.

Came you're looking at the mental dripplings of one satisfied customer.

Good chow, ma-like service for this peasant, real sweet nurse working at their jobs—all these things I was a floor show and I'd still be there. But all that fine damn conversation lost. . . .

Shopping List—for . . .

Bill Falconer . . . girls whose conversation doesn't run out at the first one hour date.

Johnny Knapp . . . 400 dancing girls in 227 gorgeous costumes.

Scoopy Davis . . . a gal who lets him sniff a brew every so often.

Dave Graham . . . a pipeline direct to Landis.

The boys at the "Hot hound" . . .

"Woody" . . . a bomb he can throw at the Amber House.

"Valentino" O'Neal . . . a pair of sho' nuff dancing shoes.

Curt Campbell . . . a car to take Suzi riding in.

Tommy Owen . . . lots of patience.

Jabo Anthony and Si Hodges . . . A "House" of their very own.

Mike Steffen and Satch Martin . . . a Jewel.

"drunkometer" to which intoxicated rats are subjected in order to test the degree of their intoxication.

SEVERAL TESTS are being conducted to obtain information concerning emotional excitement caused by a single or protracted emotional shock, and a-cholhism upon the offspring when these are applied during pregnancy.

Previous scientific tests have established that alcoholism does effect the offspring when given during pregnancy. It is suspected that electrical or emotional shock will also produce results.

A TEST for color vision in rats is now being contemplated. This study will be under the direction of Mr. Kenshalo and Dr. Baker of the School of Education. Mr. Kenshalo is responsible for the Wabble Box used to test the effect of electrical shock.

The rat lab is moving from building 453 to building 770 in order to accomodate its growing concern. Here they are expanding from the relatively small rooms plus the small operating room to an 18 room building which contains separate rooms for each experimental apparatus.

SINGLE ROOMS will now be available for graduate students where they will conduc. individual experiments. This new space also affords a classroom and needed operating room as well as a workshop. The new arrangement is according to Mr. Kenshalo, expected to offer greater opportunity for a more extensive program of development.

Gilchrist To Have Annual Hop Dec. 15

The annual formal dance of Gilchrist hall will be an event of Saturday, December 15 from 8:30 until 12 p.m. in the Rowena Longmire auditorium, Jerry Kolar's orchestra will play for the affair.

THE DANCE THIS year will be centered around a "Candle Glow" theme in keeping with the Christmas season. Decorations and entertainment for the dance are being kept secret until Saturday night. Laverne Jennings, social chairman, and Sara Roten chairman of special events are in charge of all arrangements. Other committee heads are Dorothy Peaden, hostesses; Charlotte Howle, favors; Pat Rerick, decorations; and Louise Condon, entertainment.

The annual Christmas tea of Gilchrist was held last Wednesday afternoon, Dr. D. L. Canfield and Dr. Mildred Morgan were honored guests for the occasion. Christmas carols were sung and the parlor was decorated with miniature white Christmas trees.

IN NORTH CAWTHON, some of the girls have formed a caroling group, and are practicing every Thursday on a program of carols for their annual Christmas party.

Members of South Cawthon's house council are taking charge of the annual Christmas party. On Wednesday evening all girls in the dorm and their guests will gather in the parlor to decorate their Christmas tree. Refreshments will be served.

Commerce Secretary Will Open New Course Here

Hon. Charles Sawyer, United States Secretary of Commerce, will be at Florida State University on Jan. 10 to formally open a new course in "Administration and Management of the Federal Government," President Doak S. Campbell has announced.

Dr. Wilson K. Doyle, dean of the FSU School of Public Administration, said the lecture course of the school this year will FSU campus for study, is one of United States Department of Commerce. In addition to Secretary Sawyer, a number of his top administrators will also be guest lecturers at FSU for the course.

"THROUGH THIS case study," Dr. Doyle said, "FSU students will obtain a close view of the organizations, procedures and problems of one of the largest departments of the federal government as presented by the department key officials."

The special course in federal administration, which in effect brings part of Washington to the FSU camp sufor study, is one of the first of its kind to be offered by any university or college in the nation, according to Dr. Doyle.

OTHER GUEST lecturers from the U. S. Department of Commerce to follow Secretary Bwyer during the courses in federal administration include Thomas W. S. Davis, assistant secretary for domestic affairs; Clarence H. Costhagen, assistant secretary for administration; William H. Shaw, assistant secretary for administration, and William E. Fowler, Office of the Budget and Management.

The list also includes Oliver C. Short, director of the Office of Personnel Administration; Harold Ryan, director of Administrative Services; Francis R. Cawley, director of the Office of Budget and Management; John T. Moore, chief of accounting installations; Carlton Haywood, director of the Office of Field Studies, and Roy V. Peel, director of the Bureau of the Census.

Physical Ed. Club Plans Camp Work

The recently organized Physical Education Club for Women adopted a plan to help at the day camp for exceptional children at its second meeting recently.

A Christmas party was also planned. The next meeting will be held Jan. 10, 1952.

Officers of the club are Shirley Allen, president; Evelyn Prederickson, vice-president; Mary Loudon, secretary-treasurer; Peggy Dame, sports representative; Jo Fleury, social chairman; Ann Blitch, publicity chairman; and Dr. Cole, faculty supervisor.

Messiah Presented By Choral Union

The second and last performance of Handel's oratorio, The Messiah, was held last night at the Leon High school auditorium. The Messiah is given annually by Florida State University's Choral Union.

Assistant professor of voice Herman Gunter, Jr. directed FSU's largest choral group in the presentation of the oratorio which is a favorite Christmas program throughout the world. The group was accompanied by the University Symphony, under the baton of Robert Sefcore, FSU instructor of violin and orchestra.

THE MESSIAH was presented each Christmas by the University Chorus. When the Choral Union was formed two years ago, it took over the program. Altogether, the program has been an annual event at FSU for five years.

The oratorio, which was written by George Frederic Handel in 1741, was first performed in Dublin, Ireland, on April 13, 1742, under the composer's direction. In 1788, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart added accompaniment.

Perhaps the most famous part of The Messiah is the Hallalujah chorus. During this section, the audience stands, due to a precedent King George of England set when he first heard the chorus, and stood up throughout it all.

SOLOISTS IN the FSU production were Norma Jean Kearney and Clara Kenyon, sopranos; William Dalrymple, tenor; Virginia French and Betty Jo Armstrong, altos; and Edgar Evans, bass.

Rehearsal accompanist was Nancy Hill, and solo trumpeter was Jack Scarborough.

The choral story, which tells of the prophecy, and birth so the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ, was presented free of charge to both the students of Florida State University and the townspeople of Tallahassee.

ARMED FORCES BLOOD DONOR PROGRAM!

The Seminole SPORTLIGHT . . .

BY Tommy Sands

SEPTEMBER SONG—It may be a long, long while to September but it's not too early to take a long hard look at the Seminoles' 1954 grid card.

For a while it appeared that the Indians would be lucky to schedule a schedule for next Fall but in the last three weeks games have been coming in faster than the University of Florida can think of excuses not to play FSU.

In the last few weeks the Seminoles have added Georgia Tech, V.M.I., Furman and Louisiana Tech to the 52 agreements given them nine months ago and Florida State officials are still looking for the tenth one. Should they add another it will be the heaviest schedule a FSU football team has ever played.

Georgia Tech is a member of the Southeastern Conference and V.M.I. and Furman are both members of the Southern Conference. Both seasons are the "faithful three" Tampa Wofford and Stetson who have proved they can give the local gridders an interesting afternoon anytime. While Eastern Kentucky, Mississippi Southern and Louisiana Tech are all capable of battling the Seminoles on Even terms.

TWELFTH MAN THEME Wise: with the question of football deemphasization rules not being passed around like a hot potato Colin Kellmyer comes up at West Chester State Teachers College has come up with an idea on how to save the game. Kellmyer a former All-American says its simple "The solution add a twelfth man to the defense. Oh well.

The Clemson Tigers may come up with a monopoly on this year's Gator Bowl. The Tiger gridders meet the Hurricanes in the football portion of the affair and the Clemson Basketeers are a solid favorite to cop the first annual Gator Bowl Cage tourney which gets underway the 17th of this month. Andy Gustafson's Hurricanes had some of their points and hearts knocked off in their 21-7 loss to the fired up Pittsburg eleven last week but the defeat may do Miami more good than harm.

Frank Howard brought his Clemson team along for the last half of the season and since the Tigers would like very much to repeat their 14-13 win over Miami in the 1951 Orange Bowl the New Year's Day tilt at Jacksonville shapes up as a real battle.

Florida State fans, however, are probably more interested in the Basketball tournament than in the Grid contest since the Seminoles along with Florida Georgia and Clemson are featured in the Round Robin affair.

The South Carolina cagers have gotten off to a flying start this year winning their first three games, while the Gator stepped off on the right foot by whomping their first two starts.

The game everyone will be watching though will be the night the Indians meet Florida, because it marks the first time the Seminoles and Gators have met in an athletic contest since the modern era came in. 1951 was over the Gainesville crew would increase the Seminoles prestige to no end and help force that long awaited football clash with the whoopie B dihisis a "

Phy. Ed. Majors To See Miami Film

Films of the Florida State University-Miami game will be shown at a meeting of the Men's Physical Education Major's club tomorrow at 7:30 p m in the Women's gymnasium.

Dr. Donald Loucks faculty advisor announced the showing and said there will also be considerations of ratification of the club constitution and a discussion of future all physical education majors are invited to attend.

Indian Basketeers Starting 5th Season

Will the Florida State University Seminoles continue to win on the basketball court in this their fifth season? Is subsidation a major factor in producing a respected cage squad?

These and many other questions will be answered as the Seminoles "hit the hardwood" for what may prove to be their most interesting season

Just think, only four years ago, Don Loucks, now the Garnet and Gold's head tennis coach, hurriedly put together FSU's first basketball team, which had a 5 won and 12 lost records

IN 1945 the Seminole cage machine was ready to roll with a brand new 'driver, J. K. "Bud" Kennedy, who along with "Wild Bill" Weisel is coaching our team now Lee Benjamin, who was named on the Intercollegiate All-State team, led the way as the squad compiled 12 wins out of 24 starts and fourth place in the Dixie Conference.

Kennedy moved his boys up a notch to third place in the conference in his second year as coach This Garnet and Gold quintet of 1946 showed 15 wins against 10 defeats. Bis Tom McLaughlin was wheeling the deal" —well enough to be named on the Intercollegiate All-State and All-Dixie Conference teams.

Thanks to some "talented" transfers from Purdue and Indiana University, Florida State was able to field the best basketball team in its brief history in 1951 Although the team as a whole was short in stature it made up for this defect by scrapping all the way and employing excellent ballhandling tactics.

Golds Drown Garnet Team

The garnets squeezed out a 49 to 41 victory over the golds in the swimming team's annual intersquad meet held in the Recampus pool Friday.

The garnet team, led by seams Walter Jardine, Pete Dan Rankin, Wilton Jardine, and sophomore transfer George Gopher, rallied in the distance events to clinch the victory, but not before freshmen Bob Carter and Don Van Hise gave them a scare as they showed up well in taking close seconds in the 200 yd. Breastyle and freestaxroke events.

Jack Burnett proved to be the power he was rated as he captured the individual medley and took second in the backstroke for the gold team.

The garnet team was not without its surprises as Mitch Sutherland and Owen Boone nearequaled the times turned in by the golds' best freestyler, Dan Ellis.

Diver Pat Farrell showed flashes of form that will be hard to beat this season as he won the diving event handily for the garners with 100 individual MAIL points.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE—Members of the cast practice one of the numbers from this year's Tarpon show. The show continues through tomorrow night in the East campus gymnasium.

Tarpons Featured In 'Arabian Nites'

By JUNE MORGAN

Oils of the colorful scenes of the "Arabian Nights," the Tarpon members built their 1951 Aquacade, and will present the striking scenes again tonight and tomorrow night at 8 in the East Campus gymnasium.

They have taken the famous old fables of Shehereszade the wife who entertained her sultan with stories that he might spare her life and interpreted them with the graceful movements of the water ballet.

THE ARABIAN theme is excellent for the show because the simple beauty of the swimmer's routine may be enhanced by unique lighting effects, costumes of the Far East, and enticing music to combine all these things and you have the Tarpon show.

Del Pezza, club president, and those who helped in the integration of the theme for such a production should be commended for turning out a show that would rival any of those produced by Billy Rose, "theatrical emperor," in the field of aquacade.

PERHAPS the most striking scene was the progression of luminous eyes over the darkened pool. Such an opening number was ideal for setting the mood of the aerial scenes that followed. Undoubtedly the lighting effects of the scene were the most clever-ly conceived of the whole production. Using the flutter boards in the scene were Del Peters, Pat Morningstar, Jan Wyte, Carilyn Stigler Jean Thompson, Marinel

300 Seniors Attend FSU 'Career Day'

Some 300 high school seniors from Florida and Georgia crowded the FSU campus Wednesday to attend "career day."

This students were welcomed by Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of the University. The students then divided into several groups to visit various schools and departments in which they were interested.

Non students were given an opportunity to have interviews with Re Air and Army Ordnance ROTC unit officers, and the women were shown how the home economics and nursing schools at FSU operate.

After a lunch, at which the students were addressed by J. Brow-and Culpepper, dean of student welfare, the "career day" activities entertainment was presented by the men's and women's physical education departments.

Jr. Exam Planned For January 10

The last Junior English examination this semester will be given Thursday afternoon, January 10, 1952 from 4:30 until 6 p.m. in the Augusta Conradi library.

Students who have already completed 42 semester hours of work are eligible for the examination. Eligible students who fail intake the examination at the first opportunity are required to pay a $5 fee at the business office prior to the next examination.

Students who were eligible to take the examination in September and failed to do so are required to pay the $5 fee before Jan. 10, 1952 and to present the receipt for entrance to the examination on Jan. 10.

Registration of the later students for next semester's work is contingent upon their compliance with the previously mentioned requirements.

Dial 660 to Air Special Program For Christmas

Our Christmas Album Will Feature Dramatics, Music and Speakers

Campus radio station, WFSU, will again present this year "Our Album of Christmas" program from 6 until 12 midnight the night before the Yule tide vacation begins.

Guest speakers of the evening are President Doak S. Campbell, his wife, and Mr. Roy Flynn, faculty advisor at WFSU.

Included on the evening's program will be "The Littlest Angel" and "The Christmas Carol," with The Messiah and selected Christmas classics concluding the night's schedule.

GRADUATE STUDENT and former manager of WFSU, Dendis Deiscure, will read "The Littlest Angel" at 6:30 p.m. after a visit from Santa Claus at 6:30 p.m.

The dramatization, "Christmas In Other Lands" written by Lorna Lee Mapes will be featured during the 8 o'clock hour. Miss Mapes has given a personal touch to her writings about the various Christmas traditions in our country as well as in other territories. Miss Mapes, in preparation, haunted the book shelves of the campus library to find material on this subject.

Charles Dickens "Christmas Carol" will be presented by MGM's star, Lionel Barrymore at 8:30 p.m. Mr. Barrymore, as Scrooge, is to direct the Christmas. Miss the United States for his portrayal of the man who was haunted the night before Christmas by the ghose of Marley, his business partner.

OUT OF THE ten pages of the album, the WFSU dramatic group, The Seminole Theater Guild, will produce the "Children's Hour" from 7 until 8 p.m., preceding "The Christmas Carol."

"The Carol of the World," the story of how "Silent Night" came to be written will be enacted by Roger Busfield's radio speech class at 9:30 p.m. Production and production is in the hands of the students, Mr. Busfield wrote the original radio script.

At 10 p.m. religious leaders of Tallahassee will extend their Christmas greetings.

CLOSING THE COVER on the WFSU Christmas album from 11 until 11:58 p.m. will be The Messiah as sung by noted musical artists from England. The Messiah, The Huddersfield Choral Society is narrated by Robert Durker, ministerial and speech student.

Ending the program, Stan Gould, student at the radio station will express season's greetings from the Gould sports staff. Station Director Neil Jacoby and M. J. Parham, director of continuity are making the evening's programming possible.

Physical Ed. Club Has Christmas Party

The newly formed Adapted Physical Education club for Women held a Christmas party at the end of their December meeting recently. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served.

The club members voted to help at the school for exceptional children as a club project.

No Power On Restricted Parking, Senate Is Warned by Officials

Senate Has Lively Discussion Over Administration's 11 Points

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Three administrations officials at last Tuesday's Senate meeting warned the body it could not pass any regulations on restricted parking. They said the Senate'r only choice was to put the regulations under the student court or to let the Tallahassee police enforce them.

Even before the Peeples Committee bill for time-parking could be introduced, Vice-President A. B. Martin stood up to present the administration's case.

"AGITATION for a parking set-up came from the students," said Martin. The administration sponed parking under the authority delegated to it by the Tallahassee Police Department and the State Board of Controls.

"The faculty and staff, as a matter of fact, felt they were discriminated against in the amount of space allotted them," the vice president remarked. He felt the whole matter was taken too seriously by the Senate. "There's no reason why there should be any parking difficulties after the new parking lot is completed," he theorized.

HOWEVER, J. Broward Culpepper, Dean of Student Welfare, who took up where Martin left off, held the whole matter in perspective. Indeed, become so serious as to have state-wide repercussions.

The students are butting their heads against a wall, Mauch, to

UGA to Consider Discount Service For FSU Students

Students with pinched budgets may find relief in the form of a plan presented by Will Pennell, University Government Association president, at the University Council meeting this week.

Pennell proposed a student discount service, which is intended to cut down on the high cost of production is in the hands of the students, Mr. Busfield wrote the original radio script.

At 10 p. m. religious leaders of Tallahassee will extend their Christmas greetings.

"The benefits to the student are obvious," says Will, "but we've got to look out for the merchants who will benefit them, too. With lower prices, students will be more likely to buy in Tallahassee instead of elsewhere."

Pennell reported that a similar plan is already in successful operation for University of Miami students.

Library Announces Holiday Regulations

All students, including graduate students, must return library books on or before Monday, December 17.

An additional charge of 25 cents per book will be made if any such book not returned by this date since library records must be cleared before the Christmas holidays.

The library will be open part-time during the holidays and hours of operation will be posted in advance. Further details of holiday regulations may be found in the "Key" now or may ue secured in the library.

UGA Council Changes Quota For Who's Who

Thre per cent of the senior class will be eligible for listing in "Who's Who," as a result of a resolution passed by the University Council at its meeting Tuesday.

In the event that the number of eligible seniors number less than 20, the quota will be set at 20. It was decided after a motion by Ted Steinmeyer that a committee be organized to work out a percentage quota.

The "Who's Who" committee had reported the names of senior nominees for that year's edition of the former selection of 20 members.

Will Pennell, Council Chairman, announced that the superintendent of the City Transit Company had been contacted in regard to a modified rate for students, and said that no action will be taken on sales violations by civilians.

Jim Lohmeyer suggested that if the bus were rerouted around the school so as to go near more student housing units, volume might be increased, and this will be taken up with the superintendent of the bus line.

A COUNCIL sponsored Christmas tree was to have been erected by Wednesday in the rear of Westcott, according to Lohmeyer. Lohmeyer assured members that the would postpone needed repairs to the Westcott chimes.

The Campus Chest drive, to be held next quarter, was previewed in detail in the Drive Committee's organizational report.

Reports were given by the Organizational, Social Standards and Funds committees on which work for the balance of the semester was outlined. The proposed plans were approved by the Council.

PATTY MIMS, chairman of Allen's Judicial Council, requested the appointment of a replacement for the temporary vacancy caused by her chairmanship. Bess Enge was appointed to fill the vacancy temporarily, and will follow the same procedure as the Men's Council with regard to voting and other matters.

A committee was appointed to investigate methods used in selecting permanent members. Members include Betsy Rich, vice-president in charge of Interfaith affairs; and Jim Kirk, vice president in charge of legislative affairs.

Quota Is Filled for Blood Drive as 577 Pints Are Given

IT'S SAD when you have to give a pint of blood to get out of class. Some FSU students try to relax in infirmary beds as they watch the nurses taking a pint of their blood. Last day for donations was yesterday.

Surging to its peak, the little red thermometer caused 100 per cent of the quota filled by Florida State University students during the blood for Korea" drive on campus.

Fallins short only on the first day, students and faculty jammed the fourth floor of the Health Infirmary Monday through Thursday to donate a pint of their blood. However, several of the students could not fill a whole bottle. Credit is given to each member that tried to donate the pint. Bob Griffin, blood drive chairman, said.

THE UNIVERSITY of Florida donated a total of 552 pints during their four day drive last week.

Over 800 students attempted to donate blood. Sirning the register to donate blood were 841 students. Many applicants were

75 Fresh Coeds Can Be Tapped

Ten percent or 75 of the freshmen women will be tapped for Sophomore council beginning this spring, and only active sophomore members will be allowed to tap in freshmen dormitories.

Women's Senate voted Wednesday to pass these two recommendations made by the sophomore council committee set up within Senate. This committee suggested that all former members be invited to the breakfast traditionally held the morning after tapping.

A SOPHOMORE council member gave the annually expected report from that group and that report was unanimously accepted

Senator Mary Hekin Speed, chairman of the legislative codifying committee, presented the proposals made by that group that freshmen women be allowed one free weekend during the stipulated five that they must remain on campus.

Senate members changed this decision slightly in they vote with a recommendation that after the office of the dean of women announces a special weekend as in the case of the Miami game, the freshmen be allowed to go to the game or home for that particular weekend

THE STUDY GROUP also voted to have the travel-after midnight rule for women put back to the parents' permission blank It has been the rule for each student expecting to travel after midnight in a car, to get special permission from her parents for each occasion. Women's Senate felt that needless complications arose from this ruling

Senator Alise Davidson reported that the Registrar's office stated that registration before going home for semester vacation is, at present, out of the question.

The above two recommendations will go to the faculty review board.

Wet-Dry Issue Has Attention of FSU

Florida State University has become more involved in the wet-dry issue during the past

Doak S. Campbell, president of the University was quoted Wednesday by a Tallahassee Democrat reporter as saying he "didn't want to be drawn into the issue as FSU's president," but that he would make known his stand as a citizen of Leon county.

SPEAKING AT a meeting of the local Lions Club yesterday, Campbell said he felt the legalization of liquor sales in the county would meet the disapproval of "large numbers of patrons and prospective patrons of our schools."

He made it clear from the beginning of his speech that his views "must not be construed as representing the position of the University," and that "I realize that I am expressing an opinion.

"However, in my constant efforts to work for the best interests of our students, I maintain close relationships with many of their families throughout the state. As I interpret their desires and their hopes, I am forced to the belief that this question rests upon a strong base."

HE SAID that the question was not the individual's right to drink, but "whether it is desirable for the sale of alcohol in Leon County is to be made easy by legal sanction."

"Many of my friends consume liquor whenever they please, each according to his own feeling of his. This, I take it, is a personal responsibility and is not the matter upon which our votes are to be cast on December 18. I do not intend to cry fanatic in any one on this point," he remarked.

"This responsibility," though, he said "relates especially to the families of some 8,000 young people who attend the two institutions of higher learning that are located in our city. It is our obligation to surround these young people with a wholesome environment as far as few conditions as possible that would dissipate their

Les Jongleurs Pass New Attendance Bill

An amendment requiring all officers so attend at least three-fourths of all executive council meetings was passed by Les Jongleurs as a meeting recently.

The honorary theater group also voted to suspend from membership any member who loses a part in a production for reasons other than sickness. A suspended member may be reinstated by action of the executive council.

A committee was appointed to report on costs and designs of pins to be adopted by the club. Serving on the committee are Jean Flynn, chairman, Blair Hennessey, Beatrice Lasher, and Kenneth Martin.

President Kenneth Martin awarded points to all persons who worked on the production of You Can't Take It With You. Points are awarded on a fixed basis toward admission to Les Jongleurs.

Dr. George McCamon and Douglas Russell, faculty advisors, were also present at the meeting.

MRS. DOROTHY SMITH, chairman of the Jacksonville blood bank, who handled all procurement, became so impressed with the school spirit she donated a pint of her own blood during the slow first day. "The arrangement on the fourth floor of the infirmary was the finest I've ever seen," said Mrs. Smith. She thanked all the groups that cooperated in the campus drive.

A second drive will be scheduled next spring. The date has not been set, but it might possibly be in March or April.

Tarpon Show

Morrison, Jo Wade and Diane Van Dusen.

A modern dance routine introduced the "City of Brass" scene. The swimmers put their strokes to syncopated jazz and the effect was pleasing, rhythimicity as well as visually. The strokes featured seemed to be the most difficult of the show.

FROM THE "MINNOWS" swimming in the "Ladies of Bagdad" scene, the writer would say they were rapidly growing into full-fledged fishes. In groups and lines they formed circles and intricate water patterns. In the effects department the use of the on the water curtain, a mist of spray, at the offset of the act was one of the most unusual bits of scenery used in the show.

The Prince and Princess duet featuring Jean Rigell and Pete Dunn-Rankin was a graceful example of precision swimming. As Pete swam the diagonals in an underwater ballet, his partner mimicked his stroke on the water's surface. The ease and grace of their duet-combination made the duet the outstanding number of the show.

Heavy applause and standing-room-only attendance Monday and Tuesday nights were concrete evidence of the success of the Tarpon show.

Committee Formed To Investigate Future Infractions

A committee of four University Court members will investigate all future infractions of the Honor Code in the barracks and dormitories, according to Chief Justice of Women's Judiciary Alice Jackson.

The committee will replace the former system by which the chief Justice carried on the investigations. The plan was instituted to avoid any personal prejudice or biased opinion in investigations.

Committee members are Senators Marilyn Harris, Terry Stein, Tommy Bowen and Tommy Simmons.

Plans for a Court Affairs Hour have been completed. The Hour will be held after Christmas from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The Chief Justice and a member of the Court or Investigating Committee will be present to hear reports on cases.

Three vacancies on the Court were filled recently. Lois Ray, senior member, will fill a vacancy left by Sadie Gibson. Martha Waring, senior member, replaces Barbara Caruthers who is interning this semester. Billy Bloom is filling a permanent vacancy which was not filled at Court elections last spring.

Hungarian Thinks U.S.A. Is Wonderful

By ELIZABETH VON WIENER

After American liberation at the end of the war, I was given a job with the Red Cross Corporation of America. Working with them for a year, I traveled to various parts of Bavaria, and finally arrived in Nuremberg where we attended the Nuremberg Trials. This was a thrilling experience.

I was born on the blue Danube in Budapest, Hungary, one of the most beautiful cities in the world. My father was a Greek Orthodox priest. I graduated from International school where I learned English.

In 1944 the horrors of war were upon us. We were bombed twice a day for about three or four hours at a time. My father became separated from my mother and me. As the front drew closer to us, we received word that my father was killed by the Russians. On October 11, 1944, my mother and I decided to flee to Austria. We were there six months before fleeing again. This time it was to Bavaria, Germany. A few days after our arrival came the end of the war—American liberation.

Through an uncle in New York, we had the opportunity of coming to the United S a. We arrived here five years ago. It is hard to describe the feeling I had upon finding this new freedom to do and say what you feel, to eat all you want, to see the beautiful skyscraper buildings, instead of war ruins.

After staying a month in Buffalo, New York, we came to St. Petersburg, Florida. Our happiness was even fuller when we received word that my father was living. He had escaped in Yugoslavia, and was living in a monastery. We pray he will get to come soon to America.

On December 2 of this year I will get my final papers to become an American citizen!

I attended high school and junior college in St. Petersburg. A senior at FSU, I am majoring in Inter-American Relations. I like good movies, books, sports, languages and traveling.

Someday I want to return to Hungary for a visit with friends and relatives so as tell them about my wonderful new home, the United States.

Graduate Club Gives Party Next Monday

The Graduate Club of Florida State University will sponsor a Christmas party at the West Campus Student Union December 17, beginning at 7 p.m.

Party chairman, Mr. Lonnie Cavanagh announced that admission to the party "will be one 25-cent toy."

These toys will be distributed by Santa Claus at the party. Before the party is over the toys will be collected and later taken to a nearby children's home. This is a party for the clubs "all in Santa Claus" program.

Entertainment will consist of carol singing, dancing, several skits. The arrival of Santa Claus will top off the evening's program. Dean of Men, Dr. Otis McBride will play Santa Claus for the evening.

Committee chairman for the occasion are Clinton Clay, decorations; Nancy Cavanaugh, hostess; Arnis Anthony, publicity; Jean Simmons, party arrangements. All graduate students, are cordially invited to attend, and to bring their friends.

Students, Faculty Discuss Grievances

Over 1 000 North Carolina State College students aired their grievances with college authorities Saturday night.

After a question and answer session with college officials, the students agreed to settle their differences with no further mass demonstrations such as were staged at William Neal Reynolds coliseum on the campus the two nights before.

Tear gas was brought into the place by policemen Friday night to disperse some 300 students after they hurled rocks, overturned a wagon, and blocked traffic leading from the coliseum.

The only indications of the cause of the rioting came in questions posed to Chancellor J. W. Harrelson and Business Manager J. G. Vann. The questions ranged from dressing at athletic events, rentals from events at the coliseum and the policy on excuses from classes.

Physics seminar speaker last week was Dr. Leon Sherman, assistant professor of meteorology.

Dr. Sherman discussed "Computation by Analogue Machines."

The assistant professor came to Florida State University from the Institute of Geophysics at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Students Excavate Burial Site

Four human skeletons were unearthed by a group of students recently.

These students, whose only qualification as archaeologists is an enthusiasm for digging and a spirit of adventure, had volunteered their services in response to an announcement by Dr. Hale G. Smith, of the archaeology department that workers were needed immediately to excavate an Indian site south of town.

THE SITE was known to be a burial mound of a fairly late aboriginal culture. Previously, C. B. Moore, a well-known archaeologist, had investigated the layer protruding above the ground. He did not, however, dig below the surface, nor did he record scientific data concerning his findings. The task of completely excavating the mound for pottery and skeleton's remains which might enable anthropologist to reconstruct the history and culture of the aboriginal people was left for Dr. Smith and his adventuring volunteers.

The students participating were divided into four groups under direction of Mr. Willsberg, Mrs. Anderson, Glenn Allen, and Mosran Smith, of the archaeological department. These groups dug down in four inch layers. In order to maintain a correct time sequence, objects found on each layer were bagged and marked separately.

THREE OF FOUR burials containing pieces of pottery and skeletons were unearthed. Mr. Willsberg stated, "The pottery, which is the main interest of the archaeologist, was very unique. Some large pieces with unusual designs were found which will help us a lot in our study of the aboriginal people of this area."

Unfortunately, the mound had previously been "gopher-holed" by an amateur archaeologist. Some of the remains were badly ruined and out of place. A bull-dozer also ran over the mound further destroying the artifacts.

Another expedition is planned. This time a shell mound and village site south of town will be excavated. They are suspected of containing many useful remains.

energies and divers them from the original objective—getting a wet-dry wholesome, competent, educated citizens.

MEANWHILE, Rod K. Shaw, FSU business manager, told a meeting of the non-teaching staff Tuesday that their individual jobs in no sense depended on how they voted," and that no one would be asked how he voted.

He said he wanted to tell them, however, "just as a matter of statistics and their bread and butter," a drop in enrollment which might result from Leon County's going wet and Alachua's remaining dry would result in a comparable drop in the staff. .

Shaw thought the facts indicated a possible drop of 20 to 30 per cent in enrollment in the event of a victory for the wets, because worried parents would call their children home.

CAMPBELL WANTED to make it clear that the University was not trying to coerce its staff. "There has been all sorts of gossip that we are trying to manhandle these people and make them vote dry," but the University is not going to become involved in it, he said Tuesday.

And at the Lions Club yesterday, the president stated, "members of the faculty and staff of the University are free to vote for candidates and on issues, each according to his own conscience and judgement."

The Florida Flambeau, too, has entered the picture. The student newspaper has been quoted alcewide for saying "it is a known fact that anyone can buy liquor in Leon." The article, and for the statements made by Bob Tippins in his column, "Behind the Ivy."

trying to make laws negating registered parking, he said. "These are the laws, these 11," he stated, referring to the points brought to the Senate in two meetings ago by University Government Association President Will Pennell.

At that meeting, Pennell described the "11" as an agreement between the students and the administration, but both Martin and Culpepper made it a point to observe this view was a "misunderstanding."

DEAN McBRIDE, Dean of Men, rounded out the administration triumvirate by speaking until the end of the Senate's meeting. The only action taken by the student group was passage of a motion to return the bill to committee.

Senators' response to the administrator's views was quite active, and time after time students pressed the three to support their statements.

Jim Kirk, vice-president in charge of Legislative Affairs, and Senator "Pancho" Sved both made it clear that the Student Traffic Court only acted on violations as defined by Senate laws and that the 11 points were not included in those laws.

"DOES THIS MEAN the Senate has only the choice of abolishing the student court or accepting the 11 points as is?" Culpepper was asked. "No," he answered.

Then may the Senate allow zoning violations to go to the Tallahassee court and all others to the student court? "I would not advise that," Culpepper replied, because "it would create a lot of confusion."

Senator Sved requested the Flambeau to warn students that they may be prosecuted for parking in the reserved area, but that the Senate was not responsible for the condition and that such cases are not being tried by the student court.

SANDS' SLANTS

By TOMMY SANDS

BLACK TUESDAY—Bill Dickey one of Baseballs all time catching greats once said, "it's sad when age overtakes a ballplayer, but its even sadder when its a great player.

Last Tuesday was a sad day baseball and its thousands of when Jolting Joe DiMaggio game's brightest star since the of Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth to hang up his spikes.

DiMaggio, now 37, explained he felt he could no longer go each day and do the job that required of him and that to baseball was no longer fun.

For 13 brilliant years the Big was the bell cow of the New Yankees and if the war interrupted him at his there's no telling how far Jolter would have gone. De- the war and numerous in- at the time of his retire- the Clipper leads all active leaguers in most of the life- batting departments.

In 1941 DiMaggio compiled a game hitting streak a mark at 57 game hitting streak—a mark that probably will never be equaled. During the 1951 World Series his tenth, the Jolter set four new individual records—most times playing on a winning team, 9; most series, 10; most times at bat in total series games, and total series games.

Besides his fabulous batting feats Dimaggio gave the Yankees great inspirational lift by just being in the lineup. Another thing the Yanks are going to miss is DiMags box office appeal. Its been estimated that he alone drew between 5,000 and 10,000 fans per game.

Ironically enough Joe has chosen to write his own ending as active player. Since the end of World War II the scribes have been writing DiMaggio epitaph.

Back in 1946 when Joe was having trouble with his batting average the experts tried to wash him out but the next year the Clipper came back to lead the Yankees to pennant and World Championship and to cop the American League's most valuable player award. That's typical of DiMag.

This writer didn't have the privilege of seeing the Big Guy in action until the past season but even at the age of 37 he was a marvel to watch. No doubt he was slowing down but Dimaggio had the hustle and drive of a rookie trying to make the team.

Every spring some gifted rookie pops up and is hailed as another Babe Ruth or Joe DiMaggio, but there's one thing for sure there will never be another Joe DiMaggio, and the Yankee Stadium faithful will never forget that guy out in centerfield with the big number 5 between his broad shoulders.

Don't sell Bud Kennedy's Seminole cagers short yet. Although the Indians have dropped their first four tilts they picked four toughies for early season opponents in Parris Island, Culver Stockton, Mississippi State and Mississippi Southern.

Parris Island was last year's National Marine champs and are even stronger this season. Last week the Marines laid a 90-55 pasting on Georgia Tech, an SEC team.

Mississippi State another Southeastern Conference squad who last year won only four games, have already surpassed that total this season and are reported to have one of the strongest fives in the history of this school.

Big Tom MacLaughlin the Seminole's top scorer during the 1949-50 season, is regaining his old form and has been a tower on defense thus far. Captain Bob Whitmer, while needing a little more time to rest, his football legs has also sparkled on the defense.

Kennedy, who guided the Seminole outfit to the quarter-finals of the National NIAB tourney last year and who won 18 of 27 tilts, doesn't like to lose and you can bet your bottom dollar that the Indian mentor will have his charges ticking by Gator Bowl tournament time.

Benefit Grid Tilt Set for Saturday

Lambda Chi Alpha and Theta Chi social fraternities will clash tomorrow afternoon at 2 in Doak S. Campbell Stadium in a benefit football game for the United Campaign for Associated Charities.

Bob Schmelz and Vic Sacsepanik, star linemen on the Florida State University squad, are coaching the Theta Chi eleven, while Ed Lockard, another Seminole performer, and Jack Kersan are tutoring the Lambdi Chi's.

NO VARSITY GRIDDERS or anyone who has earned a college football letter will be allowed to participate, according to officials of the two fraternities.

Nevertheless, the opposing coaches both declare they will field strong, if not powerful elevens from their 24-man squads. Ed Lockard tentatively lists the following lineup to start for Lambda Chi in tomorrow's tilt. LE, Frank Lorch; LT, Bob Wyatt; LG, Dick Vaughn; C, Bob Carastro; RG, Bob Ryals; RT, Chuck Cain; RE, Dave Pinson; QB, Joe Miller; LH Bill Suttlemyre; RH, E. B. Smith and FB, Jim Landry.

THE GAME is the result of a Theta Chi challenge about a month ago issued to the Lambda Chi fraternity to play a tackle game for charity, with the winner getting a trophy.

The organizations have now agreed to make the game an annual affair for charity rivaling the spring Powder Puff game.

Advance sales are being pushed, in order to insure a large turnout. Tickets are available from members, downtown, or at the stadium, according to Joe Bunnell and Will Pennell, Lambdi Chi, and Carl Epperson, Theta Chi, ticket sales managers.

STUDENTS WILL be admitted at the special price of 40 cents and adults at $1. The tickets are being donated by Lester Robinson, local printer.

A surprise half-time show is on the program, under the direction of Leo Mitchell, Lambdi Chi. of Leo Mitchell, Lambdi Chi.

Lay-off Signal Given To Kerr, 'Champion Of Student Rights'

Note: This article is being reprinted from the Tampa Tribune because of the recent association Florida State University delegates had with the editor mentioned at the joint FSGA-FIPA convention. At this conference editor Kerr championed students' rights.

"The Florida Southern student editor was given the "lay-off" signal today as a result of his campaign against "rats running wild in the girls' dormitories," and the lack of "adequate" fire escapes.

"Bob Kerr, 28, editor of the Southern, college weekly, was told in effect to avoid anything that is not good public relations for the college. The ultimatum was issued by a faculty spokesman after an administrative session Kerr was not asked to attend the session.

"The matter was brought to a head by a paragraph in one of Kerr's editorials appearing in last week's paper.

"Faculty members charged it was a threat of an uprising to occur after the holidays

"The paragraph read: 'Until January we'll leave you to stew over that last one with hopes that the new year brings a few more liberalisms to our ultra-modern exterior and our puritanical interior.'"

Miller Issues Call

Varsity Track and Field practice will begin Monday, January 7, according to head coach Ken Miller.

All candidates for the team are requested to report to the West Campus field house where they will be assigned lockers and equipment between 3:38 and 4:38 on that date.

FSU Gymnasts Favored Again

Dr. Price our Gymnastics coach has pulled another rabbit from his hat of ideas. Dr Price was faced with the problem of keeping up the team strength and preserving the six titles the team won last year.

FSU won the Florida Georgia, Southeastern and National A.A.U. meets and the Southern and National Collegiate meets.

In collegiate meets our varsity team will have to fight hard, but Dr. Price feels that the squad will come out ontop in the National Collegiate Championships.

In the Florida, Georgia and Southeastern A.A.U. meets, the varsity will combine with our graduate students. The graduate students are Bill Roetzheim, National all-around champion; Gene Rabbitt, National side horse champion; and Bill Vretios, Midwestern Indian Club champion of 1949.

Dr. Price will divide this team into two squads, Garnet and Gold squads for the area meets, and since either team should win, FSU will still be on top.

In ate National A.A.U. Price will combine his Garnet and Gold teams into one unit.

With all the power, Dr. Price says he feels much better about the team's chances of defending and keeping the Gymnastic championships at Florida State.

$500 Award Is Open To Mortar Board

The National Mortar Board $500 Fellowship contest for all chapter members was announced here this week by Mrs. Hamilton J. Stevens, chairman of the committee for the award.

The Katherine Wills Coleman Fellowship is given each year to an active member as an aid to graduate study. Any member is eligible if she can qualify for a Master's or Doctor's degree in an accepted university.

Applications must be in by Saturday, December 15. Application blanks and information can be obtained from Mrs. Stevens, 585 Greenwood Ave., San Marino 9, Calif. The winner will be announced in May, 1952.

Veteran center Tom MacLaughlin (top) has paced the Seminoles cagers through the first four games. Maclaughlin, starting his third year as a regular on the FSU five has scored 64 points. Stellar guard Bud Marsee (bottom) a regular on coach Bud Kennedy's 1950-51 Indian squad, has been sidelined indefinitely due to an old back injury received in an automobile accident several years ago.

FSU Cagers Seek First Win Tonight

The luckless FSU cagers will try to break into the win column tonight when they meet the strong Mississippi Southern five in a return match in the west campus gymnasium at 8 p. m.

The Indians who have lost their first four starts dropped a 84 to 43 decision to the Southerners on their home court last Tuesday in the second half of a two-game invasion of Mississippi.

Monday night the Seminoles lost to the Mississippi State Maroons, a Southeastern Conference foe, by a 73-47 count. The other two defeats came at the hands of Parris Island and Culver Stockton.

MISSISSIPPI SOUTHERN, one of the Nation's better small college fives, and a member of the Gulf States Conference has lost but one game, bowing to powerful Dayton of Ohio 49-47.

The Southerners high geared scoring machine is paced by Tom Bishop who has tallied over 1,000 points in two years at the Mississippi school. Bishop, who averaged 28 points a game last season was also selected on the NIAB All American second team.

VETERAN FORWARD Tom MacLaughlin was the big gun in both games. MacLaughlin, starting his third year as a Seminole regular, hit for 30 points against Mississippi State and 15 against Southern to run his four game total to 64 points.

Sophomore Jerry Westhafer and freshman Jim Hardesty collected ten and eight points respectively against Mississippi Southern.

Alcholics Are Ill States Authority

Alcoholism is a three-fold illness of more than 750,000 chronic victims, an anonymous Alcoholics Anonymous representative said in a talk before a small group of social welfare students Tuesday night.

"The alcoholic is sick physically, mentally and spiritually" the representative said. His disease ranks fourth in death tolls with the three major diseases as tuberculosis, cancer and heart. Alcoholism, however, has 50 per cent more victims than tuberculosis.

MEDICAL SCIENCE has decided that alcoholism is possibly an allergy." Doctors have sufficiently proved that alcoholism is sometimes caused by the difference in chemical make-up of the individual bodies

"The mental anguish of the alcoholic is known only to the alcoholic and is something that surpasses even physical suffering" the anonymous speaker said. He said the alcoholic usually goes "back to the bottle" for self pity reasons. He feels unwanted, unappreciated, unsuccessful unloved and angry.

AFTER THE alcoholic has admitted his powerlessness, he develops a trust in a power greater than himself, then makes a decision to turn his life over to God "as he understands him" This information he related from the three first steps from the 12 steps the alcoholic undergoes in his progress back to stability.

The speaker also noted that the tragic part of the physical breakdown of the alcoholic is that he never realizes his state until it is done, and he is the last to realize his condition.

An estimated 65,000,000 people in the United States use alcoholic beverages and of these, some 4,000,000 are affected, the speaker then reported.

THE AA MEMBER said that the AA takes no stand on the coming wet-dry issue in Leon county.

Founded 16 years ago, the AA affects 50 per cent of the recovaries at the outset while 25 per cent slip, but return, while the remaining 25 per cent eventually learn the AA program and accept it if they live long enough. Alcoholics Anonymous has 150,000 members approximately

The reason the group has to remain anonymous is because of influence that a "straying" member may have on another member.

Student Senate Must Stand Firm Behind Traffic Court

The Flambeau wishes to go on record as firmly backing the Student Traffic Court. After a littia initial confusion, the Court, under the able chairmanship of George Gnann, has resolved itself into a smoothly working unit. We feel it is serving a definite need of the stedeot body, and that much undeserved criticism has been directed against the members of the court.

Let us clear up a few points here that are still perhaps not understood generelly by the student body. The Student Traffic Court was created by a constitutional amendment last year. The Traffic Code which it hears cases on was created by last year's Senate. The Student Traffic Court has no jurisdiction over any offences other than those in the Senate-approved Traffic Code. Any gripes about unjust laws should be direcled against members of the Senate.

Not only has there been general confusion about who to blame for the laws, but there has also been confusion about whether or not the provision for reserved parking areas was in the studant Traffic Code. It is not. Reserved parking areas are the bright idea of the administration, and our atudent Senate has not (as yet) incorporated them in the Traffic Code. Because of this, George Gnann has firmly and justly refused to try any cases dealing with violations of these reserved areas. He is to be highly commended for his stand, for he has been under a great deal of administrative pressure to rule otherwise.

At the last Senate meeting, Vice-President Martin, Dean Culpeppee, and Dean McBride expessed the wishes of the administration concerning the reserved parking areas. What it all boiled down to was:

1 The administration has set up the reserved parking areas and they are now in effect. Everybody there knew this already.

2. Any ehange in tha present set up would have to come as a cecommendation, and the administration would give full consideration to any recommendations. This also is understood. According to the UGA Constitution, "all legislation pertaining to areas of student life under administrative jurisdiction (health, safety, public policy, maintenance of buildings and property, academic policy, and public relations) must have the approval of the faculty reviewing board before becoming law." Therefore any legislation on this matter is obviously only a recommendation until passed by this administrative committee. And, as in the past, we certainly expect any legislation to be given serious consideretion.

3. Unless Senata enacts the present reserved parking provisions into student law, or provides a substitute that is acceptable to tha administration, tha Student Traffic Court will not be able to handle the eases, and they will bave to be handled by the administration or the City Police Court. This also is understood by Senate. So far tha Senate seems to be reflecting general student feeling that the reserved areas are unnecessary and that if tha administration wants to set them up they should take the responsibility for it. Vice-President Martin gave reasons for this point of view when he said that parking was so far not a very critical problem, and would be cleared up considerebly when the new parking area across from the BSU was completed. He led the Senate to believe that this would be in the very near future.

The Flambeaa urges the Senate to considee seriously before they pass any legislation putting reserved area provisions in the Traffic Code. Once we have passed student legislation, we are responsible for it. Any bill reserving special areas for privileged groups should be examined with a critical eye, both to: (1) see if it is really needed, and (2) see if the bill actually would eure, in a fair and just mannar, any alleged problems.

● MORE WET-DRY

The following opinion is being presented by Theo Summerkamp, religious reporter for the Flambeau. It expresses his opinion and not necessarily the opinion of the Flambeau. The Flambeau's stand was presented in last Tuesday's issue.

Most church leaders look upon alcoholic beverages like a Congressional crime investigator views an errant tax official.

Although some faiths today have ameliorated their positions about liquor, and sanction moderation in use of alcoholic beverages, many still regard liquor traffic as both a moral and religious threat.

To these church leaders who stand on the "dry" side during a liquor referendum, wine, whisky and ale are tools that wreck homes, degrade personality and abet the crime wave.

To these leaders, legalizing the sale of alcohol because it will do away with bootleg is about the same as legalizing illicit romance to eliminate the hrothel .

A strong moral issue is at stake, and more, a religious issue is involved. The leaders point to Bihle verses which hit hard at the use of alcoholic beverages, and the clergymen attack liquor because of its dual menace.

The average church leader does not try to cloud the issue and makes no more claim about misleading facts hy his opponents than does the man who supports legalized liquor sales.

Church leaders make their stands against alcohol because they feel they are compelled to do so, especially because of their profession.

Religion and alcohol, for the most part, have been long-time foes. It is very likely that they will continue to regard each other with disfavor for many years to come.

The two see the world through completely different pairs of eyea.

● BANG-UP SHOW!

The first annual Charity Football Game, to he held hetween Theta Chi and Lambda Chi Alpha fratarnities is scheduled for tomorow afternoon.

The game will be held in Campbell Stadium with kick-off time 2 p. m. Proceeds will go to the United Campaign of Associated Charities.

A bang-up half-time show which will possibly feature either several circus acts or gymnastics acts has been planned. Cheerleaders will be there to lead the crowd in cheers for hoth fratarnities.

Theta Chi coaches are Boh Schmelz and Vic Szczepanik, and Ed Lockard has been putting the Lambda Chi's through their drills. Uniforms were borrowed from Leon and Chattahoochee high schools for the two teams which will play four quarters of regular tackle hall.

This is another step forward hy fraternities on this campus to help in worthwhile projects.

By supporting your team you support a cause.

● EPITAPH

A suitable epitaph for tha student senate's power (?) and respect in the eyes of the administration would be: United We Fall, Divided We Fall!

What is this thing called respect?

● A WARM FEELING

Evarybody has a warm feeling about Florida Stata University's part in the "Blood for Korea" drive. Some fellow student on a rocky hill in Korea or recuperating in Japan will welcome the "new lease on life" through one of the 576 pints donated on this campus.

As the interest grew and more and more donated hlood the favorite saying became: "Have you given your pint?" The success could not have been accomplished without the cooperation of many.

Dr. Thomas Brooks Jr., FSU head physician, is to be thanked for his time, energy, and advice in organizing the technical setup. Miss Dorothy Clendenin and Dr. Paul Coughlin both gave time unselfishly to assist with the drive.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith, director of the Jacksonville hlood bank, deserves special thanks for accenting student spirit by donating a pint herself during the slow first day.

Thanks to the agencies furnishing free drinks—Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, Seven-Up and the FSU dairy. Thanks to Lovetts, A&P and the FSU dining hall for cookies and to APO and Sophomore council for serving the donors.

Many things helped put life and spirit Into the drive! Business manager Rod Shaw pulled many important strings for the drive. The workmen in the paint shop and the personel in the duplicating department under Mr. George Harrison are to be thanked.

The fine help from the school of nursing, under Dean Vivian Duxhury, helped to establish FSU as a top school of nursing. They donated the entire top floor of the Infirmary and much valuahle assistance.

Many local nurses and doctors from the Leon County Medical society, the Leon County Health department and the Tallahassee Memorial hospital gave time and expense freely.

To John Adams, co-chairman, and the hlood captains in each group, for helping maka pints out of promises, thanks.

Last, but important still, the chairman of the drive, Bob Griffin, wants to thank all his teachers (other ODK members chime in) who are going to let him make up back class work that was missed!

At this Christmas season, tha last issue of the Flambeau this year will end on a thankful note.

For all those who caught the spirit and importance of the campus drive—Thanks, and Merry Christmas!

● MORE PROGRESS

Faculty and Students at Tampa University joined in a holiday spirit when President E. C. Nance snonunced that Tampa University had been accredited hy the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary schools.

The full accreditation marka the high point in the 20 years of existence for the university—two decades filled with constant struggle hy school officials to get the university on a solid basis.

Let Florida State add its congratulations to the many pouring in from colleges and univarsities in the country. Tampa University has hroken the shacklea and made its big step; here is a hope for more progress.

● MERRY CHRISTMAS

In this the final edition of Florida Flambeau 1951, the staff members wish our readers a very happy Christmas and holiday season and many new resolutiona to get you off to a conscientious atart next year.

EDITOR'S SPOTLIGHT

FSU TOPS GATORS IN BLOOD QUOTA!

By ROBERT GRIFFIN Jr.

Tha drive of competition spurred a great many students to the fourth floor of the infirmary during the hot race to "beat Gainesville" in blood donations.

FSU did it! During tha fooc day drive Florida State students and faculty donated 577 pints of blood compared to 552 for tha Gators. But look at peccentages . . . they bave twice as many stodents and still we beat them. Understand that they wers lining up ROTC students and running them through to maka their quota.

Pistols down now, the competition was wonderful because it helped spruce up both drives and who will benefit? Some GI who did bis part in Korea will say thanks.

The drive also destroyed one pet plank of tha Flambeau which is campus apathy. When the students and facoity realize how important somathing really is they turn out.

The drive was successful in many ways. For a whlia it gava a great many atudenta a common bond . . . band-aids on their arms. They could compare sensations and raactions and everybody was much interested.

It was also the first experience for many. Your columnist foc instance. Frankly, I was a bit feightened bnt I realise now its easy and fast. If there is ever an immediate call for blood again stodents will know their reactions and have littla to fear.

It might be noted also that it typed many students who did not know their RH factor or blood type. This will be useful in many ways . . . marriage for the girls, for instance. Look out men!

The Alpha and Omega for donors were Ramon Minx and Mary Lou Kamin. Yesterday, as the final quota was being taken, girls were almost fighting to see who could be tha last one. Mary Lou won the lucky straw.

Cate Stephanie Ambrose finally made it after three trys. She was determined they were going to take a pint after the nurses had some trouble finding her vein. A brava littia gal, this freshman.

When the drive comes back next spring it will be orgnaised to iron out the kinks that were experienced during the current program. FSU can be counted on to do its part again.

* * *

Could it happen here?

A University of Wisconsin history student walked out of an examination, because he said: "It was too easy—an insult to our intelligence."

The ineident occurred yesterday about two minutes after test papers were handed out in a course on history of American thought and culture.

Seymour Handler, a junior from Newark, N. J., shouted disapproval and stalked out of the room.

"I refuse to taka this exam," ha told his classmates. "It has about as much imagination as a pile of sawdust. I'm going out for soma fresh air."

Prof. Merle Corti, Pulitzer prize winning historian who teaches the course, described Handler's actiou as "extreme inconsiderate."

HEAD LINES

A FEW KUDOS AND A STERN WARNING

By ALLAN HEAD

Studenta have just been given a short vacation from reading this column. I'm now giving notice of a much longer one. To explain, this is the last of HEAD LINES, for awhile. When I think of all the people in student government and the administration who will breathe the easier because of it, it almost seems like a public service.

This last column will be an attempt to draw together what has bappened so fac in the student guvernment this year, point ont present dilficnlties, and perhaps offer a few suggestions for tha future.

First of all I'd like to throw a few kudos around. There's been a lot of good work done this year, and those responsible for it deserve praise. Will Pennell has been working hard on his campaign promises, and has handled his office as student body president with a great deal of ability.

Senate has probably done more already this year than they accomplished during all of last. The Standing Rules Committee, in particular, has done a fine job in setting up standardized bill forms and rules of procedure In so doing, they have provided a firm foundation for further constructive action.

The court aystem, ondar tha leadership of Alice Jackson, is making progress toward greater integration and nniformity of policies. These are all commendable actions, and if there are those who say 'It is only their duty," well, there hava always been plenty of atudent government officers who have REFUSED to accept the responsibility of theic office.

There ace some things that student government would oo well to pay more attention to and I'm going to list them now. But if these are ignored sometimes, and officers don't live up to their responsibility, you should still realize that on the whole, atudent government here is progressing and ita books are firmly in tha black. No man, and no organization, is perfect, and it is so we may continue to progress toward greater perfection that I am calling new attention to these.

First and most important is that all stadent government officers have faith in their fellow officers and other students. They should realize that they are working together as a team, and that to be effective they must all abide by, and show respect for, their own constitntion and statutes. Too ofter in the past, student officers have stepped outsida of the rules they have made themselves, and have tried to pull fast ones.

Second, and atill important, is to realize that they are representing the student body and that they have the right to make investigations and recommendations on any university matter affecting the stodents. Even though the main field of activity may be "extra-curricular activities,' they should not hesitate to look into atudent gripes about the dining hall, the bookstore or the method of hiring and firing teachers.

But I said I'd mention present problems. Perhaps most important right now is the traffic problem. I'm in accord with the editorial in today's paper, so I'll let that speak for me Another important matter is that of a Stadent Publications Board This is an item of business I woold orge a great deal of critical study on, for if the UGA sets up censorship of the papec, either direct or indirect the student body has lost tha most important single guarantee of its liberties. What is done now sets a pattern which will last down over the years.

SEMINOLE SCENES

CHRISTMAS—A TRIBE MIGHILY GLAD!

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Merry Christmas, jingla bells, and all that sort of stuff.

Altbough Seminoles and holly trees just do not seeio like a very hep combination, this old tribe is going to be mighty glad to close op the reservation foc a few days and make with the Christmas joy.

To me, the idea of returning to my innerspring mattress, Mom's apple pie and Pop's wallet is more appealing. That, plus the fact that we are all leaving books, classes and twenty-six hours a day schedules behind us, makea this "peace on earth" ideal even more attractive

The Christmas spirit is really working overtime this year as fac as the campus of Florida State University goes. With no objections from tha tabor anions, it started its work infecting people with good will about a month before. All the clubs, organizations and subversive activities on campus have donned Yuletide programs and parties. The dorms, sorority fraternity houses are full of Christmas trees, holly, candies and what-have-you. Everybody is brokeu physically, mentally and financially — mainly the latter—from shopping for what the ads eall "gifts for the dear ones."

The Christmas season will be gay to each of us in his own way. More than likely a few students will get into the swing of thinga by trying to copy Rudolpb's example, and seeing who can produce the reddest noses by consuming the hardest whiskey. (Not that Rudolph got his colorful snozzle that way. Heaven forbid Junior should think such a thing!)

And as one girl put it, "I plan to go to dances, teas, cocktail parties, visting caroling and cocktail parties . . ." Then some of the guys around here will go home and spend a week carefully watering their mistletoe plants. They don't want the season to catch them anprepared.

Others of us will take our middle C out of the cobwebs, round up a group of old buddy-buddies and go drive the neighborhoods mad with our version of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." Some of us intend to go to church this year and thank the Big Chief that the Seminoles, while maybe not having a white Christmas, are certainly having far from a blue one. I think everybody should pull their noses out of the egg nog long enough to weigh that fact.

Many of the students here will go home and help out with the Christmas rush in their hometown stores. Meetiug Mrs. Consumer who can't decide between a Chinese Red or a Cherry Red tie for Unela Mose can sometimes get on your nerves, I suppose, but even Mrs. Consomer at Christmas time isn't a bad old egg.

Then there is New Years, too. We can all stay up until twelve o'clock midnight, blow our horns, and hope like mad that we will pass the forthcoming exams when we return to dear FSU.

Well, just have a good time this season, students—that includes those just enrolled in the University, too. And while wa are at it, we might as well pass a little cheer out to the faculty and staff. I guess they deserve the vacation away from us as much as we do.

ACP ROUND-UP

OHIO STATE HITS ADMINISTRATION GAG

ACP—The Ohio State Lantern has had an irritating year. First the administration came forth with the "gag" law, forbidding outside speakers on campus without first being approved.

Then the Lantern's news sources started to cause trouble: reporters were thrown out of meetings and news stories were almost suppressed.

Bot last week the Lantern raised its arm in a gestore of complete disgust and helplessness. "Some things," it said in an editorial, "are so slupid and vulgar that they arent deserving of comment. But lbis little verbal atrocity calls for an anser."

The Lantern's target was columnist-author Upton Close, who recently toid a convention of Oblo Kiwanians, "Professors are men who can't compete in the business world and protect their weakness in academic freedom. Academic freedom to them means freedom to sponge off the public and freedom to think erooked.'

"Such a statement," cried the Lantern, "is not only foolish . it's outrageous."

Regarding the speaker's "gag' law at Ohio State, Close said, "I would not trust the faculty as a whole. They have mischievous instincts and like to do sensational things. There should be a board of deans or selected older men of approved American instincts to make decisions as to who should apeak The average American is too confused to judge for himself

". . . If you want to destroy our society completely, just invite anyone you want to talk to our children in schools and colleges Maybe we should bring in murderers and rapists and someone to preach free love and a free world."

Asked the Lantern: . . . Are we to assume that 'approved American instincts' are to be designed as mere confusion? And when it comes to doing sensational things after all, Close is better qualified to judge sensationalism than we."

"We could go on and on," continued the editorial 'He said a group of murderous Communists has control of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. He attacked internationalism. He . . well, what's the point of going on?"

* * *

ACP—The University of California band received quite a student sendoff for its trip to UCLA

As the band was loading itself and its equipment into busses students inside the library opened the windows and rained water bombs onto the court below

It was quite a barrage causing an estimated $600 worth of damage to the band's equipment—mostly the drums. One band member got a bloody nose when he attempted to "rush" the bomb throwers.

* * *

ACP—The University of Miami Inter-fraternity Council has voted to abolish all forms of hazing

The new constitutional amendment defines hazing as: "To harass by exacting difficult work: to harass with abusive or ridiculous tricks; to place public or private property in jeopardy; to place an individual in a position of ridicule . . ."

Dear Editor...

The Flambeau will not accept letters over 200 words. All letters to the editor must be double spaced typewritten.

(Editor's Note: Tha Flambeau did not say that anyone can buy liquor in Leon as the author here states. This statement has never been made in the Flambeau this year.)

Legal "Bootleggers"

Dear Editor:

My question is: Who is confused? Either the writer of the editorial has not songht ths facts concerning the issue or has misinterpreted the stand taken by some.

"There is no room for emotionalism in our decision"; so parenta are not supposed to love their children nor care if they have an even break in the struggle to build wholesome lives. Man is a machine—there can be nothing emotional about him nor his actions.

"Anyone can boy liquoc in Leon if he wants it" and it is therefore our duty in tha "responsible" democracy to ensure the "legal bootlegger" tha opportunity to entice everyone to drink poison. (If yoa doubt that it is poison, ask any doctor!) After all, what is the soul anyway? We must be realistic; and yoo can not pat the soul in a test tube so there must not be one. Besides, what is one mare life more or less? You probably couldn't isolate tha "life element" so it cannot be important.

We haven't stopped the bootleggers from breaking the law, so in order to have a better community we'll change the law to make it easier to abide by. And those who now break the law certainly would never break it if it were changed. Of course the record that bootleggers increase when counties go wet applies to other counties. And just look what we could do with all that increased revenue.

The legal sale here woold make the "bootleggers" pay more tax than they now pay in other wet counties for it. Then after paying for the additional wrecks of machine and man, and discounting the few who might loose that intangible "life," we could use the other two dollars (relatively) to boy a book to teach ood kids the way to healthy, happy life even though they never would be able to practire it when they grow np.

"Freedom has its laws" (another editorial) but we'll avoid the moral one and become moral slaves to the things from which they try to protect us. Anyway restrictions and cooperation are for nations, not individuals. The eternal values are too idealistic so we won't try to reach for them.

Harrell R. Cushing.

Pure Truth

Dear Editor:

It is evident that the Wet-Dry issue of Leon County was even more confused by your editorial of December 11, "Issue Confused." While you drummed on "one line of logic" and the "inaccurate, unfair, unintelligent, and emotional term," you showed your ignorance of facts by either willingly or mistakenly bypassing the opportunity to state any thing concrete to support your arguments.

Did you consider that though the United States is legally wet there is more illegal liquor than legal. Did you know that one Southern county tha last year it was dry had 153 arrests for drunkenness and the first year it was wet had 350 such arrests plus a 30% increase in bootlegging.

I also wonder whether you considered tha many business men and private citizens that probably far exceed churchmen in the "Leon Dry Crusade."

It looks like what you label emotionalism, inaccurate and unintelligent is the pura truth.

Sincerly,
William E. Wineberg.

Gym Team's Fame

Dear Editor:

Ralph Hager wrota to the Flambeau a letter in which ha defended football in comparison with the other teams at F.S.U.

I don't wish to start a controversy about which team is the better for F.S.U., but I would like to rectify a few of Ralph's statements

Ralph staled, "that football goes a long way towards providing the funds necessary to operate the athletic porgram" Ralph was wrong The football team's expenses last year exceeded its income by at least $18,000.00 Ralph also slated that the National Championship Gymnastic team of F.S.U. doesn't bring as much publicity to the school as the football team. The Gym team has had three movie shorts on its powers. They were distributed by Universal International and Paramount pictures nationally. They were also featured twice in "Parade Magazine," a nation-wide circulation. They were also featured in "Good Housekeeping" They have been featored twice in an International Gymnastic Edition. In Europe the national sport is gymnastics just as football is the national sport in the U.S.A

Freshmen Receive 810 Unsatisfactories

By AL PIERCE

he Office of Coordinator of unselors has received word from e Registrar's office that out of e 1210 registered freshmen at rida State University, 810 reved unsatisfactroy warnings for e first quarter of the year.

The Office of Coordniators and e entire educational counseling ogram at FSU has been gleared ently to cope with the alarmg number of unsatisfactories nded in at the mid term.

COMMENTING ON the "rallyg to the cause" by the counselg department, Dr. Melvene ardee, coordinator of counselors, ates "The Office of Registrar nt to us a duplicate notice of ch freshman's warning the day fore Thanksgivngi. Our staff rted all the notices according to unselor asignments, and withseven hours had ninety-three elopes containing a directions eet for counselors, a guide sheet r conducting the interview, the egistrar's report for the counselto read, and, finally, a sheet for ach student on which would be orded the action taken to bring the grade."

In response to a question as to w the conferences were going, . Hardee continued: "There ave been only a very few stuents who have not responded to e invitation issued by the counor to come and discuss the ade status. For the most part, ucational counselors find the udent reads to do something out the mark to raise it, parularly before Christmas vacaon."

THE REPORT issued by the udent's educational counselor eals principally with the impressions observed by the counelor as to the possible reasons for e unsatisfactory grade, suggesons as to possible action to be aken to help the student, and ecommendations made by the ounselor of a confidential nature sumed for him to give his sugestions as to what resources of e university may be used in medying the situation.

These reports differ because of individual differences found each student. "All of them, however," states Dr. Hardee, "happily evidence a more profound interest in the student and show his marked determination to work for better marks."

EDUCATIONAL COUNSELORS found a great variety of problems in talking with their students, and many have already worked out possible solutions to them.

One student, for example, has no clear conception of what study really is. The counselor has helped the student make out a time budget and the student is volunteering to report on its success each week.

Another counselor quotes his student as saying he has spent entirely too much time in extra-class events, some of which necessitated trips away from campus.

A third counselor cites that one of his students has been in the hospital the past two weeks and is consequently incomplete in two courses. "These reports," says Dr. Hardee, "will give us in the administrativa offices an idea of how we can deal more effectively with instructional problems."

The office of the Coordinator invites and urgea all students, when they need advice, to get their counselor to help iron out their difficulties with them.

Faculty Members Held Leading Roles In PTA Convention

Three Florida State University faculty members held leading roles in a symposium at the annual State Parent-Teacher Association convention recently in Jacksonville.

Serving as coordinator for the symposium, "Time Runs Out", was Dr. W. T. Edwards, FSU professor of education. Edwards is also chairman of School education of the Florida congress of Parents and teachers.

Roy Flynn, FSU director of communications and radio, dramatized school conditions of the Florida public schools.

Visiting professor of journalism at Florida State, Dr. William Ross Slaughter, served as one of the conference advisors for the session on dramatizing school conditions. Mrs. Suzi Humm, representing Leon high school, was also a conference advisor on school conditions.

"Time Runs Out" included the subjects, "Democratic Purposes", "Children's Needs", School Costs", "Dramatizing School Conditions", "Civil Defense", and "Community Climate".

Pre-Law Students Serve Internship

The program of giving pre-law students attending the Florida State University School of Public Administration the benefit of serving an internship in the state attorney general's office has been highly praised by Attorney General Richard Ervin

In a letter to Miss Juanita Gibson, director of the internship program at the FSU School of Public Administration, Attorney General Ervin has written as follows:

"NOW THAT WE again have our quota of interns from the School of Public Administration, Florida State University, busily engaged in their several assignments in thia office, I am glad of this opportunity to commend you on your excellent internship program. It seems to be that great progress has been made in higher education in that it has adopted a program whicn previously was only carried by Schools of Medicine. By this I mean that the seniors in Public Administration, through your program, are now given the opportunity of practical experience by serving an internship in the several public agencies here in the Capital.

"I feel that knowing how to work with others is of prime importance to a young person starting out in the business world. Further, those who may enter public service certainly are afforded an experience which will be of great value to them in their career.

"AS TO THE STUDENT who intends to enter law school following graduation from Florida State University, I know of no finer introduction to law school than to serve several months in this office, observina the actions of an attorney and the functions of government agencies generally.

"In short, your system appears to ma to be a definite improvement in that it blends with the theoretical the all important knowledge of being able to put into practice that which is learned."

DR. WILSON K. DOYLE, daan of the FSU School of Public Administration, said tha advantage of the school being located in the capital enables students studying public administration to hear lectures each semester from state officials as well as visit the state offices, see the Legislature in action every two years and serve internships in state offices.

John Winslett, Marianna, one of the FSU students now serving an internship in the state attorney general's office, and Clauda Johns, Starke, Florida, both are now engaged in research work. They plan careers in law. Other FSU graduates who have already served internships in the attorney general's office include Cecil Brown, Richard Brooks, Jefferson Davis, Dallas Albritton, Jr., Frank Lowry and Adolfo Navarro.

Two Florida State Seniors Win Magazine Cover Design Contest

Miss Carolyn Henry and Miss Polly Doe, seniors in the Florida State Department of Art, have been announced by the editors of the Florida Wildlife Magazine as winners of cash awards in that magazine's recent cover competition.

The two prize winning illustrations, Miss Henry's depicting a scene from Florida a popular sports of squirrel hunting and Miss Doe's a wild turkey lined up in the sights of a hunter's gun are scheduled to appear as covers of coming issues of the Wildlife magazine

PROFESSOR RUDOLPH JEGART, associate professor of art at FSU, commenting on the unusual success of the two students, states that they have cleared the most difficult hurdle in the world of free-lance commercial art, that of making the first sala.

Professor Jegart continues, "Neither Miss Henry nor Miss Doe consider themselves to be outdoor type girls, which points out that one of the chief aspects of art training is the development of the student's imaginative abilities. A good artist, after a little study or briefing, can 'feel his way' into any situation in the field of art."

THE ART PROFESSOR also says that he is not surprised that these two students hava never been hunting or likely never shot a gun and yet have produced works worthy of such merit. These girls who, after obtaining a broad general education and having acquainted themselves with many facets of life let their training and imagination do the rest Professor Jegart noted.

Egyptain Travels 9,000 Miles to Study at F.S.U.

Ezzat S Younathan, 29, a graduate student from Cairo, Egypt, has come 9,000 miles to work for his master's degree in science on a Florida State University assistantship awarded him by Dr Karl Dittmer, FSU chemistry department executive

HE RECALLS that when he first arrived in this country a year ago, his landlady was surprised at his latest style dress, and his ability to speak English so fluently.

"I guess she must have been expecting me to wear some sort of lona dress similar to that worn by the Koreans or the Mandarin Chinese," he saya. "Actually Egypt is as modern as the United States in many respecta and in education has even higher standards The Egyptian government offers educational opportunities to all young people from the primary grades through college level without any payment of fees."

THE CHILDREN are taught American customs, history, and traditions in grammar school grades, he says. Younathan did his undergraduate work at Cairo University where courses in science, medicine, and engineering are offered in Enalish.

Two hundred students in post graduate courses are aponsored by tha Egyptian government in European and American universitiea. These graduates are expected to return and work for the government in their specialized fields for five years at good pay.

AMBITIOUS to return to his native country to do research work, he hiahly praises the cooperation given him at FSU. With a climate similar to his nativa Egypt, he likes warm Florida.

Younathan said his people are trying to regain the independence that people of America enjoy. He said the Egyptian people ara weary of 65 years of occupation by foreign troops.

"The people of my country believe in taking their time. Family life is closely united and the children are very respectful of their parents and elders. Life is more leisurely and much less of tha hustle and bustle than in this country," he commented.

New Chaplain Stresses Peace of Mind in Work

By THEO SOMMERKAMP

"Success is measured by peace of mind and happiness in work, not in terms of money."

This statement by the Rev. Joseph Daley, new chaplain of Newman Club, Catholic student organization, is the keynote of the young priest'a life.

Father Daley entered the priesthood after high school days in Boston, Mass., where he was reared, because he found no happiness in other work. Today, he offers his statement as advice to frustrated, perplexed college students who are worried about future careers.

"Choose something you are well qualified for," the red-haired New Englander tells his student parishioners. "And remember that money is not everything."

The naw chaplain came to Tallahassee, where he is assistant pastor of tha local parish, from a position as pastor-teacher at St. Peter and Paul's High School, Miami. As assistant pastor here, he became Newman Club'a chaplain shortly before Thanksgiving.

The Rev. Daley comes wellqualified for his task as chaplain-advisor. The 27-year-old priest is well-educated, having studied at Mount St. Mary's, Emmitsburg, Md., where he received a bachelor of science degree in biology, and more lately at Georgetown College and Catholic University, both in Washington, D. C., where ha specialized in English literature.

The priest, who is 6 ft. 1 in. and weighs about 180 pounds, bypassed a possible baseball career as a pitcher to become servant of his faith.

Father Dailey's ambition in lifa is "to do all God wants me to do to be saved." He wants "to work . . . to bring peace and happiness to those placed in my care and to respect and understand those who do not belong to my faih."

Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays have slowed down the young priest'a plans for Florida State University Newman clubbers, bnt the Rev. Daley hopes to have them under way with the start of the new year.

As chaplain, he will minister to more than 50 membera of Newman Club and many more Catholic students not members of the club. About 400 F.S.U. students belong to the Catholic faith.

The aim of the club itself—named in memory of John Henry Cardinal Newman, English clergyman prominent in the Oxford Movement, is to aid Catholic students at collega in mattera of faith and morals. Tha local club is one of many existing at American and English colleges.

The first Newman Club started in 1892, but the one on tha Tallahassee campus cama some time later, while the university was Florida State College for Women.

Point On Probotion Activity Slips Due

Collega Point is still off limits for women in spite of any rumors, it has been verified by tha Dean of Women, Katharine Warren.

The College Point is on probation for the use of men. Thia does not apply to women, the Dean of women ramined, however.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

SHEEDY looked bird-seedy with his ruffled hair. He didn't know feather to bury his head, or go on a wing-ding! "Owl I ever get a date for the prom?" he asked his tree roommates. "You're robin yourself of popularity, birdbrain," they chirped. "Better be cagey and get Wildroot Cream-Oil! It's non-alcoholic! Contains soothing Lanolin! Grooms your hair neatly and naturally. Relieves dryness ... removes loose, ugly dandruff!" Now Paul's flying high! The tweetest little chickadee on campus has him out on a limb. So get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil at any drug or toilet goods counter tomorrow. And next time you see your barber, ask him for a professional application. Then you'll really be in there pigeon!

Museum Curator to Describe Chinese Porcelains in Lecture

Madame Aza-Oglu, curator of the Division of the Orient, Museum of Anthropology at the University of Michigan will give a free, public lecture on "Chinese Porcelains" at 5 p. m. today in the Science Lecture Hall.

An outstanding authority in the field of ceramics, having studied at the University of Vienna and the Universities of Berlin and Jena, Madame Aza-Oglu will describe how Chinese porcelains were brought into this country hundreds of years azo and how they were used by the Franciscan monks and the Indians.

IN A RECENT ARTICLE written by Madame Aza-Oglu and Professor Hale G Smith, head of the department of archaeology and anthropology at F.S.U. and published by the Royal Ceramic Society of London, the definite relationship between the Indians and the Chinese porcelains in Tallahassee and other Florida areas is explained.

In this article it is described how the Spanish by 1580 A. D. were bringing Chinese porcelains into Mexico from the Philippines. From Mexico the porcelains were reshipped to Spain an dthe Spanish possessions at the New World.

WHEN THE mission chains were established in North Florida in 1632, the Franciscan monks brought in Chinese porcelain for their own use. Some of this material was also traded to the Indians, who were happy to get even the broken pieces of porcelain since they colued chip them like flint and make tools.

In their excavations in the Tallahassee area, the department of archaeology and anthropology have found fragments of the porcelains brought here with the advent of the Spanish forts and missions.

Christmas Spirit Comes to Campus As Greeks Plan Various Parties

By MARCIA MORRIS

Alpha Gamma Deltas were guests of the Sigma Nu's at a party Tuesday night. On Sunday there will be a hayride for Alpha Gam's and their dates. The annual Christmas party for actives, pledges, and alumni will be held Sunday at the home. Alpha Gam pledges made "promotion of Christmas spirit" their project by suggesting to other pledge classes that they decorate the doors of sorority houses this year.

Friday night is the date set aside for the Chi Omega Christmas party when pledges will sing their original songs. Dr. Harold Richards will be Santa Claus and deliver presents that will later be given to some needy family.

Delta Delta Delta pledges are treating the actives every Sunday morning by serving breakfast. Next week will begin a series of Sunday night suppers for Tri Delta, the proceeds of which will go into the scholarship fund. Tri Delta began celebrating Christmas with a tree decorating party Sunday night. On Tuesday the alumni gave a party for the pledges, and Monday will be the annual chapter Christmas party.

Two parties were planned this week for the Alpha Gamma house. Wednesday was the tree trimming party and Sunday afternoon at 4:00 is the Christmas party. Delta Gams are extending thanks to the ATO's for returning their anchor in time for Christmas.

Pledges of Kappa Delta are in charge of the tree trimming party to be held Friday night at the house. K D's will exchange toys, which will be sent to The Crippled Children's Home in Richmond, Virginia at the Christmas party Monday night. Pledge songs and refreshments are included in plans for the party, for which Eleanor Green is chairman.

A culture hour and coffee was held Monday night by Phi Mu. Dean Warren was the honored guest. Next Monday the pledges will entertain with their "Christmas Tune" pledge party. The chapter Christmas party will be Monday night, and pledges are presenting a skit for entertainment.

A reception was held at the Pi Beta Phi House on Sunday honoring their Grand Secretary, Mrs. Carson. Pledges are in charge of the chapter Christmas party which will be Monday night. Toys will be exchanged at the party and later given to needy children. Judy Ellis, representing Pi Phi, is one of the finalists in the Smoke Signals cover girl contest.

Sigma Kappa's entertained the ATO's with an informal party at the house Thursday night. Wednesday night President and Mrs. Campbell were guests of the Sigma Kappa's for dinner.

Alpha Xi Delta is hostess to Christmas party Monday night at the home Santa Claus, Chick Benda, will preside over the festivities which include an original poem written about each member in the chapter, and the exchange of gifts to go to a Florida orphanage. Saturday afternoon the Alpha Xi's and Delta Tau Delta are giving a Christmas party for some of Tallahassee's underprivileged children.

Alpha Tau Omega was winner of the basketball intramurals with an undefeated team. A group of ATO's from Florida State inspected the Alpha Tau Alpha petitioning colony at the University of Miami. Mike Sellers, Curtis Campbell, Nelson Italiano, and Steve Kolenich are nominees from Epsilon Sigma chapter for the All American-All ATO football team.

Kappa Sigma members met their pledges in a football game on Landis Green last Sunday, and won by a score of 18-0 Recently initiated into Kappa Sigma was Bob Rowekel, Clyde Stanaland, and Fred Hodges. Elected was Kent Saylor, and Jim Hardy. The annual Founder's Day banquet of Kappa Sigma was held at the Cherokee Hotel last Tuesday. Christian A. Nativi, retiring treasurer, was speaker. Friday night a Christmas party is being held at the house for members and their dates. An informal dance party will be held Saturday at the Rogers' home in Quincy.

Sigma Chi held pledging Thursday night for Jerry Ellerwood. Wednesday they attended a tree decorating party given for them by the Kappa Alpha Theta, a hamburger fry at Silver Lake is planned for Saturday night. Entertainment will consist of singing, dancing, and Christmas carolins at the Silver Lake home.
